30 KILLED, 50 INJURED, IN AIR RAID ON VALENCIA

British Embassy Damaged by Rebel Bomb, Two of Its Employes Hurt, in Attack on Loyalists' Seat of Government.

INSURGENTS TIGHTEN RING ABOUT BILBAO

Press Hill Fighting Near Basque Capital; Cruiser Shells Mount; Defenders Say They Still Hold Important Peaks.

By the Associated Press.

VALENCIA, Spain, May 15. — More than 30 persons were killed here tonight and 50 injured in an insurgent air raid. Valencia has been the Loyalist seat of Government since early in the siege of Madrid.

The raid, described as the most disastrous Valencia has experienced in the Spanish civil conflict, damaged the British Embassy and destroyed a number of buildings.

A fleet of raiders roared out from over the sea at dusk. Thousands of persons caught in the streets unawares raced for shelter.

One bomb which struck in front of the British Embassy critically wounded the Embassy's Spanish cook and slightly injured a doorman.

Almost every window in the building was shattered and furniture in the front rooms was wrecked when the explosion shook the building.

Several passengers in a passing street car were injured and taken into the Embassy for first aid treatment. The vehicle's windows were smashed.

One bomb fell in front of the Ministry of Marine.

Insurgents Use Air, Sea, Land Attacks on Bilbao.

By the Associated Press.

VITORIA, Spain, May 15.—Swarming over and around forbidding heights that bar their path, the Insurgent armies converging on Bilbao today reported advances at points on a 14-mile front.

Dispatches to Insurgent headquarters here say the northern wing has moved beyond Mounts Sollube and Jata and reached the outskirts of Munguia, seven miles northeast of the Basque capital.

The southern wing is reported to have encircled Amorebieta, where a Basque garrison clings tenaciously to the town, which is strategically situated in a valley 10 miles southeast of Bilbao.

Dispatches from Bilbao insist that Mt. Jata, an important peak because it dominates Bilbao's outlet to the sea, is still in possession of the Basques. They also deny the loss of Mt. Sollube.

The Insurgents say they have taken Arrieta and several other towns north of Amorebieta and report several hundred Basques fell in defense of this section.

Using the same technique which they report captured Mt. Sollube, Insurgent General Emilio Mola's field oficers say they took Mt. Jata by sending 35 planes ahead to drop bombs on the Basque hillside trenches and set fire to the pine-covered slopes.

The Insurgents threw their full force into this attack. They even summoned their cruiser Almirante Cervera in close to the Bay of Biscay coast and it poured shells on Basque defenses in the Mt. Sollube region.

Official spokesmen in Paris of the Basque Government declared today it had no intention of seeking a truce with its enemies.

Any attempt to bring the Bilbao Government into conversations with Insurgent General Francisco Franco or "with the nations assisting Franco"—meaning Italy and Germany—would be doomed to failure in present circumstances, the spokesman said.

They declared the only message the Basques would be disposed to accept from such nations would be notification they had withdrawn their armed forces from Spanish territory.

NEW WOMAN ENVOY LETS OUT SECRET AT FIRST INTERVIEW

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman Supposed Everybody Knew of U.S. Negotiations With Norway.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, New York and Washington society woman, was sworn in today as Minister to Norway.

Five minutes later, much to the discomfiture of a State Department official, she learned that rule No. 1 for diplomats is to be non-committal. She inadvertently disclosed to reporters that the State Department was discussing with Norway a reciprocal trade treaty—something the reporters were not supposed to know about just now.

Mrs. Harriman, recently appointed by President Roosevelt, took her oath at the State Department at noon. Immediately afterward she received reporters the department's press relations man stood at her side.

One of the interviewers asked if she expected to negotiate a trade agreement with Norway.

"Oh, that's already being done," she said.

"There's been no official announcement about that yet, Madam Minister," the department press adviser reminded her.

"But I thought everybody knew that," she said.

"I am vastly interested in Norway," she went on, "and I hope to carry on the great work done there by my predecessor—."

The department press adviser was determined, however, to clear up the trade agreement situation. He interrupted: "We have only been exploring the matter thus far. It is not quite correct to say that the negotiations are in progress."

"Oh," said Mrs. Harriman. "I see."

WOMAN LEAPS TO DEATH FROM DECK OF LINER

Captain of Cunard Ship, Franconia, Reports Suicide on Arrival at San Pedro, Cal.

By the Associated Press.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., May 15.—Mrs. T. Chittenden Hill, about 50 years old, leaped to her death in the ocean from the deck of the liner Franconia at 5 a. m. Thursday, Captain G. R. Dolphin reported when it arrived today. Her home was in Eastern Point, Gloucester, Mass.

Capt. Dolphin said members of the Cunard-White Star liner's crew saw Mrs. Hill leap and the ship was turned about in a rescue attempt, but no further trace of her was found. He understood she has two sons in New York City.

The captain reported the death to British Vice-Consul T. W. Irvin of Los Angeles.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Justice Willis Van Devanter is the only member of the Supreme Court who is considering resignation from the bench at this time, this correspondent learned today.

Despite persistent rumors that two or more Justices would resign at the close of the present term, the other members of the court are determined to stick it out. Justice Louis D. Brandeis, one of the "liberal" Justices, who has upheld many New Deal acts, has been profoundly stirred by the controversy over the court and has indicated to associates that he has no intention of resigning in view of the present crisis.

Brandeis' name has been most frequently linked with the resignation rumors. He is 80 years old—the oldest member of the court.

There are two decisions now before the court in which Van Devanter is interested. He has said that if the court should reach an agreement on these decisions today, at the customary Saturday afternoon conference, he may resign on Monday.

This information comes from an authoritative source close to the bitter controversy stirred by President Roosevelt when, on Feb. 5, he had introduced his bill to appoint six new Justices to the Supreme Court.

Argument of Opposition.

Senate leaders of the opposition to the court enlargement plan have tried in every way possible to persuade the Justices, and particularly those in the "conservative" bloc to remain on the bench. To resign or retire now, they have argued, would be a confession of defeat. It would mean retreating under fire.

At least two Justices have been moved by this reasoning regardless of any intentions about resignation that they may have held prior to the court fight. Justice George Sutherland has said that he will die in office rather than resign. The attitude of Justice James Clark McReynolds is similarly adamant.

Senator Wheeler of Montana, another opposition leader, takes a point of view opposed to that of Burke of Nebraska and VanNuys of Indiana, who have fought the court scheme. Wheeler holds that the present prolonged quarrel should not deter the Justices from any course of action they may have contemplated before the President's bill was introduced. Resignations at this time by those Justices who are known to have long considered this course would strengthen the position of the court, he has argued. Wheeler is the most experienced politician in the opposition.

Van Devanter in Poor Health.

Van Devanter, who is 78 years old, has wanted to resign for more than two years. He has been in poor health and has felt severely oppressed by the burden of court work during the last few days. He is one of those who gave an assurance to Chairman Hatton Sumners of the House Judiciary Committee that he would resign when Congress had passed a voluntary retirement bill granting Federal Judges full pay for life with immunity from acts of Congress.

This, of course, was before the President proposed to add six Justices to the court. Sumners had prepared the way in both the House and the Senate for the passage of the voluntary retirement bill which was to have been put through with little or no discussion about the court. Then, according to the understanding which Sumners had arrived at, two Justices were to have resigned. Sumners is known to be closer to the court than any one else in Congress.

But Sumners was not taken into the President's confidence about the court reorganization bill. The first word he had of it was from newspaper men. Naturally, considering his position as head of the House Judiciary Committee, he was angry and he let the President see how he felt. The President was not inclined to take Sumner's protest seriously, expressing doubt that the two justices would have resigned in the event that the retirement bill had quietly been slipped through both House and Senate.

Sumners' Grievance.

This added to Sumners' grievance and ever since he has given voice to his complaint, insisting that there would have been no court controversy had his plan not been overthrown or rather ignored, by the White House.

The extraordinary length to which the controversy has gone is indicated by the effort made by opposition leaders to persuade members of the court to keep their places on the bench. One friend of several of the justices is doing liaison work

FORD UNIONIZING WELL UNDER WAY, MARTIN DECLARES

U A W A President Says Organization Has Attained 100 Per Cent in Some Plants.

OPEN DRIVE SET FOR THIS WEEK

Locals Already Formed in River Rouge Factory, Leader States; 'Prepared to Fight.'

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., May 15.—Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, told this correspondent today that a preliminary campaign preparatory to the promised "mopping up" of Henry Ford was well under way, with some Ford plants already organized 100 per cent.

Martin, who asserted March 24, last, at union labor's greatest demonstration at Cadillac Square here, that Ford "might as well get ready" to do business with organized workers, disclosed that a quiet recruiting campaign had accomplished its purpose and that an open membership drive would begin next week.

"Special headquarters will be opened next week for the Ford campaign," Martin said, "near his great River Rouge Plant. Local unions have already been organized in that plant and in certain other plants we have attained an organization of 100 per cent."

Martin, following his strategy manifested at the outset of the successful General Motors strike, did not disclose the number of Ford employes who had enrolled in the union. He stated that "a substantial percentage" of a potential field of 125,000 workers had joined.

The union leader said that he was "hopeful" union recognition might be obtained amicably from the single great automobile concern which has failed to enter into an agreement with the auto workers union, which has developed rapidly into one of the principal organizations affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization.

"We feel that our relationships with other major factors in the automobile industry attest to the fact that civilized relationships between labor and capital have entered industry," Martin said, "and are essential for the welfare of all concerned and the American way of life.

"It is our hope that we may peaceably negotiate with Henry Ford. We have reason to believe that this may be brought about.

"But, if we have to fight, we will be prepared to do so. The first phase of our recruiting campaign has been completed. Within the next few days the membership drive will have attained full force. If the time should come when action is required, we will be ready to act."

Ford Company to Distribute Cards in Drive Against Unionism.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, May 15.—The Ford company will distribute cards Monday morning to all workers in a drive against unionism.

The cards will bear such Ford slogans as "A monopoly on labor is as bad as a monopoly on bread."

"Our men ought to consider whether it is necessary to pay some outsider every month for the privilege of vorking at Ford's."

"What was the result of these strikes? Merely that numbers of men put their necks into an iron collar. We're only trying to show who owns the collar."

"Figure it out for yourself. If you go into a union, they have got you and what have you got?"

"We have always made a better bargain for our men than an outsider could. We never had to bargain against our men. And we don't intend to begin now."

Total of 3893 Pay to Walk Through Westminster Abbey in One Day.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 15.—The coronation is over, but England continues to make money on it.

A total of 3893 persons paid $2.50 apiece today for the privilege of walking through Westminster Abbey and gazing at the spot where George VI was crowned Wednesday.

Attendants said the majority of the visitors were American. Several complained bitterly because they were not permitted to sit, even for a moment, in the chair the sovereign used.

CHEATING CHARGED IN STATE TESTS FOR PHARMACISTS

Forty-one Students of St. Louis College of Pharmacy Ask Governor to Make Investigation.

EXAMINER SAW NO IRREGULARITIES

Applicants for License Said to Have Left Room to Consult Books for Answers to Questions.

Charges of widespread "cribbing" and other irregularities in the examinations here for pharmacists' licenses held by the State Board of Pharmacy April 26 and 27 were made in a letter sent to Gov. Stark last night by 41 students of the St. Louis College of Pharmacy.

The students asked for an investigation of the examinations, which were given to 108 applicants in the college building at 4588 Parkview place, stating that "we feel that immediate action must be taken to dispose of this most irritating situation."

They also asked the Governor to sponsor a law requiring graduation from a recognized college or school of pharmacy in order to take the Missouri State Board of Pharmacy examinations, pointing out that only three states, Missouri, Tennessee and Massachusetts are without a prerequisite of this kind.

25 Affidavits in Hand.

Gene Grabau, one of the students who took the test in April, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that he had in his possession about 25 affidavits of students who allege that they witnessed cheating and cribbing in the examinations. Grabau said that he saw some of the applicants leave the examination room while the tests were in progress and return a few minutes later with their examination papers filled out.

Arthur P. McGlason, another student, who has taken similar examinations in other states, but did not take the examinations here in April, said that he, too, saw applicants leave the room, consult pharmacy textbooks outside the room, write the answers to the questions, and then return with the papers filled out.

Affidavits by Fred Buescher Jr., Harlan C. Bopp, Arthur Zimmer, A. B. Hersch Jr., Willard Kunze and Roy Egeditch said that they observed applicants consulting textbooks in the examination rooms and in the college cafeteria, copying answers to questions on cards and later returning to the examination rooms and filling out the papers after consulting the cards.

"We feel that it is unfair to students who study for four years in a conscientious effort to obtain a pharmacist's license to have things like that go on in an examination," said Grabau.

Examiner's Statement.

Walter T. Miessler, only St. Louis member of the State Board of Pharmacy, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he and the other four members of the board conducted the April examinations and observed no cheating or other irregularities.

"The examinations were carefully conducted and supervised as closely as possible," said Meissler. "Members of the board were in attendance and saw no cheating. There was no consultation of textbooks or use of 'ponies' that I was aware of and I have heard of no such reports from any other member of the board."

The absence from Missouri law of requirement that applicants for licenses shall be graduates of a school or college of pharmacy as a prerequisite for examination by the State Board is regarded as chiefly responsible for the organization in recent years of schools of instruction in pharmacy which advertise brief courses—six weeks or a few months—to prepare applicants for examination.

Qualifications of applicants for assistant pharmacist, under present laws, are that the applicant must be 18 years old, have a "sufficient" preliminary education, and must have had two years' experience in pharmacy work under instruction of a licensed pharmacist. Applicants for a pharmacist's license must be 21 years old, must have been an assistant for two years prior to application and must have had four years' experience in pharmacy work. Graduates of a school or college of pharmacy approved by the State Board, such as the St. Louis College of Pharmacy, are not required to take an examination in order to be licensed.

U. S. ATTACHE DIES AFTER JUNGLE CRASH

Priest, One of 8 in Venezuela Wreck, Tells of Death of Embassy Official.

By the Associated Press.

CARACAS, Venezuela, May 15.—A priest, survivor of a recent plane crash in the Venezuelan jungle, today reported Frederic D. Grab, a fellow passenger and United States Government official, died while awaiting rescue.

A Government mail plane crashed near the Brazilian frontier, April 23, with a pilot, co-pilot and six passengers.

The co-pilot and two passengers fought their way out of the jungle a week after the crash. A Venezuelan frontier inspector found the wreck on May 9, with the remaining survivors except Grab, a Chicagoan, and commercial attache of the United States legation in Caracas.

A rescue party brought out the survivors, two of them, William Armstrong Perry, a writer and geologist of Westport, Conn., and a priest, Father Baltasar, arriving here today.

"Perry was in a semi-conscious condition for nine days and hardly remembers anything," the priest said.

"Grab did not have any external injuries, but died of despair and hopelessness. Airplanes could be heard flying overhead from the third day after the crash, but we were unable to see them due to the thickness of the jungle. We did not have any water for many hours."

Perry, not seriously injured, was extremely weak and was placed under a doctor's care here.

$30,000,000 TO HELP CONTROL COFFEE PRICE

Brazil Continues Policy Established in 1931—12 Pct. Currency Inflation.

By the Associated Press.

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 15.—The Brazilian Government today lent its department of coffee 500,000 contos (about $30,000,000) to help control world coffee prices.

Fernando Costa, president of the coffee department, said the loan would not necessitate additional taxation, but would be made in paper money and backed by 15-year 6 per cent Government bonds.

It was estimated the loan will inflate Brazil's currency by 12 per cent. Total paper money circulation recently was estimated by officials at 4,000,000 contos ($240,000,000).

Costa's statement said 30 per cent of the output of each plantation must be delivered to the coffee department for withdrawal from the market, and another 40 per cent must be sold to the department at a price of 65 milreis (about $3.90) a sack of 132.2 pounds. The average market price is 80 milreis.

The remainder of the crop may be sold by the planters without Government control, though they must pay a Government tax of about $2.70 per sack.

3 DROWN WHEN BOAT UPSETS

DOVER, Del., May 15. — Three fishermen who ventured out into the wind-swept Delaware Bay in a small boat were drowned today. The bodies of two were recovered. The boat was capsized.

The victims are thought to be Charles Wychoff, 47 years old; his son, Edward, 15, and his son-in-law, Robert Aielo, 24, all of Glenolden, Pa., a suburb of Philadelphia.

WAGE AND HOUR NEGOTIATIONS WILL FOLLOW

Walkout of 2000 Service Employes Affected Nine Hostelries and Threatened to Involve 20 More Establishments.

AGENTS OF FIVE GROUPS IN PARLEY

Conference With St. Louis Hotel Association Lasting Till Late at Night, Results in Bargaining Recognition.

Early settlement of the one-day strike of 2000 service employes of nine St. Louis hotels, which threatened to involve 20 more hotels, was in prospect last night. At a conference between the St. Louis Hotel Association and officers of five American Federation of Labor unions, held at Hotel Jefferson, an agreement was prepared, to the effect that the hotels would grant the unions' demand for a closed shop, and would recognize the unions as exclusive bargaining agencies for their memberships, which would include all the employes, as old employes would be required to join the unions within 10 days, and new employes within five days after being engaged.

Wages and Hours.

It was expected that the agreement would provide that negotiations as to wages and hours would be completed by June 1, between the Hotel Association and union representatives.

All hotels in the association were represented at the conference, and William Victor, president, was authorized to sign the agreement in behalf of the organization, when its terms should be agreed on. Discussion of various points, by both the hotel men and the labor representatives, delayed the ratification of the agreement, which was expected to take place in time to end the strike today.

Paul Dillon, attorney for the unions, announced the terms of the prospective agreement.

Among union representatives participating in the conference were Joseph Costello, waiters' union; Kitty Amsler, waitresses; Jess Keller, cooks, and John Nick, representing the national executive council of the A. F. of L.

Eight Affected All Day.

Eight hotels were affected by the strike all day yesterday, these being the Jefferson, Statler, Mayfair, Lennox, Mark Twain, Park Plaza, Chase and Washington. Last evening the Coronado was added to the list, the cooks and waiters walking out.

One of the unions represented in the strike, Local 430, Miscellaneous Hotel Workers, was formed recently in the A. F. of L. campaign to unionize the hotel business. Local No. 2, American Federation of Musicians, yesterday asked to be included in the demand of the other unions for a closed shop.

No Dancing or Dining.

Saturday night dances and dining room activities were suspended at the hotels affected, union musicians canceling their dance engagements. At the Coronado, the Wabash Club had scheduled a dinner for 350 persons, in honor of S. E. Cotter, retiring as chief operating officer. A number of railroad officials from Chicago and Kansas City were in the group of guests which gathered in the lobby when it was learned that the dinner would not be served. A plaque was presented to Cotter at a ceremony in the lobby, before the guests left to eat elsewhere, or adjourn to the bar, which was still open.

One picket patrolled the Coronado entrance, and taxicab drivers, union members, refused to carry passengers into the driveway or to take their hand baggage into the hotel. They set passengers out at the Lindell-Spring corner, in front of the hotel.

At the other hotels affected, groups of pickets were on duty,

SPANISH CABINET BEING MADE OVER 'TO WIN THE WAR'

Premier Largo Caballero Says Reorganization Will Be Ready for the President Today.

SAME POLITICAL ELEMENTS AS IN OLD

Shakeup Result of Anarchist Revolt; Communists Call for Vigorous Policies.

By the Associated Press.

VALENCIA, Spain, May 15.—Spain's Government sought today to strengthen her defenses against the Fascist insurgents by a Cabinet shakeup but Socialist Premier Francisco Largo Caballero remains at the helm. The Premier reported the resignation of his government to President Manuel Azana at 10 a. m. Four hours later Azana asked him to form a new administration to "win the war."

"I shall try to form a government with the same political elements as the former," Largo Caballero announced. Apparently both oft-divergent Socialists and Anarcho-Syndicalists support him.

"Everything Going Perfectly."

Largo Caballero said tonight: "Everything is going perfectly. I expect the syndical organizations and political parties to finish their work tonight. Tomorrow they will submit it to me and I, in turn, to the President."

The Communist Party issued a manifesto setting forth its conditions for participation in the new government. The party demanded that the War Ministry be separated from the premiership, and urged reorganization of the general staff with the naming of chiefs of staff "responsible to the War Ministry and the War Council but with full authority to plan and direct all operations."

The Communists also addressed a demand to President Azana for a cabinet which would initiate "a consistent war policy" with the reorganization of all fronts, the methodical formation of reserve forces, the purging of disloyal elements, the rapid transformation of civil industries into war industries and the creation of new industries. They asked for a vigorous economic policy to increase and co-ordinate production, the creation of farmers' co-operatives, and the nationalization of basic industries, especially those owned by Fascists. The party declared against the confiscation of private property except when made "directly by the Government against the enemies of the people."

Result of Anarchist Revolt.

The governmental crisis, informed persons say, was an outgrowth of the Anarchist revolt in Catalonia, which broke out last week and is still not entirely suppressed. Foreign Minister Julio Alvarez del Vayo, returning from Paris, May 8, expressed concern lest the Catalan uprising—a civil war within a civil war—cause anti-Government feeling abroad, and demanded firm action to prevent a recurrence.

His remarks were interpreted as strong criticism of the policy of Interior Minister Angel Gallaraz, a Socialist, charged with maintaining public order. Communist Ministers assailed Gallarza at a Cabinet meeting Thursday and announced their intention of quitting the Government.

The executive committee of the Socialist party immediately voted against its ministers' continuing in the Cabinet without the Communists, and resignation of the whole Government was made inevitable.

DEFENDER OF EX-GOV. SULZER DIES AT 87 IN WICKFORD, R. I.

A. G. Fox Called Self Only "Barrister" in U. S.; Always Got Cases From Lawyers.

By the Associated Press.

WICKFORD, R. I., May 15.—Austen G. Fox, retired New York lawyer who defended William Sulzer, former New York Governor, when the latter was impeached in 1913 and removed from office, died at his home tonight. He was 87 years old. Fox was also a special assistant district attorney in prosecution of New York City police officials following the Lexow committee investigation.

He was a contemporary and friend of Elihu Root and Joseph Choate. He termed himself the only "barrister" in the United States because he never accepted cases directly from clients, but only through another attorney.

30 KILLED, 50 HURT IN INSURGENT AIR RAID ON VALENCIA

about in University City, insurgent outpost at the end of an almost-severed line driven into Madrid many weeks ago.

"If we had begun firing," a Government officer said, "they probably would have forgotten their own quarrel to return our bombardment. So we just let them fight."

Reports of revolt within the besieged garrison ran the length of Government trenches. But the exchange of fire between insurgent groups in Santa Christina and Clinic Hospitals finally stopped. It was believed the Santa Christina unit wanted to surrender but Government troops could only guess at what was going on.

Government soldiers grinned as they listened to the insurgents bombarding each other, some of the explosions only a few yards away. "There goes one meant for us," a soldier jested, "wonder how they like their own eggs?"

Officers at the headquarters of Gen. Jose Miaja, Madrid defense commander, dismissed suggestions the firing could have been the result of insurgent artillery errors. Front line Government officers, however, recalled that insurgents shelled their own troops by mistake some months ago. The Government had taken a row of trenches which proved untenable. They moved back and insurgents re-occupied the ground, then the insurgent artillery, unaware of the maneuver, laid down an intense fire on the "captured" trench. Government officers estimated at least 50 insurgents died.

ROOSEVELT PLANS TWO TRIPS TO HIS HOME AT HYDE PARK

Likely to Go There for Memorial Day Week-End and for July 4.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—President Roosevelt has under consideration two trips to his Hyde Park (N. Y.) home in the next six weeks.

White House officials said today he probably would spend two or three days there with his mother over Memorial day week-end, leaving here May 29.

After attending the wedding of his son, Franklin, and Miss Ethel du Pont at Wilmington, Del., June 30, he may go on to Hyde Park again to stay over the July 4 holiday.

These plans, however, are indefinite.

The President remained away from his office today and made no appointments except for an informal greeting to Dick Merrill and Jack Lambie, who yesterday completed a round-trip flight to England.

The children will be transported, the Basques said, under direction of an American organization called Guardians for Basque Children. How or when they would be sent to America was undecided, the mission said.

C. C. EARP APPOINTED HIGHWAY BOARD HEAD

Nevada (Mo.) Publisher Named by Gov. Stark to Succeed G. L. Olendorf.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 15.—Claude C. Earp of Nevada, Mo., was appointed by Gov. Lloyd C. Stark today as chairman of the State Highway Commission.

Earp's appointment as successor to George F. Olendorf, of Springfield, ends several months' speculation on the personnel of the commission under the new administration. The Governor's office said Olendorf "resigned on account of the demands of his private business."

Olendorf, however, will continue to serve until Earp's appointment is confirmed by the Senate. Earp, one of the owners and publishers of the Nevada Daily Mail and a Democrat, will serve for a term ending Dec. 1, 1941.

Besides Earp, the Highway Commission will be composed of H. G. Simpson of Charleston, also a Democrat, and Robert B. Brooks of St. Louis and Edward W. Gray of Maryville, Republicans. Simpson, who was reappointed last week, will be the only holdover from the Park administration.

Earp, who is 50 years old and a native of Barton County, served as Adjutant General of Missouri the last six weeks of the Park administration, following the death of Gen. Harold W. Brown, also of Nevada. He holds a commission of Colonel in the Missouri National Guard, with which he had been connected a quarter of a century.

The new Highway Commission chairman took a prominent part in the $75,000,000 road bond issue campaign in 1928, of which Stark was general chairman.

Brooks was named early in the Stark administration to succeed the late Col. Arthur T. Nelson of Lebanon. Gray was appointed May 3 to fill the vacancy created by the resignation in January of H. B. Pyle of Mound City.

2000 Quit W P A Jobs.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 15.—Matthew S. Murray, State Works Progress Administration director, said today about 2000 persons had obtained industrial or farm employment and voluntarily given up W P A work in the last two weeks. He said the number on the Missouri roll yesterday was 76,200.

between the opposition and the court. Word is frequently carried back and forth as the controversy develops.

Opposition leaders are now supremely confident of defeating the bill to add six new justices to the court and are even becoming hopeful that a compromise may be blocked.

On Postmaster-General Farley they put the blame for the attitude of the President on his return from his fishing trip. Farley boarded the Presidential train at Indianapolis and assured the President that his bill would go through. Opposition Senators are said to be preparing a barrage against Farley for his statement of yesterday that the White House could demand votes for the court bill since most members of Congress owed their election to the President.

Rumors and counter-rumors are numerous in the present phase of the quarrel. For several days it has been reported here that two justices would resign on Monday, Brandeis and Van Devanter. Earlier in the week reports were printed generally throughout the country that two members of the court would retire.

W P A HAS SPENT $11,424,359 ON MISSOURI CONSERVATION

Projects, Numbering 142, Include Irrigation, Erosion, Forestation, Stream Pollution.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 15. — The Works Progress Administration said today its expenditures on conservation projects in Missouri totaled $11,424,359 as of March 31.

The WPA said a total of 142 conservation projects had been undertaken in the State. Types of conservation projects in Missouri included irrigation and water conservation, erosion control and land utilization, forestation, mosquito eradication and elimination of stream pollution.

'NO COMPROMISE' ON COURT SCHEME UNITES OPPONENTS

McCarran, One of Those Who Sought Modification, Now Talks of "Straight-Out Vote."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 15. — The administration's "no compromise" decision on the Roosevelt court scheme was the signal today for the opposition to rally its forces for a Senate fight. Leaders of the opposition quickly accepted the challenge of administration leaders, who declared that the fight will go on for the bill submitted by President Roosevelt more than three months ago.

The unyielding group among the opponents expressed gratification that the issue would be drawn on the unmodified bill. But from the moderates who had hoped for a compromise settlement, came a defiant statement that they might withdraw their offers and defeat the administration on a "straight-out-vote."

This warning was issued by Senator McCarran (Dem.), Nevada, who recently definitely swung the balance of the Senate Judiciary Committee against the proposal for six new Supreme Court justices by announcing his opposition, but who had been fighting for a compromise of two justices.

Statement by McCarran.

"Perhaps those of us who have been inclined to interpose compromise with the hope that we might go on with the legitimate business of the Congress and the country will now be inclined to withdraw our proposals," McCarran said in a statement.

"This, it appears from reports emanating from yesterday's White House conferences, would be more in keeping with the attitude of the other side.

"If, as it appears, that is to be no willingness to compromise it might be the attitude of those who are against administration plan to offer no compromise, but instead to bring the issue to a straight-out-vote—and we've got them licked."

Wheeler Attacks Threat.

The more unyielding of the opponents—such as Senator Wheeler (Dem.), Montana—had a different reaction. He expressed hope the President would "stand pat on no compromise" contending it would mean certain defeat for the bill. Privately, he expressed anxiety that a compromise might be negotiated.

Wheeler accused Postmaster General Farley of "threatening" Senators who oppose the administration bill. He referred to an incident outside the White House yesterday.

A Washington newspaper said that when Farley emerged from a conference in the Executive Mansion, a reporter asked him about some Democratic Senators opposed to the bill.

The paper said Farley replied:

"Well, when Senator O'Mahoney comes down here wanting help on a sugar bill, his conscience won't be bothering him, will it?" (Senator O'Mahoney (Dem.) Wyoming has attacked the court bill.)

Signs of Desperation.

Wheeler commented today that "they're getting desperate apparently and are coming out openly threatening people with loss of administration assistance. It is just a threat to say that unless you go along, you're not going to get any help from the administration for any legislation you're interested in."

Senator Copeland (Dem.) New York also referred to the incident by saying:

"I'm not answerable to Jim Farley for my conscience, thank God. And right now my conscience is perfectly clear."

While they prepared for the first showdown vote on the bill in the Senate Judiciary Committee Tuesday, both sides watched anxiously for outside developments that might suddenly change the entire course.

Their attention was centered on the Supreme Court itself—for a decision on the constitutionality of the Social Security Act or for any indication of retirements. Either development, they said, might have a decisive influence on the outcome of the contest.

Likely to Last All Summer.

Congressional leaders forecast that the court fight would keep Congress in session all summer. Such a forecast came from Democratic leader Rayburn (Dem.) Texas, of the House, one of those who conferred with the President upon his return yesterday.

An imposing legislative program in addition to the court bill emerged from yesterday's White House conferences. Rayburn said that in addition to relief, farm tenancy, expansion of T V A, wage and hour legislation, and the other issues mentioned yesterday, Government reorganization was still in the picture.

The House will take up next week a bill to appropriate $1,500,000,000 for next year's relief program. Despite President Roosevelt's insistence upon that figure, a movement was on in both Houses to cut it to $1,000,000,000.

Majority of Missouri Congressmen Would Vote for Court Compromise

Six and Perhaps Seven of 13 in House Willing to Support President's Original Proposal, Poll Indicates.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—A majority of the 13 members of the Missouri delegation in the House would vote for a compromise court reorganization bill, a poll taken by the Post-Dispatch today indicated, and of this number six and perhaps seven would vote for President Roosevelt's plan to appoint six new Justices to the Supreme Court.

Several members of the Missouri delegation who were non-committal two months ago are now willing to stand with the administration on judiciary reorganization. But while they will not commit themselves, it is plain they are hoping for some "out" which will make a vote on the President's measure unnecessary.

Those who declared their willingness to vote for the President's proposal to add six Justices are Nelson, Duncan, Wood, Williams, Cannon and Zimmerman.

Representative Shannon, who is in Kansas City, has indicated in a speech in the House that he is for a change in the court. He would in all probability vote for a compromise plan. Representative Cochran of St. Louis apparently would vote for a compromise bill and would perhaps in a showdown support the President's measure. Representative Hennings would also vote for a compromise, it is thought.

Anderson, Short Against Plan.

Those who are unequivocally against the President's plan or any compromise are Representative Anderson of St. Louis County and Representative Short of Stone, the only Republican in the Missouri delegation. Anderson, serving his first term in the House, has several times spoken in vigorous opposition to the White House bill.

Still in the non-committal class, despite the two months of arguments pro and con on court reorganization, are Representative Bell of Kansas City and Representative Romjue of Macon. Bell says he hasn't heard enough yet to enable him to make up his mind. He predicts that there will be "weeks more of argument" and he wants to hear it before he commits himself. This category of timid souls has grown steadily smaller as loyal Democrats have lined up with the administration.

"I am not at this time giving out any statement on my position," Bell said. "If and when it comes to a vote I'll make up my mind."

Several Congressmen expressed the view that the Senate might defeat the measure so decisively that no compromise plan would ever reach the House. And that, one gathered, would remove a large and unhappy burden.

Attitude of Cochran.

"I contended at the outset that a compromise would be worked out," Cochran said, and his statement is typical of those loyal party followers who have hoped that the 15-Justice court plan would not come to a final vote. "I have not changed my mind. In fact I am more confident now than I was then that a satisfactory agreement will be reached. It is my hope that the issue will be settled without delay in order that Congress may deal with other important legislative matters.

"The interpretation placed on the Constitution by Justice Vandevanter, McReynolds, Sutherland and Butler is responsible for the movement to increase the number of Justices on the Supreme Court. I have never criticised decisions of the court and do not intend to do so now but like millions of my fellow citizens I deplore the attitude of these Justices. The Constitution was originally adopted 30 years before we had a railroad train. The welfare of our citizens was foremost in the minds of its framers. If the Constitution is interpreted in the spirit of modern times, I feel Congress can enact laws within the provisions of the Constitution. This will go a long way to cure our present ills. At the moment, in view of the attitude of some of the judges, we are helpless."

Duncan An Ardent Supporter.

Representative Duncan, who was in the non-committal class two months ago, has become one of the most ardent adherents of a change in the court. He would vote for the President's bill if it should come to the House in its present form and would also support a compromise, he said. In Louisiana, Connecticut and Ohio he has made speeches in behalf of judiciary reorganization.

"As a matter of fact," said Duncan, who is from St. Joseph, "I haven't received a letter about it from my district in more than two weeks. When it was first announced I received a number of vicious letters and petitions in opposition to the court plan but through my friends in the district, I traced most of these down to Republicans or to anti-New Deal Democrats. I found that there was an inspired campaign of letters, many of them signed with different names but written by the same individuals."

Nelson, who is from Columbia, said that he found that the voters in his district were almost unanimously in favor of the President's bill. More than half of the counties in his district, he said, have petitioned him to vote for the measure. Nelson was one of the first members of Congress to declare for the bill. Williams and Zimmerman have both swung over to the administration from their non-committal stand since the controversy started.

"If they brought the President's bill on to the floor tomorrow," Zimmerman said, "I would vote for it. But it looks like there will be a compromise. It's hard for us to take a stand because we don't know what we're going to get from the Senate."

"This is the kind of thing that cannot be compromised," Anderson said, repeating the position he has taken from the beginning.

Shannon, Romjue and Wood are absent from Washington. Hennings said that, like Cochran, he believed the inevitable trend was toward a compromise. He indicated he would vote for a compromise proposal.

TWO TRANSATLANTIC FLYERS RECEIVED AT WHITE HOU

Merrill and Lambie Give President Addition to Stamp Album and a Coronation Paper.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Dick Merrill and Jack Lambie gave President Roosevelt today a first-hand account of their round-trip Atlantic flight.

Flying here in a regular passenger plane from New York, where they completed the second half of their New York-London-New York trip yesterday, the aviators called at the White House with their backer, Ben Smith.

"The President was very interested in the altitudes we flew, weather conditions and how the instruments and motor functioned," Merrill said. The flyers said the feasibility of regular transatlantic commercial airplane service was not mentioned.

Merrill and Lambie gave the President an addition to his stamp album, a first cover emblematic of the journey with English stamps and London and New York postmarks. He also was given a London newspaper of May 13, containing a detailed account of the coronation.

ANKS IN P. S. CO. DEAL SEEK FEES TO PAY LAWYERS

wo Claims Filed in Federal Court Asking for $949,965 in Connnection With $10,000,000 Loan.

ROVISION MADE IN CASE OF DEFAULT

rustee Kiel Challenges Total, Recommends 'Reasonable' Payment Under Certain Conditions.

awyers' fees of $949,965 and in- rest of undetermined amount are ought by nine St. Louis and East- rn banks in connection with their laim for $9,499,653 from the St. ouis Public Service Co., the bal- nce due on a $10,000,000 loan to e company before it went into ceivership in 1933.

The claim of nearly $1,000,000 to y lawyers, based on a provision the Public Service Co.'s notes the banks for a 10 per cent col- ction fee on default, has been re- rred to Special Federal Court aster E. J. Bean.

Two claims were filed, one by e First National Bank as loan nager for itself and seven other nks nuder a $9,300,000 note, and ne by the Mercantile Commerce ank & Trust Co. as holder of a 00,000 note of the Public Service o.

Deposits Applied on Credits.

In its claim the First National oints out it has turned over the ,300,000 note, for collection, to e law firm of Carter & Jones ter applying as a credit $434,283 deposits of the transit company. hus 10 per cent of the balance of 865,717, or $886,572, is claimed for orneys' fees.

The Mercantile-Commerce, repre- nted by Thompson, Mitchell, hompson & Young, claims $63,393 r attorneys' fees. This sum rep- sents 10 per cent of the balance e on the $700,000 note after the nk applied Public Service depos- s of $66,063.

Hearing on the claims for fees d interest awaits decision on a cent hearing before the Special aster on the principal claims for ,499,653.

Contesting allowance of the bank's rincipal claims, certain other cred- ors contended the loans were in- lid on the ground that the orig- al note, given by the transit com- ny in 1928 for one year, was in t for a longer period by reason an alleged provision for renewal. issouri law requires a transit com- ny to obtain permission from the ate Public Service Commission r issuance of a note for more than e year.

Those creditors ask for return to e company for their benefit all or rt of the $16,626,000 in collateral nds securing the notes.

Kiel's Recommendations.

Trustee Henry W. Kiel has rec- mmended to United States District dge Charles B. Davis that the ncipal claims be allowed in the m of $9,259,653, subject to a pos- ble reduction of $425,040 ear- arked for payment of interest cou- ons on the bonds. The $9,259,653 the amount of the principal aims, less $240,000, paid on inter- t coupons in 1935.

Challenging the 10 per cent aims, he recommended that at- rneys' fees be allowed only to the tent of the reasonable value of rvices and then only in event, and the extent, the pledged bonds ielded enough to pay interest and ttorneys' fees in addition to the rincipal. Should the bonds not ield enough, the difference should e allowed to the banks only as a general and unsecured claim, he commended.

The banks have filed exceptions his recommendations concerning e attorneys' fees. At the hearing n the principal claims and objec- ons to validity of the loans, some the Eastern banks were repre- nted by the law firm of Nagel, irby, Orrick & Shepley.

BANKS IN P. S. CO. DEAL SEEK FEES TO PAY LAWYERS

Two Claims Filed in Federal Court Asking for $949,965 in Connnection With $10,000,000 Loan.

PROVISION MADE IN CASE OF DEFAULT

Trustee Kiel Challenges Total, Recommends 'Reasonable' Payment Under Certain Conditions.

Lawyers' fees of $949,965 and interest of undetermined amount are sought by nine St. Louis and Eastern banks in connection with their claim for $9,499,653 from the St. Louis Public Service Co., the balance due on a $10,000,000 loan to the company before it went into receivership in 1933.

The claim of nearly $1,000,000 to pay lawyers, based on a provision of the Public Service Co.'s notes to the banks for a 10 per cent collection fee on default, has been referred to Special Federal Court Master E. J. Bean.

Two claims were filed, one by the First National Bank as loan manager for itself and seven other banks nuder a $9,300,000 note, and one by the Mercantile Commerce Bank & Trust Co. as holder of a 700,000 note of the Public Service Co.

Deposits Applied on Credits.

In its claim the First National points out it has turned over the 9,300,000 note, for collection, to the law firm of Carter & Jones after applying as a credit $434,283 deposits of the transit company. Thus 10 per cent of the balance of 865,717, or $886,572, is claimed for attorneys' fees.

The Mercantile-Commerce, represented by Thompson, Mitchell, Thompson & Young, claims $63,393 for attorneys' fees. This sum represents 10 per cent of the balance due on the $700,000 note after the bank applied Public Service deposits of $66,063.

Hearing on the claims for fees and interest awaits decision on a recent hearing before the Special Master on the principal claims for 9,499,653.

Contesting allowance of the bank's principal claims, certain other creditors contended the loans were invalid on the ground that the original note, given by the transit company in 1928 for one year, was in d for a longer period by reason of an alleged provision for renewal. Missouri law requires a transit company to obtain permission from the State Public Service Commission for issuance of a note for more than one year.

Those creditors ask for return to the company for their benefit all or part of the $16,626,000 in collateral bonds securing the notes.

Kiel's Recommendations.

Trustee Henry W. Kiel has recommended to United States District Judge Charles B. Davis that the principal claims be allowed in the sum of $9,259,653, subject to a possible reduction of $425,040 earmarked for payment of interest coupons on the bonds. The $9,259,653 is the amount of the principal claims, less $240,000, paid on interest coupons in 1935.

Challenging the 10 per cent claims, he recommended that attorneys' fees be allowed only to the extent of the reasonable value of services and then only in event, and to the extent, the pledged bonds yielded enough to pay interest and attorneys' fees in addition to the principal. Should the bonds not yield enough, the difference should be allowed to the banks only as a general and unsecured claim, he recommended.

The banks have filed exceptions to his recommendations concerning the attorneys' fees. At the hearing on the principal claims and objections to validity of the loans, some of the Eastern banks were represented by the law firm of Nagel, Kirby, Orrick & Shepley.

ing in the Senate would eliminate examinations for assistant pharmacists and provide that an applicant for a pharmacist's license must be 21 years old, must have attended high school for four years, have had one year's practical experience in a retail drug store under supervision of a registered pharmacist and be a graduate of a school or college of pharmacy approved by the board.

This measure, however, while restricting applicants to graduates of pharmacy schools and colleges, also provides that applicants who present to the board evidence of 10 years' experience in a pharmacy under instruction of one or more registered pharmacists and who have had a general grade school education or its equivalent shall receive a license without examination.

Miessler said that he and other members of the state board were opposed to this provision, pointing out that if such a provision were enacted soda fountain clerks, porters and others who might have been employed in a drug store, 10 years but had no experience in preparing prescriptions would be eligible to receive pharmacists' licenses. He said that Newt Gardner of Kansas City, secretary of the board, had written him asking him to urge State Senators to reject this provision, which he intended to do.

Members of the State Board of Pharmacy, in addition to Miessler and Gardner, are W. H. Ellis, Vandalia, chairman; Harvey S. Stephenson, California, and Carl S. Baskin, Hayti.

$39,000 SUIT FILED AGAINST FALSTAFF BREWING COMPANY

H. M. Wagner Says Amount Is Due Him Under Agreement for Sale of 40 Shares.

A suit for $39,050 was filed against the Falstaff Brewing Corporation, 3684 Forest Park boulevard, and Alvin Griesedieck, its vice-president and general manager, by H. M. Wagner, former comptroller-treasurer of the corporation, in Circuit Court yesterday.

Wagner, who lives at 115 West Jewel avenue, Kirkwood, alleged the amount due him under an agreement by which he sold 40 shares of preferred stock of the old Falstaff Corporation to Joseph T. Davis, an attorney, for $4000. The sale, the petition said, was for the purpose of preventing Davis from suing the Falstaff Corporation for legal services. At that time, in 1933, Davis compromised the claim for $25,000 and the privilege of buying 70 shares of preferred stock in the old company which he could exchange for 2800 shares of common stock in the new company, it was charged.

Neither the new corporattion nor Griesedieck had any preferred stock to deliver, so Wagner agreed to sell his stock to Davis, in consideration of an agreement by which he would be able to buy 2800 shares of common stock back for $4000, his petition alleged. The defendants have refused to allow him to do so, Wagner charged. Griesedieck could not be reached.

HEAD OF WRECKED SCHOOL COMMENTS ON HIS REMOVAL

W. C. Shaw of New London, Tex., Says He Didn't Propose to Resign and Assume Blame.

By the Associated Press.

HENDERSON, Tex., May 15.—W. C. Shaw, relieved as superintendent of the New London Independent School District where an explosion in March killed several hundred students and teachers, today issued a statement to express "my feelings and position."

"Immediately after the great disaster . . . I reluctantly continued my services after appeals from the board of trustees, representatives of the oil companies operating in the district, and friends," said Shaw, who lost a son in the blast. His statement was addressed to patrons, teachers and pupils.

"After undertaking this job . . . and feeling that I was no more responsible for what happened on that fateful afternoon than any members of the board, and others who claimed to know better than I the danger of gas and its explosive character, I did not propose to resign, and by so doing assume the whole responsibility of this disaster, and especially while under fire.

"This is not an appeal for sympathy . . . to any ill feeling that may exist I would ask for that grace of the Great Teacher when He said: 'Father, forgive them for they know not what they do.' . . ."

NEBRASKA'S SINGLE HOUSE LEGISLATURE ENDS SESSION

"Work Good But Not Sensational"; Governor Complains on Action on His Budget.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 15. — The nation's only one-house Legislature completed its first session today, with the 43 members in general agreement that "our work has been good but not sensational."

The unicameral body adopted 226 bills during the 98-day session. The last bicameral enacted 192 laws in 110 legislative days. The unicameral cost the State about $140,000 compared with $203,000 for the last bicameral in 1935.

The final item of business, passage of a $54,851,000 biennial appropriations bill, biggest in history, drew the criticism of Gov. R. L. Cochran.

"I regret the Legislature thought it necessary to raise my budget by five million dollars." He said. "I regret that I cannot veto any of the items. It seems to me that, under the unicameral system, the Governor is only an advisory officer when it comes to budget matters."

FIVE MORE STOLEN CARS, NINE IN ALL, TRACED TO AGENCY

Autos Purchased at Eugene Tebeau Place Recovered, Identified by Original Owners.

NUMBERS CHANGED; SOME REPAINTED

Two Deputy Constables and Widow of Another Find Their Machines Belonged to Others.

Police yesterday traced five more stolen automobiles to the used car concern of Eugene Tebeau, former convict, at 4619 Delmar boulevard. Four others were traced there last week, two having been sold to Justices of the Peace in St. Louis County and one to a St. Louis police officer.

The cars recovered yesterday and identified by their original owners had been altered by changing motor numbers and in some cases repainting wheels or bodies. Examination of secret numbers led to their identification.

A car which William Chandler, a deputy Constable of St. Ferdinand Township, of 12 Berlin place, Ferguson, bought from Tebeau Feb. 9 was found to have been stolen a month before from George Musick of 4015A Ashland avenue.

Claude Hicks, a speecial deputy of the township, of 5712 Hodiamont avenue, learned that the machine he bought Dec. 18 had been stolen from Henry Sullivan, of 2849 North Euclid avenue.

Deputy's Widow's Car.

The widow of another deputy Constable, Mrs. Jack Flood, of 5341 Helen avenue, West Walnut manor, found that her car, which was purchased from Tebeau on Jan. 2, had been stolen a few weeks before from Mrs. Ruth Fox of 5029 Ridge avenue.

Recovery of these machines was brought about by Constable Andrew Sears of St. Ferdinand Township, who began a check of cars he knew to have been obtained from Tebeau after learning a few days ago that Justice of the Peace Andrew M. Lake had inadvertently bought a stolen car. The original car was green, but it had been repainted tan. The Justice dropped his pliers, scratched through the paint, became suspicious and called Sears. Together they checked with St. Louis police, resulting in the beginning of the investigation.

Another Such Car.

Charles Selzer, of 6842 Grove avenue, West Walnut Manor, drove to police headquarters yesterday and asked that his car be examined. He bought it last September at the Tebeau establishment. It proved to have been stolen three weeks previously from Samuel Wells of 4008 Page boulevard.

The fifth car recovered yesterday was purchased by Simpson Woody, 5032 Maple avenue, on Feb. 19. It had been stolen from Fred Lyons, 1127 McCausland avenue.

Tebeau, who has been arrested 53 times in 10 years and who served part of a penitentiary term for stealing a car, will be arraigned tomorrow in the Court of Criminal Correction. Warrants charging larceny of motor automobiles have been issued against him and Edward S. McIntosh, said to have been associated with him in the business.

WRESTLER DIES IN RING AS OPPONENT WINS FALL

Eddie Baker, Indianapolis, Had Heart Failure at Corinth (Miss.) Doctors Think.

By the Associated Press.

CORINTH, Miss., May 15.—Eddie Baker, 36 years old, a light-heavyweight wrestler, failed to rise from the canvas after he had been pinned by his opponent, Roy Welsh, of Jackson, Tenn., here last night.

Eight hundred fans shouted for the match to continue. A physician was called to the ring. He found that Baker was dead. Doctors expressed the opinion Baker died from heart failure brought on by strain.

The body was held here today while officers sought to find relatives in Indianapolis, Ind.

HOTELS GRANT CLOSED SHOP; EARLY END OF STRIKE INDICATED

and taxi service began and ended at sidewalk points. Within the houses, guests did for themselves some of the things which previously the hotel employes were doing for them. The bellboys, wont to respond to calls of "Front!" were on the strike front, in some cases, as pickets.

Restaurant, bar, elevator, room and porter service employes of eight hotels were out, and it was expected that the walkout would become equally inclusive at the Coronado today. Clerks and assistant managers ran elevators, and guests generally carried their own luggage. Delivery of supplies, except milk, by union drivers was cut off.

Guests went outside for food and drinks, and some tidied their own rooms. At Hotel Chase, where all the cooks walked out, the chef attempted to turn out breakfast, but soon reported that the job was too much for one man, and late arrivals had to be satisfied with rolls and coffee. Guests included the Detroit baseball club.

In the earlier discussions, the hotel managers expressed unwillingness to consider the closed shop demand, though saying they would discuss questions of wages and hours. President Victor of the Hotel Association addressed a statement to employes, setting forth that the closed shop was impractical in the hotel business, as interfering with the hotel's ability to deal "directly and personally" with guests.

The Union Wage Demands.

Victor asserted that some hotels were paying better than the union wage scale. This was confirmed by William M. Brandt, secretary of the Central Trades and Labor Union, who charged, however, that waitresses are paid but $1 a day at certain hotels. Union wage demands were: Bartenders, $30 a week; cooks, $17 to $45; waiters, $15; waitresses, $12.50 and meals; miscellaneous employes, $30 to $150 a month. The unions are also seeking a six-day week, eight-hour day and elimination of "cuts" claimed by certain department heads, who share in the tips of employes working under them.

Rejection of the closed shop demand was made at a conference between the union and management negotiating committees Friday afternoon. The hotel managers had called their employes together earlier in the day, union workers reported, and set forth their objections to the closed shop. In some hotels circulars outlining the opposition to the closed shop were distributed to employes.

The union memberships met Friday night at Carpenters' Hall, 1411 North Grand boulevard, and voted unanimously to strike, Brandt reported. Authority had been voted to the union negotiating committee previously to call a strike at its discretion, but the committee chose to put the serious question to another vote.

St. Louis hotels have been operated "open shop" since 1920, when there was a strike and lockout of union waiters and cooks over wage demands.

U. S. AGENTS LEAD VICE RAIDS AT BALTIMORE, 24 ARE SEIZED

BALTIMORE, May 15.—Thirty-five Federal agents, led by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, arrested 24 men and women tonight in a series of vice raids here.

With Baltimore police co-operating, the agents without warning arrived at a number of alleged disorderly houses. They closed eight of them and took their occupants to the Federal Building for questioning.

The raids followed an investigation into Mann act violations here.

Bride Killed in Auto Collision.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., May 15.—Mrs. Marvelle Richardson, 21 years old, of Ottawa, Ill., a bride of four days, was killed today in an automobile accident while on her honeymoon. Her husband, Tom Richardson, 23, was injured seriously. The pair's car collided with a truck near here and Mrs. Richardson died shortly after reaching a hospital. The driver of the truck, and his helper were unhurt.

GUESTS TOOK STRIKE WITH GOOD HUMOR

Little Protest at Disruption of Hotel Service—Some Made Own Beds.

Most guests and officers of the eight hotels affected by the strike of about 2000 members of five American Federation of Labor unions yesterday met the emergency with outward good humor and the guests took the disruption of service with little protest.

When a departing guest had to carry his luggage to the elevator and found it operated by an assistant manager or a laundry girl or some other amateur, the usual reaction was a grin, and a "What, here too?" Registrations of incoming guests were cut down, however, as many went to other hotels when they learned on arriving that a strike was in progress.

Some of the traveling men were veterans of similar strikes in San Francisco, Cincinnati or Detroit. None of the guests was put to any real inconvenience if he didn't mind a slightly jerky elevator ride or the not too arduous labor of lugging a handbag across the lobby to a taxicab outside, or walking down the street to a restaurant to eat. Most hotels had skeleton cleaning staffs, usually consisting of the housekeeper and inspectors, and at some, a few maids who had not walked out, and they made beds and did a little quick tidying up in as many rooms as possible.

Serve-Yourself Room Service.

Some guests didn't bother about their beds if they were leaving, but a few satisfied their sense of neatness by straightening the bed covers. Of course, particular persons who wanted ice water or cigarets had to get their own.

At the Jefferson, Gregory R. Lucy, publicity director, was running one elevator, with Frank Teich, nephew of Max Teich, managing director, as relief. A Negro janitor was running the only other car in service.

Mrs. Carl Roessler, wife of the manager, pitched in and helped by carrying linens to the rooms. Those of the 450 employes who remained on duty—about 40—prepared to live at the hotel and to cook their meals there.

Ball Players Eat in Drug Store.

At the Chase, where the Detroit Tigers were staying, the ball club's manager, Mickey Cochrane, said the only hardship his players had to undergo was to walk to the drug store in the Park-Plaza for some breakfast.

At the Park-Plaza the elevators were being run by a laundry girl and a regular boy operator who was doubling as a bellhop.

Many residents at the Park-Plaza live in apartments and have their own servants, who were not affected by the strike. A union milk truck driver declined to make deliveries inside to 140 residents of the hotel on his route, but remained parked outside after notifying them they could come downstairs and get their milk. About a dozen did so.

Elevator Service at All Hotels.

The most important arm of hotel service, the elevators, were in operation everywhere. The Chase pressed two Filipino waiters from the Steeplechase Club into service. An assistant manager ran the one elevator in use at the Lennox. Regular operators remained at work at the Statler. Everywhere assistant room clerks and assistant managers helped with luggage. At the Mayfair the house detective used a dustpan and broom in the lobby.

Barrooms and cocktail rooms and dining rooms were closed, although the Lennox, Chase and Mayfair served coffee and rolls or doughnuts for an hour or so to a few customers yesterday morning, and the Statler cafeteria remained open. Many scheduled events were called off. Among them was a dance of the Sentinel Chapter of De Molay at the Jefferson, where 700 guests were expected. The spring dance of Ahepa, scheduled for the Jefferson tonight, has been transferred to Municipal Auditorium.

HER 100TH BIRTHDAY

MRS. LYDIA BARTLETT GONTERMAN.

HAS LIVED 100 YEARS IN MADISON COUNTY

Mrs. Lydia B. Gonterman to Be Honored on Birthday by Historical Society.

Mrs. Lydia Bartlett Gonterman of Edwardsville, who was born in a log farm house in what is now Pin Oak Township, Madison County, today will celebrate the anniversary of her birth, May 16, 1837. The observance will be a comparatively quiet one, for Mrs. Gonterman has been confined to her bed for the last three months, but there will be messages of congratulation from friends and this afternoon a special program in her honor by the Madison County Historical Society.

The program will be held in the Edwardsville Public Library at 2:30 o'clock, with readings and a sketch of Mrs. Gonterman's life by her daughter, Miss Laura Gonterman, after which the group will go to the home at 660 East Vandalia street, to pay its respects. There a member of the society will present Mrs. Gonterman with 100 roses.

Although confined to her bed, Mrs. Gonterman is alert mentally, and especially interested in the tremendous change in methods of transportation during her lifetime. She is the widow of the late Caleb B. Gonterman, a wealthy Madison County farmer, who died in 1911. Her grandfather, Joseph Bartlett, was one of the earliest settlers in the county, of which he was Treasurer from 1827 to 1830. He acquired considerable farm land in Pin Oak Township, where her father, Jesse Bartlett, was born in 1810. The first white child born in the county. He continued to live on the farm, where Mrs. Gonterman, the eldest and only survivor of five sons and five daughters, also was born.

She married Caleb Gonterman, also of an old settler family, on Dec. 22, 1858, and they moved into a one-room house on 80 acres in adjoining Marine Township. In 1866 the farm, by then 120 acres, was sold, and they bought the Bartlett homestead, on which in 1871 they built one of the most impressive farm homes in the county.

The Gontermans had three children, Thomas E., who died in 1932, and the Misses Laura and Jessie Gonterman, with whom the mother now lives.

CITY'S RELIEF CRISIS LAID TO STATE POLICY

Committee of Social Justice Commission Urges Funds for Immediate Needs.

After an hour's conference with Mayor Dickmann, City Counselor Edgar H. Wayman and Budget Director Arthur C. Meyers yesterday afternoon, members of a committee of the Social Justice Commission said they were convinced the Legislature and the State administration were responsible for a crisis created in the local relief situation through the dropping of about 10,000 persons from relief rolls because of depleted funds.

The Mayor told members of the committee that the city was "at the end of its rope" as to additional funds for immediate relief and that definite plans necessarily awaited action by the State.

Members of the committee—Bishop William Scarlett of Christ Church Cathedral, the Rev. Joseph Husslein, S. J., of St. Louis University and Rabbi Ferdinand Isserman of Temple Israel—were appointed Friday after W. C. Connett, chairman of the St. Louis Relief Committee told the Social Justice Commission that $50,000 was needed at once. Those cut off the rolls, although deserving, were in actual want, he declared.

Urges Two Appropriations.

The committee suggested that the city appropriate $20,000 and the State $30,000 for immediate needs, expressing the opinion the State should bear at least 60 per cent of the burden, particularly in view of the fact that many residents of rural districts came to St. Louis for aid.

The committee said it would do everything possible to get the State to allocate a substantial sum to St. Louis at once and suggested that individuals and organizations appeal to their respective representatives and senators.

It was pointed out by the Mayor that the city had spent $78,000 out of current revenue for relief during the last year. The relief situation, he said, was largely responsible for the fact that the city was facing a deficit of $2,017,000.

Letter to State Senator.

A letter was sent to the six State Senators from St. Louis by the committee: "We appeal to you," it said, "to induce the Legislatture to take immediate action to overcome the relief crisis in our city. Ten thousand individuals, who to our knowledge are deserving, lack the bare necessities of life and face starvation. More will soon be added to their numbers. This situation not only causes undue suffering, but is a blot on the fair name of St. Louis and the State of Missouri. Will you not use your influence in the Lefislature toprov ide immediate relief funds ,tthat an untthinkable tragedy may be averted?"

The sit-down protest of 125 men, women and children against the cut in relief rolls, which began Thursday morning at the application office of the St. Louis Relief Administration at 2309 Locust street, continued today under auspices of the St. Louis Workers' Alliance.

Those taking part in the demonstration have passed part of the time exchanging stories of their failure to find employment, inability to obtain relief and their lack of any means to support themselves and their children.

MINE, 'GERMAN MAKE,' FOUND OFF ALMERIA

Spanish Ministry Announces It Is Near Spot Where British Warship Was Damaged.

By the Associated Press.

VALENCIA, Spain, May 15.—The Ministry of Marine tonight announced the discovery of a mine "of German manufacture" off the port of Almeria and near the spot where the British destroyer Hunter was disabled Thursday.

Coast Guard boats engaged in minesweeping operations made the discovery and placed a protective scaffolding around it pending towing it ashore tomorrow.

"The position of the mine," the Ministry announced, "gives reason to believe it is identical with that which caused the destruction of the Hunter.

"Our ship will continue minesweeping in these waters, since it is logical to suppose there were not only two mines laid."

By the Associated Press.

GIBRALTAR, May 15.—The British destroyer Hunter, its prow stove in by an explosion Thursday off the southeastern coast of Spain, was towed stern-first into Gibraltar Harbor today with five dead men aboard.

Flags were lowered to half-staff in the harbor when the British hospital ship Maine arrived earlier in the day with the Hunter's 14 injured seamen. Three others were buried yesterday at Almeria, Government-held port off which the Hunter exploded.

An investigating commission of British and Spanish officers continued taking testimony from the crews of fishing boats which were near the scene of the explosion.

British naval authorities said yesterday early investigations "suggested" the Hunter struck a floating mine. There was no indication who laid the mine.

The Hunter is to be examined here in drydock.

UNION HEAD SAYS NOT GUILTY TO EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE

President of Flat Glass Workers Held to Grand Jury at Columbus, O.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., May 15.—Glenn W. McCabe, 44 years old, president of the Flat Glass Workers of America, pleaded not guilty today of embezzling $1600 in union funds, waived preliminary examination and was held to the grand jury by Municipal Judge August W. Weber.

Robert McVay, member of the Executive Board of the union, accused McCabe of misusing funds of the Flat Glass Workers, trade publication. McCabe contended the magazine, which he edited, was his own publication and he was not required to account to the union for the funds.

Contesting McCabe's claim to ownership of the magazine, the executive board brought suit in Common Pleas Court and obtained an order for an audit of the magazine's books. Before the suit was heard, however, a settlement giving title to the magazine to the union was approved by Judge Robert P. Duncan. McVay said the charge grew out of the audit.

MEXICO DISARMING MANY AMONG AGRARIAN RESERVES

Guns to Be Given Only to Men Who Have Received Land Under Farm Program.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, May 15. — The War Department today began weeding out undesirables among the agrarian reserves, farmers armed to bolster Mexico's military strength.

Acting Secretary of War Manuel Avila Camacho instructed army leaders to permit arms to be given only to men who already have received land under the Government's agrarian program.

Many persons, he said, such as merchants and landlords, "ideologically opposed to agrarianism," managed to join the reserves "to defend personal interests." He ordered these ousted along with those who "merely sought an excuse to carry a gun."

Complaints that armed agrarians have been using their weapons for purposes other than intended have been made to authorities.

The most frequent complaint has been that small farmers sieze property without waiting for Government procedure.

BUSINESS WOMEN CONDEMN COURT PLAN

Illinois Clubs Adopt Resolution Against Packing; Miss Martha Connole Sponsor.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 15.—By a vote of 65 to 22, the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs adopted today a resolution offered from the floor protesting against "packing the Supreme Court."

The resolution was presented by Mrs. Walter Scudder Hart of Chicago, after she had been informed from the platform that the resolution, which she had originally presented to the resolutions committee, had been turned down unanimously by that group as "political."

But upon the motion of Miss Martha Connole of East St. Louis, a former State president, the resolution was read from the platform. It follows:

"We, the Illinois Business and Professional Women's Clubs, a non-political, non-partisan, non-sectarian group, in convention hereby protest to the duly constituted authorities at Washington the packing of the Supreme Court of the United States, and respectfully urge that our Representatives in Congress use their influence and power to defeat this bill which is contrary to our constitution."

It also instructed the copies of the resolution be sent to the President of the United States, president of the Senate, Speaker of the House, and Illinois' two U. S. Senators.

A motion that the resolution as sent to these authorities should also report the minority vote was offered by Mrs. Erma Templeman of Springfield, but was tabled.

In speaking for her resolution, Mrs. Hart said she did not think it amiss for the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs to take a stand on the matter, "especially after other such nonpartisan organizations as the D. A. R. and the General Federation of Woman's Clubs have done so."

Miss Connole arose to "speak as a citizen," and after saying that Democratic Senators Glass, Wheeler and Clark have opposed the bill, she said:

"It is important to our two Senators to let them know where we stand. The packing of the Supreme Court means destruction of the United States and we as citizens should not let that be done."

This brought Mrs. Templeman to her feet with:

"Who says anything about packing the Supreme Court?"

"Roosevelt," responded Miss Connole quickly.

Mrs. Templeman replied that the President's judicial reorganization bill seeks to regulate the ages at which Judges should retire and, she continued, it does not give him more power, than the Constitution already has given him, namely "the power to fill vacancies."

"But there are no vacancies," came from the floor.

Gertrude Hill, of Decatur, said she did not tthink the members attending the convention sufficiently represented the member clubs to permit them to take action on this question.

"The convention has been representing them," came from Miss Connole.

An attempt at a viva voce vote brought such lusty "noes" after loud "yesses" that a standing vote was ordered.

The convention also adopted a resolution protesting against the dismissal of Miss Harriet Reed of Chicago as arbitrator for the Illinois Industrial Commission, an office she held for 16 years.

U. S. INVITES CIVILIAN PILOTS TO ENROLL IN RESERVES

Aviators To Be Available in Event of War; Rosters To Be Kept Up-to-Date.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 15. — The Navy disclosed today that it has begun to develop a reserve of fighting aviators who will be available for service in event of war.

Regulations issued by the Bureau of Navigation instructed the commandants of each of the 14 naval districts to invite qualified civilian pilots to register. Rosters of such men will be kept up-to-date for use in a national emergency.

Officers said the registration would be purely voluntary. Those thus listed will form a "second line" reserve behind the regular peacetime naval aviation reserve, which has an enrollment of only a few hundred because funds are unavailable.

Bureau of Air Commerce records listed 15,429 active licensed male pilots as of April 1. Most of these, it was said, would be eligible for registration.

ANTI-JEWISH RIOTS SPREADING IN POLAND

Building Bombed in Warsaw—Mob Forms After Jew Kills Gentile in Grabow.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, May 15.—The bombing in Warsaw and rioting in Grabow marked the spread today of anti-Semitic disorders in Poland.

The bomb was set off at the entrance of a Jewish community building, damaging the structure, but causing no casualties.

In Grabow a mob that gathered after a Jewish shopkeeper had knifed a Gentile competitor, beat all the Jews it could find and smashed 250 windows in Jewish homes. Jews barred their houses.

In Brzesc (the war-time Brest-Litovsk) 30,000 Jews remained hidden in their homes while a large crowd followed the coffin of a policeman whose stabbing by a Jew yesterday precipitated disorders.

Police today arrested about 100 persons accused of participating in the Brzesc riots. Many were convicted and sent to jail.

Officers also made a careful search for goods stolen from Jewish-owned shops during the outbreak and restored a considerable quantity to the owners.

Authorities had feared there would be further trouble in connection with the policeman's funeral, but it passed off peacefully.

In the Brzesc rioting yesterday more than 50 jews were injured, three seriously, and $500,000 damage was done to Jewish property. During the night many Jews fled; hundreds of others crowded their synagogues to pray.

In three other towns, Kobryn, Terespol and Czernowczyce police were called out to quell anti-Semitic disorders.

HOLDING COMPANY ACT IN SUPREME COURT

Electric Bond and Share Asks for Review of Decision Requiring Registration.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The 1935 act regulating public utility holding companies reached the Supreme Court today, when Electric Bond and Share Company and 26 utility subsidiaries asked the tribunal to review a decision by Judge Julian W. Mack of the New York Federal District Court requiring that they register with the Securities and Exchange Commission for regulatory purposes.

If the court agrees to review the controversy, arguments probably will be heard next October, followed by a final decision a few weeks later.

The litigants seek a Supreme Court review without waiting for the customary ruling by the Circuit Court of Appeals. Litigants sometimes are permitted to skip a circuit court if the controversy is considered to be of outstanding public importance.

Under U. S. Regulation.

The Holding Company Act brings under Government regulation companies that control billions of dollars of interstate gas and electric business. The legislation is aimed at what the Administration describes as "abuses," including alleged uneconomic pyramiding of companies and harmful stock practices.

Judge Mack limited his decision to holding that the companies must register. In doing so, they are required to make reports of their financial condition and corporate structure.

"The mere statement," Judge Mack said, "of some of the evil practices engaged in by some public utility holding companies . . . suffices to demonstrate that publicity of that financial information, which is now seldom made public, will tend to mitigate and perhaps to eliminate at least some of these abuses."

In their petition, the utility companies say that, "from the standpoint of the public interest, the urgency and importance of a prompt and final determination by this court of the question presented in this case cannot be exaggerated."

Attorneys' Contention.

Through Attorneys Thomas D. Thacher and John F. MaClane, they argue that the "sole purpose and effect" of the registration requirement "is to prohibit the use of the mails and the facilities of interstate commerce unless the holding company by registration submits to an unconstitutional regulation of its affairs."

Government attorneys have sought to delay prosecution of other litigation involving the act until a final decision could be obtained on the Electric Bond and Share Case. They have picked this litigation as a test case.

During congressional consideration, the measuse became the subject of heated controversy. One of the major points of contention was the so-called "death sentence" clause which, in general, would abolish holding companies branded "unnecessary.'

Nominated Mayor of Tokio.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, May 15.—Gen. Kazushige Ugaki, former Minister of War and Governor-General of Korea, was nominated for Mayor of Tokio by the Tokio City Assembly, which gave him 13 votes to 3 for Isoo Abe, leader of the Social Mass party. The nomination must be confirmed by the Home Ministry. Torataro Ushizuka has been Mayor since 1933.

Charged with Heckling Dispatcher.

MARION, Ill., May 15.—Charged with breaking into a railroad station telephone booth, heckling and contradicting the orders of an Illinois Central train dispatcher, Roy Arms and Kenneth Harris of Herrin, Ill., were held in the county jail here today awaiting action of a grand jury.

PHILIP SNOWDEN DIES; FUNERAL ON TUESDAY

Weaver's Son, Who Became British Minister and Peer, Was 72 Years Old.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 15.—Philip Snowden, a weaver's son who became Viscount Snowden of Ickornshaw and Labor's first Chancellor of the Exchequer, died today of a heart attack. He was 72 years old and had been inactive in politics for five years.

His wife was his only immediate survivor.

While he was unable to attend the coronation of George VI his illness did not seem critical and his wife was a guest last night at the state ball at Buckingham Palace. She was there when informed here of her husband's death. She left immediately for Tilford.

Viscount Snowden was born July 18, 1868, of poor parents in the West Riding of York. He had only a rudimentary education. He was crippled at 27, when he was knocked from a bicycle. He spent a year in bed and limped thereafter.

He died at 4 a. m. at his country home at Tilford, Surrey. His body will be cremated at a private service Tuesday at Woking, Surrey.

King George and Dowager Queen Mary sent messages of condolence to Viscountess Snowden. Ramsey MacDonald, former Prime Minister who made Snowden his Chancellor of the Exchequer, forgot their differences, saying: "A great man of our age has passed by."

Snowden served two terms as Chancellor of the Exchequer in 1924 and in 1929-31. He was raised to the peerage on retirement from his second cabinet post.

Viscount Snowden, who was made a peer by King George V in 1931, won recognition for his help in forming the National Government in 1931. Later he split with MacDonald over repeal of the land tax and bitterly assailed the Prime Minister from his seat in the House of Lords. When a storm broke over the Ottawa tariffs bill in 1932 Snowden remained an uncompromising free trader and sent his resignation to MacDonald.

In the House of Lords he would stand leaning on his rubber tipped sticks, without which he could not walk, while from his lips poured streams of cold, incisive logic that confounded the theories of his opponents. Nor did he dodge personalities. Thrusts at his motives or the sincerity of his party brought answering darts of scornful rhetoric that generally sent his attackers into a scrambling rush for cover. It was thus that he presented and defended the first Laborite budget before the House in 1924. Thus also he ridiculed and riddled the financial policy of his predecessor, Winston Churchill, when the second MacDonald Cabinet was formed in 1929.

Always a pacifist, he bitterly fought Britain's participation in the World War. He was an atheist and a believer in Marxian socialism.

At the peak of his career, he faced the allied nations at The Hague and exacted England's full share of the Young plan payments from Germany.

BROKERAGE FIRM WINS SUIT OVER $37,500 STOCK DEAL

Jury Finds A. G. Edwards & Sons Does Not Owe That Sum to Former Client.

A verdict for A. G. Edwards & Sons, a brokerage firm, was returned yesterday by a jury in Circuit Judge Joseph J. Ward's court in the suit of F. A. Cammann, 2328 Arkansas avenue, a manufacturer's agent, who alleged that the firm owed him $37,500. The suit was based on a trading account by which Cammann had purchased securities on margin through the Edwards concern.

Cammann alleged that on Oct. 2, 1929, he was notified the brokerage house had sold to his account 500 shares of preferred stock and 1000 shares of common stock issued by the Prince & Whitely Trading Corporation, a holding concern, and had charged the account for the price of the stock, represented by the amount he sued for. Cammann denied having authorized this purchase. He stated that other securities he had on deposit were sold by the defendant company to liquidate the claim.

The defense contended it acted in the transaction on authority from the plaintiff. At a previous trial of the suit, Circuit Judge Moses Hartmann, who was then on the bench, ordered judgment in favor of the defendant. Cammann appealed from this decision to the Missouri Supreme Court, which held the case should have been submitted to a jury and ordered a new trial.

Convicted at Savannah, Ga., of Accepting $100 Bribe.

By the Associated Press.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 15.—Harlan Page, 46 years old, former junior investigator for the Federal Alcohol Administration, was sentenced in United States District Court today to three years in prison on a charge of accepting a bribe.

The Government charged Page accepted $100 from a Savannah man and entered into an agreement to protect him in wholesale liquor dealings for $100 a week. Georgia laws permit sale only of wine and beer.

MAN KILLED IN AUTO DRIVEN BY HIS SON

He Is Pinned Beneath Car When It Is Upset in Collision.

Merle Carr, 52 years old, a salesman, was killed yesterday when the automobile in which he was riding collided with another at Garfield and Warne avenues, and was overturned, pinning him beneath. His head was crushed.

His machine was being driven west by his son, Donald, 19, when it crashed into the car driven south by Jay Arnoldus, salesman, 1431 North Vandeventer avenue, at the intersection. Neither driver was injured.

Carr lived at 6403 Myrtle avenue, Wellston.

BOY DROWNED ON VISIT TO HIS UNCLE'S FARM

Fred Rice Jr., 11, Granite City, Loses Life Near Edwardsville.

Fred Rice Jr., 11-year-old son of a Granite City machinist, was drowned yesterday afternoon in a creek on his uncle's farm five miles southeast of Edwardsville where he had gone to spend the week-end.

Shortly after arriving at the farm, owned by Fred Kasdorf, the boy started on a walk accompanied by a dog. When he failed to return at dinner time his cousin, Henry Kasdorf, went to look for him.

Recalling that last week-end he had waded with Fred in a stream know nas Judy's creek, he went there first and saw his cousin's body lying on the bottom in about six feet of water. The boy's clothes were on the bank.

An inhalator was used at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Granite City, in a futile attempt to revive the boy. Deputy Coroner Ferd Pieper advanced the theory that he may have suffered from cramps when swimming in the chilly water.

MEDICAL SOCIETY TO MEET

Engineer to Discuss Carbon Monoxide Concentrations in Busses.

An investigation of carbon monoxide concentrations in busses will be discussed by H. G. Dyktor, industrial hygiene engineer in the city health division, at a meeting of the St. Louis Medical Society Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at 3839 Lindell boulevard.

Dr. Franz Arzt will speak on an analysis of maternal mortality in the maternal hygiene clinics, as compared with deaths of mothers in the city at large. Dr. E. H. Rohlfing will discuss factors influencing infant mortality in St. Louis and Dr. Max Deutch will speak on diphtheria immunization. The meeting will be under auspices of the city health division.

RULING ON TAX DEDUCTIONS

State Unemployment Insurance Recognized in Federal Returns.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 15. — The Commissioner of Internal Revenue announced today that employer and employe contributions to State unemployment insurance funds are deductible from Federal income tax returns.

Dog Leads Way to Drowned Child.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., May 15.—The family dog tugged at the apron strings of Mrs. Albert J. Dangler today until she followed him out the door of her home. The animal led her down the road to a water-filled gravel pit. Floating on the water was the body of her 2-year-old son, Albert Jr., who had fallen into the pit while at play. Efforts to revive the child were futile.

AIRSHIP CREW MAN FOUND WHO SAW BEGINNING OF FIRE

Hans Freund, Rigging Officer on Duty in Hindenburg's Stern at Time, Near Explosion Scene.

SUDDENLY TAKEN OFF OF STAND

Board of Inquiry Holds Up His Sailing for Germany for Complete Examination.

By the Associated Press.

LAKEHURST, N. J., May 15.—The investigators of the Hindenburg disaster unexpectedly discovered today a man who could tell them what he saw happen in the dirigible's stern when it was torn with a flaming explosion.

Considered one of the most important crew survivors yet found, Hans Freund, a rigging officer, told the Commerce Department investigating board and its staff of American and German advisers that he was on duty in the ship's tail at the time and near the spot where disaster struck so suddenly.

Freund had been called as another routine crew survivor witness so that he might sail for his German home tonight with 20 other comrades who have told their stories. His apparent knowledge of the moment of disaster so impressed the investigators, however, that he was suddenly withdrawn from the stand and his thorough examination deferred until Monday.

While today's brief hearing was in progress, the loss of life from the airliner tragedy of May 6 increased to 36. A German passenger on the last flight, Otto Ernst, 78 years old, a Hamburg cotton importer, died this morning at Paul Kimball Hospital, in nearby Lakewood, from the burns and injuries he suffered in the crash. His wife, less seriously hurt, remained under medical care in the same hospital. The condition of two other survivors in a Point Pleasant hospital is unfavorable.

Freund had little chance to get launched on his story before he was withdrawn. He did disclose, however, that a Manila landing rope was momentarily fouled by two fins of the ship during landing operations.

In postponing his detailed testimony, the Department of Commerce board members said they wished to consult with the German and American experts so as to prepare for a more exhaustive questioning of the witness Monday.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, head of the Zeppelin Corporation, was invited to let the board have his questions before his departure to spend Sunday in New York, where he and his colleagues of the official German investigating mission plan to talk with Capt. Max Pruss, skipper of the Hindenburg, and other injured survivors.

W. B. LEEDS LONG ISLAND ESTATE SOLD FOR $160,000

Undisclosed Purchaser Is "American Yachtsman and Not the Duke of Windsor."

By the Associated Press.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., May 15.—The William B. Leeds estate on Long Island was sold at public auction today for $160,000 to an undisclosed purchaser whose attorney described him as an "American sportsman and yachtsman and not the Duke of Windsor."

The purchaser assumes a $125,000 mortage on the 54-acre estate and bids were called in amounts above the mortgage. Only one other bidder, a representative of Leeds, competed with Joseph L. Werner, New York attorney, acting for the buyer.

Lerner said he was not at liberty to disclose the name of the purchaser before June 1, when title to the place will be taken. He said that the purchaser was of an F. F. V. (First Family of Virginia), and that the announcement would be made from Miami, Fla.

BOY DROWNS, FRIEND SAVED IN MINE POND NEAR DANVILLE

Other Members of Scout Troop Aid Youth Who Fails in Rescue Attempt.

By the Associated Press.

DANVILLE, Ill., May 15.—Wayne Baker, 14 years old, member of a Villa Grove Boy Scout troop, was drowned today in a mine pond while on a week-end camping trip. A companion, Charles Anderson, also 14, was rescued by two other scouts.

Baker and Anderson, troop members said, started to swim across a 200-foot pond close by Camp Drake near here, when Baker became exhausted and sank. Anderson was pulled under twice as he attempted to aid his companion. Buren Jordan and Kenneth Blakeney, also in the water, pulled Anderson to shore.

Verne Crouch, troop leader, said the four boys went swimming without his permission.

U. S. SOCIAL SECURITY ACT DECISIONS PENDING

Supreme Court May Give Rulings Tomorrow on Three Important Issues.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 15. — The members of the Supreme Court met in conference today to prepare for a session Monday.

Constitutionality of social security legislation is the major issue among the 28 cases awaiting decision before the Justices adjourn for the summer early next month.

At stake are:

1. Constitutionality of the old age pension provisions of the Federal act under which employers and employes are taxed to provide benefit for the workers when they reach 65. A total of 26,610,000 employes and 2,700,000 employers are paying the assessment. George P. Davis of Waltham, Mass., has challenged the pension system in a suit to prevent the Edison Electric Illuminating Co. of Boston, of which he is a stockholder, from paying the levy. The United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Boston held the legislation to be unconstitutional.

2. The unemployment insurance provisions of the act under which employers of eight or more persons are taxed to provide benefits for the jobless. They may deduct 90 per cent of the assessment provided it is paid into a State unemployment compensation fund approved by the Federal Social Security Board. This part of the act was attacked by the Charles C. Steward Machine Co. of Alabama. The United States Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans upheld the legislation.

3. Constitutionality of laws passed by 43 States and the District of Columbia to provide unemployment compensation in line with the purpose of the Federal measure. These States protect 18,530,000 workers. Only Delaware, Illinois, Missouri, Nebraska anad Florida have failed to pass supplementary legislation. The test case under consideration was directed against the Alabama act by the Southern Coal & Coke Co. and by the Gulf States Paper Corporation. A three-Judge United States District Court in Alabama held the measure to be unconstitutional.

Similar legislation enacted by New York was allowed to stand as constituitonal by the Supreme Court last Nov. 23 by a four-to-four vote without a written opinion. The even division, due to the illness of Justice Stone, left undisturbed the decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in New York.

Criticises School Morale.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 15.—A statement by District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan that his office had found "an unusual moral condition" in Brooklyn public high schools brought counter-fire today from school officials. Geoghan said his office, in an investigation of sex crimes, had uncovered the condition that "warrants an immediate and intensive" probe.

MAJORITY AGAINST ROOSEVELT COURT PLAN, SAYS BURKE

Nebraska Senator, Passing Through St. Louis on Way to Texas, Declares Bill Can't Win.

FILIBUSTER? IT MAY NOT BE NECESSARY

"But There Is Good Chance of Prolonged Argument," He Adds as Train Pulls Out.

Edward R. Burke, junior United States Senator from Nebraska, who told reporters he "would rather be right than agree with the President" as he left a White House conference on the Supreme Court reorganization plan three months ago, thinks a majority of members have come to his conclusion since then and will vote agreement with him if the Roosevelt bill or any modification of it reaches the Senate.

The vigorous Democratic leader of opposition to the President's proposal, who announced at the outset that he would fight the bill "with every bit of energy I possess," expressed confidence that it would never be enacted as he strode through Union Station Friday night from a train which had brought him from Washington to another which took him to Dallas, Tex., for an address last night before a group of lawyers opposed to the plan.

In the opinion of Senator Burke, the plan had gained no strength during the absence from Washington of President Roosevelt, whose statement that he was going ahead with objectives not yet attained, made yesterday on returning from his Gulf fishing trip, was construed to mean he would insist on his original proposal.

Although Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, announced after a conference with the President Friday that "the battle will go on," Burke said to a Post-Dispatch reporter at Union Station that three or four members of the Senate whose position had been in doubt would announce their opposition within the next few days. He declined to name them.

"At least 40 Senators are unalterably opposed to the President's plan," he said. "The opposition has been gathering strength and will continue to grow stronger. We have enough votes now to prevent limitation of debate."

Asked if this indicated a filibuster, Burke replied:

"It may not be necessary to filibuster, but——" he hesitated and smiled, then went on—"but, I will say there is a good chance of prolonged argument."

There was doubt, he said, that the Senate Judiciary Committee, of which he is a member, will approve the bill when it is brought up for a vote next Tuesday.

"The Senate," he asserted as he boarded his train, "is not going to permit any tampering with the independence of the judiciary. That means that the President's plan or any modification which would change the membership of the court will be defeated."

A. G. OBER JR., BALTIMORE SPORTSMAN, IS DROWNED

Thrown Into Sea in Sudden Lurch of Sloop Off Lower New England Coast.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 15.—Albert G. Ober Jr., 45 years old, of Baltimore, Md., sportsman, was drowned 12 miles off Rock Island today in a sudden lurch of the sloop, Flying Cloud, in a rainstorm. Ober in 1927 rode the horse Bill Barton to victory in the twenty-sixth running of the Grand National Steeplechase at Brooklandwood, Md.

The Flying Cloud, with five other guests and two members of the crew aboard, left Fairhaven, Mass., yesterday for Baltimore and encountered heavy seas.

Ober was securing the lee backstay when the sloop lurched and pitched him overboard. The Captain, D. H. Sherwood, of Towson, Md., reported to customs officials that the sloop searched the vicinity without success. The Coast Guard cutter Argo left to make a search for the body.

FLOODS IN NEW ENGLAND

Rivers Out of Banks in Vermont, New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, May 15.—Swollen by heavy rains, New England rivers rose today, overflowing their banks in sections of Vermont, New Hampshire and Western Massachusetts.

Highways were inundated or damaged by landsildes in the Western Massachusetts hill country. Water rose over a road at East Barre, Vt., and Vermont's huge flood-control dams began filling up. One section of Keene, N. H., was without lights or electric power and about 100 homes were affected. State police at Russell reported several landslides on Jacob's Ladder of the Mohawk Trail, with huge rocks tumbling onto the main highway.

SUIT FILED TO PRESS CLAIM ON $50,000 LIFE POLICY

Trustees of Will of Mrs. C. M. Jones Say George Graham Estate Owes $27,000 on Note.

Suit was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by James C. Jones and J. Lionberger Davis, as trustees of the will of the late Mrs. Clara M. Jones, to subject $50,000 in life insurance carried by George Graham, former president of the Central States Life Insurance Co., to a $27,000 cliam of the trustees. Graham died April 15 in New York, where he resided.

The claim is based on a promissory note executed by Graham in January, 1930. The note was for $40,000, which has been reduced by payments. The insurance is payable to Graham's widow, Mrs. Caroline Parsons Graham, and his two sisters, the Misses Jane and Elizabeth Graham. They and the Central States Life Insurance Co., which issued the insurance, are named as co-defendants.

LONDON, May 15.—Doris Duke Cromwell, sometimes called the richest girl in the world, will visit Moscow in June with her husband, J. H. R. Cromwell, the guests of United States Ambassador Joseph E. Davies and Mrs. Davies. The Cromwells came here for the coronation. They will visit Paris and Berlin before going to Moscow.

NAZIS FORBID JEWS TO PLAY MOZART OR BEETHOVEN MUSIC

Goethe Also Barred to Them, but English Shakespeare and French Moliere Are Not.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 15.—Hans Hinkel, Culture Commissioner, warned Jews anew today to keep their hands off German art. There was no objection to Jews presenting works of Shakespeare, Moliere, Verdi, Shaw or Ibsen, he said, but it would be considered "arrogance" if they sought to play Beethoven or Mozart music or to recite Goethe's poetry.

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels has assigned to Hinkel the task of "watching" the activities of the Jewish Kulturbund, set up after the passage of the Nurnberg racial laws to provide a sort of intellectual Ghetto for the Jews.

Hinkel said today the Jews were "helpless" if they had to depend on their own artists, hence they must be permitted to invoke Shakespeare, Moliere and some others, but he went on:

"It must be considered arrogance, however, if, in applying for permits for Jewish entertainments, Beethoven, Goethe and Mozart works are included. It is not our purpose to develop a German Kulturbund with a Jewish membership. The Jews should be given an opportunity of developing within their own spiritual and creative limitations. If this development should prove too meager for them, they will the better understand why we didn't want them as lords and masters of our cultural life."

ALIMONY SIT-DOWN 'CRUELTY'

Husband of Colorado Woman Cites Act in Divorce Petition.

By the Associated Press.

BOULDER, Colo., May 15.—Mrs. Genevieve Johnson's 15-day sit-down strike for alimony was cited as an act of cruelty in divorce proceedings filed here today by Ralph Johnson, 26 years old.

Mrs. Johnson, 29, conducted her strike in a rocking chair in front of the home of Johnson's parents in Longmont, 20 miles from here. Large crowds of curious came to see her, bands serenaded her and she took a bath under a tarpaulin. She desisted last Monday on the order of police.

What is "The Low-Price Field"?

You hear a lot about "the low-price field" these days. A good many cars claim to be in it.

So whenever the low-price field is mentioned, remember:

Until Ford came, no average American could own a car.

Today all Ford prices are still low—with the prices of the 60-horsepower Ford V-8 $30 to $60 lower than the prices of any other car of comparable size.

But with Ford, "low price" doesn't merely mean low figures on the price tag. It means much more than that.

It means low prices and low costs all the car's long life. Low prices for service—for parts—and, above all, for operation.

Both Ford V-8 engine sizes are economical to operate. The 85-horsepower gives greater gasoline mileage this year than ever, and the 60-horsepower delivers the highest mileage in Ford history.

Private owners, cab companies, fleet operators all report that the "60" averages from 22 to 27 miles per gallon of gasoline.

Check and see how much Ford saves you.

Ford Founded the Low-Price Field and Ford Keeps That Field Low-Priced Today

EMERSON TO PUT FULL CREWS TO WORK BY TUESDAY

Most of 2000 Employes Who Ended 68-Day Strike Friday to Return Tomorrow.

A majority of the 2000 Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co. employes who ended a 68-day strike Friday, will return to work tomorrow and virtually all of the others will be needed Tuesday, they were informed in letters sent out by the company, which is anxious to fill delayed orders for electric fans and other appliances.

One group, composed largely of women, was asked to report at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning and others received notice that their operations would begin an hour later.

Under the tentative agreement offered by the company after conferences with officials of the United Electricians' and Radio Workers' Union, affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization, all employes as of March 8, when the strike began, will be retained to work without discrimination. Those working at Emerson plants last Jan. 1, but not at the time of the strike, will get employment on a basis of seniority before any other applicants receive work.

A 5 per cent wage increase will be effective immediately for all workers and an additional 5 per cent increase will be given those making less than 50 cents an hour next Oct. 17. A minimum wage of 35 cents an hour for experienced workers and 32 cents for beginners was established. The agreement provided for a five-day, 40-hour week, but schedules will be arranged so the plants may operate six days a week.

The union was recognized as the sole agency for collective bargaining and negotiations will be continued. The union had asked for a blanket wage increase of 10 cents an hour.

Ending of the strike, which included a 53-day sit-down demonstration, resulted in the dismissal of charges before the National Labor Relations Board that the company had refused to bargain collectively with employes and had fostered a company union.

C I O REPORTS 40 LOCALS IN LIGHT INDUSTRIES FIELD

Granting Charters Now to Give Them Affiliation; Plans National Organization Later.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The Committee for Industrial Organization said today it was entering many small industrial fields to nationalize local unions. Some 40 charters have been granted local groups, the C I O said, to give them C I O standing until the industrial workers they represent can be organized on a country-wide basis.

Asked if the plan was designed to combat the American Federation of Labor, officers said this was not the intention.

Officers said the small groups chartered were in the cork, distillery, highway, cereal, brick and clay, furniture and other industries where the number of workmen is small compared with the heavy industries.

Headquarters said "nearly every one" of the newly chartered groups had been organized locally for some time and had sought nationalization under the C I O.

Canadian Strikes Settled.

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Ont., May 15.—(Canadian Press)—Settlement of a month-old longshoremen's strike at Toronto, Hamilton and Point Edward was announced by union officials today. J. O. Clark, spokesman for the International Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes, said the men won increased wages and improved working conditions. They will return to work Monday.

TENTATIVE UNION PACT WITH SCULLIN STEEL

C I O Organizer Says Negotiations on Differences Will Begin Thursday.

John Doherty, organizer for the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, announced that a tentative agreement was reached yesterday with the Scullin Steel Co., and that negotiations on wages, hours and other desired adjustments would begin next Thursday.

The company agreed to recognize the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, affiliated with the Commmittee for Industrial Organization, for its membership, in collective bargaining, until it is definitely established through an election that the union represents a majority of the 1300 employes, when sole recognition will be granted.

Provision is made for the settlement of disputes through arbitration, the union agreeing that there will be no stoppage of work or membership solicitation on company time or property. The company, in turn, promised there would be no discrimination against union members or interference with proper organizational efforts. The terms arrived at through the negotiations beginning this week will remain in effect until next Feb. 28.

Doherty, who reached the understanding at conferences with Harry Scullin, president of the company, said the union would petition the National Labor Relations Board for a plant election on employe representation, to be held at the convenience of the board, and would withdraw charges that the steel company had refused to bargain collectively, which had been filed with the Labor Board.

A. F. L. HEAD IN N. CAROLINA CITED FOR C I O ACTIVITIES

Accused by Federation of Violation of Oath, Sponsoring Dual Unionism and Treason.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., May 15.—Roy R. Lawrence, State president of the North Carolina Federation of Labor, who recently became Carolina's administrator for textile organization activities of the Committee for Industrial Organization, was cited today to appear before the State Federation's executive board tomorrow on charges of "violation of your oath of office, sponsoring dual unionism and treason."

Lawrence made public a telegram from George L. Googe of Atlanta, Ga., Southern representative of the American Federation of Labor, requesting him to appear before the board here, but declined to say whether he would attend the session.

At its last meeting, just two days before, Lawrence accepted a post with John L. Lewis' forces, the State board adopted a resolution suggesting that the dispute between the A. F. of L. and the C I O be settled on a basis of recognizing that craft unions, advocated by William Green's federation, be maintained where they now exist, and that mass production industries be organized on an industrial union system, as advocated by Lewis.

STRIKE-CLOSED LAUNDRIES WON'T ATTEMPT TO OPEN

Owner of 3 of 4 Shut Down in East St. Louis Says He's "In No Hurry to Settle."

The four East St. Louis laundries, whose 330 employes including 30 chauffeurs, went on strike yesterday, will make no attempt to operate, Harold Baker, attorney for the companies, said last night. J. B. Hartmann, owner of three of the four laundries, said he was "in no hurry to settle the dispute."

His companies are the Progress, Model and New Way laundries. The fourth concern is the St. Clair Laundry & Dry Cleaning Co., owned by Finis P. Ernest Jr. Three drivers employed by a fifth concern, the Davis Cleaning & Dyeing Co., also are on strike.

The strike resulted from differences over wages. The companies agreed to recognize the local of the Laundry Workers' International Union and Local 729 of the Teamsters' and Chauffeurs' Union. They also agreed to a 48-hour week, but their wage offers were lower than those sought by the unions. Only two laundries in East St. Louis are not affected by the strike.

RISING TREND IN CRIME IN METROPOLITAN AREAS

Federal Bureau of Investigation Reports Increase in Major Offenses.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 15. — The Federal Bureau of Investigation reported today a rising trend in all major classes of crime in metropolitan areas.

Based on statistics assembled by the Department of Justice from records of local enforcement officers, the report showed there were 78,860 major offenses in the first three months of this year, compared with 70,638 in the corresponding period last year.

The crimes were reported in 68 cities of more than 100,000 population.

Complete reports for 1936, compared with the preceding year, disclosed a decrease in crime through the country as a whole, urban and rural. Major offenses listed in 1935 totaled 1,445,581 and in the following year they dropped to 1,333,526.

WISCONSIN STATE PARK

by Nature and by Law a Great Vacation State

Nature made Wisconsin a great vacation state, with incomparable summer climate, more than 7,000 lakes, hundreds of miles of rivers, 10,000 miles of trout streams and great areas of cool, green forests.

And laws made by the people of Wisconsin to protect and safeguard these natural resources will always keep Wisconsin a grand vacation state. Thousands of acres in the state have been set aside for permanent use as public recreational areas—state parks and forests, camp grounds, wild life refuges, great natural playgrounds. Each year, hundreds of millions of fish are hatched and planted to help nature keep Wisconsin's lakes and streams well populated.

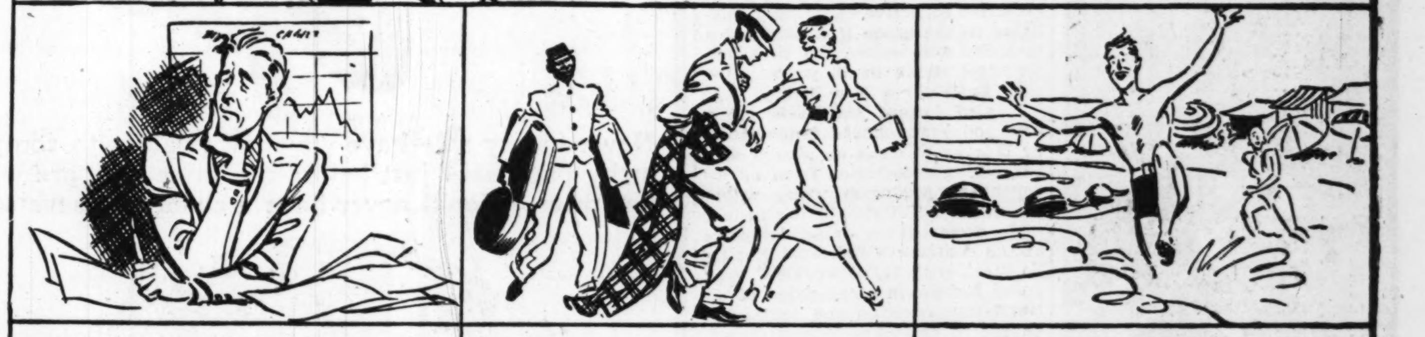
"Sounds odd perhaps but SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA really changed my whole personality-and it all happened in a 2-weeks vacation"



1 Talk about ruts! I was in one over my head. Like a squirrel in a cage, round and round, never anything new, even my vacations the same every year—I'd gone stale.

2 My wife saved me. "A two weeks vacation," she read somewhere, "equals 16 days—at least 12 of them actually in Southern California, and costs are lower."

3 Even the trip out didn't prepare me for Southern California. Mountains, beaches, islands . . . a different world! Rainless summer days—cool at night.

4 Sports? We found them all, and tried most of them . . . swimming, fishing, riding, sailing, surfboarding. Golf was a new game among palms and oranges.

5 Cities were different, too, Los Angeles, Pasadena, Pomona, Beverly Hills, Glendale, Long Beach, Santa Monica. And Los Angeles County industries: oil, citrus, movies.

6 Hollywood is full of interesting people from everywhere. In fact people we met . . . smart, active, keen . . . helped make the vacation so stimulating.

7 Back home, somehow I feel like "somebody." I seem to have a new slant on things, a firmer grasp. Others notice it, too. I'm on top of my work, and going places.

There's a mental stimulation about a Southern California vacation that means as much, visitors tell us, as the unequalled variety of ways to have fun here. It gives them something that helps all through the year.

A two-weeks' vacation, counting the week-ends, is 16 days, so you can have a choice of transportation methods and still have at least 12 days actually in Southern California. An ordinary budget is ample, too, because in this year 'round playground vacation costs are 15% to 32% under the average of 20 leading U. S. resorts.

C I O TALKS STRIKE OVER INDEPENDENT STEEL CONTRACTS

Philip Murray, Delegated to Force Signed Agreements, Hints Call May Be Issued in 10 Days.

FIRST SHOWDOWN EXPECTED MAY 25

Lieutenant of Lewis Will Meet Then in Pittsburgh With Chairman of First of Five Plants.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, May 15.—Philip Murray, delegated the power to force signed contracts with five big independent steel corporations, hinted tonight a strike call might be issued "within 10 days" unless agreements were reached.

"We are handling each case as a separate and distinct problem, but I would say that a very definite announcement will be made in each case within 10 days," asserted the chairman of the steel workers organizing committee, a unit of the John L. Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization.

"If the companies persist in refusing to sign labor contracts strikes are inevitable," he added.

Murray was referring to the Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Inland and Crucible Steel Corporations, who employ almost 200,000 workers.

Three Decline to Sign.

The first three concerns definitely have declined to sign the contracts calling for exclusive bargaining agency powers for their workers as demanded by Murray.

Murray said the first crisis would likely develop next Tuesday when A. F. Hofnagle, chairman of Crucible Steel, meets with him here. Lodge presidents of this concern's union locals will be present "so that we can speedily transmit our orders after this conference," said Murray.

Another conference has been scheduled for May 25, with the chairman of the Inland Steel Corporation in Chicago, Lodge presidents also will be present, ready to transmit other orders should this meeting fail to bring a signature, the union chieftain said.

Between these two meetings will be held the Government-supervised election at Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation plants to determine whether the union will be the exclusive bargaining agent of the men.

All-Day Conference.

Murray's statements came after an all-day conference of more than 60 heads of union locals and subregional directors in the districts of the Youngstown, Sheet and Tube, Republic, Inland and Crucible mills.

These delegates made their reports of progress, which Murray said were "highly satisfactory and indicated we have a majority membership in every plant." Then they voted him the power to call a strike or employ "any other strategy" he felt necessary to achieve the desired written contracts.

The union chief mobilized the attack 24 hours after he had obtained what he called a "complete victory" in settling the strike involving 27,000 workers at the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation plants in Pittsburgh and Aliquippa, Pa.

Agreement of the company to an election suprevised by the National Labor Relations Board and to grant exclusive collective bargaining privileges to the union if it obtained a majority vote ended the first major steel strike in 18 years.

Basis for a New Policy.

It also formed the basis for a new policy announced immediately by Murray to insist on similar sole bargaining recognition from all independent producers with whom the union negotiates in the future.

He declared the union delegates at the conference indicated Republic Steel, with 52,000 workers, "was going further in a campaign of intimidation, coercion and actual discharge of employes in matters affecting our organization than any other company."

Murray said affidavits now were being prepared for submission to the National Labor Relations Board at Washington listing the alleged instances in Republic mills.

George Spencer, president of the Conemaugh Valley Lodge No. 1074, presented Murray with a resolution today adopted by union men in Johnstown, Pa., authorizing him to call a strike "at all the plants of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation at any time he sees fit" after Monday.

DELAY IN MANDATE IN P W A POWER CASE IS OPPOSED

Government Resists Wait Sought by Companies That Want Supreme Court Review.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The Government asked the United States Court of Appeals here today to reject a request by two power companies for a delay in its mandate refusing to enjoin the P W A from financing municipal power plants in Alabama and Iowa cities.

The Alabama Power Co. and the Iowa City Light & Power Co. asked for 30 days in which to petition the Supreme Court to review the case, which was decided Monday. Ordinarily the mandate would be issued at the end of 15 days.

Counsel for the companies, headed by Newton D. Baker, cited the pendency of more than 40 similar cases, the outcome of which may depend on the suits of the Alabama and the Iowa City companies.

The Government contended a 30-day stay would cause a five-month delay in obtaining a ruling by the Supreme Court on the review petition. Its brief said the cases had been pending since late in 1935 and involved millions of dollars.

ADMITS 3 MURDERS, QUIZZED ABOUT FOURTH

Lester Brockelhurst Jr., in Jail in Poughkeepsie, Screams and Faints.

By the Associated Press.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 15. Lester Brockelhurst Jr., 23 years old, accused of murder in three states, alternately screamed and fainted when guards passed his cell tonight as an Illinois Sheriff planned to question him concerning a fourth murder, that of Herman Luhrsen, gasoline station operator at Rockton, near Rockford, last Feb. 12. Sheriff Paul Johnson of Rockford, who flew here with a warrant charging Brockelhurst with the murder of Albin Theander, 57 years old, a tailor, said both men were killed with the same type of bullet.

Warrants charging Brockelhurst with the murder of Victor Gates, Little Rock, Ark., and of Jack Griffith, Fort Worth (Tex.) tavern keeper, also are in the hands of Assistant District Attorney Eli Gellert. Gellert said the prisoner had confessed the Theander, Gates and Griffith murders.

Sedatives are being administered to quiet Brockelhurst, according to Dr. George E. Lane, jail physician, who described the prisoner's condition as "nervous exhaustion caused by over-excitement." His companion, Bernice Felton, 18, of Rockford, meanwhile, is sullen and won't talk. She and Brockelhurst are scheduled for trial here Monday on a charge of possession of firearms. Brockelhurst is a paroled convict and former Sunday School teacher.

Brockelhurst and Miss Felton were arrested by State Trooper Joseph Hunt because their automobile carried only one license plate. At the police station Brockelhurst confessed he had been on a six-week tour of robbery and murder.

Gellert said he would retain custody of Brockelhurst and the girl pending a conference Monday among Illinois, Texas, Arkansas, New York and Federal officials. The United States has issued a warrant charging Brockelhurst with interstate transportation of a stolen automobile.

oducers Willing to Negotiate Matter of Union Shop, Spokesman Says.

the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 15.— possibility that the strike of mov- studio craftsmen and laborers y be settled before Monday de- oped tonight.

Pat Casey, labor conciliator for the producers, informed Business Manager Charles Lessing of the striking Federated Motion Picture Crafts by letter "the producers have been and are willing to negotiate the matter of a union shop along with other demands."

Casey said he was replying to the union's insistence on "something in writing from the producers which will reasonably guarantee that union shop will be considered" in negotiations to which producers have agreed if the strikers will return to work.

Casey told Lessing leaders of the striking machinists and culinary workers had agreed to call their members back to work Monday on the basis of oral promises that union shop would be negotiated, along with other demands.

MRS. MARY K. HOLT driving Lady Hytone. The entry won first in the fine harness class.

BOONE'S DESCENDANT WEDS

Great-Great-Grandson of Pioneer Has Same First Name.

By the Associated Press.

MARTINEZ, Cal., May 15.—Daniel R. Boone, 26 years old, Denver, great-great-grandson of Daniel Boone, came to California today and was married to Miss Marjorie Anne Hudson, 24, Dayton, O., by the Rev. John R. George.

Mrs. George, the former Olive Barver, volunteered that she was the great-great-granddaughter of America Boone, Daniel's sister. The Rev. Mr. George said he was a great-great-grandson of Phillip Herrod, who accompanied Daniel Boone from Virginia through the Cumberland Gap before founding Herrodsburg, Ky.

RIDES TWO WINNERS IN HORSE SHOW EVENT

Mrs. Elmer Kerckhoff's Mounts First and Third in Corinthian Class.

Mrs. Elmer Kerckhoff, Litzinger road, Ladue, rode four of the horses and won two of the prizes in the Corinthian class competition last night, the second and final evening of the St. Louis Spring Horse Show at Missouri Stables.

The horses in that event were ridden twice around a course consisting of one brush jump, a stone wall, picket fence and natural colored chicken coop, each four feet high. Mrs. Kerckhoff, riding Trails End Stables horses, won first and third. Second place went to Hart Vance Jr., on his horse, Toman. Fourth prize was won by Arthur L. Hardin, riding Gobbler. His wife, entered in the same event, did not place.

Frank Slate, proessional rider at Trails End Stables, won the first three prizes in the hunter stake. He rode five horses. Mrs. Kerckhoff placed fourth in that event, riding Mrs. Mary S. Pettus' Stormy Weather.

200 Students Judge Entries.

Two hundred students, seated in the south section, watched the horses carefully and judged them, later receiving prizes for their accuracy. Bunting hung low over the arena. Small girls in shiny top hats, black riding habits and snow-white mufflers scampered about the stands when not taking part in events.

Phalon, owned by Mrs. L. A. Freund, was judged first in the thoroughbred breeding class. In the school horsemanship class, young riders demonstrated their ability to the music of 'School Days." H. Grant Barngrove of Lockwood School was first; Billy Laufer, who had difficulty getting back in his saddle once off the horse, was second, and Clinton Lindburg, third. Fourth prize went to Cadet Parham of Western Military Academy.

Mayor Presents Trophy.

Mayor Dickmann presented a trophy to Mrs. Mary K. Holt who drove Lady Hytone, owned by Western Military Academy, in the fine harness competition. Horses were judged as to their suitability for fine harness purposes. Miss Edith Salomon's Christmas Knight was second and Miss Agnes Killes horse, Sally Ann, third.

Annie Lawson of Stephens College, riding May Day, was first in the ladies' three-gaited saddle horse event. Second prize went to Betty James, riding C. C. Lewis's Dainty Domino. Third went to Mary Jane Muckerman on Mello Glo Highland.

The roadster stake excited more than perfunctory interest because speed was an important factor in selecting winners. L. A. Freund was first with Treasurer Bread. Ray Bartholomew, riding Peter Tide, owned by W. C. Malin, was second, and R. W. Brown on Yoo-Hoo won third.

V. P. Queen Introduced.

Following an exhibition by the drum and bugle corps of Santiago Argonne Post No. 1102, whose members wore blue uniforms and chromium-plated trench helmets, Miss Susan Elizabeth Thompson, Veiled Prophet Queen, was introduced to the audience.

In the school horsemanship class, brown-clad Miss Betty Lou Noell and Miss Jacqueline Weber of Villa Duchesne won first prize. Second went to Miss Irene Corley and Miss Mary Jane Muckerman, also of Villa Duchesne.

In the college horsemanship class, four Lindenwood College students, Miss Laura Fritz, Miss Catherine Clifford, Miss Martha Roberts and Miss Mary Jane Rabon won first prize. The junior five-gaited stake was won by Miss Edith Salomon on Christmas Knight. William Threlkeld, riding Miss Agnes Killes' horse, Sally Ann, was second.

Sharon's Highland Rose, owned by Sharon Farms and ridden by Paul Flynn, was first in the three-gaited saddle horse stake event. Miss Ruby Plummer and Miss Catherine McElroy of Stephens College won first prize in the college horsemanship class.

ESCAPED CONVICTS CAUGHT BY OKLAHOMA SHERIFF

Taken After Running Pistol Fight in Which Both Were Wounded.

By the Associated Press.

PAULS VALLEY, Ok., May 15.—Leroy Estep and Leon O'Hara, who escaped from McAlester penitentiary April 18, were captured by Sheriff Claud Seymour and Deputy Sheriff A. J. Beddo after a running pistol fight 18 miles east of here tonight.

Estep was seriously wounded and O'Hara received a slight wound in the head.

Seymour said the fugitives abandoned their automobile as he and Beddo overtook them and opened fire. Between 20 and 25 shots were fired, he said.

JAPANESE FIND ISLANDERS LIVING IN CAVES, MUD HUTS

Most of Food Is Seaweed and the Domestic Animal Is the Fox.

TOKIO, May 15.—Japanese scientists have found an island off the northern coast of Hokkaido where the inhabitants are living in a state comparable to the stone age.

Seldom visited by outsiders because of treacherous reefs, the islanders live in caves and low huts made of mud. Most of their food is seaweed, taken from the rocks and eaten raw. Their domestiv animal is the fox.

Shown pictures of a cat and of horses, the islanders expressed amazement that such animals existed.

Lovely Color FOR YOUR Gray Hair!
SIMILAR TO NATURE'S OWN
WITH PURE, HARMLESS Canute WATER

23 YEARS WITHOUT INJURY TO A SINGLE USER

CANUTE WATER is a pure, colorless liquid of wonderful properties. When you apply this crystal-clear fluid to your gray, faded or streaked hair, it will again appear youthful, lustrous and uniform in color.

Not a single person has ever been injured by the use of Canute Water in over 23 years. This exceptional record is your guarantee that it is perfectly safe to use.

Easy to Use

Because of its safety, cleanliness and dependability, you can use Canute Water alone, in the privacy of your own room. No previous experience is necessary. Simply wet your hair with it and allow to dry.

The time of day or the state of the weather makes no difference when using Canute Water. Apply it at your convenience. And since it does not alter the texture of your hair, you may curl, wave or set it — or get a permanent — as usual.

Speedy Action

It requires between one and three applications to re-color hair to its proper shade. The treatment can be completed in a single day.

And when your hair has once been re-colored, a single treatment, given ONLY ONCE A MONTH, is sufficient to keep it that way. No more attention is necessary.

Never Fails

No matter what caused your hair to become gray, Canute Water will positively overcome it. There are no exceptions.

Even if you have used some other hair coloring, it will be a revelation to you to see what Canute Water can do for your hair.

Amazing Results

Canute Water is neither sticky nor greasy. It leaves your hair clean and natural to the touch. There's not even a suggestion of "dye". Neither is it just a hair "darkener". Canute Water imparts a color similar to nature's very own.

Lasting Color

Even your most intimate friends will be unable to distinguish the re-colored hair from your natural. And the new color remains in your hair, permanent against sun, air, salt-water and shampooing.

So, if you are still young — if you still care what others think—and if you are not quite ready to be classed with the "old folks" get a bottle now. It will solve your problem so completely that you, yourself, will be astonished.

DARE-DEVIL PLAYBOY BECOMES NAZI CHIEF

Ernst Udet Now Major-General and Technical Expert; Exploits Recalled.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 15.—Ernst Udet, stunt flyer and playboy, now Major-General Ernst Udet, chief of the technical division of the Reich's Air Ministry, one of the key men in the German air force.

The dare-devil of war days, who received the highest German military decoration, the "Pour le Merite," for shooting down 62 enemy planes, now only pilots planes to test new types of war planes.

His cronies of pre-Hitler days hardly know what to make of him. They say they didn't think he could ever settle down to the exacting duties of a man without whose approval is needed to install technical equipment of any kind in Germany's planes.

They remember the parties he used to have in his bachelor's apartment on the West End of Berlin. One of the stunts in which he invited his guests to participate when everybody was in high spirits was picking electric lamp bulbs, door knobs or other fixed objects as targets and determining who was the best pistol shot. Udet himself still is classed as one of the best in Germany.

Selected by Goering.

Friends who know Udet well say that one reason for these wild pranks, as well as for his continuance of hair-raising flying stunts after he passed 40 years, is his disappointment over the enforced end of his military career. With the signing of the Treaty of Versailles, it should be recalled, the German air force was supposedly abandoned.

When Hermann Goering, Germany's No. 2 man, built the new German air force from the ground up, he picked Udet, an old war comrade, as specialist for the technical department. In the process, Udet was advanced from Lieutenant—his rank at the end of the war—to Colonel and departmental chief.

Udet pitched into his job with all the zeal and zest of a man reborn.

So outstanding was his work, so indefatigably did he hasten from airplane factory to airplane factory, from airdrome to airdrome, testing out and inspecting new equipment or studying new inventions, that within nine months he received his commission as a General.

His Stunts in U. S.

Udet is known throughout the United States for his stunt exploits in 1933, when he took part in the international air contests at Los Angeles and gave samples of his skill in various other cities.

During the winter Olympic games at Garmisch-Partenkirchen in 1936, thousands of Americans saw him glide over the ice stadium in a wasplike, light blue motorless plane. He is one of the world's outstanding glider pilots.

Udet has also made a name for himself as flyer for film producers. He took part in film expeditions with Leni Riefenstahl in the Alps in 1929, in Africa in 1931, and in Greenland in 1932.

Incidentally, he is an excellent cartoonist. If all his friends were to put together the caricatures of his own exploits that he drew for them at one time or another, a Udet biography might become unnecessary.

DISAPPEARANCE OF BOAT PASSENGER PUZZLES OFFICERS

Investigators Trying to Learn If Realty Man Ended Life or Met With Foul Play.

By the Associated Press.

NORFOLK, Va., May 15.—Examination of fingerprints along a guard rail on the steamer District of Columbia left police undecided today whether the disappearance of Charles F. Keene, Washington real estate man, was the result of foul play or suicide. Keene, 60 years old, disappeared some time Thursday night while en route from Washington to Norfolk.

Detectives said blood was found smeared on the guard rail leading to the after deck from the stateroom occupied by Keene. Blood also was found on Keene's bunk, which had not been occupied. A pair of glasses were found, shattered, on the floor, along with a wrist watch.

William Bowden, a watchman, said he heard what may have been a muffled pistol shot about 1:45 a. m., while standing outside Keene's room, but officers found no firearm in the stateroom or evidence of a shot.

Charles Osborne of Washington, in whose office Keene rented space, said Keene was in good spirits when he embarked for the overnight trip to Norfolk for what, he told friends, was an important business transaction.

WIDOW LOSES PLEA IN KILLING

Rockford Woman Denied Retrial for Murder of Husband.

By the Associated Press.

ROCKFORD, Ill., May 15.—Mrs. Helen Clark, 43 years old, convicted of the murder of her husband, Richard, 53, was denied a new trial today and was taken to Dwight Women's Reformatory to start serving a 14-year term. The court also denied her plea for a farewell glimpse of her 9-year-old son by a former marriage.

A Circuit Court jury convicted her Wednesday. Clark was killed by a shotgun charge as he slept on the night of April 6. Mrs. Clark pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity.

WAR ADMIRAL ADDS THE PREAKNESS TO HIS KENTUCKY DERBY VICTORY

IT'S A HABIT: Waite of Washington Wins Valley "100"

Ed Waite, at right, winning the Missouri Valley Conference 100-yard dash championship for the third consecutive year, in the meet held at Francis Field yesterday afternoon. Second at the finish was Robinson of Drake (with D on shirt); third Applequis of Grinnell, between Waite and Robinson, and fourth Cundiff of Oklahoma Aggies, at extreme left. Waite also won the 220 for the third time.

Washington Wins First Conference Track Title in 30-Year History of Meet

By Reno Hahn.

Washington University's strength in the field events and Ed Waite's double triumph in the sprints gave the Bears their first Missouri Valley Conference track and field championship in the meet yesterday afternoon at Francis Field.

The Bears' first victory in 30 years was witnessed by 2000 spectators. No records were broken, despite a fast track and no bothersome wind.

There were many heroes in the Bears' triumph. Ed Waite won both the 100 and 220-yard dashes for his third double triumph in those events in conference competition. Claude Beeler, sophomore, surprised by winning two events, the high jump and broad jump. Andernest Ohle won the last event on the program, the javelin throw, to give the Bears their victory, 46½ to Oklahoma A. & M.'s 44 points.

The other schools' point scores: Drake 36, Grinnell 30, St. Louis University, competing in its first conference meet, 4; Tulsa 3, and Washburn 1½.

Waite Beats Robinson.

Waite broke fast to win the 100-yard dash by a yard from George Robinson, Negro, from Drake. He scored a hollow triumph in the 220-yard dash when Robinson pulled a muscle in his right leg and failed to finish. Waite won by nearly 10 yards in 21.7 seconds. His time in the "hundred" was 9.9 seconds.

Beeler's performances were both a surprise and a pleasure to Coach Hudson Hellmich of the Bears, who, in his second year as track coach,

WRAY'S COLUMN

What the Betting Says.

LIKE straws that show which way the wind blows, professional betting indicates the trend of sports events. From betting commissioners we learn that a considerable change has taken place regarding the probable finish of the pennant races in the major leagues.

Whereas at the start of the campaign the Cardinals were favorites in the National League at 7 to 5 and the Yanks held at as short a price as 7 to 10 to win the American League flag, today quotations by Charles Burke, local commissioner, show the Cards are 2½ to 1 and the Yanks are 6 to 5.

The Cardinals no longer are favorites to win the flag, the Pirates and Giants now occupying that post jointly price 2 to 1. In the season's start the Pittsburgh chances were estimated at as high as 8 to 1 against.

IT all serves to show that making odds-on favorites of baseball clubs to win pennant races before a season begins is bad guessing.

When it is considered that in the past six seasons only one team out of 12 picked to win pennants has made good for the odds-makers, the judgment of professional betting men on baseball matters may be taken with a grain of salt.

Or rather, let us say that the judgment of baseball bettors who follow the odds and bet on the favorites, is elemental. The commissioners' objective is to get in the bettors' money at as low a price as possible. Let's hope the baseball speculators haven't been asleep.

League Leaders 30 to 1.

AN INTERESTING quotation today is that of 30 to 1 against the Athletics, leaders in the American League pennant race.

They ought to be 60 to 1. The betting commissioners admit it. But, since the rise of the Athletics the money has been dribbling in on the long shot Mackmen, once quoted as high as 200 to 1.

The handbook couldn't stand many wagers at long odds and retain its balance. So, down came the price, although the betting commissioner himself will tell you it's not because he thought the Athletics were going to make a real fight for the flag.

The odds, as they stood after

SNEAD RETAINS METROPOLITAN GOLF LEAD WITH SCORE OF 138

By the Associated Press.

BLOOMFIELD, N. J., May 15.—Sam Snead, the West Virginian with the half-open stance and the wide-open grin, already has proved that he controls an elegant sufficiency of golf shots. Today, in the second round of the $2000 Metropolitan open golf championship, the 24-year-old pro recruit also proved he has heart.

To Sam it was the hardest blow of all when rain washed out all of yesterday's play. For he had shot a 65 that blistered five strokes off par, gave him a total of 133, seven under par, and put him six strokes up on his nearest pursuer, Jimmy Hines of Garden City, N. Y.

This afternoon, playing before a gallery of 500 and into a fresh breeze, he rallied from a bad start to post a 70 for 138 and thus, on his second try, again take the 36-hole lead. This time, however, he had only a one-stroke margin, as Hines came in with a 71 for 139. They had tied at 68 in the first round on Thursday.

Once again the day's results were a tribute to the Ryder Cup Selection Committee. The four leaders

Two 5-Run Innings Give Browns 11-to-5 Victory Over the Detroit Tigers

By J. Roy Stockton.

Oral Hildebrand, right-handed pitcher obtained during the winter from the Cleveland Indians, finally turned in a mound performance commensurate with his reputation for skill and the Browns of Rogers Hornsby, bombarding Vic Sorrell and Elden Auker for 16 hits, defeated the highly-respected Detroit Tigers at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon 11 to 5, for their fourth victory in the last five games.

To show what a little winning streak will do—and four out of five is not to be sneezed at at this early stage of the pennant race—the Browns, by virtue of that pace, are only three games behind the leading Philadelphia Athletics, even if they are still down in the second division, with only the White Sox and Senators below them.

Two five-run innings, during which the slugging Brownies concentrated their attack, making a dozen of their 16 hits, gave the Browns and Hildebrand an easy victory, and probably made one Gordon Mickey Cochrane wonder if he soon again would be roaming out to Wyoming. Certainly there was nothing in the picture, as the Browns scored their second straight victory over the Tigers, to indicate that Cochrane was leading a team generally regarded as the Yankees' outstanding rivals in the 1937 pennant race.

An Early Harvest.

Varying their too-frequent recent procedure, the Browns, instead of spotting the enemy a pair of runs in the first inning, waited until the second. Then Greenberg and Walker singled. Goslin's long fly sent Greenberg to third. Rogell's single scored Hank, and Walker crossed the plate on a double steal. However, after being stopped for two innings by Sorrell, the Browns found the range in the third and knocked him out of the box.

Harry Davis opened the attack with a double to right and after Allen struck out the firing became devastating. Vosmik doubled to right, scoring Davis, and on Bell's single to right Vosmik stopped at third and Bell took second on the throw to the plate, whereupon Clift banged a two-bagger to left, scoring two comrades.

Hornsby, in the game because the usually mild-tempered Knickerbocker said something that the sensitive Umpire McGowan didn't like after a close decision, shot a long double to left-center and Clift scored. This sent Sorrell to the showers and brought Auker from the bull-pen, but Huffman and Carey greeted the new pitcher with singles that moved Hornsby over the plate and the Browns led, 5 to 2.

Davis the Instigator.

Davis also had the honor of opening the five-run fourth inning,

Nestell Injured, Pastor Bout Is Off Indefinitely

LOS ANGELES, May 15.—The proposed heavyweight bout May 24 between Bob Pastor of New York and Bob Nestell of California was indefinitely postponed today when Nestell said a split eye would prevent him from training adequately.

Promoter Tom Gallery said efforts would be made to select a later date.

No scratches.

War Admiral went to the front under light urging, going to the first turn, shook off an early challenge by Flying Scot entering the backstretch, was placed to punishment entering the stretch and finished willingly under a strang hand ride. Pompoon, taken under steadying restraint and kept under grip until midway of the back stretch, came between horses when placed to drive, gained gradually, but hung in the final 20 yards. Flying Scot, first away, went forwardly for a half and tired gradually thereafter. Mosawtre, forced wide at the first turn, moved up menacingly leaving the back stretch and was weakening at the end. Over the Top went evenly but could not reach contention. Matey failed to rally at any stage. Merry Maker was not a factor. Jewell Dorsett had speed to the back stretch and tired badly.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, May 15.—Refusing to give an inch in the last three-sixteenths of a mile, Samuel Riddle's War Admiral strengthened his claim to the three-year-old turf title today as he thrust back the game stretch challenge of J. H. Louchheim's Pompoon in the $50,000 Preakness.

With between 40,000 and 45,000 spectators on their feet, yelling madly, the two horses came to the finish line of the mile and three-sixteenths test separated by the narrow margin of a head to furnish one of the most exciting climaxes in the 47 years of the Pimlico classic and duplicate their order of finish in the Kentucky Derby.

No Easy Time.

War Admiral, diminutive son of Man o' War, had no such easy time as he did in the Derby, in which he beat Pompoon by a length and a half. Today he was driving all through the stretch, but proved himself a true champion by running the distance in 1:58 2-5.

The track was still a trifle slow from yesterday's rains, but the time was only a fifth of a second slower than the Preakness record hung up by High Quest three years ago.

The judges flashed the "photo finish" sign as the two horses hit the finish line, but it was evident that War Admiral's head was in front. The margin was so small, however, that many, viewing the race from a difficult angle, had to wait until the picture was developed before their hopes were confirmed. Then the yells that had cheered the Man o' War colt all around the course swelled into a mighty roar.

The greater part of the money which passed through the mutuels on the race went to the support of War Admiral. As a result, he was the shortest priced winner in the history of the "Old Hilltop" stake.

A $2 win ticket on the Admiral returned only $2.70. He paid $2.30 to place and $2.40 to show. As the second choice, Pompoon returned $2.40 and $2.70 to place and show, respectively. Flying Scot, one of the outsiders in the wagering that favored little but the first two horses, paid 2 to 1 to show.

Riddle, 76-year-old Philadelphian, who was unable to see his colt win the Derby because of illness, but was present today, fared much better, however. The victory netted him $45,600 and ran War Admiral's earnings for the year to $106,600.

The victory sent War Admiral into the select circle of thoroughbreds which have won both the Preakness and Derby, the first two events on America's "triple crown" that also includes the Belmont

WAGERING on The Preakness and the seven other races reached pre-depression figures today as $1,059,447 passed through the pari-mutuel machines.

With $230,981 bet on The Preakness alone, the total figures marked the greatest display of wagering at Pimlico since 1929 when $1,341,229 went through the machines. Last year the total play on Preakness day was only $783,053.

M'KENDREE WINS IN TRACK MEET; PRINCIPIA 2ND

Athletes representing McKendree College of Lebanon, Ill., captured the quadrangular track and field meet held on the Principia College field at Elsah, Ill., yesterday afternoon with a total of 47 5-6 points; Principia was second with 46 points; Blackburn College of Carlinville, third, with 45 5-6, and Shurtleff College, Alton, was fourth with 25 1-3 points.

The battle for first honors was so close that the meet was not decided until the completion of the one-mile relay race, the last event on the program. Blackburn College won this event, depriving Principia of a chance for first place. It was the first defeat for the Principia relay team this season.

Capt. George Cooper of Principia again turned in a good day's work by capturing first place in three events, the 880, one mile and two mile events. Smith of Blackburn won the 220 and 440-yard dash events while Moore of Shurtleff

"We'll Beat Pompoon Any Day," Kurtsinger Declares

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, May 15.—While the huge crowd in Pimlico's ancient rambling stands still was roaring War Admiral's name after the Man o' War colt had won the Preakness by a head today, Jockey Charlie Kurtsinger, sputtering and hopping about as the cold streams of a shower poured down on him, cried, "we'll beat Pompoon any day in the week."

The slender little blond-haired pilot from Louisville said he was never worried and thought he had the race in the bag all the way.

"Pompoon caught us on the stretch turn. But Wayne Wright had to take him inside, while I stuck to the better ground," Kurtsinger explained.

Just a Cluck.

"I just clucked to War Admiral and he spurted ahead. I never used my whip. That little hoss just picks up his weight and moves forward. He likes to run in front. If someone is ahead he'll fight him for the lead and if he's challenged he just turns loose some more speed.

"He's a great race horse, better than Head Play and as good as Twenty Grand. We'll beat Pompoon, or any of the others, every time we meet them this year."

Kurtsinger rode Head Play to a Preakness victory in 1933. He won his first Kentucky Derby on Twenty Grand in 1931.

"We won handily," the "Flying Dutchman" said. "War Admiral wasn't extended. I think we could have beaten Pompoon by a bigger margin if I had urged the Admiral on. I was never afraid of Pompoon, even at the finish."

Wright, Pompoon's rider, from Rexburg, Idaho, heartily congratulated Kurtsinger.

Another Chance.

"Pompoon just didn't have the speed at the finish to stick his head in front," he said. "I'd like to bet, though, that Pompoon will beat War Admiral this season, probably in the Belmont Stakes, June 5."

REDS DEFEAT CHICAGOANS, 3-2; EMERGE FROM CELLAR

Cincinnati Scores First "At Home" Victory of the Season — Giants Split With Phils.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, May 15.—Behind Lefty Lee Grissom's two-hit hurling, the Cincinnati Reds won their first game of the season at home today and climbed out of the National League cellar by defeating Chicago, 3 to 2.

For six innings, only one Cub, Hack, reached first, that was on a walk in the second frame.

In the seventh, Demaree doubled for one of the two hits. In the ninth, Bottarini batted for Parmelee and reached first on Gelbert's wide throw. Bryant ran for him and took second as Galan walked. A wild pitch advanced both runners. Collins flied out but Demaree, only man to hit Grissom safely, brought them home with a single.

The Reds scored all their runs after two were out in the seventh. Outlaw singled, Goodman walked and Weintraub scored both of them with a triple. Virgil Davis singled Weintraub home.

shooting a single to right. Allen and Vosmik were retired, but Bell continued his great batting streak with a single to center and Clift's single scored Davis. Hornsby drew a pass, filling the bases and in this mild pinch—if you want to call it that with the Browns leading by such a large margin—Young Benny Franklin Huffman narrowly missed another new thrill in his baseball life. He whacked the ball to right and if it hadn't been for a stiff breeze the drive would have reached the pavilion roof. But it still had enough force to carry it to the pavilion screen and Bell and Clift rode home on the wallop.

Carey followed with a single to left and Huffman slid over the plate behind Hornsby with the fifth run of the second consecutive five-run frame.

The Tigers had scored a run in the fourth on passes to Walker and Rogell and a single by Owen, but that was unimportant, as were two more produced in the ninth when Greenberg doubled, Goslin singled, Rogell doubled and Owen hit a long fly.

Huffman and Victory.

Young Huffman has reason to be a bit happy about the Browns' winning streak, too. He has caught four of the last five games and hasn't been the starting catcher in a losing contest. Perhaps he bought some luck for the Browns with him in that weather-beaten hand bag he packed so happily a few short weeks ago, when he moved from Ray Doan's baseball school to the training camp of Roger Hornsby's Browns.

BROWNIE NOTES

Julio Bonetti will oppose the Tigers today in the series final, closing the Browns' stand at home. Roxie Lawson is due for Detroit.

Yesterday's game attracted a Ladies' day crowd of 3350 cash customers, 1370 women and 1681 boys and girls.

There was only a mild protest from the Browns when Walker was called safe at third base in the second inning, though he over-slid the bag and seemed to have been tagged out by Clift, but Umpire McGowan ordered Knickerbocker out of the game. Perhaps that is why the American League players are so lifeless in the face of bad decisions. The other day an umpire called at least five decisions incorrectly in one game, but there wasn't any kicking.

When Knickerbocker was banished, Tom Carey shifted to short and Hornsby went to second base.

Beau Bell's three hits in four trips to the plate increased his batting average to .479. He has made 15 hits in his last 21 times at bat.

War Admiral Adds Preakness To Kentucky Derby Victory

Stakes. The five previous double winners were Sir Barton, Gallant Fox, Burgoo King, Omaha and Bold Venture. War Admiral's next engagement will be in the Belmont, June 5.

After delaying the start for nearly four minutes, as he did in the Derby, War Admiral broke fast. He had to yield pace-setting honors for the first few yards to John Hay Whitney's Flying Scot, but passing the judges' stand the first time, Charley Kurtsinger, Louisville's "Flying Dutchman," had the favorite winging along in front.

Leads by Length.

At the end of the first quarter of a mile, War Admiral was in front by a length and the race appeared to be a repetition of the Derby parade as Flying Scot and Joe W. Brown's Jewell Dorsett, only filly in the field of eight, began to find the pace too swift. The Riddle colt ran the first quarter in .23 1-5 seconds.

Meanwhile, Wayne Wright, the Rexburg (Idaho) veteran, was preparing Pompoon for the race of his life. The son of Pompey, having dispelled all question as to his route-running ability in the Derby, was slow hitting his stride, but once he started running, his long strides quickly carried him into a contending position.

The orders of C. F. (Danny) Clarke, trainer of Pompoon, were to keep the Louchheim ace at War Admiral's flanks to the home-stretch and then strike. Wright obeyed orders perfectly, although he did not reach second place until midway of the backstretch. There he hung like a leech while War Admiral reeled off the six furlongs in 1.12 2-5 and the mile in 1.37 2-5.

Coming out of the backstretch, Kurtsinger gave War Admiral a crack of the whip in an effort to shake off Pompoon. But this time there was no repetition of the Derby, for the son of Pompey stuck to his guns, answering every move of his rival with one of his own.

War Admiral went a trifle wide at the turn leading into the home-stretch. That gave Wright his chance. He quickly shot Pompoon up and when the pair straightened out for the three-sixteenths of a mile run to the finish line, only a head separated them. War Admiral's head was in front, however, and there it stayed through a bitter drive that saw both jockeys swinging their whips in an attempt to get a little more speed out of their mounts.

A sixteenth of a mile from home it appeared as if Pompoon would be equal to the task and hand the favorite his first defeat of the year. He moved up until only inches separated their bobbing heads. That was as close as Wright could drive the Louchheim ace, however.

Recalling the feats of his famous sire, War Admiral refused to give ground and they drove under the wire still only inches apart. The decision was close, but there was no doubt among the experts in the press box that War Admiral had won.

$5000 for Pompoon.

The narrow margin meant much, not only in honor but riches, for second place was worth only $5000.

The wagering indicated a two-horse race and that's what it was. Flying Scot was six lengths back in third place, beating Julia M. Loft's Mosawtre by a length and a half. For finishing third, Flying Scot's owner received $3000 while Mosawtre's fourth place was worth $2000.

Mosawtre saved the last money position by a length from Mrs. W. H. Furst's Over the Top, a stablemate of War Admiral until a few days ago. Then came Walter M. Jefford's Matey, the big disappointment, Eunice G. Rand's Merry Maker, an outsider when the track became fast, and Jewell Dorsett.

Concordia Wins Two of Three Field Day Events

Backing up Al Schmidtke's three-hit pitching with air-tight support and timely hitting, the Concordia Seminary baseball team shut out Piney Woods College, 6 to 0, in the feature event of Concordia's field day program held yesterday afternoon on the Preachers' campus. More than 2000 persons witnessed the game.

Th St. Louis University freshman track squad took the measure of the Seminarians, 73 to 31, in a track meet preceding the baseball game, while the Concordia tennis team smothered McKendree College, 6 to 0, in a dual match.

Pete Meara of the Billiken Frosh was the individual star in the track meet, taking first place in three events to count 15 points.

M'KINLEY WINS POORLY PLAYED CONTEST FROM ROOSEVELT, 9-8

McKinley climbed to a tie with Roosevelt for fourth place in the City High School Baseball League shading the Rough Riders, 9-8, in the first game of yesterday's double-header at Public Schools Stadium. Central blanked Soldan, 17-0, in the nightcap to strengthen its grip on third place.

McKinley and Roosevelt have played creditably in the field all season, but yesterday the defensive work of both teams took a nose-dive. The Goldbugs were the worse offenders, erring eight times as compared to the Rough Riders' five misplays.

McKinley entered the seventh inning faced with the necessity of either pushing across a run or accepting their fourth defeat in five starts. But the Goldbugs came from behind for the second time to score three tallies and assume a two-run lead on a pass to Turley, singles by the Martin brothers, Marciak's infield out, and a line single past first by Johnson.

Walter Serb registered the league's first shutout of the season in the second game.

Beaumont needs only to defeat a medicore Blewett team in the final triple-header of the season next Saturday to win the championship, while a Blewett victory would leave Cleveland and Beaumont tied for the title.

On Again.

I SEE the Braddock-Louis fight
Was sanctioned by the court;
Through there are hints the Garden might Still have a last resort.
Which indicates that wrong or right
It all comes under sport.

And that the thing is in the bag
We do not doubt a bit;
The champ will grab a hunk of swag,
A hundred grand, to wit.
With Schmeling they've peen playing tag, and Max was always "It."

Hot Dog!

Last Friday the multitudinous stockholders of the Browns were the guests of the management. It being a cold day, the Browns warmed the cockles of their hearts by pulling a game out of the fire.

"Cash Book Wins in Derby Trial."
Wonder if he is entered in the St. Leger?

"Sheriff" Blake was credited with winning a game from the Tigers Friday, but it was Deputy Knott who arrested a ninth-inning rally by striking out Hank Greenberg with the bases loaded.

See where a spectator tossed a stench bomb on the Cardinal bench in Pittsburgh. Why not try tear gas on the gashouse gang?

It just goes to show the influence of the modern trend in warfare methods. It won't be long now until baseball battles will be won in the air.

Not only the catchers and umpires, but the spectators will all be wearing masks as a protection against gas attacks.

Mr. Cannon Speaking.

BE not like dumb driven kine—
Be a hero in the strife;
Don't for fifteen thousand sign,
And be a slave for all your life.

Do not sell your birthright, brother,
For a measly twenty grand;
Chuck your job and take some other—
For the shackles do not stand.

Let us then be up and doing
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing
Will-o'-the-wisps across the plate.

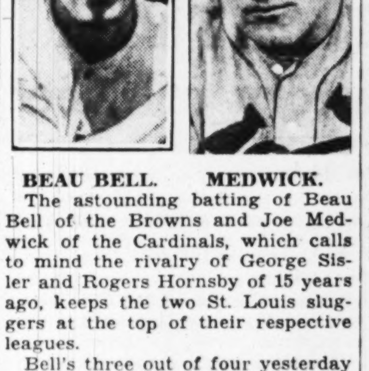
In rendering his adverse ruling against Madison Square Garden, the Judge reserved the right to change his mind, a prerogative exercised by Braddock and his manager after signing a contract to fight Max Schmeling.

In the meantime, Max Schmeling will be in the ring on June 3 prepared to go through with his end of the agreement even if there is nothing more tangible to box than his shadow.

SHADOW BOXIN' HUH? WELL IT LOOKS LIKE IT'LL GO THE LIMIT—

Nevertheless the boys who lay it on the line will probably give it a miss and invest their dough in the Braddock - Louis-Gould-Black-Roxborough-Jacobs-Foley corporation.

Beau Bell .479, Joe Medwick .466; The League Leaders



BEAU BELL. MEDWICK.

The astounding batting of Beau Bell of the Browns and Joe Medwick of the Cardinals, which calls to mind the rivalry of George Sisler and Rogers Hornsby of 15 years ago, keeps the two St. Louis sluggers at the top of their respective leagues.

Bell's three out of four yesterday gave him an average of .479, while Medwick, with two hits out of three, finished up with .466.

Standings of the leaders (three in each league):

HARRELL AND J. DEAN HOLD PIRATES SAFE, CARDS WIN, 4 TO 2

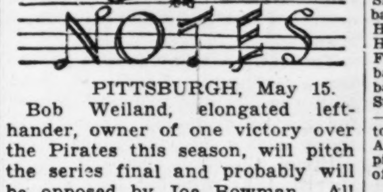
Vaughan's bullet-like single to right.

Turning Point of Game.

The Pirates were dangerous in the eighth, too. Jensen sent a hot grounder toward Mize to begin with and the ball took a bad hop over Mize's head and continued into right field for a double. Paul Waner bunted and probably the real turning point in the game came then, for Ogrodowski nailed Jensen at third with a perfect throw to Gutteridge. Dickshot singled to center and Paul Waner stopped at second when he saw Moore make a fine one-handed stop of the ball. Vaughan forced Dickshot, Harrell to Durocher. Dickshot took Leo out of the chance for a double play with a football block. Then Jim Brown came up with Suhr's grounder and nailed him at first.



PITTSBURGH, May 15.

Bob Weiland, elongated left-hander, owner of one victory over the Pirates this season, will pitch the series final and probably will be opposed by Joe Bowman. All reserved seats for the battle are sold, the Pirate business office reports.

Manager Frisch didn't play today because the ground was still heavy and his legs were aching from the first game. Jimmy Brown went to second base as Stuart Martin reported with a cold.

Although the day was cloudy and chilly, another good crowd of 13,000 turned out.

A fan who caught Medwick's home run in the right field stand yesterday traded him the ball for a new one. Joe has a habit of trying to collect balls which he hits for home runs. The fan expressed surprise that Medwick's name was not on it, but Joe said he forgot to autograph it before he hit the homer.

The victory gave the Redbirds a record of six won and seven lost since leaving home, April 30. A triumph in the final tomorrow will enable them to have the coveted .500 on the road.

Pittsburgh remains 2½ games ahead of the Cardinals.

The first nine Redbird batters were retired in order and again in the fifth, seventh and eighth they went out, one, two, three.

WHITE SOX WIN BY 6-0 SCORE; TRIBE DROPS TO THIRD PLACE

Simmons' Home Run in Eighth Helps Senators to Trim Red Sox, 5 to 4; Yanks Beat A's.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 15.—Monty Stratton, White Sox right-hander, held the Cleveland Indians to three singles today to achieve his fourth victory and his second shutout in winning 6 to 0.

Hal Trosky and Odell Hale nicked Stratton for hits in the fifth inning and Lyn Lary got one in the ninth. No other Indian reached first base, only one reached second and none got as far as third.

Luke Appling's double and Lary's throwing error gave the Sox a run in the second, and consecutive singles by Zeke Bonura, Appling and Jack Hayes accounted for another in the fourth.

Stratton became the first American League pitcher to register two shutouts this season.

BILLIKE

KEANEY, MULLEN WIN DOUBLES TITLE; CAMERON SINGLES VICTOR

Local Team Scores 6—0, 5—7, 6—1 Triumph After Keaney Loses Singles Final, 6—0, 6—1.

By Davison Obear.

The University of Tulsa and St. Louis University divided honors in the twenty-fourth annual Missouri Valley Conference tennis championships which came to a close on the courts of the Triple A Club yesterday afternoon. Nineteen players from five of the eight conference colleges entered the singles while nine teams participated in the doubles play.

Tulsa and St. Louis tied for the team championship with five points each. The Oklahoma Aggies and Washington University each won two points when their players reached the semifinal round in both the singles and doubles events.

Gerin Cameron, Tulsa junior, proved himself to be one of the best intercollegiate stars of the Middlewest when he defeated Frank Keaney, St. Louis University, in the final round of the singles event yesterday afternoon. While Cameron, the defending champion, was the favorite, his 6-0, 6-1 victory was somewhat unexpected. It was Keaney's first defeat as a member of the Billiken's team this season.

The point score of the Cameron-Keaney match follows:

FIRST SET.

		Pts.	Games.
Cameron —	—5 4 4 4 7 4	28	6
Keaney —	—3 2 1 0 5 2	13	0

SECOND SET.

		Pts.	Games.
Cameron —	4 5 1 4 11 4 4	33	6
Keaney—	—0 3 4 0 9 0 0	16	1

Recapitulation: Cameron—Sets, 2; games, 12; points, 61. Keaney—Sets, none; games, 1; points, 29. Time of match, 37 minutes.

Keaney and Capt. Harry Mullen kept St. Louis University in the race for top honors by defeating Cameron and Robert Bartlett, Tulsa team, in the final round of the men's doubles event, 6—0, 5—7, 6—1.

Tulsa, dropping the first set, rallied to win the second set, 7-5. Cameron and Bartlett led 4-2 in games, but Keaney and Mullen won the next two to make the score four-all. Tulsa again led, 6 to 5, the Billikens then taking the next game to deadlock the set at deuce. Tulsa won the next two to capture the set.

Keaney and Mullen opened strong in the third and final set and quickly ran up a 5 to 0 game lead. Tulsa captured the next game, but the Billikens won the following to take the set, 6—1. Warren Fenity and William Whittenton of the Oklahoma A. and M. College, won the doubles finals last year.

Burroughs Wins Track Title in A. B. C. League

John Burroughs won its second "ABC" League track title in two years by defeating the Principia team at Taylor Field yesterday afternoon, 67 1-3 to 45 2-3. Burroughs took 10 first places. One of the features of the competition was Sherry's time of 16.1 seconds in the high hurdles, a tenth of a second better than the league record. Burroughs hasn't lost a dual meet in two years.

ATTORNEYS FOR GARDEN TO FILE AN APPEAL IN BRADDOCK CASE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 15. — Few along Broadway could make any more out of the jumbled heavyweight situation today than they could before Judge Guy L. Fake announced his long-awaited decision in Newark yesterday.

It now is pretty well established that Champion James J. Braddock will fight Joe Louis in Chicago, June 22, but beyond that one guess is as good as another.

The German challenger, Max Schmeling, who once again finds himself on the outside looking in, occupies one of the key positions. The New York State Athletic Commission is firmly ensconced in another.

Whether the disappointed Schmeling, faithfully training for the phantom June 3 title bout with Braddock, will be content to stick around for a fight with the Chicago winner, dash into the courts or take a few easy money bouts with Bob Pastor, John Henry Lewis, et al and return to Germany in disgust, remains to be seen.

The State Athletic Commission is marking time until five days before June 3. Then, if Braddock doesn't appear and satisfy the commission he is ready to fight Max, it probably will suspend him. Also, Louis is likely to be threatened with a similar punishment if he goes through with the Chicago fight.

Meanwhile, the Madison Square Garden Corporation marshaled its forces to fight the decision of Judge Fake who denied the Garden's plea that Braddock be restrained from fighting Louis until he carries out his contract with Schmeling.

Before leaving for a Florida vacation, Col. John Reed Kilpatrick, Garden president, ordered his attorneys to file an appeal in the Federal Courts of Philadelphia next week. Odds are it will not be decided in time to prevent the Chicago fight.

were separated by as many strokes, and each of them, as the 53 survivors who scored 156 or better prepared for tomorrow's final 36 holes, is either a member of the team or a contender for one of the four vacancies.

Snead and Hines fall into the latter category with Paul Runyan, 1934 champion from Westchester, who placed third with 70-70 for 140. Henry Picard, smooth-swinging stylist from Hershey, Pa., who captured the "Met" laurels two years ago and is one of the six picked for the international team, was another stroke behind at 70-71, 141.

The other potential Ryder Cupper in the field, dark, curly-haired Vic Ghezzi, of Deal, N. J., slumped badly today. Starting out in a good contending position on the strength of his first-round 71, Ghezzi today carded a 78, eight over par, to finish 11 strokes off the pace.

Still Like the Pirates.

WHEN the Pirates were quoted at 8 to 1 before the season, they appeared to have the soundest team in either league. That still holds good.

This is not because they started off well but, as was intimated some time ago, because the club is solid all through and has a pitching staff that is long on durability, if lacking in 25-game aces.

That wonderful array of good pitchers is certain to show its strength when the marathon reaches the dog days. Opponents can hardly wear out that staff, which includes six or seven men who could be starting pitchers for Traynor and do a good job of it.

Pirates Are Overdue.

SEASON after season this club has been a potential pennant winner. Heretofore it hasn't clicked. Also, it has faced stronger competition from three clubs.

This year, the Cubs have had such bad luck that they will have to perform a miracle to overcome their early handicaps.

The same applies to the Cardinals, who have not the pitching they need. The battle at this stage seems clearly between the Pirates and the Giants, with the Pirates having the power—will they gain the glory?

Around the circuit they are crediting Brandt, Bowman, Handley and Dickshot for the early showing of the Pittsburgh club. And they have figured strongly. But it may take more than a couple of transferred veterans and two rookies to change a ball club from a good club into a pennant winner.

The quartet has been helpful so far, but the team might worry along without them later, when other players of proved merit reach their peak.

If Dickshot can keep up his hitting, he will be hard to keep out of the lineup. That boy whanged the apple to the tune of about .390 for Buffalo and he has been proving this year that it wasn't an accident altogether.

He cost the Pirates only $700, so the club can't lose no matter what he does. Handley was not so cheap. A free agent, he cost the club $20,000 and he so far has shown that the money was well spent. It's too early to pass judgment on any of the four—either the two pitchers or the two rookies.

This writer did not base his pre-season forecast in favor of the Pirates on the success of this quartet and feels that the Pirates can make a pennant fight with or without them.

If they all live up to Pie Traynor's early praise, you might as well close the books on the National League race and pay off on the Pirates.

We still expect it to be a hard race with the Pirates outlasting the opposition through allround strength.

Mr. Reulbach Has an Idea.

ED REULBACH — remember Big Ed, formerly of Washington University, who later pitched the Cubs to fame assisted by Three Fingered Brown, Overall, Lundgren, Pfiester, and others 30 years ago—expects to see "two regular pitchers used by each team in every major league baseball game" before long.

"I don't see why it wouldn't be all right," Ed told Warren Brown of the Chicago Herald-Examiner recently. "Pitchers would be better all around if each knew he had to pitch only five innings or less each."

Not much novelty to that one, seemingly, because nine-inning pitchers are somewhat of an exception today. The Reulbach idea seems to be that if the pitcher knew he had only to stay five innings he could bear down on every pitch and thus work at full efficiency for his entire stay on the hill.

Moreover, instead of being worked every fourth or fifth day he would be used every third game without harm, because he would require less recuperation time.

It might even come to pass, under the Reulbach theory, that three pitchers be used as in the All-Star game each working three innings. Boy how the aged soupbones could burn 'em over with only three rounds to go.

But — baseball efficiency can't be calculated like mechanized power. One day's pitching is not always like the next, with every hurler. Furthermore, when a pitcher is "hot," what manager would take him out and insert another who possibly might be having one of his "cold" afternoons?

Substitutions will continue to be made for cause and not by rule, is our guess.

CLASSIC TRAVELING BOWLING LEAGUE TO CLOSE TONIGHT

The Classic Traveling bowling league will close its season tonight at the Gravois Recreation with the Budweisers facing the Witeks, the Silver Seals the Club Plantations and the Hermanns the Say-It-With-Flowers. Matches will start at 7:30 p. m.

Horseshoe Schedule.

The three winners in the opening-round games will play the losers in this morning's second-round games of the Municipal Horseshoe Pitching Association at Carondelet Park. The Steinmanns play the Wacker-Helderles, the Gordons oppose the Budweisers and the Spehs battle the Mrazeks.

Softball Results.

At West Side Park—Collins 7, American Life 3 (girls); Krogers 15, Hermanns 4 (men's).

At Maplewood Park—Gandueas 11, Wuestling 5 (girls); Hamilton-Brown 12, A. A. C. 3 (men's).

Washington U. Wins Its First Valley Track Title

led the Bears to their first victory.

Beeler hadn't done much in earlier meets this season, but pepped up by Washington's chances of winning the title, he high-jumped 6 feet 3 inches to win that event from his teammate, Bob Gerst, and then ran over to the broad jumping pit to leap 23 feet 1½ inches for a double triumph.

Ohle put in an early throw of 178 feet 5 inches in the javelin and that toss stood up during the final rounds with Clarence Odell of Oklahoma A. & M., who was trying to give his team victory with a better toss as the Aggies led the Bears by a half point at that time, the last event of the meet. Odell, however, had to be content with third, and his team lost the meet by 2½ points.

Norman Tomlinson, Bears' football star, retained his shotput title with a toss of 46 feet 5⅞ inches, his teammate, Joe Bukant, finishing second with 45 feet 1½ inches. Waite, Ohle and Tomlinson were the only defending champions to retain their titles.

Lack of competition probably kept Billy Feiler, Drake sophomore, from breaking the two-mile record. Feiler, who is rated next to Don Lash as the best two-miler in the country, led by 10 yards or more all the way round, with two of his team mates finally trailing him in by 30 yards. Feiler's time of 9 minutes 34.8 seconds was first announced as a record, but a recheck showed that he was 1.2 seconds over the old mark.

The Bears failed to place in only three events, the mile, relay, 880-yard run and high hurdles. They scored victories in six of the 15 events.

Waite was high-point man of the meet, taking a fourth in the low hurdles and the two sprints for 11 points. He lost his stride in the low hurdles while running second and before he could get back in step, he was in fourth place. Beeler, with his two firsts, finished second for individual scoring honors with 10 points.

Hill Climb Scheduled.

The third annual motorcycle hill climb, sponsored by the Missouri Motorcycle Club will be staged next Sunday afternoon at the Scotland Yard Hill, on Highway 66 at Vandover road.

GIRLS TO WRESTLE ON COLISEUM PROGRAM

It was announced last night by Bill Schwabe, Coliseum wrestling promoter, that he will feature a girls' wrestling match on Thursday night's card. Mildred Burke, Kansas City, will oppose Velma Veerner, of Arkansas, in the bout. Commissioner Charley Pian has approveed the bout.

INDIANAPOLIS SPEED MARK IS BROKEN TWICE IN SUCCESSION

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 15. — "Wild Bill" Cummings, a grinning hometown boy with a heavy foot, left broken speedway records in his wake today as he won the pole position for the 500-mile automobile race here May 31.

Cummings, one of the 11 drivers to qualify today for the race, broke the all-time official speedway record for one lap when he wheeled his four-cylinder front drive creation around the track on the last lap of the 25-mile qualifying sprint at 125.139 miles an hour.

That gave him a qualifying speed of 123.445 miles an hour for the full 25 miles—also an all-time speedway record.

The speedway record for qualifying was broken twice during the day. About an hour preceding Cummings' run Wilbur Shaw, another Indianapolis driver, turned the 25 miles in 122.751 miles an hour.

BILLIKENS HAND ROCKHURST NINE FIRST LOSS OF YEAR, 10-9

KANSAS CITY, May 15. — An eleventh-inning single to left field by Third Baseman Sidney Mudd won a 10 to 9 baseball victory for St. Louis University in a game against Rockhurst College here today. It was Rockhurst's first diamond defeat in seven games this season.

McGonnigle's good pitching aided the Billikens. He was at his best during a ninth-inning pinch. Poehler was on third for the Hawks with only one out. McGonnigle, however, retired Rozgay and Heenehan, usually reliable Rockhurst hitters, easily.

The St. Louis pitcher also batted out a home run with two men on base. Leo Cain, Hawk hurler, walked 10 Billikens.

The score by innings:

	1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11	R.	H.	E.
St. Louis	2 1 0 3 2 0 1 0 0 0 1—	10	7	4
R'hurst	0 4 3 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 0—	9	13	6

Batteries: St. Louis—McGonnigle and Brady; Rockhurst—Cain, Miller and Koby.

SNARK WINS METROPOLITAN MILE AT BELMONT AT 10-1 ODDS

MEMORY BOOK IS SECOND AND THE FAVORITE, WHOPPER, THIRD

Catalysis Leads Two-Year-Old Money-Winners by Capturing Fashion Stakes.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Wheatley Stable's Snark ran like the champion he is to win the historic Metropolitan mile at Belmont Park before 18,000 chilled spectators today.

Snark, holder of the world record for six and one-half furlongs in 1:15 4-5, finished the mile in 1:37 4-5, brilliant time over a muddy track.

He was two lengths ahead of Greentree Stable's Memory Book at the finish and paid the long odds of 10 to 1 to win.

The favorite, Hal Price Headley's Whopper, was third in the field of eight, a length and a half behind Memory Book. Maemere Farm's Maeriel took fourth money, trailed by Sgt. Byrne, Bill Farnsworth, Count Arthur and White Cockade.

Snark, a four-year old, was rated off the pace and assumed the lead in the stretch when the front running Bill Farnsworth faded. The race was worth $6675 to the winner. Snark, ridden by J. Longden, carried 112 pounds.

Starmont Stable's Catalysis, at odds of 6 to 1, became the leading two-year-old money-winner when she defeated a smart band of fillies in the Fashion Stakes, running four and half furlongs in :55 1-5.

The stake was worth $5075 to the winning owner and Catalysis' earnings for this year were boosted to $9365. She finished a length ahead of A. H. Waterman's Miyako. The favorite, Rare Bloom, owned by John Hay Whitney, was third, a nose behind Miyako. Six ran.

The race was marred by an accident to Jockey Lester Balaski, who was shaken up when he was scraped off the back of J. M. Roebling's Invoke when she swerved against the rail. Balaski, slightly bruised, was able to ride his other mounts in later races.

FOUKES MAKE TRIPLE PLAY, BEAT MONSANTO 24-7, AT FAIRGROUNDS

The Foukes, playing in the Industrial League No. 1 at Fairgrounds Park, turned in a triple play yesterday while defeating Monsanto, 24-7. In the seventh inning Scharfering of Monsanto singled to center. Goersch was safe on Begley's fumble, Till then walking to fill the bases. Decker sent a short fly to right center and Mueller, Foukes' second baseman, raced back to make the catch and threw to Erbe, doubling Till off of first. Erbe's throw to Spagna caught Goersch off second.

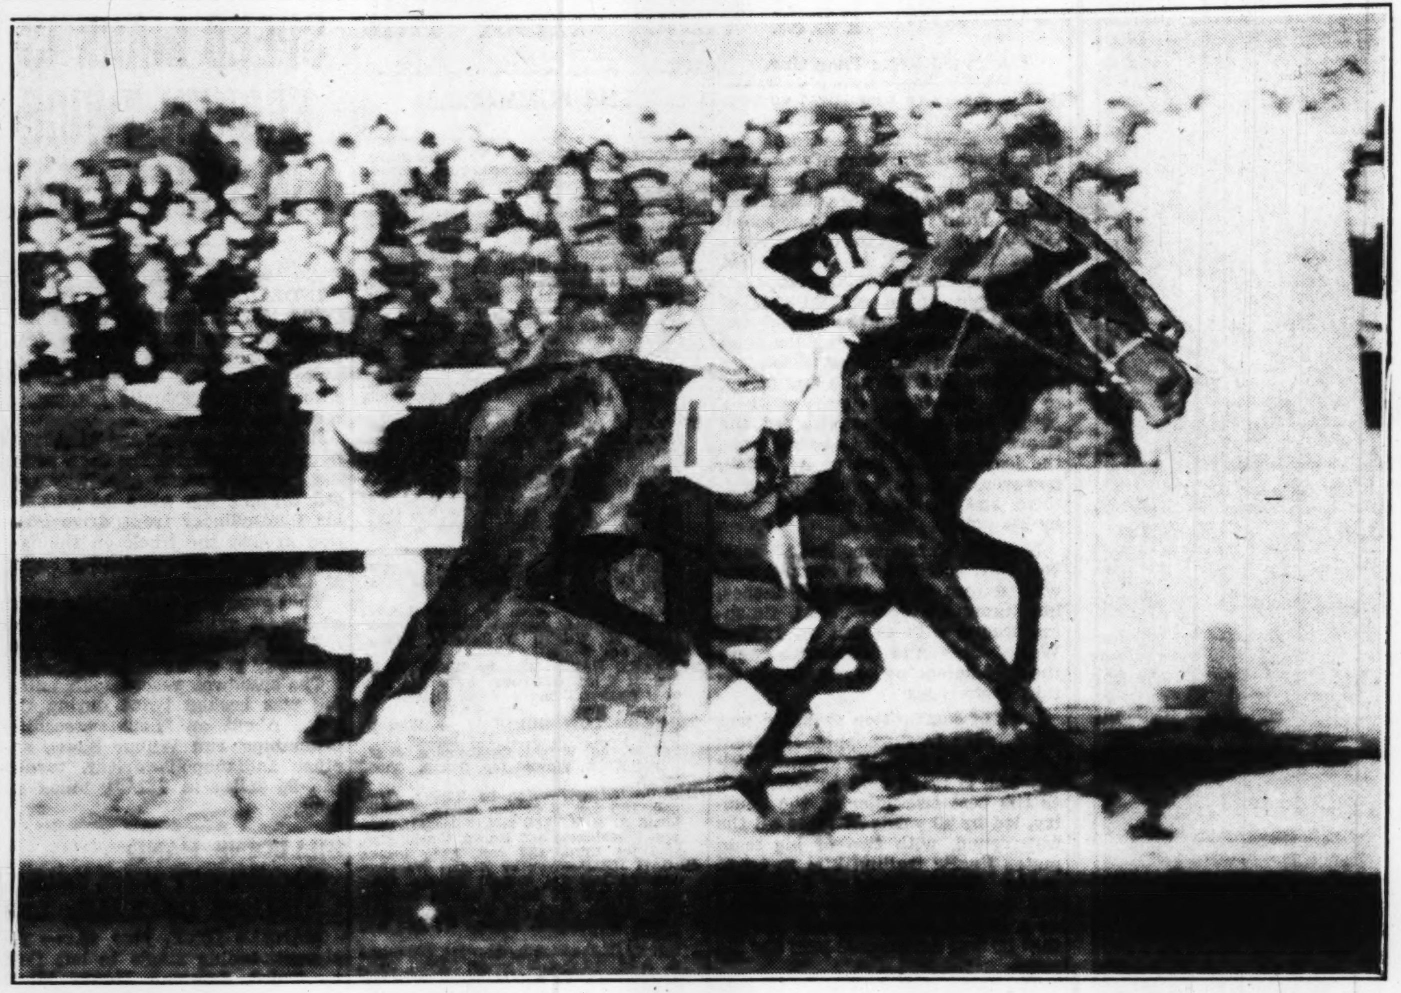
War Admiral Again—But Much Closer



—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Here's the finish of the Preakness at Pimlico, Md., yesterday afternoon, showing War Admiral (closest to the camera) winning his second $50,000 stake in eight days. Again Pompoon was second—and this time uncomfortably close. War Admiral won the Kentucky Derby a week earlier by two lengths.

ARAHO ENTRY RUNS ONE-THREE IN NARRAGANSETT FEATURE

MUCHO GUSTO LENGTH WINNER OVER CHANCING; NEW DEAL THIRD

Mrs. M. C. Keefe's Longford roke down in the running of the econd race, throwing Jockey Tomy Luther into the muck. Luther as uninjured, but the horse had o be destroyed.

Fishing Season Near.

ANOTHER two weeks will find anticipating anglers on their way to the fishing spots of Missouri to try their hand . . . and lures . . . at taking the wary bass, crappie, trout, jack-salmon and goggle-eye as well as the many species of 'rough' fish that have been unprotected during the recent closed season.

Reports from various points throughout the State indicate that the waters are at present high and murky which would mean poor creels. However, high waters can recede and clear in a short time, especially in swift moving streams and so there will be no great surprise shown if the opening of the season finds conditions ideal.

Many of the more experienced anglers are going out these weekends to do a little fishing for the rough species for the sport and, incidentally, to get their eye and arm in shape as well as test their tackle.

For the pre-season warmup there is no better way than joining one of the several casting clubs in the city. Docks are already built and conditions are ideal for the training period . . . there are even experts standing around who will be happy to teach the neophyte the art of flipping the fly. An hour a day for a week or two will do a lot toward making your next outing a bigger and better success . . . at least you won't need to spend so much time getting out of trouble.

Wholesale Fish Propagation.

The largest fish propagation program ever undertaken in the United States is now underway on Wisconsin lakes and streams according to reports from the Cramer-Krassel tCo.; workmen of the Conservation department are beginning their work of gathering sufficient spawn to permit the hatching and planting of one billion fish in Wisconsin waters this year.

This will require the taking of more than 1,100,000,000 fish eggs to produce the billion fish since the State hatchery estimates an average hatch of 90 per cent. H. W. McKenzie of the Wisconsin conservation department estimates 700,000,000 wall-eyed pike, 20,000,000 muskellung, 50,000,000 trout and the remainder of large and small mouth bass and other pan fish will be the result of this movement.

The only interference likely is the weather. Winds on large lakes prevent the setting and raising of nets at regular intervals and naturally the break-up of ice must be contended with in the northern waters.

To work up enthusiasm, which many believe as much a part of fishing as the actual casting itself, you can do it by preparing yourself for the pests of any camp. . . . the mosquitoes. No actual count has ever been taken, so far as this writer is aware, of anglers who have been discouraged by black flies, midges, mosquitoes and others of that family. . . it is estimated the number would be in the billions.

Of course there are sprays, pastes, oils and dopes that are already prepared and will be handed across the counter of your local drug store at a nominal charge. If you have tried all of these remedies and found that they are mere fattening food for the pests, here are four recipes for home-made dopes, all of which have been tried and tested by outdoorsmen:

The first, mix three ounces of pine tar, two ounces of castor oil and one ounce of pennyroyal oil and heat over a slow fire; place it in convenient bottles and spread over all exposed skin surfaces when going to the field of battle.

Second, one ounce of oil of citronella, one ounce spirits of camphor and one-half ounce of oil of cedar. Likewise mix and bottle.

Third, three ounces of tallow, one ounce of camphor, one ounce of pennyroyal and one ounce of creosote.

The fourth recipe will end in a pasty substance which is easy to carry on a camping trip. One ounce of citronella, one-half ounce spirits of camphor, one-half ounce oil of cedar, one-half ounce oil of lavender and four ounces of white vaseline.

It seems that there are one of two methods of treating your face while on a camping trip. No. 1, that approved by followers of fashion who step to the water with clean plaid shirt, unpatched waders, a highly polished briar pipe and a smoothly shaven face. The second type is one with whom we are not concerned in his wearing apparel but notice his face to be unshaven and smeared with insect-dope.

There is no question but what No. 1 will make the better picture and, perhaps will have the fullest creel; but, we will bet that the second angler will have spent the least time slapping himself during the day and night because it seems that the longer a dope remains on the skin the more powerful it becomes and since they are not injurious to body, comfort might be substituted for soap and water while in the camp.

COHN TO PLAY ROLF IN PERPETUAL YOUTH BILLIARD MATCH

The 92-year-old Pat Cohn is slated to meet W. Harold Rolf, age 76, tomorrow at Charles C. Peterson's Academy in the final match of the round-robin title series for the Perpetual Youth billiard championship. Cohn, shooting for 50 against Rolfe's 105, can deadlock the series, which also involves Col. Taylor Stith, 76, by winning the match. Rolf will automatically take the championship by defeating Cohn.

PRINCETON WINS CUP RACE; PENN CREW SECOND

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, May 15.—Princeton won the historic Childs Cup race by a length over Pennsylvania in the feature event of the combined American Henley and Childs Cup Regatta on the Schuylkill River today. Columbia was third.

The Princeton eight won in a flying finish in the time of 6.09 1-5, besting the Penn A. C. 1930 record for eight-oared shells over the American Henley course of 6.22½. It was the eighth record of the day.

Columbia trailed Penn by two lengths.

Joe Burk, former University of Pennsylvania oarsman, shattered the first single sculls record.

Burk, representing the College Boat Club, covered the mile and 5-16th course in 7:18.4. The previous Henley record was 7.39.4 made by Joe Wright Jr., of Toronto, in 1927.

Burk won by 10 lengths over Joe Hutton, of the Bachelors Barge. Herbert Miller, of the Toronto Argonauts, 1936 Canadian champion, finished third.

Undine Barge Club, stroked by Wesley Gerhab, won the first four-oared shells with coxswain by a scant nine feet over the Penn A. C. the Union Boat Club, of Boston, composed of former Harvard and Princeton oarsmen, finished third, seven lengths behind Undine.

James Russell of the Argoauts rowing Club of Toronto, won the second single sculls by two lengths over Joseph Angyal of the Ravenswood Boat Club of Long Island City.

The Undine's Olympic double crew, John Houser and William Dugan, set a new Henley record in winning the first double sculls in 7:03.3. The old record was 7:11 made by the same club in 1934.

Harvard Crew Is Quadrangular Regatta Winner

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 15.—Harvard's unbeaten varsity crew moved another step toward the mythical Eastern intercollegiate rowing championship today by defeating Cornell's improved sweepers by a good length and a half in a quadrangular race with Syracuse and M. I. T.

When the Crimson varsity raised the finish flag at the end of the mile and three-quarters course, over which it traveled in 8 minutes 50 1-5 seconds, the Ithacans, after a mighty spurt, were a length and three-quarters ahead of the veteran Jim Ten Eyck's Orange sweepers. M. I. T. trailed by four lengths as it ended its fourth season without a victory.

Harvard's crack junior-varsity eight, which also headed the four-shell fleet from the stake boats, pulled into such an early lead that it was not forced to exert itself to protect its margin over the Cornell "Jay-Vees" who, urged on by "Cowboy" Larned Whitney, staged the regatta's most stirring closing drive.

Harvard's chances of gaining a clean sweep of the regatta died when the Cornell freshmen overhauled the Crimson youngsters after a mile and were three-quarters of a length ahead when they finished in 9:03 3-5. Harvard was second, with two and a quarter lengths on Syracuse, and M. I. T. trailed by three lengths.

NEELY HURLS NO-HIT GAME AS RAMS BEAT McCAUSLAND NINE, 9-3

The Ram's hurler, Neely, hurled a no-hit baseball game when his team defeated McCausland Presbyterian Church nine yesterday in one of the three Joe Vosmik Junior Muny League games played at Forest Park. The Rams scored nine runs and a similar number of hits while the McCausland players, failing to obtain a single hit in seven frames, did manage to obtain a sufficient amount of free passes to the bases to obtain a total of three runs.

$470,863 LOW BID ON SUPERHIGHWAY

Covers Grading and Culverts Between Mason and Schoettler Roads in County.

A low bid of $470,863 for grading and culvert construction of the superhighway, which will be a new location of U. S. highway No. 40, between Mason and Schoettler roads, St. Louis County, was received by the State Highway Commission at Jefferson City yesterday. It was submitted jointly by Clark, Kearney & Stark and R. B. Potashnick of St. Louis.

This stretch is 4.1 miles long, connecting at Bellefontaine on the west with the existing new pavement running to Wentzville, St. Charles County, and on the east with a 3.4-mile section being graded now between Mason road and Lindbergh boulevard. Last Monday the commission designated the so-called southern Ladue route, largely paralleling Clayton road, as the missing link of the superhighway between Lindbergh boulevard and the express highway in Forest Park. Construction on the southern Ladue section will not be started before next year.

A low bid of $14,741 was received from the R. Dron Electric Co. of Granite City, Ill., for sodium vapor lights on the mile of the express highway between Kingshighway and Vandeventer avenue. These will correspond to the lights in use on this thoroughfare in the park.

Contracts probably will be awarded to the low bidders as soon as approval is given by Federal road engineers. The eastern end of the express highway has not been opened to traffic because of the fear by city officials that accidents might result from the lack of night illumination.

In general, from North and South road to Bellefontaine, the superhighway will consist of four traffic lanes, divided into two one-way roadways, with grade separations at intersections of all principal roads.

CHAMPION SPEED PILOT IN AEROBATIC CONTESTS

Roger Don Rae Had Previously Entered Air Races Here May 29-31.

Roger Don Rae, champion speed pilot, will be a participant in the aerobatic contests to be held as part of the International Aerobatic Competition at Lambert-St. Louis field May 29, 30 and 31, it was announced yesterday at headquarters for the air show. Rae had previously been entered in the racing contests.

It was also announced that Paul Mantz, technical advisor to Amelia Earhart, who begins another world flight next Saturday, had decided to take part in the air show here instead of accompanying Miss Earhart, as he has on every flight she has made for the last four years, including her recent flight to Honolulu.

Mantz, a member of the Motion Picture Pilots' Association, has made arrangements with James Rowan Ewing, managing director of the competition, to have the event filmed for use in a new aviation motion picture, soon to be produced.

MOST OF FAIRBANKS, ALASKA, INUNDATED, DUE TO ICE JAMS

Mercury Drops But Streams Continue to Rise From Melting Snows.

By the Associated Press.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, May 15.—Three-fourths of this interior Alaska town remained under water today as ice jams continued to dam the flooding Tanana and Chena Rivers.

Although the temperature dropped to 26 above zero last night, the streams continued to rise slowly from melting snows. The lower valley was virtually bare of snow, but the mountains and the upper Tanana Valley were sending their runoff into the ice-blocked streams.

An aerial survey showed ice was clearing rapidly from the Chena here and its neighboring Yukon tributary, the Tanana, but that flooded Fairbanks was not yet out of danger. The flooded sections of the city were under water a few inches to several feet deep. About half the residences were abandoned and the homeless householders were sleeping in public buildings and hotels. The water had receded from its record crest, set yesterday.

SEVENTH VOTE FRAUD TRIAL IN KANSAS CITY TOMORROW

Subpenas Out for 100 Witnesses; No Acquittals in These Cases Thus Far.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 15.—Subpenas for about 100 Government witnesses were in the hands of deputy United States marshals tonight in preparation for Kansas City's seventh vote fraud conspiracy trial scheduled to open before Judge Albert L. Reeves Monday.

A jury will be selected from a panel of 70 men living outside Kansas City and Jackson County.

Two possible cases are on the docket, one involving five persons from the Seventh Precinct of the Twelfth Ward, and the other eight defendants from the Eighteenth Precinct of the Third Ward.

In six previous trials 32 of 126 persons indicted have been convicted. Eight others pleaded no defense and a jury failed to agree in the case of three. None has been acquitted.

Quits Job After 22 Years.

Clarence W. Hunt, 4607 Ray avenue, a deputy clerk in Probate Court for 22 years, resigned yesterday to engage in private business. Hunt, a Republican, was originally appointed by the late Charles W. He will be succeeded by Leo Joseph Morrell, 4009 Greer avenue.

SOUTHERN BAPTISTS TABLE LABOR ISSUE

Younger Pastors Defeated After Assailing "Trivial" Resolutions on War and Liquor.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, May 15.—The Southern Baptist convention tabled today, after vigorous debate, resolutions concerning economics and labor drafted by a group of younger pastors.

These sought to pledge the convention to a change of "our modern industrial structure from a competitive to a co-operative state," to recognize "the growing importance of the labor movement," and to favor "definite regulation" of child labor in industry.

The resolutions were drawn by the Rev. Charles R. Bell, 29-year-old pastor of Anniston, Ala., and supporters led by the Rev. J. A. Simpson, New Orleans, the Rev. R. H. Satterfield, Wilmington, N. C., and James L. Anderson, assistant to Mr. Bell.

Group Formed After Speech.

The group formed after Bell in a speech last night termed "trivial" the report of the convention's social service commission which condemned mob violence, aggressive war, traffic in intoxicating liquor and lax marriage statutes.

Their draft, after a reading before the convention, was referred to the Resolutions Committee. After partial revision, the resolutions were presented to the eighty-second annual session for a vote.

The 4000 delegates from Baptist churches in 18 states approved the revised wording of one on international relationships, calling for a warless world as "the Christian ideal." The original draft condemned "all war" and approved refusal to participate in war.

The convention approved a resoresolution on economics declaring "co-operation and not competition is the Christian ideal."

Concerning labor and agriculture, it approved a revised resolution deploring "economic injustice or industrial inhumanity," and tabled one indorsing "understanding and co-operation" in the labor movement and another favoring regulation of child labor.

On Racial Relationships.

The convention approved a resolution deploring "un-Christian practices" in racial relationships.

Dr. A. J. Barton, Wilmington, N. C., chairman of the Social Service Commission, who urged tabling of the controversial questions, asserted that at previous meetings the Southern Baptists had taken "the most advanced positions on industrial relationships of any religious body in America."

Dr. Dodd asserted the Resolutions Committee sought "to let the world know we stand on the side of the humanities."

Told by the resolution of the Rev. R. C. Howard of Oklahoma City condemning the use of tobacco, that four babies had died in a hospital in Oklahoma because their mothers used tobacco, the Rev. Mr. Bell challenged whether these mothers "could afford orange juice, fresh vegetables and proper food."

"Is it Christ-like," the Rev. Mr. Bell asked, "when our Colored brethren must come into the auditorium through a separate entrance?"

"We condemn lynching in general," he said, "but do not advocate a national law to stop it. We ought to support the Gavagan anti-lynching bill——"

There were shouts of "No, no," from the floor and the Rev. Mr. Bell sat down.

W. D. Upshaw, former prohibition candidate for President, answering the young minister, said: "He is not an old-time Baptist. Everything he says has been covered in our reports for years. He should read them."

OWNERS OF OLD DAWES BANK HAVE PAID R F C $2,250,000

$14,000,000 Returned Altogether of $90,000,000 Lent; Stockholders Suing Former Vice-President.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 15.—Reconstruction Finance Corporation attorneys announced today that stockholders of the former Central Republic Trust Co. had paid in $2,250,000 on the $14,000,000 repayment toward the $90,000,000 R F C loan to the bank in 1932 ordered by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson two weeks ago.

Largest of the payments reported by the attorney, O. John Rogge and Harold Rosenwald, was $760,845.67, paid in behalf of Hinshaw & Co. by the Central Illinois Security Co.

Former Vice-President Charles G. Dawes, who headed the Central Republic, was reported to have paid $52,000 personally before the decree was signed, and the Dawes Brothers, representing the family interests, were reported to have paid in $1,027,600.

Charles Dawes and others were named yesterday in a suit for $8,000,000, filed on behalf of former stockholders of the Central Republic, who alleged the entire Central republic organization was taken over by a new bank, the City National Bank & Trust Co. of Chicago, without remuneration to the stockholders.

6000 More Books in Library.

More than 6000 volumes were added last month to the St. Louis Public Library collection, including 266 in Braille for the use of sightless readers. "Gone With the Wind," and "An American Doctor's Odyssey" were the two most popular volumes in that division. An increased interest in bird books was shown.

LA GUARDIA SAYS FEDERAL AID PREVENTED CHAOS IN CITIES

Urges Mayors at Los Angeles Conference to Support Proposed Work Relief Program.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, May 15. — The Government's unemployment relief program has saved many American cities from economic chaos, Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York declared today.

"I do not know what would have happened to my city or any other American city had it not been for the unemployment relief program of the Federal Government," Mayor LaGuardia told the Western regional meeting of the United States conference of Mayors. He continued:

"We may as well face the facts and realize that no matter how prosperous business and industry may be, that this country will always face an unemployment problem, and we may as well determine that the American people must provide work relief for men and women who are out of jobs through no fault of their own."

LaGuardia joined other conferees in urging passage of the proposed $1,500,000,000 Federal work relief program. He said he hoped the conference would place itself "very firmly and definitely on record in favor" of the program.

Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield of Boston said "If we can solve the major economic problems by national aid in the large centers of population, then we have made a great advance toward solving the problems of the smaller communities and agricultural areas surrounding these centers."

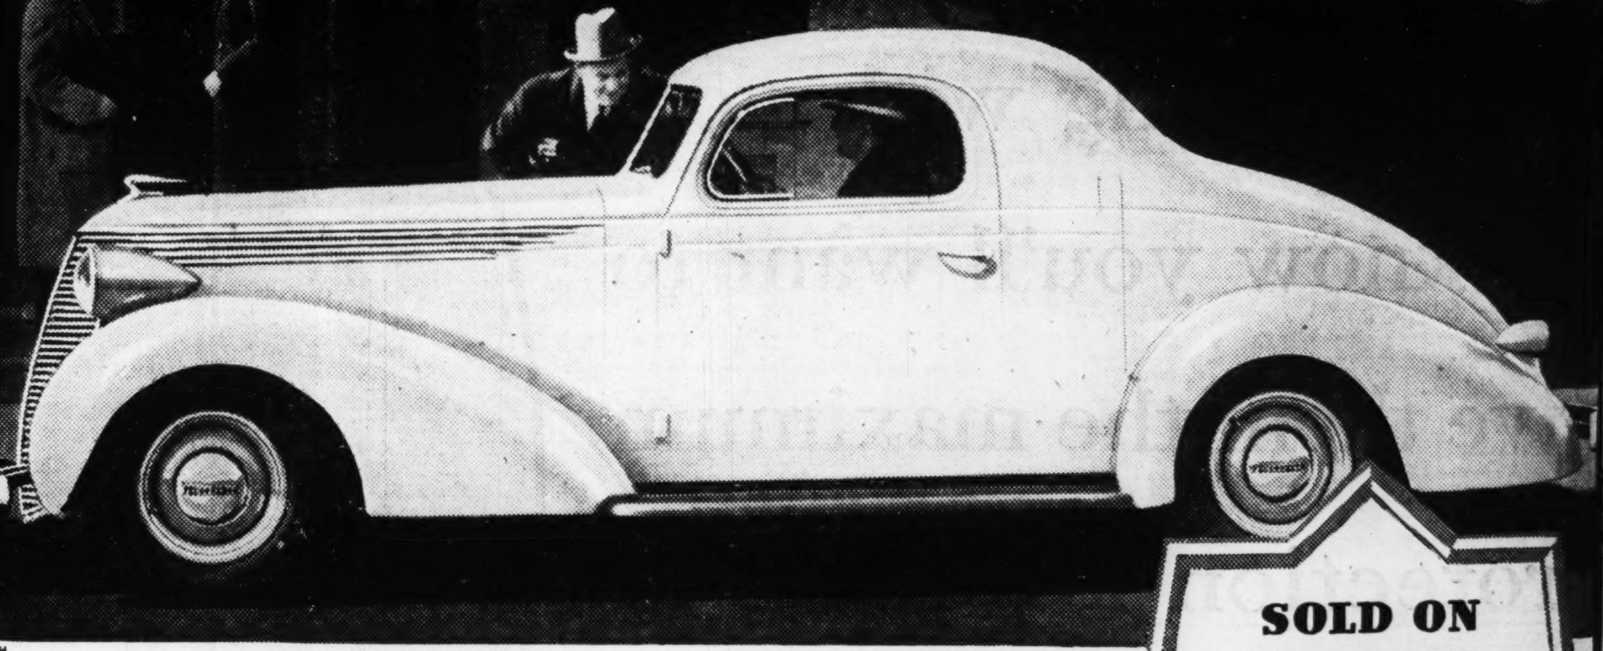
America's finest 6-cylinder car!



ACTUAL PHOTOGRAPH

SOLD ON PAYMENT TERMS THAT CHALLENGE THE LOWEST IN TOWN

Gas and oil savings that equal those of lowest priced cars!

LOOK at the beautiful air-curved lines of that Studebaker Dictator coupe in the above photograph. If Studebaker hadn't designed a single other body model this year, that coupe would make Studebaker styling famous.

From its silvery "winged victory" front end to its enormously roomy rear deck, it makes even the most costly competitive coupes look out of date.

And yet it's the lowest priced car in the sensationally low priced 1937 Studebaker line. You can own it for just a few dollars more than cars usually considered least costly to buy! And inside it's as stunningly styled as outside . . . with an exceptionally roomy adjustable seat . . . and a wide deep shelf below the rear window.

Coupe or sedan, whatever your preference, you'll get more for your money in a Studebaker Dictator than in any one of the 9 other sixes. The Dictator challenges them all.

It's all alone in restful riding . . . all alone in simple, satisfactory ventilation. It's the world's first six to offer the amazing dual economy of the Fram oil cleaner and the gas-saving automatic overdrive . . . the world's first six to offer the automatic hill holder plus triply sealed feather-touch hydraulic brakes . . . the world's only six with doors that shut tightly and stay shut securely without slamming. See and drive this thrilling distinctive Studebaker Dictator today.

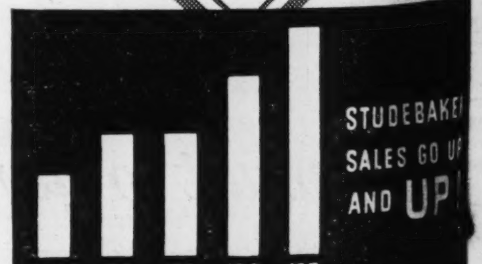


Chart above shows Studebaker sales by years up to May first. Look how 1937 Studebaker sales are soaring above even record-breaking 1936! You buy a popular favorite when you buy a Studebaker!

WOODLAWN CLUB GOLF COURSE FOR SUBDIVISION

Fifty Acres of Old Kirkwood Organization on Woodlawn Acquired by Syndicate.

By Berry Moore.

Approximately 50 acres of ground comprising the major part of the Woodlawn Country Club golf course, Woodlawn and Gill avenues, Kirkwood, has been acquired by a syndicate sponsored by the Francis-Perry-Ruth Real Estate Co., of which Thomas Francis is president. It was part of an 81-acre tract acquired by bondholders under a deed of trust, securing a loan predicated on a high valuation. The price paid in the present transaction was not revealed.

The tract is to be subdivided for high-class residences. A large outlay has been alloted for surface and municipal improvements, with plans for development on a pretentious scale.

The ground has a frontage on the west side of Woodlawn of 2600 front feet and on the north side of Gill avenue of 1340 feet, and is a block north of Adams avenue. The Kirkwood-Ferguson car line extends through the tract.

Clubhouse Not Included.

The purchase does not include the Woodlawn Country Club house standing on a five-acre site, on the opposite side of Gill avenue, and six tennis courts, occupying virtually adjoining ground. The land was originally a part of the Gatz estate.

The purchasers composing the syndicate include J. D. Perry Francis, J. Lionberger Davis, Thomas McPheeters, William F. Randolph, Mrs. Kenneth G. Carpenter, J. Porter Henry, Jesse P. Henry and Collins Thompson.

Speculation is rife as to the future of the Dwight Davis tract, west of Clayton. The tract, comprising 200 acres or more, lies north and south of Ladue road, with Shaw's Park on the east as an attractive feature. Being potentially a site for a high-class residential park, it is attarcting the attention of both speculators and investors.

Other Tracts Sought.

The Crow tract on the north side of Clayton road, east of McKnight road, is also attracting noteworthy attention. Clients of Shaw & Francis, it is understood, seek this tract, comprising approximately 40 acres. It is regarded as available for an addition to Dromara Acres, an ultra high-class residential development on McKnight road. The Clayton street car line traverses this section. The tract is owned by Alexander Crow of St. Louis, Wayman Crow of LaJolla, Cal., John Gay Reilly of Mexico and others.

Several offers for Geyer road tracts between Clayton and the

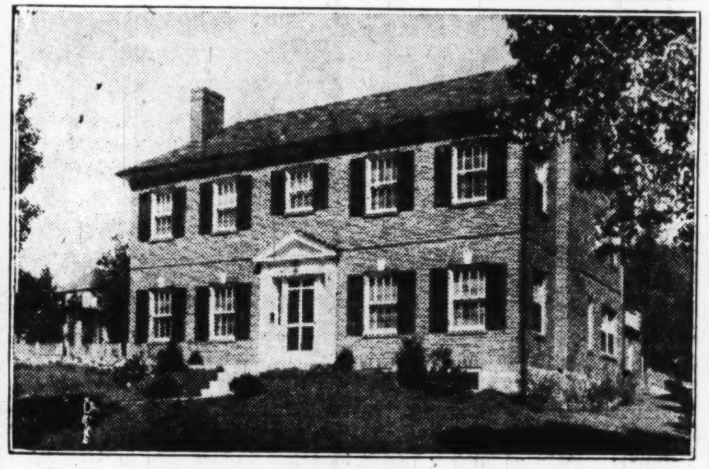
Moorlands Home Acquired



House at 736 Audubon drive, Moorlands, acquired by Ben M. Schulein, grain broker, from I. Agastein, builder. Negotiations were handled by the Arthur Goldman Realty Co.

HIGH CLASS COUNTY RESIDENCES BOUGHT

Located in Lake Forest, Hampton Park and the Moorlands.

The market for high-class residences in St. Louis County, awakened with the advent of spring, continues well sustained.

A feature of the week was the purchase of the newly built residence at 108 Lake Forest, at the southwest corner of Clayton and Hanley roads by J. E. Stephens, vice-president of the Krey Packing Co. No mention of the price paid was made.

Designed in the Colonial style, the house occupies a lot 100 by 150 feet. It has 12 bedrooms and three baths and there is a rathskeller with bar in the basement. Construction is fireproof and of a superior order. The garage is an integral part of the basement.

The house was designed by Preston J. Bradshaw, architect. William L. Gomley, director of sales of Lake Forest, effected the sale. The Anderson-Stocke-Buermann financed construction of the house, with a building loan, which the purchaser has paid off.

Samuel L. Wisebart, head of the Eagle Stamp Co., has purchased the residence of James L. Hamilton, at 1259 Hampton Park drive in Hampton Park, southeast corner of Clayton and Hanley roads. Mary Potter Love, Inc., handled the transaction.

The house has four bedrooms and two baths on the second floor. The first floor comprises spacious entrance hall, living room, dining room, pantry, kitchen, breakfast room, lavatory. A recreation room, with large fireplace is an attractive feature of the basement. There is a two-car garage. The grounds are landscaped and there is a profusion of forest trees.

The residence of E. R. Culver Jr., at 7945 Park drive in Hampton Park, at the southeast corner of Clayton and Hanley roads, was purchased by Eugene D. Cronk of Ernest Boyd-Cronk Accounting Co., through A. T. and Whitelaw Terry.

The first floor consists of living room, music room, dining room, kitchen and screened porch. There are four bedrooms with two baths on the second floor. The third floor consists of sitting room and bedroom with bath. The premises include a three-car garage with gas heat.

Another feature was the purchase of the Colonial residence at 736 Audubon drive, Moorelands, by Benjamin M. Schulein, grain broker. The house has four master bedrooms and two baths on the second floor. There is the regular run of rooms on the first floor, including maid's room with bath. The basement includes a recreation room. The Arthur Goldman Realty Co. negotiated the sale.

Whipple S. Newell of the Sheffield Steel Corporation has purchased a residence at 57 Bedford avenue from Julius A. Schweig. Negotiations were handled by the Blumenfeld Realty Co.

METAL COMPANY BUYS GROUND OWNED BY LEATHER INTERESTS

The L. M. Holtzman Metal Company has purchased the ground at the northwest corner of Talcott and McKissock avenues, comprising 30,000 square feet, owned by the United States Leather Corporation. Several months ago the concern acquired the north half of this block. This, with the present acquisition, gives it a total ground areas of 400x150 feet, with an extensive frontage on McKissock.

The transaction was handled by Arthur S. Martin and Sons.

LOWER INTEREST RATES FOR HOMES FORECAST

Proposals Advanced at Convention to Overcome Deterrents to Real Estate Recovery.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Reduction of interest rates on home mortgages, with resulting stimulation of new building, was forecast tonight at the closing session of the Central Atlantic Regional convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Several proposals were advanced to overcome deterrents to real estate recovery cited by speakers at the convention yesterday.

Edward A. MacDougall of New York, chairman of the association's Committee on Real Estate Finance, announced that Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York had given assurances he would support a bill providing a survey to determine the need for a Federal mortgage bank.

A bill to establish such a bank, privately managed and Government-supervised, has been introduced in the Senate by Wagner and Senator Claude Pepper of Florida.

Mortgage interest rates, one of the deterrents feared by the realtors, undoubtedly would be reduced by a mortgage bank, said MacDougall.

In an address at the final banquet session, Paul E. Stark of Madison, Wis., president of the association, declared a vast amount of capital is available for financing real estate projects.

That condition will exert a tendency to lower interest rates and stimulate building, he said, and "recovery will bring thousands of new knocks at our doors for homes and for the leasing of commercial property."

Warning of new conditions in real estate, including industrial disturbances, Stark predicted that the nation would come out "into a greater prosperity than we have ever known."

Referring to another deterrent to real estate recovery, Hay Hofford, executive vice-president of the association, recommended a tax ceiling to limit the authority of municipalities to tax real estate.

APRIL BUILDING PERMIT VALUES UNDER MARCH

Total for Four-Month Period is 46.3 Per Cent Over Corresponding 1936 Period.

"THE rate of gain in building operations as compared with a year ago was somewhat lower in April than in the preceding month, and at the same time the April volume was slightly smaller than the March figure instead of a usually expected seasonal increase of about 6.5 per cent," states Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., in review.

"The monthly summary of building permit values for 215 cities of the United States, as compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., revealed a total of $117,525,776 for April. This compared with $83,903,095 in April last year, or an increase of 40.1 per cent, as against a gain of 55.1 per cent for the similar March comparison. The April figure was 2.9 per cent under the March total of $121,069,160.

"The loss in April was due largely to a falling off at New York City, where permit costs fell from $35,871,602 in March to $27,110,582 in April, or a drop of 24.4 per cent. Despite this decline, last month's total was double that of April, 1936, when permits amounted to only $13,592,566.

"At the 214 cities outside of the metropolis, the value of permits issued in April was $90,415,194, compared with $85,197,558 in March and $70,310,529 in April a year ago. This represented increases, respectively, of 6.1 and 28.6 per cent.

"The group totals of building permit values for the 215 cities of April this year and last, together with percentage changes, are shown in the following table:

Groups:	April 1937	April 1936
New England	$10,601,353	$4,308,349
Middle Atlantic	39,194,522	26,928,382

Outside N. Y. C.	$90,415,194	$70,310,529

Four Months Gain 46.3 Per Cent.

"The estimated value of permits for the first third of 1937 aggregated $392,922,178 for the 215 cities, as compared with $268,492,883 for the same period last year, or an increase of 46.3 per cent. Except for a small decrease in the South Central States, increases were recorded for all other groups, with the New England and Middle Atlantic sections showing the largest gains.

"The four months' record of building permit values by geographical groups for 1937 and 1936, for the 215 cities, as compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., is given herewith:

Groups:	Four Months 1937	1936

MANUFACTURING CONCERN BUYS WELLSTON BUILDING

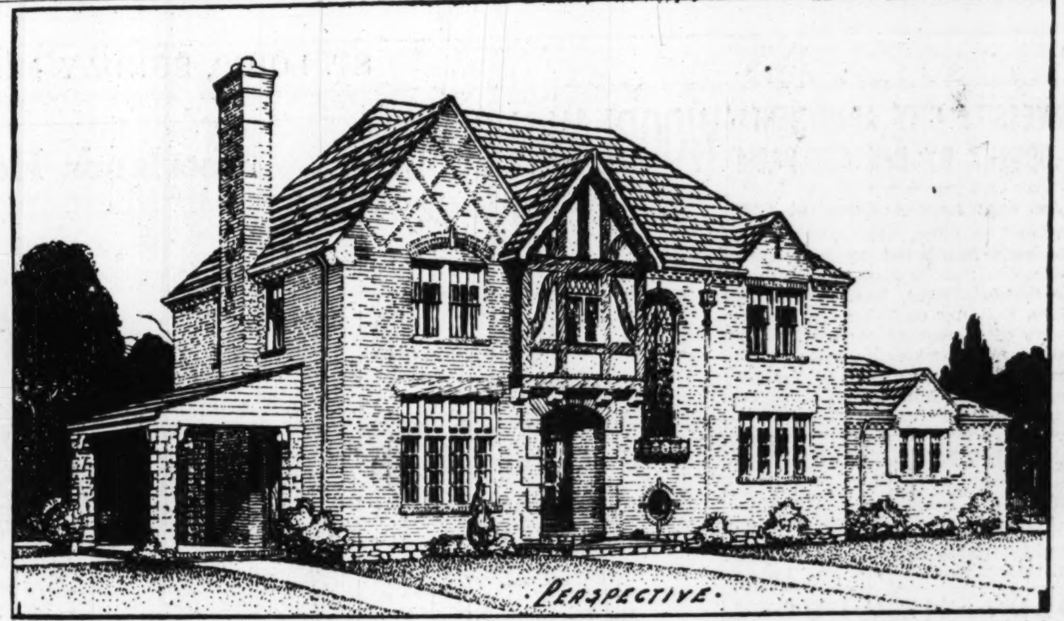
The American Iron-Steel Manufacturing Co. has purchased the concrete building at the northeast corner of Morton and Minerva avenues in Wellston, owned by the Kansas City Life Insurance Co.

The building, formerly occupied by the Marvin-Hay Planing Co., is erected on an irregular shape lot, with 171 feet on Morton avenue. The purchaser, now operating a plant at 4920 Easton avenue, will remove to the Wellston building as soon as alterations can be made.

Arthur H. Fuldner, manager of the commercial leasing department of Oreon E. & R. G. Scott, negotiated the sale.

RESIDENCES AND BANKING HOUSES RECENTLY ACQUIRED

Building at the northwest corner of Natural Bridge and Newstead avenues recently acquired by the Mound City Trust Co. It was formerly occupied by the Natural Bridge Bank & Trust Co. The transaction was handled by Edward L. Bakewell.



Residence at 7281 Winchester drive in Pasadena Hills purchased by H. V. McNamara, division manager of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Co., represented by the Carl G. Stifel Real Estate Co.

PARKHURST HOTEL BUILDING SOUGHT

Three-Story Structure at 228-30 North Taylor Ave. Acquired by Morris Steinbaum.

The Parkhurst hotel, at 228-30 North Taylor avenue, comprising 36 rooms and 8 baths, has been purchased by Morris Steinbaum, hotel operator. It occupies a lot 100 by 100 feet, situated midway between Lindell boulevard and Maryland avenue. Virtually adjoining is the Westmoreland Hotel at the southeast corner of Maryland and Taylor avenues.

The property was owned by the Ella H. Strobhart estate, represented by Cornet & Zeibig in the negotiations. The Dubinsky Realty Co. represented the purchaser. The price brought was not disclosed. Negotiations, involving the resale of the property, is said to be pending.

FLATS, BUNGALOWS AND BUSINESS PROPERTY SOLD

Tony Hurleman reports the following sales: Bungalow at 3016 Watson road for a client to Mrs. Tillie C. Wolff; single flat at 7725 Arthur avenue, Richmond Heights, for a client of Frank Gilbert to Bert J. DeMay; business building at 5960 Southwest avenue for Caroline Berninger to John Grana; modern bungalow at 7067 Lindenwood place for George H. Tiemann to Richard H. SITE ON NATURAL BRIDGE ACQUIRED FOR BUILDING

A lot 30 by 140 feet on the south side of Natural Bridge avenue, just east of Goodfellow avenue, has been purchased by a client of the Blumenfeld Realty Co. with plans for a business building. It is opposite a branch building of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

GOLF COURSE WOODLAWN CLUB FOR SUBDIVISION

Manchester roads were reported yesterday, with negotiations on an aggressive basis. The prospective purchasers, in several instances, have plans for pretentious houses. Manifestly, Geyer road is destined to be built up with houses of a superior order.

Bank Building Acquired.

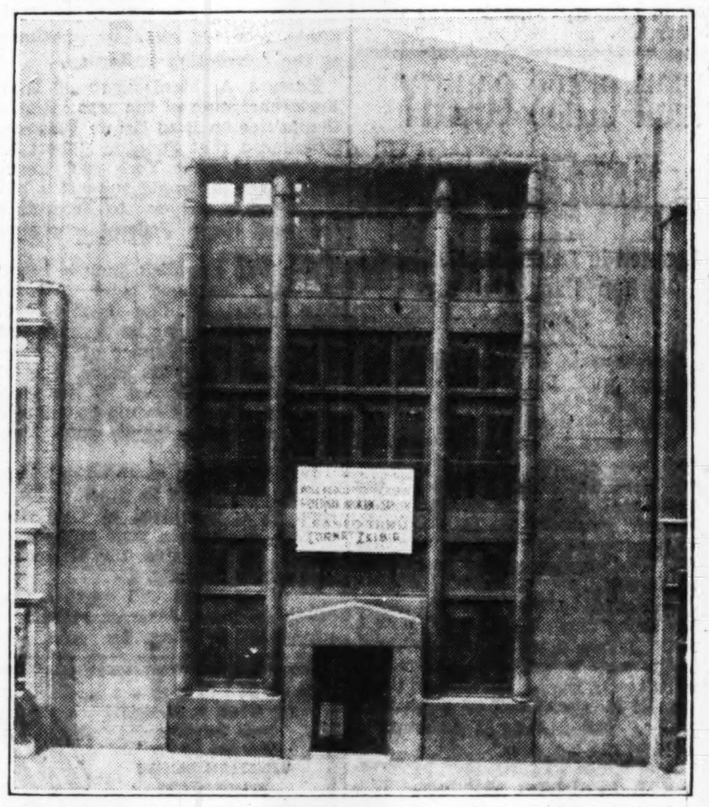
The building formerly occupied by the Natural Bridge Bank & Trust Co. at the northwest corner of Natural Bridge and Newstead avenues has been acquired by the Mound City Trust Co. It was owned by the Newstead Natural Bridge Realty Co.

The building was erected for the Natural Bridge Bank in 1929, at a cost of $125,000, exclusive of the site. Constructed of granite and stone, with interior of zenethern and marble, the structure is one of the most striking of its type in the Northwestern industrial district. Large safe deposit vaults for bank funds and for books are installed in the rear of the building.

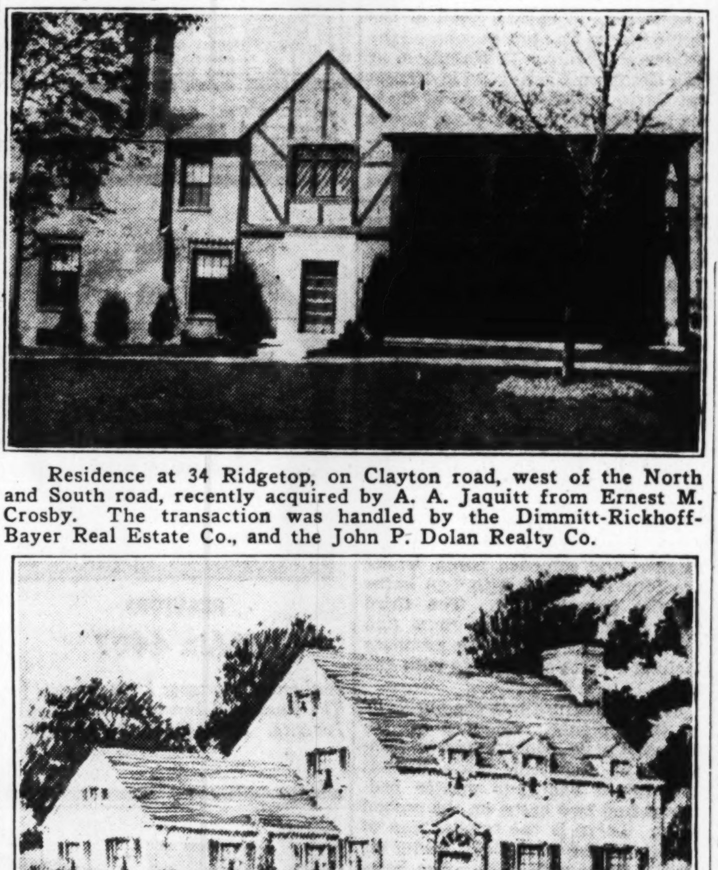
The site has a frontage on Natural Bridge of 94 feet and on Newstead of 120 feet.

The Mound City Trust Co. was represented by Edward L. Bakewell in the negotiations. The purchase includes furniture, fixtures and equipment. No mention of the price paid was made.

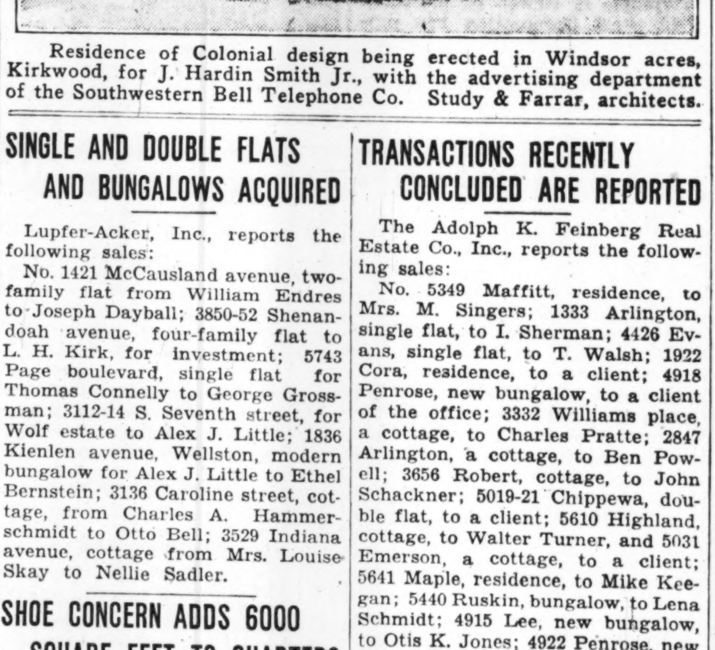
The Mound City Trust Co., now located at the northeast corner of Union boulevard and St. Louis avenues, will move to its new quarters with the completion of necessary alterations. It was launched in 1920 in its present quarters, now inadequate to its increased volume of business. George W. Clarkson Jr. is president of the bank, succeeding his father, the late George W. Clarkson, who died in 1936, and who had headed the institution for 25 years.



Building at 711-13 St. Charles street leased for a long term by Friedman, Brokaw & Samish, New York Stock Exchange house, through Cornet & Zeibig. It is owned by the Burnett Real Estate & Investment Co., of which Claude E. Vrooman is president. It was formerly occupied by Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co.



Residence at 34 Ridgetop, on Clayton road, west of the North and South road, recently acquired by A. A. Jaquitt from Ernest M. Crosby. The transaction was handled by the Dimmitt-Rickhoff-Bayer Real Estate Co., and the John P. Dolan Realty Co.



Residence of Colonial design being erected in Windsor acres, Kirkwood, for J. Hardin Smith Jr., with the advertising department of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. Study & Farrar, architects.

MOORLANDS SITE FOR APARTMENTS

Construction Co. Buys Ground on Westwood for Twin Structures—Other Projects.

The Samuel Brown Construction Co. has completed plans for two 18-family apartment buildings to be erected on Westwood drive two blocks south of Wydown boulevard, facing Parkdale, in Blue Ridge terrace, Moorlands. Negotiations for the purchase of the site, 140 by 116 feet, have been concluded through the Henry R. Weisels Co.

The plans call for three-story twin structures, with five and six-room suites. Both will be air-conditioned and replete with innovations.

Excavation has been started on the west side of Westwood, between Buckingham and Oxford drive, for two 18-family buildings, to be erected by Lichtenstein Estates, Inc. The site, comprising the entire Westwood frontage of this block, was acquired recently through Shaw & Francis, Inc.

Interests represented by Duke-Young, Inc., have acquired 260 feet on the north side of Byron place between Glenridge and Westwood drives, Blue Ridge terrace. The purchasers have plans for two 12-family apartment buildings. The seller was represented by Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Realty Co.

The G. H. Nash Construction Co. is erecting a 12-family apartment building at the southeast corner of Oxford and Westwood drives. The site has a frontage of 80 feet on Oxford with a depth of 115 feet. The building will form an attractive improvement for this section.

COLONIAL TYPE HOUSE BEING ERECTED FOR J. H. SMITH JR.

A residence of Colonial design is being erected in Windsor acres, in Kirkwood, for J. Hardin Smith Jr. of the advertising department of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., from plans by Study & Farrar, architects. The first floor will contain a spacious entrance hall, with Colonial stairs, living room, dining room and service. There will be three bedrooms and two baths on the second floor.

CLERMONT LANE SITE BOUGHT FOR RESIDENCE

Dr. Franklin E. Walton Buys Acre of Ground in Ladue Road Development.

Lot 25 in Clermont Lane, a high-class residential development at the southwest corner of Warson and Ladue roads, has been acquired by Dr. Franklin E. Walton. Plans are being drawn for a handsome residence for the site comprising approximately an acre of ground.

Cornet & Zeibig handled the transaction, representing the seller, Olin M. Attebery, first vice-president of the Federal Reserve Bank. Mary Potter Love, Inc., represented the purchaser in the negotiations.

The lot is opposite the residences of Kenneth H. Bitting and Meredith Jones. Others who have erected handsome residences in this development include R. A. Bagnell, Raymond Peters, N. S. Chouteau, Walsh, H. P. Green, John A. Scudder, Ira E. Wright Jr. and George Lee Camp and Henry T. Ferriss.

The comparatively new building of the Mary Institute at the northwest corner of Warson and Ladue roads is an attractive feature of this section.

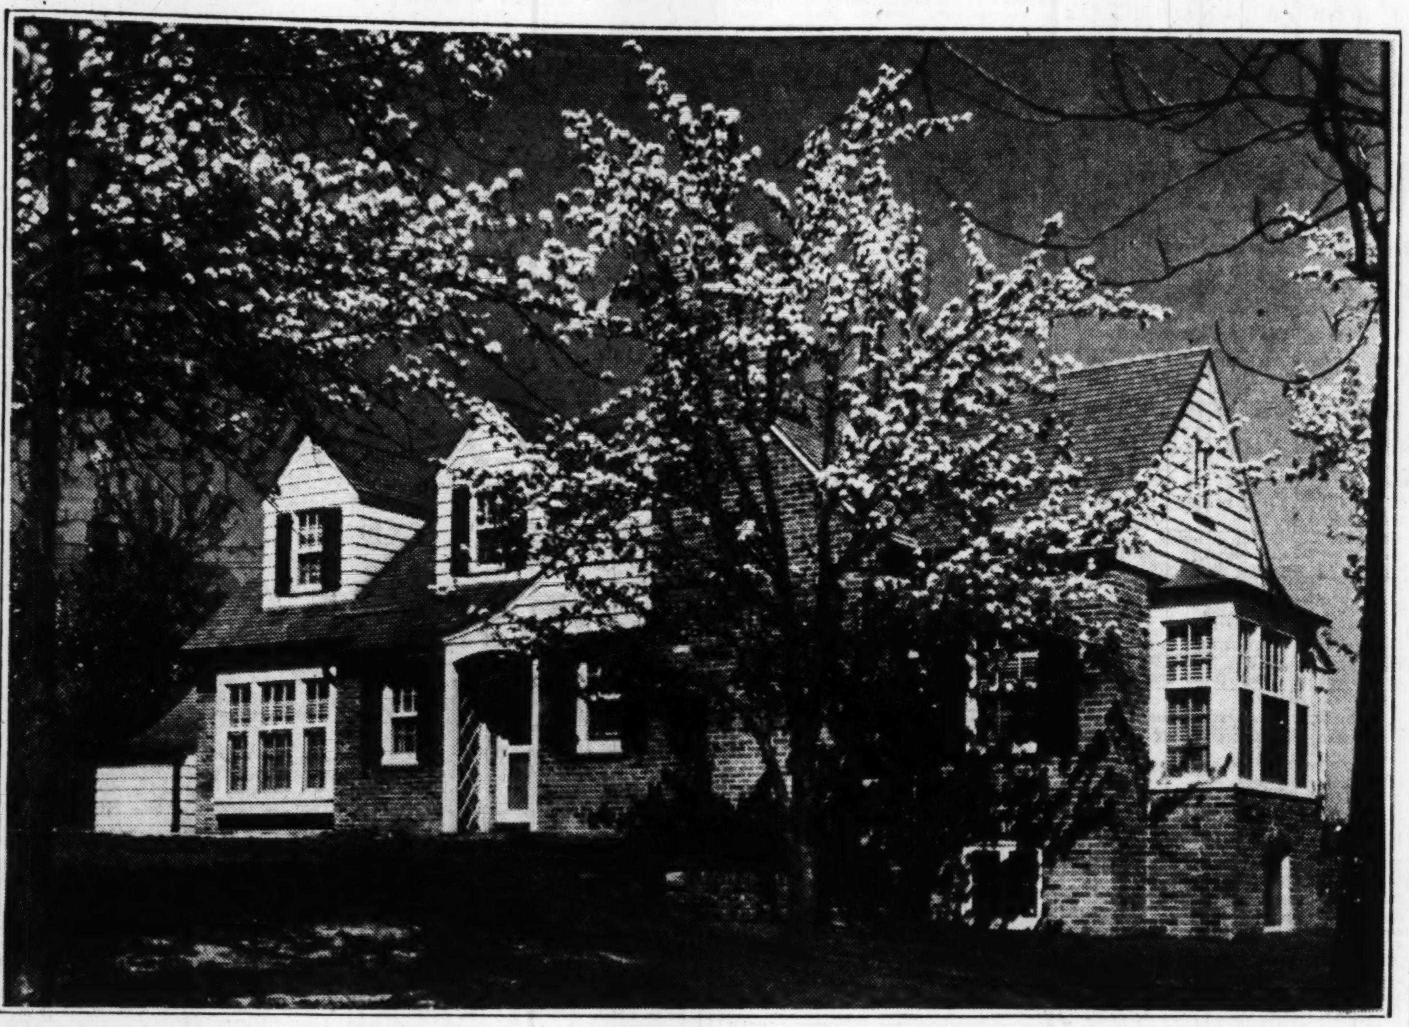
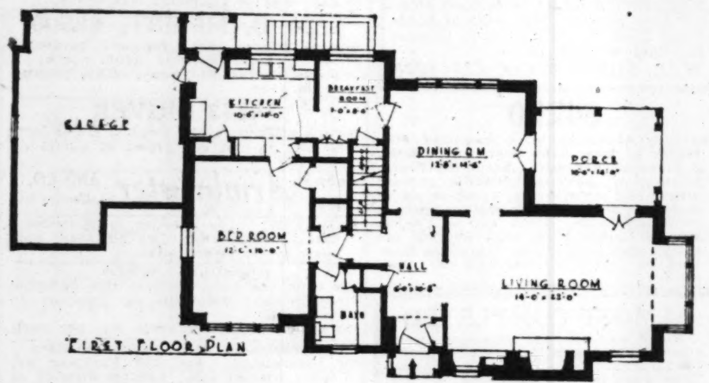
In the Informal Early American Tradition

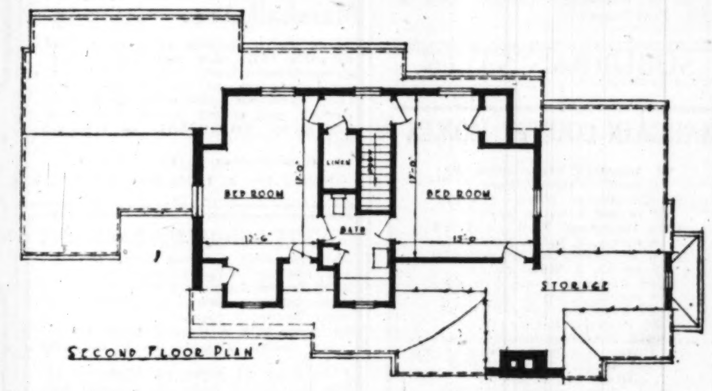
Fine Old Hand-Made Brick Used in This Charming Story-and-a-Half House Which Has a Vista From Every Window.



R. Paul Buchmueller, Architect. Member St. Louis Chapter American Institute of Architects—Photographs by Alexander Piaget Studio.



FIRST FLOOR PLAN



SECOND FLOOR PLAN

THERE is more to planning and building a house than meets the eye. Given an architect with agination and ideas and clients ho are flexible in their wants one as a combination which gives ractically perfect results.

This is certainly true of the house hown here, set far back from the oad with a screen of willows in ront and pear trees all about it. he trees almost hide this charmng story and a half house which ollows the informal lines of Early merican Colonial and is inclined ramble at bit. With its fine old andmade bricks, its white gables, reen shutters and silvery eathered shingles the house has uiet dignity and infinite charm nd is a perfect expression of the ersonalities of its owners.

Certainly the terrain was such hat would give impetus to the maginations of architect and lients; to the architect because it eant working out a problem and o the owners because it meant all anner of landscaping possibilities. he plot was an irregular shaped iece of land with a shallow saucerike depression in the foreground, a light rise and level ground at the ack for a distance of some 250 eet. A tall house, placed here, ight have looked forlorn, and it as for this reason that the archect suggested the story and a half hich, with its attached garage, ould more or less tie into the andscape.

WHILE the house was planned to give complete privacy to all members of the family, lacing it was dictated by the locaon of the trees on the property. s it stands now every window has vista. The bay in the living room ommands a grove of trees at some istance. In the spring it frames ossoming pears. The downstairs edroom window opens on a screen f shrubs. The second floor bedooms overlook a stretch of meadow nd trees.

The interior is definitely Early merican. The fireplace wall in e living room is paneled with notty pine. A built-in bookshelf, d a window seat with small winw above it are included in this all. The fireplace is faced with d handmade bricks. A Dutch en at the side is used to store rewood. A brass plate, a pair of rought iron candelabla and two noky blue cloisonne jars lend a easing contrast to the plain mane shelf. The paneling and fluted ood trim in this room have been ained and waxed a rich cinnamon ade. A simple decorative cornice eats this same shade. Large oked rugs of Early American den in mellow browns, reds, black d tan show just enough of the weled floor of random-width oak anking which has also been ained and waxed.

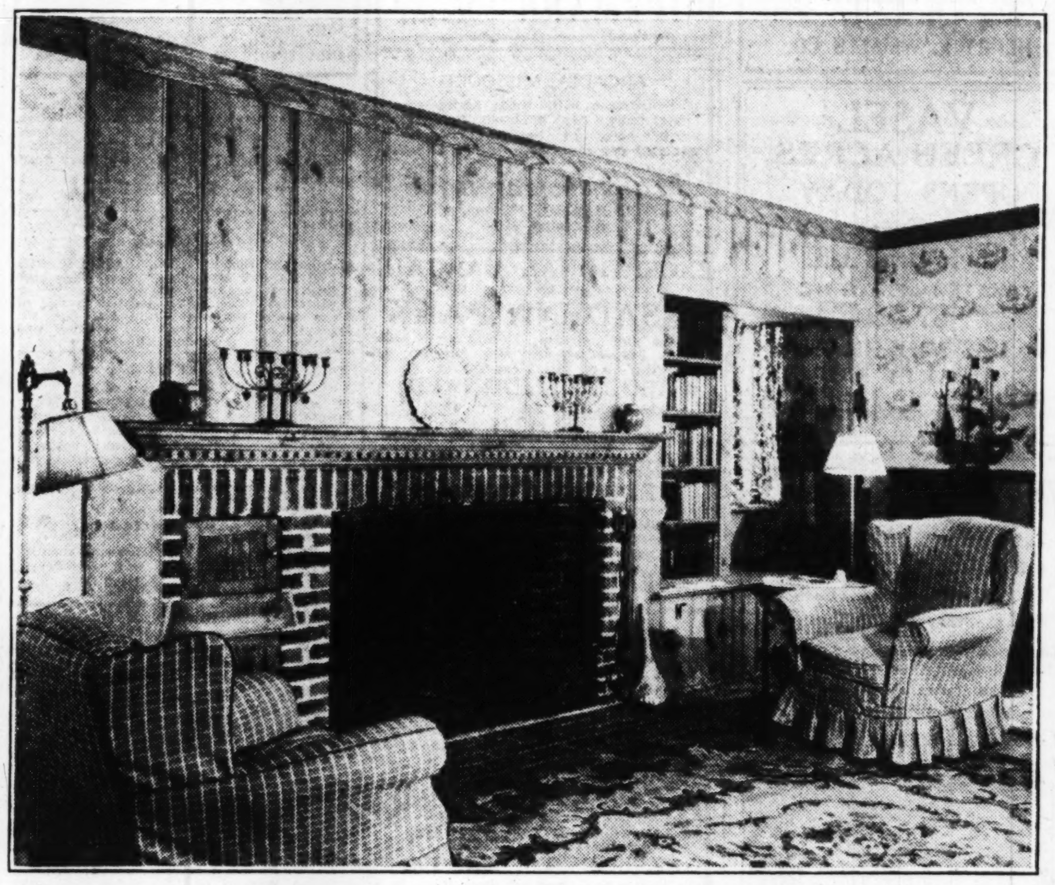
The entrance to the house is untrusive under a continuing gable clapboard siding. The recessed or has its upper half glazed. A at shallow storage closet for mes and bridge tables and a est closet have been placed to vantage in the entrance hall. ere is no waste space in conction with the stairway. It is ictly utilitarian with fluted newel d three turned balusters.

Dining room, kitchen, breakfast om and a screened, flagged porch cupy the garden side of the use. The porch, which is accesble from the dining room and ing room adds much to comfortle summer living and entertaing.

TWO bedrooms and bath occupy the second floor. A window lights the landing on the second floor and provides light for the large linen and storage closet there. A storage space with small window is accessible from one bedroom.

The garage is of clapboard siding with a low swung roof line which gives stability and balance to the house. It is attached to the house and the entrance is through the kitchen. Both baths are complete with tub and shower. Linoleum has been used as wainscoting and floor covering. The first floor bathroom is done with canary yellow walls with black and warm rust trim which is repeated in the floor. The second floor bath is done with mottled gray and cream linoleum, wainscoting and floor. The wood trim has been painted a French gray and the dark blue trim is repeated in shower and window curtains.

The fluted Colonial wood trim, painted off white, is used througout. All finish hardware and lighting fixtures are in the Colonial tradition with small brass doorknobs and wrought iron exposed hinges on the cabinets in the living room. The foundation is of concrete masonry units. The construction is brick with cinder block backing and clapboard in dormers and gables. The house is completely insulated and is heated by a winter air conditioning warm air system. It was built for Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Foulis and designed by R. Paul Buchmueller, member of the St. Louis chapter, American Institute of Architects.



Paneled fireplace wall includes window and book nook.

QUESTIONS BEFORE THE HOUSE

Q. Have just bought new bunga with interlocking shingle roof. elting snow and rains always ing wet ceilings and side wall. so water in fruit cellar and coal n, which are under the front rch. Please state reason and also medy. Can the water spots be vered without painting? Also places paint is peeling off. Is is due to cheap paint? Will the int have to be burned off before painting?

NEW HOME OWNER.

A. Have the flashings inspected d repaired if necessary, as the ter may be seeping in under the ngles. The water in the fruit llar and coal bin may be coming rough the porch floor. If it is ming through the foundation, it ay be necessary to dig a trench the outside from the grade line the footing and plaster with onelf inch plaster made of one part ment and three parts of sand. ater spots cannot be removed om plaster. Paint may peel for number of reasons. Insufficient zing is one of them. Sandpaper e spots until they are smooth bere repainting. Be sure to use a e of some kind which may be rchased at any paint store.

Q. Will you please give me the rmula for Government whitewash a good durable outside whitesh?

E. D., Red Bud, Ill.

A. Mix one-half bushel lime in ling water and keep covered to p the steam in. Stir until it ins to cool to make sure that the lime is combined with as much water as it will take. Add water until desired consistency of paste is reached and then strain to remove lumps. Add 15 pounds of salt dissolved in hot water. Boil three pounds rice to a paste and then stir in while the mixture is hot. Dissolve one pound clear glue in hot water and stir into it one-half pound Spanish whiting. Add this to the whitewash mixture and stir thoroughly. Allow to stand for two or three days. Thin with boiling water to the consistency and apply while hot.

A white cement paint will give the same results as white wash.

Q. What can I do to whiten the rock trimming on an old house we bought? My husband says it is sandstone and a wire brush would wear it down too much. I don't want to paint them. Those in the rear are dirty and stained.

MRS. J. B. K.

East St. Louis.

A. Hardware stores sell a stone to be used for this purpose. Cleaning powder and a scrubbing brush should also work very well.

Q. Kindly give me information regarding these two problems. Our rooms are finished with plaster board and I would like to know how we can remove all the old wall paper. We also want to resurface our basement walls and would like to know what finish and how much of the material to use.

R. E. A., East St. Louis.

A. The paper can be removed by wetting it with a sponge. This of course will wet the plaster board and it will be necessary to let it dry out thoroughly before applying a new finish. If your foundation walls are stone you can fur and then plaster them for a smooth finish. If the wall is of concrete you can paint it with cement paint which can be had in any color. It is not possible to give the amount of material required without knowing the dimensions.

Q. Is the climate in St. Louis suitable for a house of reinforced concrete? Or would such a house erected in St. Louis be damp and its outside walls subject to cracks and early deterioration? E. W.

A. Concrete houses with re-inforced concrete walls are suitable for the climate here. There are examples of concrete houses in St. Louis erected 25 years ago and still in excellent condition. These are not damp nor do they show signs of deterioration.

PLANTS FOR SHADE

Many persons have tried to grow fine flowers year after year only to find that their gardens are too shaded by buildings or trees to permit colorful blooms. For them the answer is a number of shrubs and perennial flowers that thrive in cool, shaded places.

Pansies thrive in shaded spots, as do Forget-me-nots. Hepatica and Canada phlox are two wild flowers that feel at home in the shaded garden.

Suitable dwarf shrubs include Kalmia, azaleas, and rhododendrons which thrive in an acid soil rich in humus. Spirea bumalda, hills or snow hydrangea, and such native shrubs as flowering raspberry, maple-leafed viburnum, and witch-hazel will grow well in the shaded garden.

Perennials have interest because of their color and value as cut flowers. Peachleaf bellflower, Cohosh bugbane, and Ledebaur globeflower are dainty and attractive in shades of pink or cream white. The Regal lily and Siberian iris are two others that deserve a place.

GAME ROOM

Recreation-room decoration offers a wide opportunity for color and design display not suitable to other rooms of the home.

White walls or light tints are frequently favored as they form an attractive background for bright trim such as electric blue, spring green, lacquer red, with floors of terra cotta, gray, brown, or dark green.

Bright yellow walls bring an illusion of sunlight and with gay cretonne hangings and vividly hued furniture create a cheerful colorful room.

The variety of design and color possibilities for the decoration of these play rooms is practically unlimited. Some walls are painted in striking manner — one with a white picket fence around the bottom, was covered with garden scenes to simulate a long vista beyond. Another was painted to resemble a ship with railing around the sides and the blue and green waves in the distance, white clouds seemed to float against an azure sky. Flying fish and birds were seen in the distance. Deck furniture was used to sustain the illusion.

Family Enjoys Garden Living Room

A lovely garden sloping into the Detroit river is partly enclosed by a thick brick wall. At an advantageous point where the view is finest, the flowers loveliest, close to the swimming pool and not too far from the boat house, and hedged in for privacy, is constructed a delightful out-of-doors living room.

The partly roofed terrace holds comfortable chairs and weather-withstanding tables. Built in the brick wall is a large fireplace. The blazing log fire is welcome on cool summer evenings, but best of all is the opportunity it affords for picnic suppers. Steaks, hamburgers, and bacon broiled over the fire, potatoes baked in the embers and coffee made over this camp fire de luxe satisfy ravenous appetites and add zest to the wholesome food.

A refreshing dip in the pool, or swim in the river, followed by a delicious out-of-door meal, contributes pleasure and relaxation to family and guests.

ATTIC SPACE

If there is an attic space over the second floor that can be used for ventilating purposes, place a register in the ceiling of the hall, preferably over the stair, and build a wooden flue over the opening about three feet high. This will assist the draft and make the ventilation more positive.

Wall plaster on narrow stairways is frequently damaged by the moving of furniture. Wallboard applied as a wainscoting may be made decorative, is economical, and offers adequate protection against rough treatment of surfaces.

CLERMONT LANE SITE BOUGHT FOR RESIDENCE

Dr. Franklin E. Walton Buys Acre of Ground in Ladue Road Development.

Lot 25 in Clermont Lane, a high-class residential development at the southwest corner of Warson and Ladue roads, has been acquired by Dr. Franklin E. Walton. Plans are being drawn for a handsome residence for the site comprising approximately an acre of ground.

Cornet & Zeibig handled the transaction, representing the seller, Olin M. Attebery, first vice-president of the Federal Reserve Bank. Mary Potter Love, Inc., represented the purchaser in the negotiations.

The lot is opposite the residences of Kenneth H. Bitting and Meredith Jones. Others who have erected handsome residences in this development include R. A. Bagnell, Raymond Peters, N. S. Chouteau Walsh, H. P. Green, John A. Scudder, Ira E. Wright Jr. and George Lee Camp and Henry T. Ferriss.

The comparatively new building of the Mary Institute at the northwest corner of Warson and Ladue roads is an attractive feature of this section.

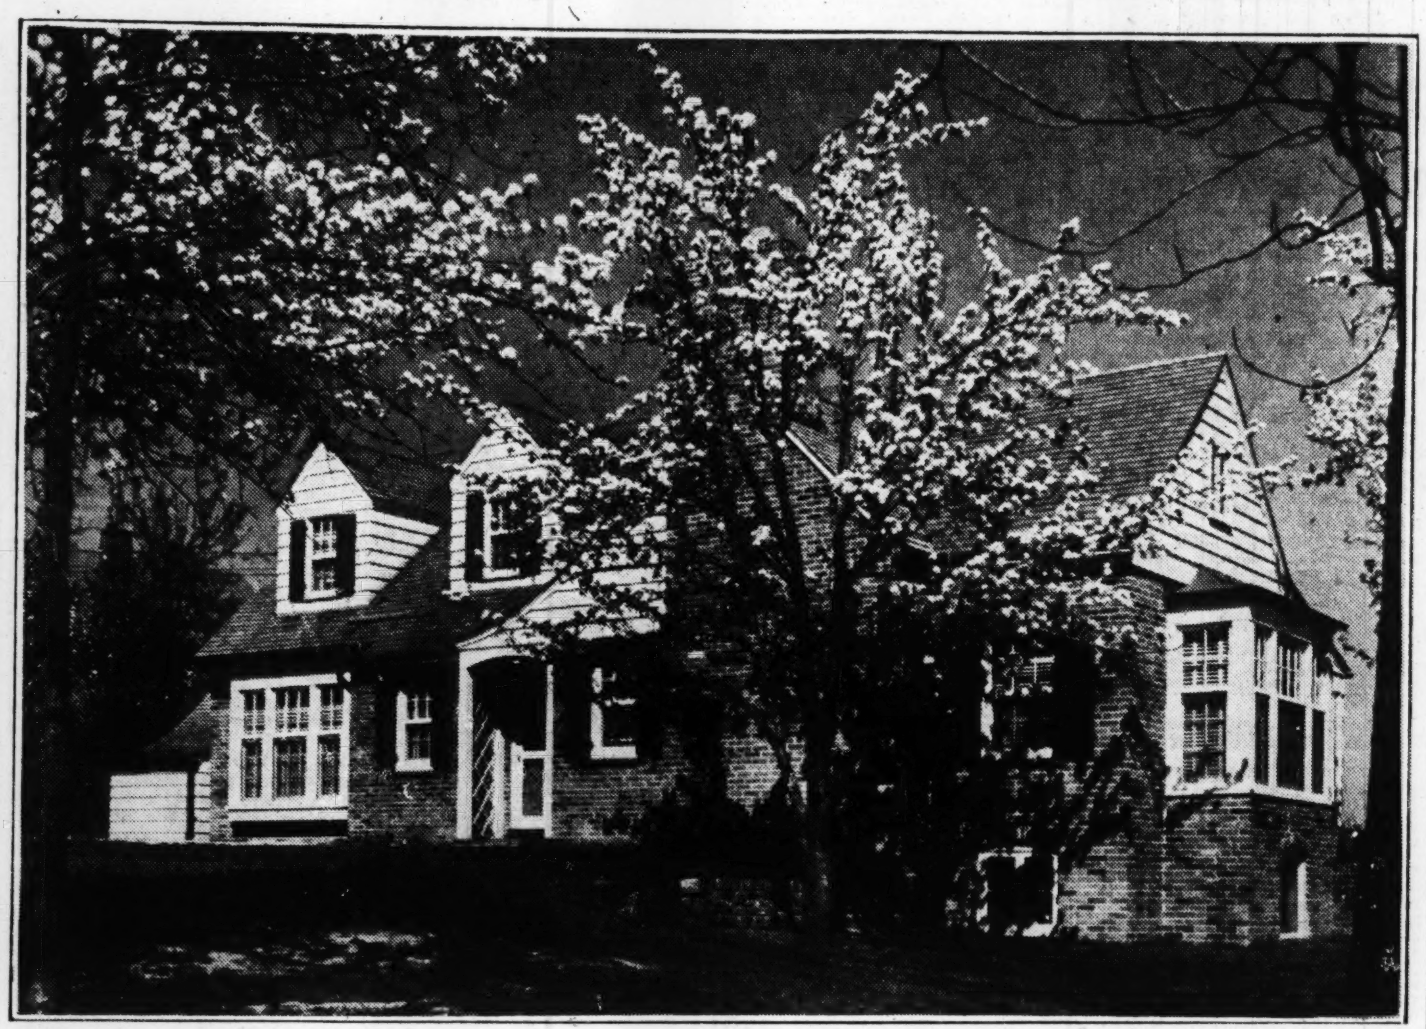
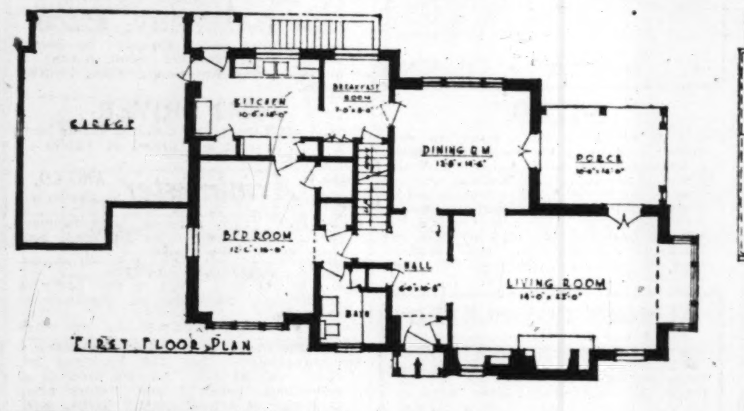
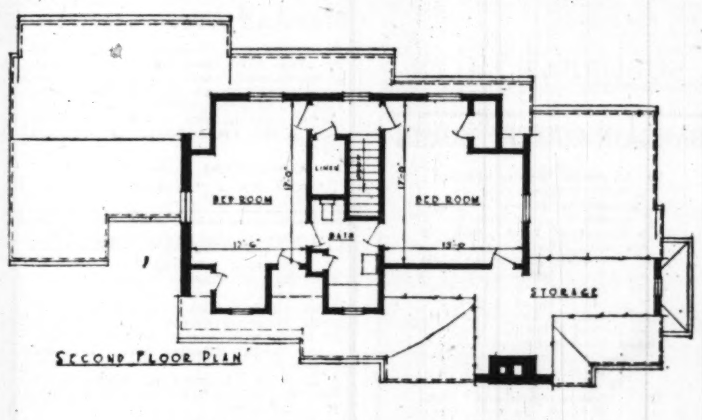
In the Informal Early American Tradition

Fine Old Hand-Made Brick Used in This Charming Story-and-a-Half House Which Has a Vista From Every Window.



R. Paul Buchmueller, Architect. Member St. Louis Chapter American Institute of Architects—Photographs by Alexander Piaget Studio.





THERE is more to planning and building a house than meets the eye. Given an architect with magination and ideas and clients ho are flexible in their wants one as a combination which gives ractically perfect results.

This is certainly true of the house hown here, set far back from the oad with a screen of willows in ront and pear trees all about it. he trees almost hide this charm- g story and a half house which llows the informal lines of Early merican Colonial and is inclined ramble at bit. With its fine old andmade bricks, its white gables, reen shutters and silvery weathered shingles the house has uiet dignity and infinite charm nd is a perfect expression of the ersonalities of its owners.

Certainly the terrain was such hat would give impetus to the maginations of architect and lients; to the architect because it meant working out a problem and o the owners because it meant all manner of landscaping possibilities. he plot was an irregular shaped iece of land with a shallow saucer- ke depression in the foreground, a light rise and level ground at the ack for a distance of some 250 eet. A tall house, placed here, might have looked forlorn, and it as for this reason that the arch- ct suggested the story and a half hich, with its attached garage, ould more or less tie into the ndscape.

WHILE the house was planned to give complete privacy to all members of the family, lacing it was dictated by the loca- on of the trees on the property. s it stands now every window has vista. The bay in the living room mmands a grove of trees at some stance. In the spring it frames ossoming pears. The downstairs droom window opens on a screen f shrubs. The second floor bed- oms overlook a stretch of meadow nd trees.

The interior is definitely Early merican. The fireplace wall in e living room is paneled with notty pine. A built-in bookshelf, nd a window seat with small win- w above it are included in this all. The fireplace is faced with d handmade bricks. A Dutch en at the side is used to store rewood. A brass plate, a pair of rought iron candelabla and two oky blue cloisonne jars lend a easing contrast to the plain man- shelf. The paneling and fluted od trim in this room have been ined and waxed a rich cinnamon de. A simple decorative cornice eats this same shade. Large oked rugs of Early American de- n in mellow browns, reds, black d tan show just enough of the weled floor of random-width oak nking which has also been ined and waxed.

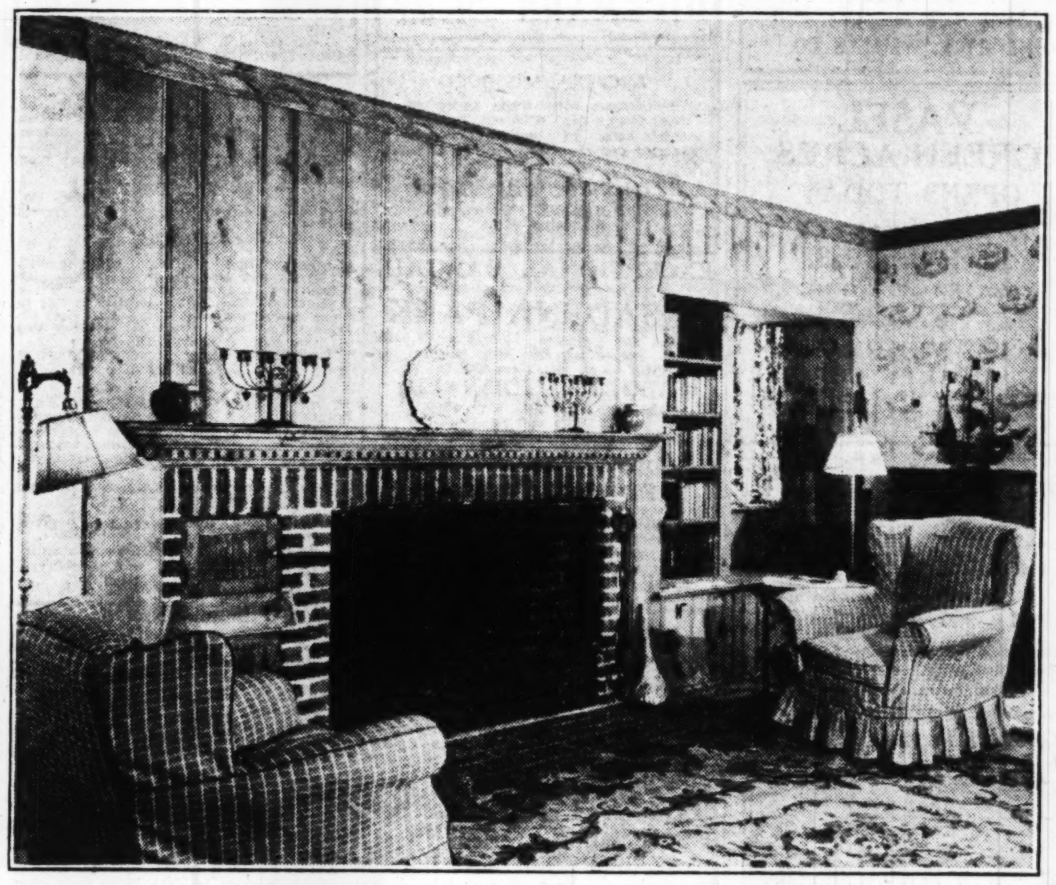
The entrance to the house is un- trusive under a continuing gable clapboard siding. The recessed or has its upper half glazed. A at shallow storage closet for mes and bridge tables and a est closet have been placed to vantage in the entrance hall. ere is no waste space in con- tion with the stairway. It is ictly utilitarian with fluted newel d three turned balusters.

Dining room, kitchen, breakfast om and a screened, flagged porch cupy the garden side of the use. The porch, which is acces- le from the dining room and ing room adds much to comfort- le summer living and entertain- g.

TWO bedrooms and bath occupy the second floor. A window lights the landing on the second floor and provides light for the large linen and storage closet there. A storage space with small window is accessible from one bedroom.

The garage is of clapboard siding with a low swung roof line which gives stability and balance to the house. It is attached to the house and the entrance is through the kitchen. Both baths are complete with tub and shower. Linoleum has been used as wainscoting and floor covering. The first floor bathroom is done with canary yellow walls with black and warm rust trim which is repeated in the floor. The second floor bath is done with mottled gray and cream linoleum, wainscoting and floor. The wood trim has been painted a French gray and the dark blue trim is repeated in shower and window curtains.

The fluted Colonial wood trim, painted off white, is used througout. All finish hardware and lighting fixtures are in the Colonial tradition with small brass doorknobs and wrought iron exposed hinges on the cabinets in the living room. The foundation is of concrete masonry units. The construction is brick with cinder block backing and clapboard in dormers and gables. The house is completely insulated and is heated by a winter air conditioning warm air system. It was built for Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Foulis and designed by R. Paul Buchmueller, member of the St. Louis chapter, American Institute of Architects.



Paneled fireplace wall includes window and book nook.

QUESTIONS BEFORE THE HOUSE

Q. Have just bought new bunga- w with interlocking shingle roof. elting snow and rains always ng wet ceilings and side wall. so water in fruit cellar and coal n, which are under the front rch. Please state reason and also medy. Can the water spots be overed without painting? Also places paint is peeling off. Is is due to cheap paint? Will the int have to be burned off before painting?

NEW HOME OWNER.

A. Have the flashings inspected d repaired if necessary, as the ter may be seeping in under the ngles. The water in the fruit llar and coal bin may be coming rough the porch floor. If it is ming through the foundation, it y be necessary to dig a trench the outside from the grade line the footing and plaster with one- lf inch plaster made of one part ment and three parts of sand. ater spots cannot be removed om plaster. Paint may peel for number of reasons. Insufficient zing is one of them. Sandpaper e spots until they are smooth be- re repainting. Be sure to use a e of some kind which may be rchased at any paint store.

Q. Will you please give me the rmula for Government whitewash a good durable outside white- sh?

E. D., Red Bud, Ill.

A. Mix one-half bushel lime in iling water and keep covered to p the steam in. Stir until it ins to cool to make sure that the lime is combined with as much water as it will take. Add water until desired consistency of paste is reached and then strain to remove lumps. Add 15 pounds of salt dissolved in hot water. Boil three pounds rice to a paste and then stir in while the mixture is hot. Dissolve one pound clear glue in hot water and stir into it one-half pound Spanish whiting. Add this to the whitewash mixture and stir thoroughly. Allow to stand for two or three days. Thin with boiling water to the consistency and apply while hot.

A white cement paint will give the same results as white wash.

Q. What can I do to whiten the rock trimming on an old house we bought? My husband says it is sandstone and a wire brush would wear it down too much. I don't want to paint them. Those in the rear are dirty and stained.

MRS. J. B. K.
East St. Louis.

A. Hardware stores sell a stone to be used for this purpose. Cleaning powder and a scrubbing brush should also work very well.

Q. Kindly give me information regarding these two problems. Our rooms are finished with plaster board and I would like to know how we can remove all the old wall paper. We also want to resurface our basement walls and would like to know what finish and how much of the material to use.

R. E. A., East St. Louis.

A. The paper can be removed by wetting it with a sponge. This of course will wet the plaster board and it will be necessary to let it dry out thoroughly before applying a new finish. If your foundation walls are stone you can fur and then plaster them for a smooth finish. If the wall is of concrete you can paint it with cement paint which can be had in any color. It is not possible to give the amount of material required without knowing the dimensions.

Q. Is the climate in St. Louis suitable for a house of reinforced concrete? Or would such a house erected in St. Louis be damp and its outside walls subject to cracks and early deterioration? E. W.

A. Concrete houses with re-inforced concrete walls are suitable for the climate here. There are examples of concrete houses in St. Louis erected 25 years ago and still in excellent condition. These are not damp nor do they show signs of deterioration.

PLANTS FOR SHADE

Many persons have tried to grow fine flowers year after year only to find that their gardens are too shaded by buildings or trees to permit colorful blooms. For them the answer is a number of shrubs and perennial flowers that thrive in cool, shaded places.

Pansies thrive in shaded spots, as do Forget-me-nots, Hepatica and Canada phlox are two wild flowers that feel at home in the shaded garden.

Suitable dwarf shrubs include Kalmia, azaleas, and rhododendrons which thrive in an acid soil rich in humus. Spirea bumalda, hills or snow hydrangea, and such native shrubs as flowering raspberry, maple-leafed viburnum, and witch-hazel will grow well in the shaded garden.

Perennials have interest because of their color and value as cut flowers. Peachleaf bellflower, Cohosh bugbane, and Ledebaur globeflower are dainty and attractive in shades of pink or cream white. The Regal lily and Siberian iris are two others that deserve a place.

GAME ROOM

Recreation-room decoration offers a wide opportunity for color and design display not suitable to other rooms of the home.

White walls or light tints are frequently favored as they form an attractive background for bright trim such as electric blue, spring green, lacquer red, with floors of terra cotta, gray, brown, or dark green.

Bright yellow walls bring an illusion of sunlight and with gay cretonne hangings and vividly hued furniture create a cheerful colorful room.

The variety of design and color possibilities for the decoration of these play rooms is practically unlimited. Some walls are painted in striking manner—one with a white picket fence around the bottom, was covered with garden scenes to simulate a long vista beyond. Another was painted to resemble a ship with railing around the sides and the blue and green waves in the distance, white clouds seemed to float against an azure sky. Flying fish and birds were seen in the distance. Deck furniture was used to sustain the illusion.

Family Enjoys Garden Living Room

A lovely garden sloping into the Detroit river is partly enclosed by a thick brick wall. At an advantageous point where the view is finest, the flowers loveliest, close to the swimming pool and not too far from the boat house, and hedged in for privacy, is constructed a delightful out-of-doors living room.

The partly roofed terrace holds comfortable chairs and weather-withstanding tables. Built in the brick wall is a large fireplace. The blazing log fire is welcome on cool summer evenings, but best of all is the opportunity it affords for picnic suppers. Steaks, hamburgers, and bacon broiled over the fire, potatoes baked in the embers and coffee made over this camp fire de luxe satisfy ravenous appetites and add zest to the wholesome food.

A refreshing dip in the pool, or swim in the river, followed by a delicious out-of-door meal, contributes pleasure and relaxation to family and guests.

ATTIC SPACE

If there is an attic space over the second floor that can be used for ventilating purposes, place a register in the ceiling of the hall, preferably over the stair, and build a wooden flue over the opening about three feet high. This will assist the draft and make the ventilation more positive.

Wall plaster on narrow stairways is frequently damaged by the moving of furniture. Wallboard applied as a wainscoting may be made decorative, is economical, and offers adequate protection against rough treatment of surfaces.

CARD OF THANKS

WE WISH to express our sincere appreciation for the kindness and sympathy extended us during our hour of bereavement in the loss of my dear wife and our dear mother, Elizabeth Wuest. We wish to especially thank Judge John W. Calhoun for his comforting words and the beautiful eulogy given, the Rev. Father Sommer, the pallbearers and the Wood Rebekah Lodge No. 530, I. O. O. F. for their services, the Kriehauser funeral directors for their thoughtful and efficient service, and for the consoling remembrances expressed through the many beautiful floral offerings.
GUSTAV P. WUEST AND CHILDREN

SINCERE THANKS are extended to the many friends who aided with expression of sympathy in our sad bereavement in the passing on of our dear husband and father.
MRS. MYRA WAGNER AND CHILDREN.

IN MEMORIAM

ANDERSON, BERENICE—In loving remembrance of our dear daughter and sister, Berenice, whom God called to her heavenly home, May 14, 1930:

When the sun shines bright as morning
And the flowers are wet with dew,
It is then we think, my darling,
Is the time we most miss you.
But when the night has settled down
And lamps are all aglow,
We miss you more than tongue can tell;
'Tis then me miss you so.
But never will there be an hour
with all this earthly host,
That we can say, our darling girl,
We did not miss you most.

Remembered forever by MOTHER, FATHER, BROTHER AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

BUSCH, MARGARET ELIZABETH—In loving memory of our dear mother, who departed this life nine years ago, May 20, 1928:

What is home without a mother?
All things this world may send,
When we lost our dear mother,
We lost our dearest friend.

Anniversary mass, May 21, 7:45 a. m., at Assumption Church.
Sadly missed by
HER CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

HAUS, JOHN—Who passed away May 14, 1935. Sadly missed by WIFE AND CHILDREN.

KRUEGER, ADOLPH—Just a memory; sad and true, of one who thinks of you.
ANN.

POERTNER, EMELIE—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, who departed this life May 17, 1935.

There is someone who misses you sadly
And finds the time long since you went.
There is someone who thinks of you always
And tries to be brave and content.
Surrounded by friends we are lonesome,
In the midst of our joys we are blue;
With smiles on our face
We have heartaches;
Longing, dear one, for you;
God alone knows how we miss you
In our hearts, so lonesome and blue.

Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND SON.

RADIO SERVICE

RADIO SERVICING

Exploding the myths of "free service" calls, "free inspection," etc. No intelligent person believes anyone is giving anything of value away. If a service man makes 3 or 4 unsuccessful free service calls he must certainly get the cost of those calls from Mr. Easy Customer who does give him the job. The word free as used in connection with free service is but a subterfuge. It is like the traveling salesman's overcoat, you pay for it whether you know it or not.

There are legitimate ways of getting business besides baiting the hook with a free worm, usually the same thing happens to the fish that happens to the customer. It is often painful to both the fish and the customer. Indeed there is a certain similarity between the fish and the customer who goes after the free bait. Namely sucker.

Smart business people carry adequate insurance. Your best insurance covering radio service is to be sure to call a competent radio engineer or company who has the ability, equipment and reputation to be able to do your work right and such a man or concern will not offer this service free.

SALESMEN WANTED

MEN

Let me set you up in a profitable business of your own, backed by a national institution with powerful resources.

During the past six weeks I have set a number of men up in business for themselves in St. Louis and still have a few opportunities left.

If on a personal interview you can satisfy me that you are honest, reliable and trustworthy and really have a desire to succeed, willing to study and are teachable, you may be the very man I am looking for.

Our business is very profitable. Many of our associates earn as much as $50.00 in a single day and after they become experienced handling our business receive a sizeable monthly income not regulated by seasons, as ours is a year around business.

Selling experience not necessary as, if you are selected, you are thoroughly trained at no expense to you. Some of our most successful associates never sold anything before joining us. We stand all expenses of business, training you completely in our system, and in addition to giving you merchandise on open account, carry all your time payment paper. You do not invest one cent with us. We finance everything. Our business is depression proof, as same has increased constantly throughout the past six years.

With 1937 our biggest year to date, we have thousands of satisfied customers in this territory and are considered one of the country's outstanding organizations. There are no strings connected with this offer and if you can meet the above requirements, you will be granted a personal, confidential interview which will quickly determine our mutual interests. Apply Monday between 9:15 a. m. and 1 p. m., at Room 512, Paul Brown Bldg., Ninth and Olive streets.

NEW FARM PROGRAM 'WITHOUT PAYMENTS'

Parity Price and Supply Stabilization, "If It Works Perfectly."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Farm leaders said today they would offer Congress a broad new Federal farm program early next week that would eliminate farm benefit payments if it operated as expected.

"The Government wouldn't have to pay a cent to farmers if this plan works perfectly," Edward S. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said.

He explained the proposed "Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1937" was shaped to give farmers a "parity price" and stabilize supplies so this price would be maintained.

Secretary Wallace, H. R. Tolley, A A A chief, and numerous other administration leaders met with O'Neal and other farm organization representatives for several hours today.

"They are enthusiastic about the new plan," O'Neal told reporters after Wallace and Tolley said "O'Neal would do all the talking."

O'Neal said the plan combined features of the "old triple-A program and the ever-normal granary." He said details would be made public when the farm leaders here "ironed out some minor differences of opinion on details."

It was learned the legislative draft would establish flexible price and supply levels for wheat, corn, cotton, tobacco and other major commodities. Farmers would receive benefit payments only when market prices fell below this level.

The amount of loans granted to farmers on stored supplies also would vary, decreasing as stored surpluses expanded.

Leaders at the conferences said a sectional dispute had arisen about whether cotton growers should be assured a "parity price" on their entire crop or merely on cotton used in this country. Normally about half the cotton crop is exported.

Cotton spokesmen argued that, if they were not assured the same treatment as corn, wheat and other commodity farmers, the cotton belt would plant these products and compete with other sections.

O'Neal expressed confidence the sectional groups would "get together and have this thing ready by Monday."

He said farmers who did not cooperate would face a "penalty tax" on products produced in excess of their quota.

NEW SAN FRANCISCO MINT DEDICATED BY MRS. ROSS

Building Is Burglar Proof But Not Built to Withstand War-Time Attacks.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15. — A $1,000,000 fireproof, earthquake-proof, and robbery-proof mint was dedicated here today.

The five-story building overlooks the central business district from a rocky knoll, and soon will replace the downtown mint as the Government's West Coast coinage center.

Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, director of all the nation's mints, made the dedicatory address.

The mint has every known device to protect it from robbers, but is not constructed to withstand a war-time attack.

WASHINGTON RECALLS GASSAWAY'S STUNTS

Former Cowboy Congressman Always Tried to Be Different, Dead at 51.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Capitol Hill heard with sadness today that the former cowboy Congressman, Percy L. Gassaway, was dead.

Singularly, the congressional friends of the picturesque Oklahoman—and he had dozens of them—asked one another the same question—a subject that Gassaway often talked about:

"How did he die?"

With a political touch—"Old Gas," as he called himself—would often tell his friends in Washington that the way he wanted to go was riding the range against a Western sunset. But he did not die that way.

He was stricken at 8 a. m. today in his ranch home near Coalgate, Ok., and death came while an ambulance was taking him to the hospital at Ada. He was 51 years old.

Gassaway had his own ideas about getting before the public. He maintained to his intimate friends that his horseback riding and other stunts about the capital were the best method of bringing to attention measures he advocated, or measures he opposed.

Tried to Be Different.

"There are 434 Congressmen up here besides me," he'd say, "why, if I didn't shoot off a few fireworks I could holler all year and nobody would hear me."

The next day he stopped on the steps of the Capitol and went through the motions of frying two eggs in Washington's summer sun.

Asked what he was trying to prove, he replied he sought to persuade Congress to adjourn early by graphically illustrating how hot it could get in the capital.

He was often unpredictable.

At the conclusion of a nationwide radio address, he suddenly turned to a studio piano, sat down at the keys and burst into a rousing cowboy song.

There was consistency, however, in the oral tributes to him today.

"His heart," they said, "was as big as his cowboy hat."

Reputation as Fighter.

Son of a circuit rider, Gassaway was forced in his trips from town to town to fight off the local bullies. He took on a reputation as a fighter and his stories of "cleaning out" saloons added spirit to many campaign talks.

Oklahoma liked Gassaway's braggadocio and before going to Washington, he won 18 straight elections for arious offices.

Gassaway often ridiculed in picturesque language Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana, calling him a "political tomtit."

He was a Circuit Judge at the time of his election to Congress and his last act in this office was typical.

When a jury could not agree in a knifing case, Gassaway declared the defendant could never be convicted by a jury and therefore was acquitted.

Then he turned to the defendant and said:

"I have no doubt you have the knife you used in your pocket right now. I'd like to have it for a souvenir. Fork it over."

The defendant "forked over" the knife.

SALVATION ARMY MANAGER RESISTS HOLDUP, SEIZES MAN

Boakie Henderickson Disarms Former Assistant, Catches Him in Chase; Saves $75.

Boakie Henderickson, manager of the Salvation Army in East St. Louis, disarmed and captured a former worker for the organization, who held him up yesterday as he started to take $75 in Salvation Army funds to St. Louis. Turned over to police, the man said he was George Bowen of Detroit.

Bowen approached Henderickson outside Salvation Army headquarters at 428 East Broadway at 7 a. m., obtained his permission to ride with him to East St. Louis and then drew a revolver, ordering him to drive out of the city on State Route 13, Henderickson related. After proceeding several blocks, Henderickson continued, he grabbed the weapon from Bowen, who jumped out and ran. He pursued and overtook Bowen and with the aid of two other men who had joined in the chase overpowered him.

FUNERAL OF E. H. SCHMIDT

Services for Retired Lithographer Tomorrow in Ferguson.

The funeral of Edward H. Schmidt, retired lithographer, who died Friday of infirmities when visiting relatives in Cairo, Ill., will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at his home, 37 North Clark avenue, Ferguson, where he had lived for 50 years. Burial will take place in Memorial Park Cemetery.

Mr. Schmidt was 80 years old and had been an employe of the Woodward & Tiernan Printing Co., 46 years. Two years ago he and Mrs. Schmidt celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Besides his wife, he is survived by two sons, Edward R. and Dr. C. Rivers Schmidt, and two daughters, Mrs. R. E. Bethel and Mrs. Clarence L. Keaton.

Police have been asked to search for Estelle Severns, 16 years old, who disappeared Monday after she left her home, 2849 Arlington avenue, for Cote Brilliante Public School. She did not reach the school.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Severns, told police that she had with her only carfare home.

FOUR KILLED IN AUTO HIT BY TRAIN IN OHI

Motner and Three Childre Are Victims—Two Others in Family Injured.

By the Associated Press.

HAMILTON, O., May 15.—Mrs. Mary Belle Campbell, 54 years old, and three of her children were killed, and two other children critically injured late today in an automobile-train collision at a crossing, 12 miles northwest of here.

The dead are Lena Campbell, 18, driver of the Campbell automobile; Paul Campbell, 12, and Martha Campbell, 16.

The injured were Martha's twin, Mary Campbell, and Vinie Campbell, 8. Physicians said both suffered skull fractures and their condition was critical.

Sheriff Carl Walke said the family was en route from its Scipio (Ind.) home to attend church services at Hamilton, when their car was struck by a Chesapeake & Ohio passenger train.

Walke said he was told the family had taken the father, Marion Campbell, 61, a watchman, to work and were proceeding to Hamilton.

Four other daughters and a son survive.

Four Pupils Killed on Way to Extra Saturday Classes.

MILTON, Vt., May 15.—Five persons, four of them school children, were killed today when an automobile, usually idle during the Saturday school holiday, was struck by the Montrealer, Washington-to-Montreal express train, at a grade crossing two miles south of Milton.

An extra Saturday school session had been arranged to make up a day lost by Miss Joan Paul, teacher of the Milton Plains district school, because of illness.

The dead: John C. Vasseur, 37, driver; Earl Fuller, 14; Earl Murray, 8; Rena La Rochelle, 11, and her brother, Howard, 13, all of Milton.

Vasseur on regular school days drove only two of the children to school. Today, however, it was raining and he picked up two of the others enroute.

HAWAII SUGAR MEN CHARGED WITH VIOLATING WAGNER AC

Filipino Workers Said to Have Been Discharged and Evicted for Union Activities.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, May 15.—A complaint charging the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' Association with numerous violations of the Wagner Act was filed here today with the National Labor Relations Board by Edward Berman, labor organizer.

Berman charged 24 Filipinos were discharged and evicted from their homes for union activities from the Puunene Plantation on the Island of Maui, where an estimated 1200 Filipino sugar workers are on strike.

The complaint named Dick Hyland, former Stanford University all-American football player, as a sugar association "labor spy."

E. J. Eagen, Labor Relations Board regional director, said he would investigate.

USED CARS & TRUCKS R&G RENEWED GUARANTEED ALL MAKES

Exclusive Ford Dealers' R & G Plan Now Makes It SAFE to BUY a Used Car

When you buy an R & G used car or truck, your Ford Dealer guarantees you "Double" protection—a statement of the car's actual condition in writing—his promise to refund your money 100% if you're not 100% satisfied, as outlined in the R & G Certificate.

R & G cars are renewed to specifications laid down by the Ford factory and are fully guaranteed in writing on a money back basis. Yet the protection costs you no more,—in fact you can save money by buying the bargains offered by Ford Dealers.

Diesel Engine Use On Railroads Topic At Meeting of S. A. E.

Automotive Engineers Hear Discussion of Progress in Adaptation of Principle.

The St. Louis section of the Society of Automotive Engineers met at the Mayfair Hotel Thursday evening with more than 100 automotive, railroad and power engineers from St. Louis, Kansas City and points as far distant as Mobile, Ala., attending.

A. R. Walker, electrical engineer of equipment for the Illinois Central Railroad, discussing "Diesel Power on Railroads," pointed out the basic economic necessity for use of the Diesel engine as a prime mover for railroad heavy duty switching and high speed main line operation. The question of smoke abatement around large terminals also is a factor in motive power, especially for switching purposes.

The gasoline engine was not well suited for locomotive service, he said, as fuel was rather expensive and hazardous to handle; the engines, developed for other purposes, would not stand up long under the severe conditions imposed by locomotive engine service, and the gasoline engine had been developed largely for automobile and airplane use and not in the larger sizes required for locomotives.

Diesel Progress.

"By this time," Walker said, "a great deal of improvement had been made over the first commercial Diesel engine built in St. Louis in 1898. Solid injection, higher speed and better materials had reduced the weight per horsepower to the point where some thought it possible to install a Diesel on a locomotive. Today several hundred Diesel engines supply power for traction purposes on locomotives and cars. They range in size from 120 to 2000 horsepower and operate at speeds of 550 to 1250 R.P.M. They have almost entirely supplanted the gas engine for new equipment, and are being used to replace gas engines on old equipment."

Walker said the thermal efficiency of a Diesel was four to five times that of a steam locomotive. Full engine output may be made available at low train speeds, resulting in high rates of acceleration. The 16-cylinder 1200 horsepower engine on the "Green Diamond," at full speed (750 R.P.M.) and full load, must measure 12,000 charges of fuel, each weighing a little less than 67 millionths of a pound and inject each charge into a cylinder containing air at a pressure of 450 to 500 pounds, in 67 ten-thousandths of a second.

Long Engine Service.

A Diesel in main line service will make 150,000 to 275,000 miles per year and should run 1,000,000 miles before the shaft is removed. In switching service, it must operate in many cases 22 or 23 hours out of each 24 with only one eight-hour shift off per month. Compare this with the performance of the average automobile engine.

The meeting was conducted by T. B. Rendel, director of the motor testing laboratory of Shell Petroleum Corporation, and chairman of the St. Louis section of S. A. E.

Therapeutic Lamps Used for Final Drying Of Paint on Autos

Therapeutic heat lamps, of the type used in athletic training rooms and doctors' offices, are used in a drying device developed by the Plymouth Division of the Chrysler Corporation for treating cars coming off the final assembly line to assure a uniform paint finish.

The lights are installed in a separate "hot house" at the end of the Plymouth assembly line. There, the heat bulbs are mounted on flexible standards, designed to focus the beams on any contour of a car's top or sides.

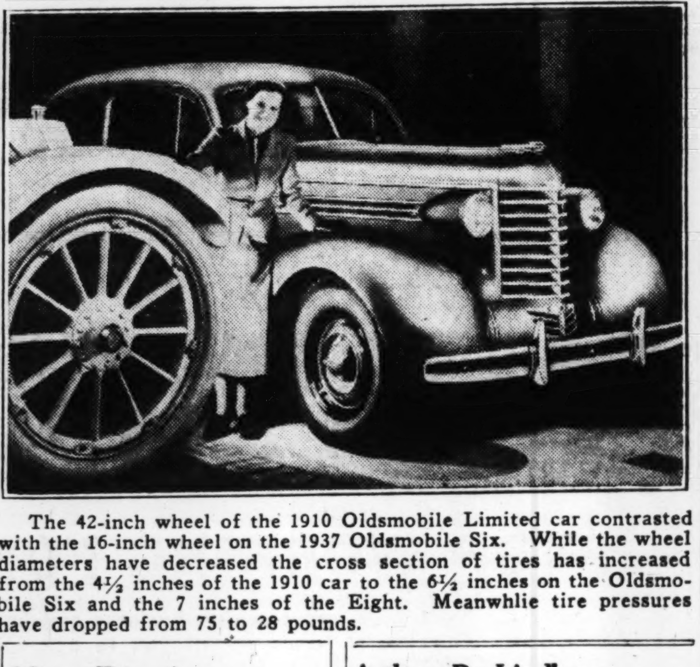
Two banks of lights, set in reflectors resembling the photoflood banks on the Hollywood movie lots, make up each drying unit. But, unlike the movie lights, they are designed to throw heat, rather than light. The twin banks contain 20 therapeutic bulbs of 260 watts each.

A single unit of this type is capable of radiating heat up to 250 degrees, the same heat intensity employed in the body plant baking ovens. In the "hot house" at the final assembly line, 25 minutes under the lamps is the usual "treatment."

The convenience and flexibility of therapeutic lights led to their adoption by the auto industry, as supplementary paint-drying apparatus. The system gives the temperature control demanded by Plymouth engineers to harden the finish properly and bring out the luster.

This method also permits individual baking of certain portions of the surface when special color combinations are ordered at extra cost. Thus it becomes unnecessary to return an entire body through the big baking ovens, to harden a small area painted or striped an individual shade.

Contrast in Wheel Sizes



The 42-inch wheel of the 1910 Oldsmobile Limited car contrasted with the 16-inch wheel on the 1937 Oldsmobile Six. While the wheel diameters have decreased the cross section of tires has increased from the 4½ inches of the 1910 car to the 6½ inches on the Oldsmobile Six and the 7 inches of the Eight. Meanwhlie tire pressures have dropped from 75 to 28 pounds.

F. J. Ebbesmeyer.

The appointment of a Hudson and Terraplane dealer of the Barnes & Ebbesmeyer Co., 6165 Natural Bridge road, Pine Lawn, is announced by W. S. Milton, zone manager here for the Hudson Motor Car Co., of Detroit.

The firm consists of R. T. Barnes and Frank J. Ebbesmeyer.

It has a complete line of the new Hudson and Terraplane cars on display, as well as a stock of parts to care for service.

It also has installed the necesary machinery and other equipment for serving Hudson and Terraplane cars.

Salesmanagers' Bureau of Automotive Dealer Group Hold Meeting

A meeting and dinner, held at the Kingsway Hotel Tuesday night by the Salesmanagers' Bureau of the Greater St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, was attended by more than 45 members. It was the first meeting of the year with the new officers presiding.

C. C. Spiegelhalter, president, was toastmaster; George Gross, formerly connected with the Federal Government, gave an interesting talk on his experiences in the Government service.

Thoroughbred Scotty Pups Scarce; Rixman Finds Five in St. Louis

Ray Rixman of Ray Rixman, Inc., Ferguson, is having difficulties in finding 50 thoroughbred registered Scotty pups for a display which he plans to open today and continue for a month.

"We have hunted everywhere, and have had the co-operation of officers of the Scotty Club and other organizations," Rixman said yesterday, "but thus far have been able to locate only five thoroughbred registered Scotties in St. Louis and four elsewhere. We expect to be able to show these nine this Sunday, and eventually to assemble the other 41."

Motor-Driven Fire Engines.

According to estimates, there are 20,000 motor-driven fire engines in service in the United States.

Arthur R. Lindburg To Be Honored as Studebaker Distributer

Arthur R. Lindburg, Inc., has received word from the Studebaker Corporation at South Bend, Ind., that it will soon receive an award from the corporation in the form of a bronze plaque in recognition of 10 years of service as a Studebaker distributor.

Presentation of the plaque will be made by C. H. Monahan, regional manager, Chicago, at the Arthur R. Lindburg, Inc., showrooms.

When informed of the award today, Arthur R. Lindburg expressed his appreciation of this recognition of his services.

"In the past year Studebaker sales in St. Louis have increased substantially, as has been the case nationally," Lindburg said.

Sales of 11,573 Studebaker passenger cars and trucks in April were the largest in eight years, exceeding even those in April, 1929, according to Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Corporation.

"A substantial share in the increased volume is due to truck sales," said Hoffman. "We are now selling more trucks than ever before in Studebaker history."

Custom Designs Seen in Salon Display of Cadillac, La Salle Cars

A salon display of 15 different body styles of Cadillac and La Salle cars is being held by the Oliver Cadillac Co., 4100 Laclede avenue, and will be open today and daily until May 26.

Guy W. Oliver, president of the firm, which is the Cadillac and La Salle distributor, said that the salon featured special custom creations by the art and color section of General Motors Corporation in collaboration with Fleetwood custom designers.

"The style and design experts responsible for these cars maintain constant touch with the trend of buying opinion. They are now styling the cars we will drive in 1940," he said.

The display is unusual in its range of coachwork types and the use of contrasting and harmonizing colors matched with blending upholstery fabrics.

Duplicating Cadillac's winter salon at Miami Beach, these 15 models represent a total investment of $75,500 and the display is one of the most costly of the kind held here.

Samuel B. Robertson Succeeds J. D. Tew As Goodrich President

Samuel B. Robertson, recently elected president of the B. F. Goodrich Co., entered the rubber business after a long carer as a railroad official. He succeeds James D. Tew, who announced his retirement from active business May 3 after 31 years with the rubber company.

Robertson was born in Milton, Mass., July 21, 1878, and was graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1899, entering railroad service shortly afterward.

After a period as railroad division engineer, he was promoted to superintendent in the Pennsylvania Railroad system, later becoming general superintendent of the central system of the Pennsylvania lines.

He joined Goodrich in 1919, and soon became the company's director of engineering.

In 1928, following the construction of the Pacific Godrich Rubber Co. plant in Los Angeles, Cal., which he supervised, he was elected vice-president and general manager there, continuing in that capacity until Sept. 9, 1931, when he returned to Akron as vice-president and general manager of the Goodrich tire division.

He was elected a director of the company in February, 1937, and made executive vice-president at the same time.

R. H. Ahlers Made Assistant General Manager for Pontiac

Appointment of Robert H. Ahlers to the newly-created post of assistant general manager of the Pontiac motor division of General Motors is announced by H. J. Klingler, general manager. Ahlers will report directly to P. H. MacGregor, general plant manager.

Ahlers goes to the Pontiac division from the general managership of the Delco brake division of the corporation, a position he has held since Jan. 1, 1936. Prior to that time, and since 1913, he had served in various capacities with the Delco products division of General Motors.

To Show Car Design Progress

Stock La Salle car which Ralph de Palma drove under A. A. A. supervision for 500 miles on the Indianapolis Speedway one day recently at an average speed higher than that he made with a racing car in the 1911 Memorial Day race on the track and faster than the 74.59 miles per hour with which Ray Harroun won the 1911 card. De Palma took the La Salle over the 500 miles to show the progress attained by stock car engineering.

Club for Motorists Supporting Fight for Auto License Fee Cut

The Western States Automobile Club, which has local headquarters in the Mid-City Building, Grand and Olive, is enlisting its members in the fight for passage of the bill in the Missouri Legislature to reduce automobile license fees.

R. M. Rodin, local manager for the Club, said yesterday that letters and telegrams from members were being forwarded to Jefferson City, urging support of the measure, Senate Bill No. 60. The club has 7000 members, he said.

Autos 80 Per Cent Steel.

The average 1937 model automobile contains about 80 per cent steel, which is a 50 per cent reduction in weight over the motor car of 20 years ago. This year's car contains about 60 per cent more steel than was used in last year's model.

Best April Passenger Business Reported By American Airlines

The best April passenger business in its history is reported by American Airlines, Inc., whoes president, C. R. Smith, says that 21,698 passengers were carried on American's system in the month just ended, as compared with 16,767 in April, 1936, an increase of 30 per cent.

Passenger miles flown showed an even greater percentage of increase, Smith says, with 8,982,029 miles flown in April, 1937, as against 6,138,806 miles a year ago, an increase of 46 per cent.

Several of American's eight routes reported phenomenal gains for the year to date. The Southern Transcontinental route New York-Los Angeles was up 78 per cent over a year ago in passenger business; its Boston-New York route was up 75 per cent; the Chicago-New York route was up 37 per cent and the Chicago-Cincinnati-Washington route was up 26 per cent.

THIS NEW YORK

By Lucius Beebe

NEW YORK, May 15.

THE death of Matt Winkle, who outlived the time in which he flourished most luxuriantly, puts a period to the era that was known as "collegiate" and awakens wan memories of "When It's Moonlight in Kalua," the Club de Vingt, the Plaza Grill and the Brooks four-button suit. Matt's saloon, at 381 Park, probably was the first speakeasy where a card from Cambridge, New Haven or Princeton was the standard identification, and where coon coats rolled and wallowed magnificently in the adjacent gutters throughout the early years of national lunacy. Winkle's stuff was, in retrospect, terrible beyond all opium dreams of essence of hellebore, but men drank it and lived, even though they never were quite the same again and their eyes crossed and their knees turned to putty while the glass was still at the face.

—o—o—

MATT'S HAD ITS OWN peculiar charm. There were the special hackmen who drove cavernous and noisesome taxis on the rank outside, and of whom Matt bragged that they never "rolled" the delightedly unconscious customers coming out of his place, no matter what they might commit in the way of outrage on drinkers from elsewhere. There was the quaint distinction of "Sunday Afternoon Tea" in the back room, where women were graciously admitted, although during the rest of the week they were rigidly banned. "A woman's place to drink is in the home," Matt said.

There were the frowsy tablecloths, which saw service for years, but which Matt always shook out and turned over with a great show of sanitary enthusiasm when a new customer came in. There was the frequent presence of Peter Arno, Sherman Hoyt, Stanley Sackett, Jimmy Farrell, the brothers La Montague, Cy Hume and Bus Bronson, Jim Williamson and the entire Hasty Pudding Club of Harvard, on their Christmas tour.

Matt's place vanished, with its college pennants, its interminable uproar and almost nightly raids in the middle '20s, or, rather, retired to a sort of anonymity in Lexington avenue, and now Matt himself is a part of New York's legend. Gaudy doings, my masters, and noisy nights.

The Starlight Roof of the Waldorf is open for the season and provides, as it has before, the best of theaters for the genius of Rene Black. Of all the town's waiter captains, none is more a scholar in the realm of dining than Black, whose bonhomous exterior conceals a profound and studious understanding of every aspect of the art of gastronomy. He can converse knowingly on the relationship of lighting to the conversational pitch that will result from it in restaurants, on the proper architectural proportions for the efficiency of hotel kitchens or on the psychology involved in selling particular dishes to women with the same professional fluency that he can detail the preparation of a souffle Rothschild or the proper service of a grand Musigny.

—o—o—

THE RANGE of Black's information includes such details as when and where August Escoffier first served the mousse of sole that bears his name and why it is essential in preparing crepes a l'orange to utilize the bitter flavor of the inner rind of the fruit so often neglected by careless dessert chefs, but he is essentially a festival fellow, laughing heartily at the witticisms of his guests and spreading an atmosphere of well being in whatever one of the Waldorf's restaurants he may at the moment be working. Educated in France as a Jesuit and a chemist, there is no part of the world in which Black has not studied culinary lore.

HIS FIRST RESTAURANT JOB in New York was at Martin's, in 1903. Soon thereafter he joined a party of gold prospectors in Nevada, and on his winnings founded a restaurant of his own in Pasadena. He worked in recent years at Sherry's, the Sherry Netherland, the Pierre and the St. Regis, and at the now vanished Central Park Casino, in the gilded '20s, he was manager, chef extraordinary, maitre d'hotel and major domo, all rolled in one. His genius for cuisine and his good humor especially recommended him to Lucius Boomer, and his official position at the Waldorf is manager of the Starlight Roof, of room and club service. His outside recreation is playing the violin, on which he takes regular lessons from a professional instructor. As a matter of fact, he is more of an active executive than the over-exploited Oscar.

Sometimes in the way of a revival of fancy evening waistcoats is making itself noted, especially with white summer dinner jackets. Trend finders trace the renaissance to Dr. Armand Hammer, of the Hammer Galleries. Among the other treasures of the celebrated Hammer collection of Russian royalists art treasures is a great assortment of splendid brocades and cloths of gold, mostly from court garments and priests' robes of two and three centuries ago, some of them in such small pieces as to be impractical even for table runners and such. They range in price anywhere from $25 to $300 a yard and are extremely lovely stuffs. A select handful of discerning dressers are having their tailors make dinner waistcoats from these materials. If you see Frank Chapman or some other tony dresser at the Colony with a new cloth of gold and chartreuse vest, the chances are it dates from the Holy Russia of Catherine the Great or the Empress Elizabeth, and has all sorts of romantic and historical associations.

Dummy Makes Good On the Air

THREE STARS OF THE AIR—CHARLIE McCARTHY, EDGAR BERGEN AND RUDY VALLEE. ONE OF THEM IS A DUMMY AND IT'S NOT BERGEN OR VALLEE. TAKE A BOW, CHARLIE!

CHARLIE McCARTHY AND EDGAR BERGEN IN THE NEW ACT THAT IS THE LATEST HIT IN THE RADIO WORLD.

BERGEN GOING OVER A RADIO SCRIPT WITH MARIAN BUTLER, WHO HAS APPEARED WITH HIM IN HIS RADIO ACT.

THE TEAM IN AN ANIMATED MOMENT AT THE MICROPHONE.

NEW YORK, May 15.

THE season's radio sensation is a dummy. Many listeners won't consider that unusual. However, this dummy doesn't pretend to be anything else.

In Charlie McCarthy radio has found the answer to a crying need for a new personality. Charlie arrives at the studio for his broadcasts in a suitcase. He leaves the same way. Charlie has been living in a suitcase for nearly 17 years. For Charlie is the wooden member of a ventriloquist act.

Charlie McCarthy, the smart cracking, prevaricating laughmaker of the airwaves, is really Edgar Bergen. He is his "master's voice" and his master is shrewd enough to give him all of the sock lines. They're new to radio and yet their act isn't new in a kilocycle sense.

On the airwaves Bergen and Charlie aren't really any different than any number of acts that have soared to popularity in radio. Bergen, the ventriloquist, takes both parts. Freeman F. Gosden of the Amos 'n' Andy act, has been taking a number of radio roles by merely changing the tone of his voice for years. So have others.

Bergen and Charlie have really clicked in radio because of their smart material, which Bergen writes. However, Bergen's act is different from the others in one very particular respect. When the other multi-character performers work in front of the microphone they talk out the various characters. Being a ventriloquist, Bergen doesn't appear to be talking when he is doing the part of Charlie.

Radio came to Bergen and his impish wooden partner, rather than they to radio. Had he approached the broadcasters for a spot on the air they would have laughed at him—and not in the manner that the public does.

A ventriloquist on the air? Ha! Bergen might just as well be a ballet dancer, juggler, card trickster or magician. So Bergen stayed away from the radio studios until the broadcasters sought him out. And, as in so many cases in the past, it was Rudy Vallee who found him and introduced the bright new star of 1937.

—o-o—

ELSA MAXWELL, fabulous character of New York play life, was responsible for first calling Manhattan's attention to Bergen. He appeared at one of her fantastic parties. He was a hit and was immediately signed for an engagement at the Rainbow Room, swank spot atop Radio City. There a scout for the Vallee program saw him and soon after Bergen brought Charlie to the airwaves.

His success was immediate. Five months after making his debut on the Vallee Revue, he was signed as the central attraction on a Sunday night hour program.

Bergen is 34. He was born in Chicago on Feb. 16, 1903. His family is of Swedish extraction. He speaks Swedish well enough to have been featured in a musical comedy in Stockholm during a tour around the world some years ago.

Bergen doesn't remember when he started to mimic people, but he was doing that before he ever thought of ventriloquism. The first hint of the latter came when he fooled his mother one afternoon, by giving a voice to an apple pie which she was baking. This upset Mrs. Bergen so that he didn't "ventriloquize" in the Bergen kitchen any more.

He took the trick up to his bedroom and practiced. Then he took it to school. That was excellent practical experience. He became so accomplished at it that he could answer present for 10 or 12 pupils when the roll was called.

Early Bergen learned that it wasn't exactly throwing his voice that did the trick. To this date Bergen doesn't really know whether his voice can be thrown. He calls his method "diffusion."

His lips don't move when he is ventriloquizing. His voice is muffled or diffused. Words are formed with the tongue through closed teeth.

Often the exact sound can't be reproduced this way, but a ventriloquist gets the nearest sound to it. For instance, "M" requires use of the lips, but in most instances "N" will go as well, and that doesn't need the lips.

When Bergen arrived at Northwestern University, where he went to college, he became a little more practical in the use of his vocal art. He paid his way through the university with his "profession." Chautauqua opened up a source of revenue during the summer and nearby vaudeville houses during the school term.

His first vaudeville date was at a suburban Chicago theater. He was to get $3 for doing five shows. When it came time to collect, the manager paid him off with a pleased smile.

"Bergen," he said, "you were a tremendous hit. I'm going to pay you extra." Whereupon he handed him $3.25.

"And that was the only time since I've been in show business that anybody paid me more than I asked for," Eddie says.

Once, in a college classroom, Bergen answered all of the questions for one of his classmates. The professor was old and slightly near-sighted, so he never caught on. But the classmate was pretty fed up. Bergen didn't know the answers to many of the questions. Also, while at Northwestern, Bergen studied drama under Dean Dennis and Alexander Dean.

Charlie McCarthy came into his life about 17 years ago. A Chicago craftsman named Charlie Mack (hence Charlie McCarthy) carved him out of white pine. In the vaudeville and Chautauqua acts Charlie was clothed as an urchin—the fresh kid.

Now he wears a top hat, white tie and tails—also a red carnation. The fresh kid was the usual type of dummy before Bergen. Through Charlie, Bergen put a new twist on the type and brought it to new popularity.

How successful he has been is shown by Charlie's fan mail. Listeners think of him as a person quite apart from his "master's" voice. The reason for this is that Bergen hasn't been selfish with the gags. As a matter of fact, he hasn't kept a single one. All the funny lines go to Charlie. Bergen is practically a straight man. He, and not Charlie, is the stooge of this combination.

Recently Bergen made a bequest of $10,000 to Charlie in his will. That was to insure Charlie's future after his "voice" was dead. The money is to be administered by the Actors' Fund of America and used to pay other ventriloquists to take Charlie around and give performances at hospitals, orphanages and other public institutions.

Charlie travels in a suitcase, well battered by now. Bergen is thinking of getting a new one that fits Charlie a little better. Dressing McCarthy consists of opening the suitcase, taking him out and putting on a shabby-genteel top hat. His full dress suit was custom tailored.

Bergen has used other dummy characters, but Charlie McCarthy is his favorite and the only one he has introduced to radio. One that he used in vaudeville quite a bit was a Swedish lad.

When the Rudy Vallee program was broadcast from St. Paul, Minn., a few months ago, Bergen had Charlie use a Swedish dialect, which went over big. Bergen also has used a girl in his radio act. She is Marian Butler.

—o-o—

BERGEN writes all of his own material and often doesn't finish his script until a few minutes before he goes on the air. He works on the script all week long, constantly revising it.

Many of the changes are made after the dress rehearsal when he has experimented with the lines on those present in the studio. He particularly likes the idea of appearing at night clubs along with radio, because it offers him a chance to try out new material before using it on the air. He and Charlie have appeared before Hollywood's cameras, probably will again.

He's always talking about trying things out, and in general worrying about his material. However, no radio performer ever had a more perfect background for his job. To begin with, he has an educational advantage over most of the old line comedians. Even a comedian can't laugh off a college degree.

Bergen is a facile writer and has worked 15 years in every conceivable entertainment medium (except radio).

Not many of Broadway's top laughmakers have played in Sweden, Russia, Iceland and South America, in addition to the usual

THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

MY OPINION

by Martha Carr

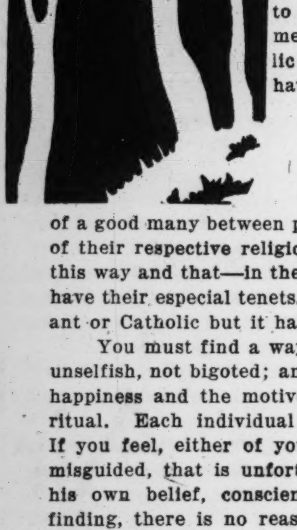
My dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE BEEN going with a really nice boy for some time. We agree on everything but religion. We have tried to "break up" several times, but as long as neither of us meets anyone else in whom we are particularly interested, we naturally seek each other again. We think everything of each other but think it is useless to try to harmonize such differences.



I am 20 and a Catholic. In our town we have no special gatherings for church members. I am fond of sports and have many friends. I go to dances and shows quite a bit and play tennis. My only trouble is that the only boys I have a chance to date are Protestant. Could you give me some advice about how to meet Catholic boys I would like? I would like to have the opinions of others. Thank you.

UNDECIDED.

Haven't you ever happened to know of any happy marriages of Catholic and Protestant? I know of a good many between persons who have thought too much of their respective religions to quarrel and bicker and pull this way and that—in their efforts to force somebody else to have their especial tenets. This controversy may be Protestant or Catholic but it hardly seems Christian.

You must find a way to adjust these differences, to be unselfish, not bigoted; and in trying to be fair, think of the happiness and the motives of each other, rather, than the ritual. Each individual is responsible for his own soul. If you feel, either of you, that the other is mistaken and misguided, that is unfortunate. But if each is faithful to his own belief, conscientiously not interfering or faultfinding, there is no reason why their lives should not be adjusted. Each of you can go to his own church and avoid arguments and disputes. It is not for the small-minded to try to live and let live, according to honest conviction and teaching. This you must decide before you start married life.

There must be many Catholic organizations or those where you will find nice Catholic boys in your social life; but the place to learn of these is through your Catholic friends.

—o—o—

My dear Mrs. Carr:

● I AM TO BE A BRIDESMAID some time this month. I am the only bridesmaid and there will be but one attendant for the man who is marrying. It will be a church wedding. I would like to know of an appropriate gift for this couple. My mother is giving linens.

Also, I am wearing aqua blue, with pink and blue flowers at the neckline and a row of pink flowers for a head band. What kind of flowers do you think I should carry? Thank you. M. M.

I have no idea what this couple will need or what they already have or what their circumstances and social obligations, hence it is very difficult to suggest appropriate gifts. Silver or china or lamps are always needed; but the safest course is to do a little detective work and find out their real needs and pet hobbies.

If you have flowers on the hair and on the dress, it seems to me that the mixture of too many natural flowers and artificial would hardly be effective. It would be like having both the corsage bouquet and the arm bouquet. However, if you want to add to the quaintness of the flower head band you might carry one of the old fashioned "nosegays," a small bouquet with the lace paper edge.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

● I have an ambition to be a model. Could you tell me the requirements and where I could try for a position of this kind? I would also like to know what colors and what type of cosmetics I should use. I have tried to arrange my hair in different ways, but have run out of ideas and would welcome any suggestions you might make. I have gray-blue eyes and I have freckles and an oval face. Thanking you in advance, THE SEEKER.

DO YOU mean an artist's model or a model for fashion shows? If the former, go to an art school and find out the type they happen to need at the time. If they give you some idea that you might serve and suggest a certain period or character, study the types, and character needed at the library and art stores, and adapt yourself accordingly.

If your idea is to model fashions, go to the department store fashion shows and see for yourself what types are needed for the present styles; the hair dress used by your type and the clothes to which you can best be adapted. Apply to the stylist or head of the costumes department.

A good hair-dresser and beauty shop will decide for you what kind of cosmetics are best for you.

—o—o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

● I HAVE BEEN A PATIENT in Koch for a year now and I get awfully lonesome. I wonder if any reader has any old books or magazines they no longer want and could send them to me. I should appreciate some old "Child Life" magazines. I could send someone to get them if they will give me their address.

And summer pajamas—size 38—do you suppose anyone has a pair they will not use? Sincerely yours, P. G.

—o—o—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

In answer to the party who objects to city people calling country-raised people "hoosiers," I want to say that the happiest days of my life were spent in the country. It takes a smart fellow to live in the country and make a good living. I am a woman 48 years old and have been a success. My husband is city-raised and never will make a good salary, although he is a steady worker. I came to town when 15 and have lived here since and always have worked.

I am sorry for the poor smoke-sooted skin and the can-fed city folks. In the country the stock plays, the cows come home at night, the rooster crows at 4 o'clock in the morning; when we go out on the old back porch to wash in the morning the birds are singing and the little meadow flowers welcome us—all things that city folk are too dumb to like.

Yes—the "rubes" belong in the city; they know nothing and care less about the wonder of Nature.

A KENTUCKY HOOSIER.

"Simpson Era Of Beauty in U. S. Ended"

"Average American Woman No Longer Copies the Simpson Coiffure."

NEW YORK, May 15.

WHEN Mrs. Wallis Simpson assumes the title of the Duchess of Windsor, millions of American women who have avidly followed the news of her royal romance will heave a tender sigh and wish her happiness forever after, but—

The "Simpson era," as this period may go down in the history of feminine beauty, is ended, according to Lester Gaba, a native of Hannibal, Mo., and now a well-known sculptor and authority on beauty trends in New York.

"The average American women is still a strong rooter for Wally, but she no longer copies the Simpson coiffure or sticks her chin out to cultivate the Simpson profile," said Gaba.

"In fact, American women—and consequently the people who design things for American women—are looking for a new beauty ideal."

In his New York studio, where Gaba has assembled an elaborate research library on the history of beautiful women through the ages (up to no later than yesterday), the artist listed Mrs. Simpson's name among the glamourous women of history who have reigned as queens of beauty.

—o-o—

GOING BACK over the past century, Gaba said:

"Queen Victoria's sway over the public imagination ended when Empress Eugenie, spectacularly beautiful and gay, married Napoleon III. She brought frills and furbelows, jewels, curls and flowers back into style. She started the hoopskirt vogue out of vanity to cover up the fact that she was expecting an heir."

"Eugenie's reign as leader of fashion and beauty ended when the public saw the bride of Edward VII, then Prince of Wales. It became the fashion to imitate the simple wild-rose beauty and subtle elegance of Queen Alexandra of England.

"Next, the statuesque, classic beauty of Lily Langtry became every woman's ideal, under the sponsorship of Oscar Wilde. She started the vogue for graceful, languorous gestures, for Greek drapery.

"In America, at least, Lily Langtry's misty loveliness paled beside the mature charms of another actress. From 1885 for 10 years, women frizzed their hair to make a huge frou in front, padded their busts and wore bustles to get that Lillian Russell figure.

—o-o—

"THEN YOUTH had its way again, and the Lillian Russell vogue was streamlined into a new enthusiasm, the tall and willowy, but still healthy and athletic girl that made Charles Dana Gibson famous (and who was really his wife, Irene Langshorne, sister of Lady Astor)."

Among the more recent "glamour-queens," Gaba listed Mary Pickford, Irene Castle and Greta Garbo.

Gaba laments Mrs. Simpson's passing as the beauty queen, but adds:

"Some woman, both beautiful and 'different,' will surely turn up soon to take over the waiting throne.

"Until then, it's every woman for herself."

THESE MODERN Young WIVES!

By ELSIE

AN IRATE male is on the air.

"What," snorts he, "is the matter with these modern wives? Why are they so restless, so discontented—so different from what women used to be?

"Look at my grandmother. She raised five children in an old ranch house, without a single modern convenience, and did all her own work—yet she was as happy as a lark. I remember her singing all day—with friends coming and going constantly, even though there was hardly a whole chair or plate in the house and their clothes were a mass of patches.

"But here's my wife with everything—nice bungalow, new car, classy clothes, plenty of leisure—yet she's never satisfied. Before we'd been married six weeks, she wanted to go back to work again!

"And she isn't the only one. My friends' wives are the same. Always rushing around, starting 'movements,' wanting 'careers,' anything to get away from the house. What's wrong with them?"

Nothing much, brother. But there is considerable wrong with your understanding of them and of the spot they're on. First off, there's this quaint male notion that women are naturally tabby cats. Nothing could be farther from the truth. Since Eve grabbed that apple, women have always been the up-and-atem sex . . . aggressive, possessive, inquisitive, chock full of an insatiable desire to start something and boss somebody.

Your grandmother differed not one whit from your wife in those qualities, but she had a release for her energies which your wife lacks. She was a poor woman in a shabby home—yes. But that ranch house was a vital social center, and she was a force in her community, with all the pride, power and privilege of a reigning queen.

Homes were Real Places 50 years ago. Wives were Important People. Gramma may have lacked a vote, but she packed a wallop that Joe Louis would have envied!

Now—compare her status with that of a modern bride. At first glance, the bride seems to have all the breaks. For the first 20 or 30 years her life is as exciting as a man's. Then comes love. Forthwith she steps from the high-pressure activity of some office into—what? Into what Big Business has left of the home, which, until the babies come, isn't very much.

—o-o—

THE simple fact is—the old-fashioned home has gone. Gone for good. The Machine Age, with its "modern conveniences," its automobiles and movies, has emptied and outranked it. Nothing can ever bring it back. That doesn't mean that the home, itself, is doomed. It isn't. We'll always have homes—better ones, presently, than we've ever had, when we adapt ourselves to all these uproarious changes. But in the meanwhile—

Times are tough for the wife!

Here she is—with her pep and punch—all dressed up for action, and no place to go!

She doesn't want to stay in a furnished apartment. She isn't content to loaf around and play bridge all the time.

So she's out rattling around, raising Cain. Well, why not? Wouldn't YOU, if YOU were caught on such a spot?

But don't worry! Under all the fuss and fury, there's still the same spunky spirit that scrambled up those Plymouth Rocks . . . that rode those Covered Wagons. Bank on that spunk! back that spirit!

—o-o—

MARTHA RICHARDS of Atlanta, Ga., in a letter to me shows some of the spunk that the younger generation has.

Reading her letter, I think back—as every honest oldster should—to Life for Ladies in 1897 . . . when no Nice Girl dreamed of working, save perhaps in the Lil' Red Schoolhouse, and a Working Wife was unthinkable.

Now, according to Martha, the daughter who doesn't give the old folks a hand, or the bride who doesn't add her pay check to her husband's, rates with the Heels and Hobos—and other undesirable grafters!

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"All my life I've heard Young America condemned as selfish, careless, lazy brats, without regard for our parents, our homes or our own marriages. Every paper you pick up is filled with articles, jokes or cartoon's about us, showing what bums we are. And everybody seems to take it all for granted. Well, I won't! At 22, I'm working—living the typical life of my own generation—and I am going to come to its defense.

"Elsie Robinson, I challenge any generation to show a better record for courage, hard work, unselfishness and good sportsmanship than ours!

"It is true that there are—as there always have been and will be—young people who drink, neck and go on wild parties. But the overwhelming majority of us have neither time for nor interest in such things. We like fun, and realize that we need it for a healthy life, but we have far too much self-respect to wallow.

"I'm married. I have a maid to clean the apartment once a week. Outside of that I do EVERYTHING, and have time to play and read besides. Most of the young girls in Atlanta are doing the same thing. Do we feel cheated? No! We have the satisfaction of working beside our husbands, shoulder to shoulder—and also saving for the future, so we can begin earlier to have the babies we all want.

"As for the single boys and girls—nearly always they are helping the old folks as well as saving to make their own dreams come true. It isn't easy, Miss Robinson. The odds against us are heavy. It means many a heartache and sacrifice. But deep down we know that it is all worth while, and that we are setting a great standard for our children to follow.

"Yes, I'm just a kid. I powder my nose—I dance and laugh. I'm the wisecracking generation. But again I challenge any other to MATCH OUR MARK!"

Beauty and the Job -:- -:- -:-

By MARJORIE HILLIS

AND now we read that the New York State Labor Department has decided that beauty is a help in selling things. Food, facials and fol-de-rols—they all go better if there is a little charm on the other side of the counter. Even hash sells more rapidly if a winsome blonde does the selling, and what's more, the report I read said that her appearance aided the digestion! In some establishments, men, too, have to be "personable," and in almost all shops a golden-haired beauty is given preference to a plain, mouse-colored female, experience or no experience.

EMPLOYMENT OFFICE

From one angle, this seems a little hard on the Plain Janes. But I am inclined to suspect that if the policy spreads, there will be a lot fewer Plain Janes. Necessity will bring out a good deal of bloom that has been stunted through sheer laziness. For almost nobody needs to be really plain. The right coiffure, and the right make-up, and the right clothes, combined with animation and a nice smile and a reasonably pleasing voice, will make practically anybody charming enough to be an asset to a job. And all these things can be acquired with a little persistent effort.

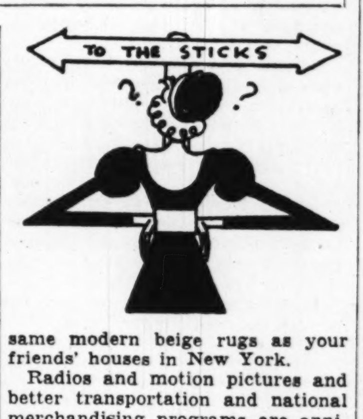
This hard-boiled verdict may prove to be a very good thing for the many young women who are inclined to accept the fact that they are ugly ducklings, and settle back, feeling that fate has treated them badly. They don't seem to notice that half the attractive young women in the world started out with no better ammunition than theirs. Beauty, these days, isn't a matter of perfect features and a peaches-and-cream complexion and naturally curly hair. Anybody can get the complexion and the curly hair, at not too great expense, and the classic features aren't important. Beauty is now a matter of getting yourself up smartly and suitably and a little strikingly, but not too much so.

It's not unreasonable for an employer to demand it, either, since it is one evidence of brains. After all, it is only intelligent to look as well as you can. If you aren't smart enough to see that in your own interest, why should he think you will be smart enough to see less evident facts, in his interest? It may still be true that beauty is only skin deep, but it's the skin that is apparent.

All this applies to those who are not interested in jobs, as well as to those who are. Letting yourself go must be as bad for matrimony as for money making. And the rather obvious moral is to stop complaining about your looks and to spend the same amount of time—or a little more—doing something about them.

—o-o—

ALL MY LIFE I have heard people talk about going out into "the sticks"—with a play, overture, or something they wanted to sell. The sticks were, I supposed, the small towns and cities in this country—and pretty funny, too. The clothes were funny, I gathered, and the customs and the meals and the point of view.



But lately I've had occasion to go to some of the smaller cities—and insofar as clothes and meals and customs go—they are curiously like New York.

The clothes are not merely similar, they're identical. Often, going down the main street and looking in the shop windows, I can tell what Seventh avenue wholesaler made them, or, at any rate, what Fifth avenue store carries them. What's more, they get to Michigan or Kansas as quickly as they travel east across New York. And the bags are not merely the same; they are at counters in the same positions in the stores, and so are the gloves and scarfs, in lots of cases.

As for the food, I've been in restaurants in New York and Chicago and Los Angeles that could learn some points from the women's clubs and the country clubs in smaller places, where there is time (and money) to take care of details. And some of the houses scattered about in remote sections, and built by architects whose work is shown in our best magazines, rouse all my home-loving instincts. (I've seen more modernistic houses 16 hours west of New York than I've ever seen all up and down the coast.) Not only are the other types decorated charmingly, they are decorated with the same English chintzes, and the same white shell vases, and the same modern beige rugs as your friends' houses in New York.

Radios and motion pictures and better transportation and national merchandising programs are annihilating space. In many ways, we are getting to be much more one country and much less a group of varied sections. There are fewer and fewer small towns that metropolitan merchandise doesn't reach, and this is bound to have a definite effect. For one thing, I suppose, it means a loss in individuality—but not as great a one as might be expected, since almost all towns have citizens who are wise enough to preserve the features that have tradition and charm and historical interest. The things that are merely quaint—like peculiarities of speech that come from ignorance—may seem like a loss to the traveller, but you can't feel too bad about the fact that people are not kept back in progress, just for his amusement!

Besides, there are still some pretty quaint people in the United States. There are, for instance, the New Yorkers who think that civilized America ends just west of Hoboken.

Tricks Which Minimize Big Hands, Feet

By Helen Jameson

LOUDEST among the sobbing sisters at beauty's wailing wall are those whose hands and feet are large. No sense yowling about them. You can't do anything about bones. There's no way of shrinking them. But there are little tricks that will disguise these defects and the complainers should get wise to them.

The girl who wears number eights or larger should close her eyes and pray for strength when she comes across pretty sandals of light colors. They are not for her. They belong by rights to the woman with small-sized trotters. Light shades make the foot look larger, white shoes should never be worn. And when a shoe consists of nothing more than a few straps, there is unusual foot spread. Even a pretty, dainty foot loses contour and neatness when encased in it.

Brown or black shoes, maybe beige—oh yes, my hearties, beige is fashionable again—will make those over-developed walkers look considerably nearer. When making a selection ask the clerk to trot out a goodly array. Because some forms and decorations are slenderizing.

Don't have your shoes too full of feet. That will cause discomfort, bring beauty griefs that are real, pained facial expressions, bad posture, evidence of muscle strain.

—o-o—

WHEN HANDS are large, they should be passive. They have no business waving themselves in the air. They should not bear noisy jewelry which calls attention to them. They appear to better advantage when sleeves are long than when sleeves are short. And though you may not believe it, plain snug bracelets make them look smaller.

How the hands are used means a lot. If they are to move gracefully, the wrist must be flexible. Play bye-bye with them, lifting, lowering, waving the fingers, swinging the hand upward from the wrist, letting it fall slowly. Clasp your hands together, wring them. Before you do that, cover the flesh with toilet lanoline. Massage is helpful. It shouts a come-along to the blood streams, keeps tissues firm, holds off that old age look that often comes to young hands.

—o-o—

MURDEROUS-LOOKING nail polish calls attention to hands that have expanded beyond the limit. It puts them in the public eye and, anyhow, why call attention to them? There are adorable veneers now in coral, flesh and rose shades that are popular.

Gloves should be of dark tones. Thin kids are more flattering than fabrics or knits. Avoid the adorable mitts of red, orange or blue.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Dorothy Coleman

ALL you June brides with a grievance, buck up. If you want a night wedding, stand pat in the face of any opposition from the males involved. If you want to take your vows at 11 a. m., that's O. K., too. Turn a deaf ear to the groans of your intended spouse's father or groomsmen. When they fuss about not having the right suit for the occasion, tell them they're talking through their hats, and hustle them right down to Edward Haas, in the Victoria Building. He's had a dress suit rental business in the same building for 25 years. It is a shop dedicated exclusively to the hiring out of finery for men and he can fix up a man so that he looks like Clark Gable, providing the material is there to work with.

Treading cautiously in the fear we were violating a masculine sanctum, we visited Haas the other morning. A tall, spectacled individual, he was in shirt sleeves, going over a pair of gray striped trousers that had just come back.

—o-o—

WE FOUND him full of disdain for the man who is not willing to match the occasion with splendid raiment.

"Just look here," said he, displaying a picture from the Sunday society section of the Post-Dispatch. "That's the kind of thing we clothing people have to fight. The bridegroom's in a plain business suit and his bride is all dressed up. It's simply poor taste. When a girl wears a veil, that calls for a formal suit. If the wedding is before noon that fellow should be in a cutaway frock or morning coat whichever you want to call it. If it's a night ceremony, the only correct thing would be a tail-coat."

What Haas can't understand is why men aren't willing to spend a little to rent a suit this one time in their life. "Look at all the bride has to spend for her outfit. For $5 we can rent a man a dress suit or cutaway."

Haas always refers to his staff as "we." As a matter of fact, he is a one-man concern, although at peak seasons he usually gets a girl to help him keep the books. The shop is open from 8:30 to 5:30. Some competitors may stay open all night if they want to, but Haas is of the opinion you get only drunks late in the evening.

—o-o—

RIGHT NOW he's making preparations for the June wedding rush. His is a very seasonable business. The Veiled Prophet Ball, when swallow-tails or dinner jackets are de rigueur, gets the business off to a good start. It flourishes during the social season, reaches a new high on New Year's eve, falls off during Lent, when society doesn't wed, and then picks up again for June. By the Fourth of July in St. Louis boiled shirts and all that goes with them have been laid away in mothballs and Haas shuts down shop for six weeks. Just nothing doing at all.

This time of year, he says, a number of customers come in asking for white dinner jackets to wear with dark trousers, but he deplores that sartorial trend, in spite of what the men's fashion magazines say. A dyed-in-the-wool conservative, he won't admit that anything but the traditional black and white is strictly comme il faut.

He has also taken a positive stand about dress suits of midnight blue, held to be the height of everything elegant since Lucius Beebe first appeared in one. He says he's getting calls for them right along, mostly from youngsters who keep "posted." He usually succeeds in convincing them that the final effect is no more dazzling than that created by a high-class tailleur of jet black.

—o-o—

OF COURSE Haas has to make a few concessions to changing fashions to hold his trade. For instance, when Eastern tailors began to stretch the tails down a little closer to the boot tops and cut the waists a little higher on the soup-and-fish, and replace the satin lapels with corded silk on tuxedos, our man fell right in with them. At considerable expense he ordered a new supply to satisfy his customers with discriminating tastes.

The men on whom Haas waits are as assorted in rank as in size. They may be ditch-diggers, anxious to put on a brave front for a New Year's eve frolic at the cost of any bodily torture. Then again they may be bank vice-presidents, whose figures are altering so rapidly they would rather rent than buy a suit.

Some "repeat orders" Haas finds it difficult to understand. The same man may come in three or four times a year for a suit. You'd almost think it would pay him to buy his own. They must have to dress up for some business affairs and can put suit rental on their expense accounts. That's the only way Haas can figure it.

The same identification is required of all; a Social Security card, union card, or duplicate deposit slip will do. That's necessary to protect himself, said Haas.

WHAT THE DESIGNERS ARE SHOWING IN PARIS

PARIS, May 15.

KEEP your furs handy, don't put away your mannish tailored suits, and make up your mind to pick out dark-colored linens and brightly printed silks. These are the items that Paris designers are choosing to make it a gay summer.

Worth shows a blazer of hair seal for town or spectator sports wear. Mink for sports seems extravagant, but it's irresistible in a back-belted, high-shouldered, notch-lapelled coat.

For the formal occasion, there's a finger-tip length cape of white fox, the skins alternating with sheer lace. Or another three-quarter length cape of silver fox panels, separated by black sequins with built-up shoulders.

One cape shown in the new collection is of ermine, full length and circular, with tiers starting from elbow to hem giving a startling new effect.

Black ensembles take on new personality with tiny fur capes. One of black broadtail was just big enough to cover the shoulders of the mannequin, dipping down in back to the waist. At the shoulder is attached a huge fur "flower," lined with white pique as is the broadtail cape itself.

A lightweight, eyelet-embroidered coat was also shown by Worth, with a wide band of fox at the hem to give a graceful swing. Alix's version of the embroidered coat is one of heavy natural linen, embroidered in gigantic Italian cut-work with holes large enough to show the color of the dress underneath.

Marcel Rochas has a large variety of linen tailleurs, with subtle color and intricate jacket treatment. One of his white linen jackets, worn with a dark shirt, has flower-pot-shaped pockets on the lapels with real flowers in them.

Then there's the lightweight black wool suit with flaring bands of Persian lamb from waist to hem of the skirt, looking like pleats, and a Persian lamb bolero worn over a black chiffon blouse. Another black suit has a front coat collar of small, pointed fox tails.

A lovely ensemble is one with the three-quarter length coat of thin wool of pastel dusty rose, with bands of silver fox around the hem of the coat and up the center of the back with the fox heads at waist level. The skirt is simple and straight and black, and the blouse is a darker rose than the coat, with a blue scarf that goes around the neck and is brought around the waist to form a sash.

Along with her typical printed chiffons with floral and lacy edges, Chanel shows tailleurs, lounging pajamas and exciting headdresses.

Very appealing is a vividly printed crepe dress so simple it looks like nothing so much as a pretty slip. But at the waist is gathered a full overskirt of printed net going clear to the floor, falling open in front to show the printed dress. The headdress is a full, waist-length veil of the net, caught just above the hairline by a cluster of large bright flowers.

White Gabardine

IF you want a summer evening costume that is up to the minute in fashion, get one of white gabardine. The fabric should be of the synthetic variety which has a slight sheen and a tailored surface. Have it made along severe lines because the material is a tailored one and looks best when it stresses severity. Besides evening frocks, redingotes and other full-length evening wraps are being made of the gabardine.

Colorful Plates

Colorful plates for country homes and outdoor dining indicate that the sea continues to hold charms in summery decorative themes. There are weird looking fishes painted on some attractive salad plates, while anchors, flags and billowy waves adorn other bowls and plates. Glimpses of quaint fishing villages appear on other ware, the shades stressing cool blues and greens as well as more vivid tones.

Always use ice water when mixing pie crust.

FRUIT AS A DECORATION

FRUITS and vegetables are not merely for eating this year. Schiaparelli's newest hats bear fruit; spring suits display nosegays of radishes or green peppers; fabrics, wall paper and accessories sprinkle garden produce over the smartest houses.

The new chintzes have very appetizing fruits. The favorite Victorian design of pomegranate and grape festoons has been revived charmingly. But if your tastes are modern, you may prefer an espaliered pear tree or a bold cornstalk chintz.

Wall papers with fruits and vegetables you can almost taste are naturally right for kitchens and breakfast rooms. For kitchens (especially cabinets) there are decalcomanias with a luscious selection ranging from string beans to gooseberries. Their gaiety will transform a plain window shade into a decoration.

Pottery has the advantage over wall paper because its new fruit and vegetable shapes look more real; their lively informality will cheer the summer table. The guests can't help being in the right mood when tomato bouillon is served in covered red tomato-shaped bowls, or baked apples in rosy red dishes.

Pineapples, cabbages, artichokes and ears of corn are some of the other amusing shapes in the new pottery.

Linen table mats with sprigs of green peppers, tole trays with circles of cherries—even a white tole desk set with cherries or strawberries—decorative fruits and vegetables are certainly a bumper crop this year.

Footwear in Many Styles For Summer

Suede and Linen Are the Two Favorite Materials for Shoes.

THE summer fashion season promises to be versatile insofar as footwear styles are concerned. You can wear all white, white with color, subdued dark shades in lightweight fabrics or a vari-colored theme and be in step with the mode. The chances are that toes will peak out and that heels will have very little covering but even in these two trends there are exceptions to please the conservatives.

Suede and linen are the two favorite materials of which summer shoes are being made, both of them representing innovations and contrasts to the leathers and fabrics that have been worn during the last few years. Suede, long considered a winter leather, is presented in such light weight that it looks and feels cool while at the same time it gives a flattering effect with summer costumes. Linen seems new this year because it is used in so many novel ways and in such different shades. Once considered a staple material for the more conservative type of summer footwear it now appears in dark and brilliant shades, adds intricate stitching or embroidery and otherwise dresses up to suit the trend of fashions.

NOTED AMONG the outstanding models in all-white footwear is a perforated suede tie which is toeless and has only a strap at the back of the heel. Another cross-strap model of white linen covers both toe and heel but leaves plenty of space for the sheer hosiery to show at the instep. A T-strap model of white linen has white patent leather trimming and there is a bag combining linen and patent which completes a smart ensemble.

Anyone who prefers to combine white with a color will find plenty of variety of which to choose. The alliance may be of black, navy, carnelian or tan with the white. Especially striking is a white mesh tie with numerous cut-out features that is trimmed with black patent leather and has a black patent heel. Nude linen and carnelian calf trimmings are equally arresting.

When you get into a study of colorful footwear, you find that the vogue extends from active sports types to those for formal evenings.

Play shoes, for example, which have moccasin toes and low heels may be selected in any number of bright shades such as dahlia red, nasturtium yellow or Canterbury blue with white piping as well as in plain dark colors.

The flower tones mentioned above also may be selected in colors for afternoon and evening wear. The afternoon types include those of perforated kid as well as suede and linen. Polychrome combinations include suede with kid while Guatemala fabrics in rich colorings supply additional brilliance. Many of the vivid novelties have matching bags or gloves.

Daffodil Cake

One cup sifted cake flour.
One and one-fourth cups sugar.
One cup (8-10) egg whites.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One teaspoon cream of tartar.
One-third teaspoon vanilla.
Four egg yolks, well beaten.
One-half teaspoon orange extract.

Mix and sift flour and three-fourths cup sugar together three times. Beat egg whites and salt until foarmy. Then add cream of tartar, and continue beating until stiff but not dry. Beat in remaining one-half cup sugar, a small amount at a time, until all is used. Sift small amount of flour mixture over egg whites and fold in carefully until all is added. Divide mixture into two parts. Fold the vanilla into one part. Fold egg yolks and orange extract into the other part. Put by tablespoons, into ungreased angel food cake pan, alternating white and yellow mixtures. Bake in slow oven (275 degrees) for 30 minutes, then increase heat slightly to moderately slow (325 degrees) and bake 50 minutes longer. Remove from oven and invert until cake is thoroughly cold. Yield, one large cake.

Guest Room

If you are looking for a very impressive theme to use in dressing up a guest room, consider the swank that is associated with accordion-pleated coverings. Synthetic taffetas and moires are being used to carry out this idea and are most impressive when the popular shades of gold or rust are chosen. Flounces are pleated all around as are the wide ruffles on draperies. A pleated covering for the dressing table will supply additional interest.

A mixed grill goes great for outdoor cooking. Lamb chops, bacon and tomatoes are a good combination.

LET ME SUGGEST

by

Josephine Walter

FIRST of all, our greetings to the garden enthusiasts who are meeting here this week, to talk shop and visit some of our local gardens. Personally, I think they have a real treat in store, for, although St. Louis has not the reputation of such places as Natchez, Williamsburg and Charleston, the spring gardens here are truly lovely and well worth a trip to see. I trust this sense of pride in our local gardens doesn't sound too boastful or provincial to our visitors and that they will enjoy some of the beauty spots which make this such a home city.

And now I'm giving you fair warning that the rest of this column is going to be devoted to answering questions from readers, so, if you haven't written in to ask for any information and aren't interested in other people's problems, you had best just skip little Josphine this week. The reason I am doing this is two-fold. In the first place, I think it's about time I answered some of my patient correspondents and secondly, I've just moved and am too exhausted to think up anything for myself.

—o-o—

Question: How shall I treat a bathroom wall of cement to keep the flat paint from getting water spotted from the shower? I would like to keep the dull finish of flat paint if possible.

MRS. D. L. G.

● I do not know of any way of keeping water spots from showing on a perfectly flat finish, as water has a tendency to turn such a paint shiny, especially if it is rubbed. The best paint to use on your walls would be one with a high gloss finish although one with a semi-gloss finish would probably be all right.

—o-o—

Question: I am coming to you a second time for advice about my dining room. I have an old sideboard in the attic, which has been in the family since before the Civil War. It is oak, I think with applied decorations in cherrywood. It has a marble top and originally there was a mirror with little shelves on each side but this part has become lost. Now, if, in your opinion, this is worth repairing I should like to build my dining room around it and would like to know what type of furniture would harmonize with it best. Also, shall I have a light or dark finish used?

MRS. A. LeM.

● From your description of the piece, I should say it was probably Victorian in style, and I believe you could build a very charming dining room around it. Victorian pieces, you know, are becoming more in demand all the time, and most effective rooms can be built around them, at moderate cost, too. For your dining-room table, you might use one of the simple "trestle" type, with sides that drop down and legs held together by a long bar of wood. Chairs might attractively be of the Victorian type with a little carved rose in the center of the top rail of the back of the chair. It is very easy to find sets of these at the various antique shops around St. Louis. If you are not thoroughly familiar with Victorian furniture you might go into some of these shops and ask them to show you furniture of this type. They have a great deal of it, very reasonably priced and most attractive.

Are you sure the piece you have is of oak? Most of it was made in walnut. If it is of walnut, I would finish it with a regular walnut finish. If it is of oak you may give it an oak stain, or if you want to modernize it to a certain extent you might try one of the new "pickled" finishes.

—o-o—

Question: I have just finished building my house. I used a very lovely marble mantel in the living room. But all the charm of the mantel, which is a beautiful pinkish rosetone, is ruined by the ugly yellow fire-brick that the builder assured me absolutely had to be used on the inside of the fireplace. Can you suggest any solution for this?

MRS. W. J. N.

● Yes, indeed. I often wonder myself why more people aren't bothered by this ugly brick and do something to change it, especially as the remedy is so simple. Just have your painter mix up some lamp black and boiled linseed oil, with just enough turpentine added to make it brush on easily. This will give a dull, dusty black finish to the bricks, resembling the black cast iron backings which were used in fine fireplaces many years ago.

New England Boiled Dinner

By SHELIA HIBBEN

AUTHORITY ON FINE FOODS.

HOMELY, SIMPLE FARE, BUT A REALLY FINE NEW ENGLAND BOILED DINNER IS A TREAT, EVEN TO THE EPICURE.

WITH everybody and everything in this Land of the Free always on the up and up, it seems funny that certain foods just stand in their tracks without ever rising above the social scale in which they started.

Corned beef and cabbage, Irish stew, pigs' feet and a lot more started out in life as solid, substantial citizens — respectable enough, but not to have around when fine company is expected—and, instead of going up in the world, that's what they still are.

Maybe it was the women of a couple of generations ago, to whom hearty eating was an intolerable vulgarity in their own sex, who gave these robust foods a bad name, but I have a suspicion that, more likely, it is careless cooking that has made corned beef and cabbage and beans and their like just so much copy for the comic strips.

Crepes Suzette are unanimously voted a fine and elegant dish, and it follows that cooks and hostesses take a terrible lot of pains in making them even finer and more elegant. Whereas corned beef and cabbage, being just a solid old vulgarian, is slapped together any which way, and therefore doesn't get any forwarder in the realm of good cooking.

But, as between a well-turned crepe, and a really fine New England boiled dinner, made lovingly by a cook who really believes in New England boiled dinner, I think even the best militant Francophile would choose the latter. That, as a matter of fact, is the trouble with most of the dishes we designate as everyday. They stay common fare because nobody bothers to cook them as if they were anything else. How many places do you know—homes as well as restaurants — where you can get corned beef and cabbage, with the cabbage tender and green and fresh, as it should be? A different dish from that unrecognizable pulp that comes along with your order of the usual New England boiled dinner.

And the potatoes? Do even you, highly as you may think of yourself as a cook, trouble to boil them separately and just the right number of minutes? I am ready to bet you throw them into the pot with the beef, to come out soggy and overdone.

It's that indifference to cheap foods that is the ruination of so much of our everyday cooking. Catch a French cook not doing her handsomest by pigs' feet, or tripe, or boiled beef; catch her saying: Oh, it's just boiled beef today, and that can be thrown in the pot without any bother.

No, sir, you can be sure it's the care bestowed on those homely, simple dishes that has done so much to build up the legend of Gallic supremacy in the kitchen as have the more sophisticated and costly specialties of the French.

To me it seems just plain so common sense that a cook should take as much pains with a cheap food that isn't so much in its own right, as with a fine one. A tender filet, or a grouse, can be depended upon to look after itself to some degree, but by golly! it takes skill and care to make a piece of tripe taste like anything at all. That the city of

CORNED BEEF AND CABBAGE—A DISH WORTHY OF THE COOK'S BEST EFFORTS.

Caen in Normandy has been famous for several hundred years for a special way of preparing tripe, just shows what a cook can do with unlikely material, for if ever there was an unpromising raw food, it is tripe, and if ever there was a perfectly gorgeous dish, it is tripe a la mode de Caen. The town of Caen no longer flourishes as a port, it has lost most of its pig iron trade with Norway, and its lace making industry isn't what it used to be, but Caen is remembered lovingly by travelers from all over the world who have tasted its tripe.

I wonder how many foreigners who have visited these shores bless us for our baked beans, or our apple pie, or our hamburgers? Yet all of these native dishes can be made to perfection, if only we considered them worth our best efforts.

ADVENTURES in FOOD

NEW ENGLAND BOILED DINNER (for 6)

Select a piece of fancy brisket of corned beef weighing 5 pounds, tie it securely into shape, and put in a kettle with enough cold water to cover, and half a dozen peppercorns. Bring slowly to the boiling point, and boil for five minutes, skimming carefully just before the water begins to boil. Reduce the heat, and boil gently for 3½ hours, adding more boiling water if necessary to keep covered.

Peel and quarter four little white turnips, and four young tender carrots. At the end of 2¾ hours, pour off enough of the water in which the beef has boiled to cover these vegetables, and boil them until tender with one teaspoonful of salt. Peel and boil six medium-size potatoes in fresh salted water; drain them and keep hot. Shred a tender young cabbage of medium size, and let soak in cold water for 15 minutes. Drain. Bring a kettleful of water to a hard boil, and pour enough of it over the cabbage to cover; add a small pinch of soda, and boil with cover on saucepan for four minutes. Drain, pour on enough fresh boiling water to cover, add salt and boil with saucepan covered for 15 minutes. Drain, add a small lump of butter and a grinding of black pepper. Place the corned beef on a hot platter, surround with the potatoes, over which you have poured a little melted butter, and the carrots, turnips and cabbage. Serve with mustard.

BROILED PIGS' FEET (for 6)

6 pigs' feet
2 onions
2 carrots
¼ tsp. thyme
1 bay leaf
4 pepper corns
2 whole cloves
breadcrumbs
salt and pepper

Clean the feet thoroughly, and set to boil with onions, carrots and seasonings for three or four hours, depending on the size of the feet. Leave in the water in which boiled until cold; take out, and dry on a cloth. Cut the feet in two lengthwise, rub well with butter, season with salt and pepper, and roll in sifted breadcrumbs. Lay on a well-greased broiler, and broil under a hot fire, turning to brown on each side. Serve with the following sauce:

WHITE BUTTER SAUCE:

Put into an enamel saucepan, five tablespoons of good butter, one teaspoonful of tarragon vinegar, one finely-chopped small onion, and salt and pepper. Let the butter melt slowly, and stir all the time, but do not let boil. Serve after it has remained on the fire four minutes.

HAMBURGERS IN SOUR CREAM (for 6)

1 lb. ground beef
1 small onion
½ tsp. onion juice
4 tbsp. butter
1½ c. sour cream
salt and pepper

Mix the onion juice with the beef and season with salt and pepper, and knead well with the hands. Form into flat, round cakes. Heat the butter in a frying pan, and lay in the meat cakes and sliced onion, and fry over a good fire, so that the cakes will brown well, while the inside remains pink. Pour in the sour cream, season with salt and pepper, and let bubble up once or twice. Remove the sliced onion, arrange the meat cakes on a hot platter and pour the sauce over all.

OX-TAIL STEW (for 6)

2 ox-tails
12 small white onions
3 small young carrots
2 little white turnips
4 tbsp. butter
2 oz. bacon
2 tbsp. flour
1 bay leaf
2 whole cloves
1 tbsp. chopped parsley
¼ tsp. thyme
½ c. sherry wine
salt and pepper

Have the butcher cut the ox-tails in two-inch lengths. Melt butter in frying pan, add bacon cut in small pieces, onions and the ox-tails. When the meat has browned, add flour, and continue to brown. Pour in two cupfuls of water, add seasonings, and let simmer gently, well covered, for 1½ hours. Add peeled and quartered vegetables, and the sherry, and continue cooking until the vegetables are tender.

Banana Muffins

One pressed down cup sliced bananas
One-half cup sugar
Four tablespoons softened butter
One large egg
One and three-fourths cups flour
One-fourth teaspoon soda
Two teaspoons baking powder
One-eighth teaspoon salt.

Place bananas, sugar and butter in a bowl and cream until smooth, then add the unbeaten egg, flour, soda, baking powder and salt; stir briskly for a minute or two, or until well mixed. Bake in greased muffin tins in a hot oven for about 15 minutes. Makes 12 large size muffins.

Corn Fritters

Two eggs.
One cup corn.
One cup flour.
Two tablespoons sugar.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Dash of cayenne pepper.

Use the mushy variety canned corn. Beat eggs lightly, combine with corn. Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Add the dash of pepper and mix well. Drop by spoonsful into deep fat.

A GIRL ABOUT TOWN

a customer fits a suit several days ahead of time, he is asked to make $1 deposit.

"We can't get deposits on the side here, the way they do in Chicago and New York, to cover damages that may be done to our garments," this specialist in sartorial splendor explains. "If a fellow here brings a suit back in bad shape, all we can do is put a lawyer on his track and often that does no good. New Year's Eve we take the biggest risk. Men get intoxicated in these suits, you know. Customers are supposed to return garments by a certain date. When a suit has been kept out too long, we always suspect—and usually we're right—that the customer has worn it a second time, or that he's passed it on to a friend to play the swell in. But what can we do about it?"

—o-o—

HAAS ALWAYS ADVISES bridegrooms to call for their outfit the day before the big event, so they won't get nervous at the last minute. That way the coming bride has a chance to give it the final once-over for creepy collars and bulging bosoms, the give-away of a rented suit.

Brides-to-be and all women who insist on accompanying their men to the rent-a-suit salon, are a distinct pain in the neck, Haas implied, although he was too much of a gentleman to say so in as many words.

"The ladies make our job twice as hard," he moaned, referring to his own duties, of course.

About the time he gets a man turned out in a dress suit that fits him like a piston ring, the little dove suggests he might try eight or 10 other models. It's the comparative shopping instinct, he supposes.

"If the ladies knew what they were talking about, we wouldn't mind as much," Haas continued, "but most of them aren't 'posted,' and they won't take our word for anything. Brides are the most particular. They like to pretend in front of the men that they know what's what. But we're really indebted to the ladies, mind you. If it weren't for them, we wouldn't have any business. No man's going to get dressed up unless there's a woman he wants to impress or has to satisfy."

Now, brides-to-be, you have a real obligation. You can't let Edward Haas down.

The meat roast should be cooked quickly at first to sear the outside enough to hold the juices. Then the temperature of the oven may be lowered to prevent burning.

Chicken Noodle Pie

Two tablespoons fat.
Four tablespoons flour.
Two cans ready to serve noodle soup.
One can or one cup chopped chicken.
One and one-half cups cooked or canned carrots.
Salt and pepper.
Pastry for crust.

Heat fat, add flour; mix well. Add broth which has been drained from noodles, and cook, stirring constantly, until thick. Add noodles, chicken and carrots; mix well. Add salt and pepper, if desired. Put in a casserole and cover with pastry crust. Bake in hot oven until crust is brown. Serves six.

Spanish Steak

Two pounds round steak, cut thick.
Three tablespoons fat.
One small bottle stuffed olives.
One can condensed tomato okra soup.
Two medium size onions.
One green pepper chopped.

Sear steak in fat until brown on both sides. Pour the liquid from olives over meat. Add soup. Slice onions and olives, chop green pepper and sprinkle over the meat. Cover tightly and cook slowly until the meat is tender. Serves six.

Care of Mums Now Will Help Them in Fall

"Clumps in Spring Gardens Should Be Torn Apart and Reset."

By Harriet W. Chandler

WE all know the value of the chrysanthemum in the fall garden. But it takes a real chrysanthemum enthusiast to tear his favored clumps apart and reset them at this time, leaving only one unpromising shoot for each plant. Such courageous division admist spring gardens, lovely with bloom, will make the chrysanthemum dispense cheer and bright colors in profusion from September until frost.

As soon as the new growth shows sprouts two or three inches tall, the clumps must be lifted and carefully separated, leaving a piece of root to each shoot, while discarding the woody center of the crown. If by chance a shoot is broken off without a piece of root it is no cause for dismay, as this vigorous new tip will be so full of pep that it will root readily if stuck in sand and be ready for a permanent place in the border by fall.

It is to be remembered that the chrysanthemums have appetites out of all proportion to their daintiness, so a good rich soil must be prepared before any planting is attempted. It is best to select a sunny, somewhat protected spot to grow your chrysanthemums and here dig out a bed or trench 15 to 18 inches deep if the drainage is good, or deeper if questionable, so that six inches of the bottom can be filled with coarse gravel, clinkers, old cans or any roughage for drainage.

—o-o—

INCORPORATE in the soil well-rotted barnyard manure, if this is to be had, otherwise use a good commercial cow manure preparation and a handful of bonemeal for each shoot planted. When planting, open a big enough hole to accommodate the roots comfortably. If they are potted plants, remove from the pot and plant the ball of soil one or two inches below the surface, thoroughly firming the soil around it. They may look small and weak at first, but there is much power in them for vigorous growth, and the plants should be placed far enough apart to allow for sturdy development.

If set 18 inches to two feet apart they will be far less subject to disease and will develop more shapely plants. Do not expect too much of these plants until the middle of the summer, but after they are well established they can be encouraged by applications of liquid manure every two weeks until the color in the buds is discernible; then all feeding must stop.

When the plants are six to eight inches high pinch out about an inch of new growth from the tips. This will force many side branches which will increase the bloom. Keep the plants growing by watering well and cultivating all through the hot summer months. If this is not done the plants become woody and the lower leaves brown during the blooming season. Aphis are very fond of the young tips of the chrysanthemums, but they can easily be kept in check by spraying with a nicotine solution.

—o-o—

IF CHRYSANTHEMUMS are lifted in August, potted up in a good sized pot sunk in the garden, and kept thoroughly watered and shaded for a few days, they will keep right on growing. Later, when frost lays low everything else, these can be lifted and brought into the house, where they will continue their bloom for some time.

There are so many worthwhile varieties of chrysanthemems being given us each year by the hybridizers, that no good gardener should let a season pass without adding at least a couple of new ones to his collection.

The Korean hybrids, which made their bow several years ago, started a cry for mums among garden enthusiasts because of their hardiness and profusion of early bloom. Mercury, Mars, and a few others named for Greek gods, were the forerunners of this new type, and with their daisy-like single flowers in lovely shades are still popular though later offerings are more desirable in some ways. Each year new crosses with improvements come out until now we have these Koreans in double, semi-double forms as well as singles in a profusion of new colors which show larger flowers a tendency to bloom even earlier.

—o-o—

VESTA, a debutante of last lear, is one of the first to bloom, its large golden orange flowers literally covering the sturdy bush. Among others of last year's vintage, Juno is a beauty with coppery-red flowers fading to salmon-flesh as they open. Nyso is a lovely lilac, Niobe a glistening white, Louise Schiling, red; Orion, a brilliant canary yellow, and Lovelight, the largest single pink chrysanthemum yet listed. In this year's introductions we may find larger flowers in still different tints.

HOW TO GET COOL EFFECT IN LIVING ROOM INTERIOR

By Elizabeth Boykin

SOME like it hot, some like it cold, as far as summer refurnishing is concerned. Because it's a fact that you can make a room seem degrees cooler or hotter, just by the colors you use. Those who like gayety and life don't mind the fact that summery effects of this type are pretty hot looking. Those who prefer tranquility choose the restful subdued effect of deliberately cool colors.

A living room we visited last summer achieved this serene air to such a degree that, no matter how hot and sultry the day, we always sank into it with a sigh of pleasure. The problem here was to transform a rather heavy, formal room into one which would suggest summer breezes and cool nights. The carpet was cocoa brown, the walls rosy terra cotta, the woodwork was what they're now calling "pickled pine" —a pale antiqued natural. In winter rich burgundy reds and mellow blues gave depth and dignity to the room, but in summer these colors would have made you feel very dull and sultry.

But come May, the heavy damask draperies disappeared, and pale green Venetian blinds took their place. The furniture, sofa and three chairs was slip-covered with well tailored coverings of pale green and beige in narrow stripes. White vases, filled with riotous blooms from the garden, added just enough color. A three-way shutter screen, in the same pale green as the Venetian blinds, half covered the cavernous depths of the fireplace.

But the neatest trick of transforming this room came with the built-in book cases that lined one wall of the room, filled with darkly bound volumes of the classics. A box-pleated straight-handing curtain of the same material as the slip covers was hung over the books, on a flat rod with pull cords to allow summer readers to browse. The effect, when this curtain was pulled, was as cool as a cave. The fact that the draperies kept dust and summer silt from the books, during a time when open windows and doors brought in invisible clouds of book-harming matter, was an added advantage of this arrangement. Instead of the curtain, though, the books could have had beige and green dust jackets.

The expense of this plan for summer is greater, at first, then the usual light glass curtains or colorful draperies. Yet, when it is remembered that venetian blinds are more or less a life-long investment we realize that this permanently attractive summer metamorphosis is truly economical.

WE REMEMBER too many hand-to-hand combats we have had with old time folding beds and even such simple things as chair-tables to get all hot and bothered about their space saving virtues. Yet we must admit that the innovations that have been added lately to this type of furniture rather take all the wind out of our prejudies. And we are practical enough to admit the ingenuity with which modern manufacturers have conquered the problem of living comfortably in a small area.

We think brides might investigate with profit the trend towards table-and-lamp combinations. The trouble with efforts in the past was that one or the other of the combination always seemed to be slighted—either the lamp was impossible for reading or the table was too dinky to hold even a decent sized ash tray. Lately we have seen excellent combinations of large, round pie-crust tables with really handsome lamps poking themselves up through the middle. A very satisfactory answer to the lamp and table situation in a small living room.

Then there are these amazing living room-dining tables that open by turning this and that, into beautifully proportioned dining tables for seating a dozen guests. This is no trick piece of furniture by any means, for it may very well form the center of a lovely Federal dining room later on. Bridge type tables that become respectable dining tables for six or eight are happy thoughts, too.

As to making a bed appear where none was before, that old magician's trick used to fall flat when neither the sofa nor the bed it became were comfortable. But today you may buy sofas, love-seats and studio couches that are not only luxuriously suitable in their sofa phase, but are definitely sleepable in their bed phase. A pet of ours is a love-seat in perfect proportion which, miraculously enough, opens into a full-size double bed.

Now we're hoping that some bright manufacturer will see the possibilities of the enchanting shaving stand that the Good Albert uses in one of the more touching scenes of Helen Hayes' "Victoria Regina," and start producing these like mad. We'd love one in a guest room for feminine nose-powderers at parties or near our own dressing table, so that we might move it here and there to get just the right light for make-up.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

NEW YORK, May 15.

LIKE all "great world capitals," our tidy little town is noted for its many flocks of pigeons, which trut and beg wherever people gath r to sit and brood. Oddly enough, ot all people agree on the simple ubject of city pigeons. Some pro ess to despise them as the worst pe of moocher, stuffed all day h crumbs and peanuts and not ven making sweet noises for their uppers. Others are very sentimen al about these city birds, and ha itually carry trifles to feed them. Many of ours are so fat they ouldn't fly at the point of a shot un.

Probably our most famous pigeon eeder is Nikola Tesla, the noted in entor, who is now 81 and feeble. For years he used to stuff the va ious flocks himself, each day, but e has now intrusted this duty to a ed-headed messenger boy named ohnny. Twice a day Johnny packs e pounds of corn to the hangouts three of the more famous of our oveys—the Public Library on the venue, St. Patrick's Cathedral and Bryant Park, behind the library.

—o-o—

Practically all our little parks have their pigeon flocks, and for some reason a large one hangs around the Grand Central Terminal, I don't know just why, though they seem as puffy as the rest. Probably the most famous is the one which roosts in the tracery about the rose window of St. Patrick's. These waddlers are known to every visitor to the city, and they do very well on the offerings of the pious. But Mr. Tesla's three flocks are the largest and ttest. Trust a mooching city pigeon to know a good thing when he sees it!

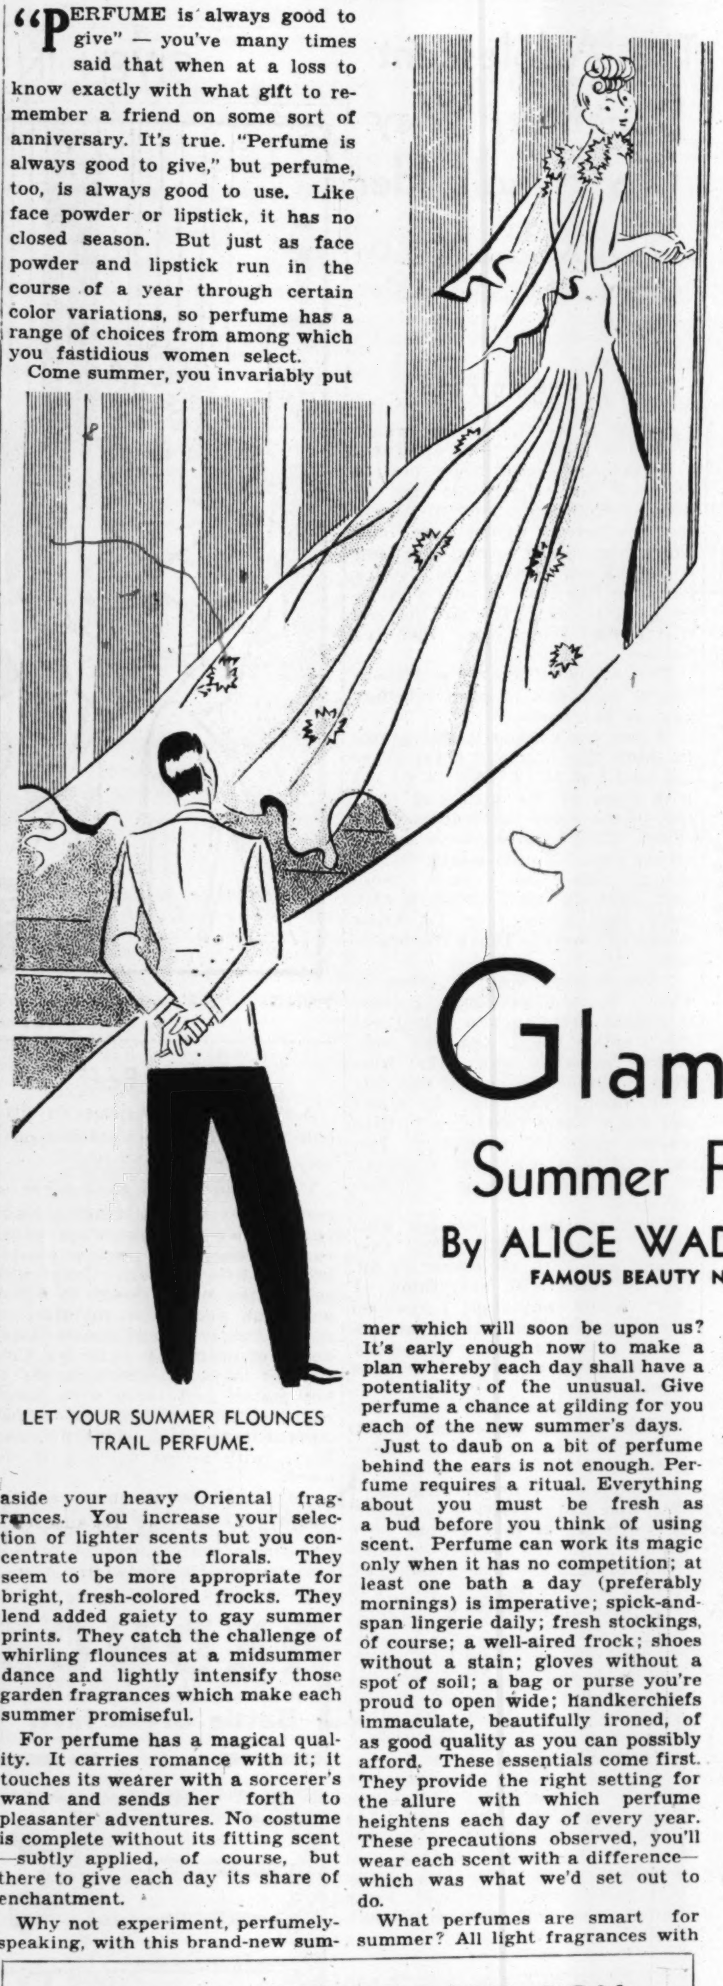
Glamorous Summer Fragrances

By ALICE WADE ROBINSON

FAMOUS BEAUTY NEWS AUTHORITY

"PERFUME is always good to give" — you've many times said that when at a loss to know exactly with what gift to remember a friend on some sort of anniversary. It's true. "Perfume is always good to give," but perfume, too, is always good to use. Like face powder or lipstick, it has no closed season. But just as face powder and lipstick run in the course of a year through certain color variations, so perfume has a range of choices from among which you fastidious women select.

Come summer, you invariably put aside your heavy Oriental fragrances. You increase your selection of lighter scents but you concentrate upon the florals. They seem to be more appropriate for bright, fresh-colored frocks. They lend added gaiety to gay summer prints. They catch the challenge of whirling flounces at a midsummer dance and lightly intensify those garden fragrances which make each summer promiseful.



LET YOUR SUMMER FLOUNCES TRAIL PERFUME.

For perfume has a magical quality. It carries romance with it; it touches its wearer with a sorcerer's wand and sends her forth to pleasanter adventures. No costume is complete without its fitting scent —subtly applied, of course, but there to give each day its share of enchantment.

Why not experiment, perfumely-speaking, with this brand-new summer which will soon be upon us? It's early enough now to make a plan whereby each day shall have a potentiality of the unusual. Give perfume a chance at gilding for you each of the new summer's days.

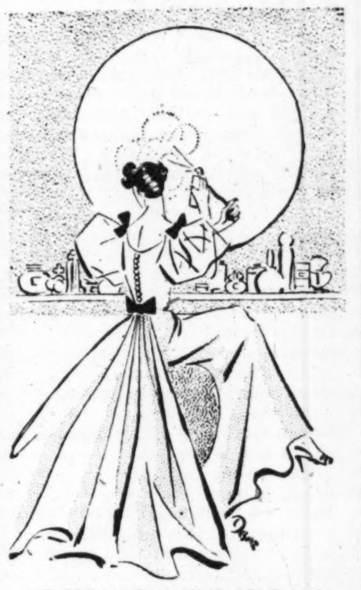
Just to daub on a bit of perfume behind the ears is not enough. Perfume requires a ritual. Everything about you must be fresh as a bud before you think of using scent. Perfume can work its magic only when it has no competition; at least one bath a day (preferably mornings) is imperative; spick-and-span lingerie daily; fresh stockings, of course; a well-aired frock; shoes without a stain; gloves without a spot of soil; a bag or purse you're proud to open wide; handkerchiefs immaculate, beautifully ironed, of as good quality as you can possibly afford. These essentials come first. They provide the right setting for the allure with which perfume heightens each day of every year. These precautions observed, you'll wear each scent with a difference—which was what we'd set out to do.

What perfumes are smart for summer? All light fragrances with the accent on florals? Very well. Gardenia comes first. It knows no season. It is superb with autumn, winter and spring costumes but although it's somewhat heavier than other summer scents, it tops all floral sales throughout the year.

Next in popularity comes carnation. This quick, spicy fragrance has not by any means shown a letdown since last season. It goes on and on—because women (and men) respond to its vivacity, its spur to high spirits. It's a debonair perfume, care-free, light-hearted. A perfect antidote for shyness, it's old-fashioned, new-fashioned, smart. Violet, lilac, lily-of-the-valley, honeysuckle, sweet pea—these will be much in demand this summer—in perfume, in perfumed eau de cologne, in toilet water. To say nothing of soaps and dusting powders for each scent.

Summer calls for lightness in fragrance. That's the burden of our song today. Why then restrain yourselves to perfumes alone? Acquire the eau de cologne and toilet water habit. They gently scent and they're cooling. There's nothing more refreshing after your morning bath or your tennis-shower than a brisk rub down with cool eau de cologne. It gives you zest on a day when the thermometer dares you to look cool—much less be cool.

Not that eau de cologne and toilet water supplant perfume in summer or at any other time. They supplement it, that's all. Since they do not pretend to be lasting qualities of perfume extract, they should not be used instead of perfume—not if you wish to maintain the allure which a really good perfume enhances.



TO SPRAY ON YOUR PERFUME SPREADS THE SCENT EVENLY.

But perfume extract, eau de cologne and toilet water should all be sprayed on—it's more economical to use an atomizer, more practical, and the effect is much more pleasing. Eau de cologne and toilet water are gaining in popularity every day as an after-bath rite. Sprayed from an oversized atomizer, they make for a fragrant friction lotion by closing the pores and gently perfuming at the same time.

Beauty Editor's Perfume Notes

IF YOU enjoy a regal gesture, put a drop of scent inside your gloves to enhance their freshness. Elizabeth, Queen of England, first introduced this fashion to her court.

—o-o—

YOUR new coiffure will be the lovelier for a dash of perfume across a soft wave. Delightful for evening, when you're not wearing a hat.

—o-o—

WHEN applying scent, don't concentrate heavily in one spot—spray evenly with an atomizer.

—o-o—

THE fragrance you like most is the one best suited to your personality. If you have a favorite flower, be identified by that scent for certain frocks.

—o-o—

SPRAY your lingerie after it has been laundered and it will have acquired just the proper fragrance when you put it on.

—o-o—

STRATEGIC spots to wear your perfume: behind the knees, at the nape of the neck, the hem of a dress, on the upper arm between the elbow and shoulder, behind the ears, on a floating scarf, on the flounces of a negligee or the ruffled train of an evening gown at the wrists, on the eyebrows.

—o-o—

DO NOT continue to use a fragrance that you have tired of—its magical help will be gone. Choose a new perfume to suit your new mood.

—o-o—

IF YOU use an atomizer, be sure it is perfectly clean before you change perfumes. The oils from the scent formerly used may cling to the inside of the atomizer without your knowing it and defeat the fragrance of the new perfume you put in. Wash out the atomizer carefully with alcohol until all traces of the old scent are gone.

—o-o—

MANY women spray stockings, handkerchiefs, lingerie, bed-linen, hand towels—and rooms themselves—with eau de cologne or toilet water. The scent is so delicate, so ephemeral, that living seems pleasanter for this indulgence.

Improvements In the Field Of Anesthesia

"Professional Anesthetist Today Is an Important Consultant for Surgeon."

By

Logan Clendening, M. D.

MOST of the improvements in medicine in late years have consisted in perfection of methods of treatment already well established. Most of the work is done quietly by technical workers, and while it does not receive the ballyhoo that some so-called discoveries of new methods of treatment are accorded in the magazines and newspapers, it is really more lasting and important in its effect.

An instance is the chemical work that has been done in the production of new agents for surgical anesthesia. Unless you have visited a hospital lately as a patient, you are probably unaware of how many improvements have been made in this field.

Of course, in the beginning, less than a hundred years ago, when anesthesia for surgical operations had just been established, patients and surgeons were glad to get anything which would numb the consciousness from the sensations of pain. Ether seemed then to be the greatest possible boon. It is still used quite widely, but has many disadvantages. One is that for most people it is an extremely uncomfortable sensation to "go under" ether. Dreams are disturbing, and the after-effects in the form of vomiting are quite uncomfortable.

—o-o—

THE SECOND AGENT to be used was chloroform, which was a more comfortable drug for the patient, but carried a distinctly higher hazard of danger. The third was nitrous oxide, or laughing gas, which can only be used for short operations, and does not give sufficient muscular relaxation.

You can see, as we recite these different steps, how men were trying to find an agent which would combine the elements of safety, comfort for the patient, and muscular relaxation which is necessary, especially for an abdominal operation.

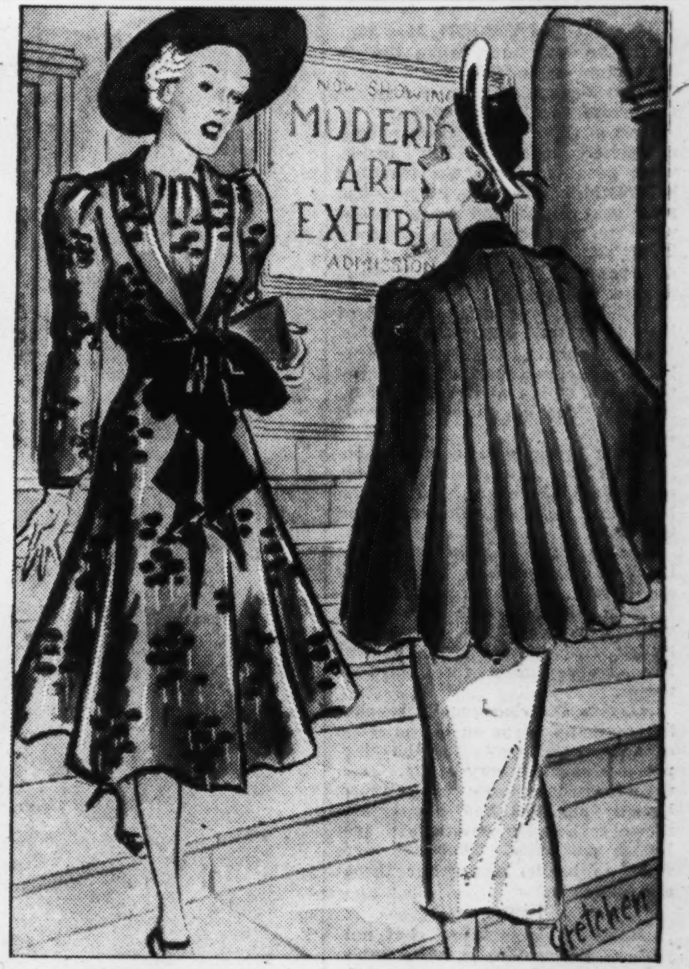
The latest agent to be used is a substance called "cyclopropane." It is a colorless gas with hardly any odor. Patients who have taken it tell me that there is none of the frightening sensation that accompanies going under with ether. The patient suddenly "goes out like a light." He wakes up almost immediately after the anesthetic has been stopped, and in almost no instances is there any nausea or vomiting. One patient whom I saw recently asked for a cup of coffee within five minutes after awakening. It is also extremely safe. It can be used in practically all operations except those in which extreme muscular relaxation must be maintained.

Other new anesthetics are divinyl ether and evipan sodium.

The professional anesthetist is today an extremely important consultant for the surgeon. He can select practically any form of anesthesia; can use those which are breathed in or givin hypodermically or by numbing the spinal cord with direct introduction into the spinal canal. Whatever anesthetic is used in your next operation, you may be sure that it will have been carefully selected beforehand.

Get busy on that porch furniture and flooring so the paint will be dried out and usable before the actual warm weather appears. So often this job is left until too late and the first really warm day must be spent indoors on account of wet paint.

STYLE - SMILES -::- -::- by Gretchen



"—IT'S RATHER DISAPPOINTING. IN ALMOST EVERY INSTANCE YOU CAN TELL WHAT THE PAINTING IS SUPPOSED TO REPRESENT!"

The modernist painters must be slipping . . . while modern designers grow daily more satisfying. In fact, the ensemble on the left provided us with a real thrill. Flower shapes, much conventionalized, form green accents on soft, dark gray taffeta. The cap sleeved dress is softly gathered at the neck and the huge-bowed sash now decorating the coat is transferred, indoors, to the dress. . . . The ripple-back cape on the right has a tuxedo front faced with stiff white grosgrain belting. The hat's a honey with its "Confederate soldier" crown and amazed, definitely off-the-face brim.

COMPLETE HAT WARDROBE SUGGESTED BY MILLINERS

IF the milliners have their way, hat boxes will be stacked from the floor to the ceiling so that there will be a different chapeau ready for every occasion. No longer will the one panama go from morning until night, or the wide-brimmed felt serve for shopping and country club alike.

This idea of a complete hat wardrobe was launched in New York recently and seems to be sweeping the country. "Main Street of the Middle West" probably won't want all 12 of the recommendations which make up the complete wardrobe, but every woman will be clamoring for a bigger hat allowance.

Included in the list of 12 suggestions presented by a large group of millinery designers are hats for shopping at the grocery store, watching the country club golf match, dining in the daylight, lunching in town, and the type of picturesque capeline which would be worn by a summer wedding guest. For those business-like individuals who must have an all-day model a saucer-like sailor is among the recommendations. It is made of burnt wheat shantung with a slashed crown and black taffeta accents.

Another hat wardrobe has been designed for those lucky individuals who spend the week-end in the country and consider travel needs as well as "Sunday brunch," that popular meal which combines breakfast with lunch. A formal capeline with a daisy covered crown is the type of hat for "brunch" wear, so the milliners say. You can replace the daisies with something more colorful as the season advances.

Except for flower-trimmed turbans which are worn in the evening, the trend for summer is toward the wide-brimmed hats. The frilly little turbans with their nosegay clusters are recommended for dancing on crowded roof gardens as well as for the cocktail hour. Sheer brims that are made of very fine straw or of starched net contribute a summery appearance to many of the more formal models. These often are enhanced by flower clusters or by pastel velvet ribbons.

Sun Shades of 1937

SUN shades and halo bands designed for active sports wear follow the coronation trend in fashions. One visor type of cap, for example, is made of a novelty fabric printed with tiny crowns, while others are introduced in coronation shades. These same popular tones appear together in braided bands of crepe and rival paisleys and flower prints in popularity. Others introduce bow trimming, candy stripes or novel twisted effects as decorative features. All are open at the top and equipped with elastic banding to assure close fitting to the head.

Warm-Weather Reefer Coats

A REEFER coat has become such an essential of the wardrobe that summer versions are appearing in the shops. These are finger-tip length, although they follow the same tailored, double-breasted trend of the full-length styles. Quilted linens, novelty piques and corded synthetics are the favorite materials. When dark fabrics are used, large contrasting buttons supply a striking contrast.

The quilted vogue is noted in other casual coats for summer wear and many of these are made of cotton fabrics. One printed linen bolero, for example, is navy blue in color, but has pink flowers appliqued and quilted in a border pattern. Another interesting jacket of the fitted type is made of flowered crepe, the large designs being outlined with quilting.

Cool Dresses

Everything from hats to rooms subscribes to the air-cooling vogue. Summer dresses are the latest to be included. One that illustrates the trend is made of a burlap type of fabric which is sufficiently loose of weave to provide plenty of air holes. It appears in a natural string tone enhanced by raffia trimming. Braided green raffia fashions a belt, while the buttons which close the shirtwaist type of blouse are made of natural wood covered with strips of colorful raffia.

A DUMMY MAKES GOOD

London engagement. Bergen has.

He was a little doubtful about that London trip; wondered how the Britishers would take to Charlie's shabby-genteel British accent and his monocle. They ate it up. In Sweden, besides appearing in Rolfe's Revue on the Stockholm stage, he gave a command performance before the Crown Prince.

There's an amusing story about his London trip, or rather about his last week in America before he went to England. He was appearing at the Chez Paree in Chicago. And, just to get in a boost for his forthcoming trip, told about it in a novel way. It occurred one night at the late show and a number of actors in the city were in the audience.

Charlie opened this bit of the act by remarking, "Edgar, I've been carrying you along for years now and I'm getting pretty tired of it. I've had some very flattering offers and I think I'll go out on my own."

To which Bergen answered with, "Well, Charlie, that's too bad because I'd been planning to take you to London." The rest of the skit was devoted to Charlie trying to get back into his master's good graces. It was all spontaneous. It made such a hit that the theatrical crowd came back every night for a week, demanding that Bergen do the "London" bit. And Bergen never could remember just how he'd done it before.

In the broadcasting studio, Bergen appears to be working carelessly. Actually his brain is working overtime on every nuance of each line. The old line comedians work with their senses—Bergen works with his head.

He's a heavy drinker—of coffee. He sleeps lightly and fitfully, gets up in the middle of the night to work on a script. His chief exercise consists of carrying Charlie around in a heavy suitcase. Bergen is also a fascinating talker and spinner of yarns. His hair is a little thin in front which makes his blue eyes stand out all the brighter.

As for Charlie, he just sits around with a painted grin on his face. Bergen does all the work and he gets all of the applause. Who could think of a better or more comfortable existence than that?

Meat Ring

One pound round steak, ground.
One-half pound lean pork.
Pepper to taste.
Two cups soft crumbs.
Three eggs.
Two teaspoons salt.

Moisten crumbs with milk, add beaten eggs and seasoning. Mix thoroughly with ground meat and place into ring mold or make into any desired shape. Bake at 350 degrees F. for about one and one-half hours. Serve with peas and carrots and mashed potatoes.

Summer Gloves In Bright Hues

ANY woman who sticks to plain gloves this summer will demonstrate her steadfastness to conventional fashion rules, because so many tricky styles are appearing that they will be hard to resist. Color, for example, has entered the mode and there are vivid hues for hands as there are for head and feet.

Many of the white fabric gloves have black or bright colored palms while white leather gloves also add colorful bindings and stitching. Especially interesting in its addition of a bright tone is a white doeskin glove which has a detachable fringed tab of a clay brown shade.

Hand-crocheted gloves and mits are shown of white and colored cottons and dark linen gloves which have contrasting palms are new and smart this season.

Fried Cauliflower

Dip raw flowerets of cauliflower in flour, then in beaten egg to which two tablespoons of water have been added, then in crumbs. Fry in deep fat. Serve piping hot with cheese sauce or with hollandaise sauce, and you have a good dish of cauliflower, French fried.

A few drops of disinfectant added to the water when cleaning the bathroom are well added. It will give the room a clean smell and at the same time will kill any germs that may be lurking in the bowls.

Summer Bags

SUMMER bags which are made of challis are among the gayest of accessories to appear this season. Cretonnes and printed linens also are being used for informal bags, many of which are so large that they suggest regulation knitting bags although intended for general purposes. All are of the pouch type. Another evidence of the vogue of prints for summer bags is the introduction of a sling handle which accompanies the patent leather bag and is made of the same fabric as the frock worn when the bag is carried.

The Zero Hour

By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD, May 15.

AT the zero hour, when the director says "Roll 'em!" and a movie scene gets under way, actors react in different ways.

Most of them appear calm, poised, completely at ease. But inside, what goes on! They are standing before the camera, the clapper has held that black and white board with the mystic symbols of scene identification before their faces, and popped it shut—clack!—and they're on their own.

"It's like jumping into a pool of ice-cold water," says Clark Gable. Watch Gable in the just-before-the-battle stage, and you'll see him grab the lapels of his coat, then suddenly relax. That's a poise-retainer for him.

Myrna Loy gets the same psychological effect by adjusting her hair, ever so slightly, even though it's all been done before by the expert on the set.

Shirley Temple, youngest of the troupers, shows least concern of any. She'll stand there grinning confidently, through take after take, while a veteran like C. Aubrey Smith, twice floored by "blown" lines, braces himself for a third attempt.

Marlene Dietrich usually touches her make-up, steps on to the scene of action, and waits for the clapper to sound, all very coolly. Joan Crawford looks tense and is tense. Usually she has had phonograph music to key her emotionally just before the scene. Then she steps forth to battle, clears her throat and is ready.

—o-o—

Bette Davis is intent, but not tense. Robert Taylor has a habit of straightening his tie, screwing up his face, but Robert Montgomery merely keeps up his usual stream of lively chatter. Dick Powell, used to his part, too, shows no nervousness. At the signal he can turn on his grin or make a face.

—o-o—

WARNER BAXTER, seasoned veteran of many "Roll 'em!" calls, still unconsciously pulls at his ears and nose. Frank Morgan twirls the ends of his mustache, and Lionel Barrymore walks away from the camera, then back again.

Joan Bennett becomes, for the moment, a frantic gum-chewer. But she disposes of it, in case this bothers you, before going in front of the camera.

● THE KISS, long the big punch in movie love scenes but lately under wraps, is returning in its glory.

It is coming back even in that hackneyed fade-out clinch which for a while went under cover while sophistication, coyness, and comedy ruled the ending.

And next year's kisses—currently in process of manufacture on the sound stages of Hollywood — are going to be something else again.

Next year's kisses, if what goes on here is an indicator, are going to be gentle and a little more lingering than they have been in the past few years.

That fade-out kiss between Jean Harlow and Robert Taylor in "Personal Property" was a fair sample of what to expect. It was the most prolonged osculation these eyes have seen since the movies went pure back in 1933. But it was a comedy kiss, and that makes a difference. The Garbo-Gilbert kissing marathons of old weren't supposed to be funny.

—o-o—

Rotund Archie Mayo, who has to direct some romantic passages between Olivia de Havilland and Leslie Howard in "Gentlemen After Midnight," sees an economic significance in the kissing trend.

"The depression seems to be over," he says, "and that most certainly will be reflected in screened love as in real romance.

"With financial security round the corner, the world can find time to make love convincingly and unhurriedly. The four-foot kiss of the past three years can be lengthened now to occupy at least six feet of film."

—o-o—

● AND YOU can hear Lloyd Bacon telling his players, about to embark on a kiss, to "keep it sweet and gentle—take your time. Bacon's directions to kissers generally used to be "Make it short and snappy." And Mervyn LeRoy says. "There, that's right. Put some feeling in it!"

The love scene between Ian Hunter and Kay Francis in "Confession" is one of the longest filmed in recent months—longest in point of endurance kissing. It is the kiss that is supposed to seal their betrothal and it will occupy all the time and space on the screen permitted by the Hays office.

Love scenes between Bette Davis and Henry Fonda in "That Certain Woman" are also unusually prolonged and tender, photographically speaking. Even Martha Raye and Bob Burns, if this keeps up, may go in for serious, constructive cinema kissing.

Supper Snack

Two tablespoons fat or oil.
One-half onion, chopped fine.
Two pounds chopped beef.
One can condensed tomato soup.

Heat fat or oil; cook onion in it until tender. Add chopped beef; cook, stirring constantly, until brown. Add tomato soup; cook until mixture thickens slightly. Serve on toast. Serves six.

A SCENE FROM WAR'S OTHER SIDE.

OUR HERO, SPENCER TRACY, BEFORE BEING CAUGHT IN THE DRAFT FOR THE WAR MOVIE, "THEY GAVE HIM A GUN."

GEN. SHERMAN WAS RIGHT

● War is Hell Even If It's in Movies

By SPENCER TRACY

BACK in 1917, I tried to enlist in the United States Marines. They turned me down as being too young, so I joined the Navy.

I never even considered going into the Army until 20 years later, when M.-G.-M. handed me the role of Private Fred Willis in William Joyce Cowen's "They Gave Him a Gun."

Well, all I've got to say is that Sherman had the right idea. War is hell, even in Hollywood.

In the first place, I'd just finished work in "Captains Courageous." For the preceding week, Freddie Bartholomew and Lionel Barrymore and John Carradine and Charley Grapewin and all the rest of us had been doing shipwreck sequences, and we were all about shipwrecked to a frazzle. Having ice-cold waves breaking over your head at intervals for three days doesn't improve your disposition. All I asked was to be allowed to lie down in the sun and thaw out. Instead, they put me in the Army.

When I tried to join the Marines, I did so with the idea of seeing some excitement. When I got into the navy, the least I expected was to see the world through a porthole. As it was, I wound up in a training station at Norfolk, Va., looking eastward to the sea and considering myself lucky if they let me go cruising in a whaleboat. So if you want excitement, join the film army, as I did.

—o-o—

AS I said, they hauled me out of the water on a Saturday afternoon, when we finished "Courageous." Monday morning, I was standing in the middle of the street of a shell-torn French village on the back lot, and Woody Van Dyke was ordering Harry Albiez, his prop man, to outfit me to the last cartridge.

Well, if Van Dyke is a Major in the Marines, I'm glad they didn't accept me.

We marched 50,000 miles that first day, and I got muddier at every step. Two days later I was told we were going on location. "What a break," I said to myself, "now maybe I can sit down."

So they took us to La Jolla, to the Casa de Manana, which is one of the coast's ritzy resort hotels. The prospects looked pretty fine. I could look out of my window and see the ocean rolling in and breaking over the rocks. Everything was very peaceful and soothing until the following morning, when Van Dyke ordered everybody up at 5 a. m. Just because Van can't sleep nights is no reason why my shut-eye should be disturbed, as far as I can see. So when the phone rang, I just took it off the hook and went back to sleep. About 15 seconds later, in marches Franchot Tone, fully dressed.

"Get up," says Franchot. "Didn't you hear reveille? You're in the army now."

At 5:30 they served breakfast. At 6:15 we reported at the U. S. Marine rifle range. Three hundred extras from San Diego, brought in busses, had arrived there ahead of us. I wonder if they knew what they were in for when they signed up for this enlistment. We were all rookies together. Franchot and I lined up with them, were handed our uniforms and changed. Needless to say, the shoes were a bit tight, the shirts wouldn't button at the neck, and so on. What price realism!

The peculiar thing about this war, of course, was that we'd been in France already and here we were now, back at the training station in this country, just joining up. Quite a system.

For three days we did "squads right" and "squads left" and shouldered arms and marched around that parade ground until its a wonder we didn't wear it down to bedrock. The second day we got a break because the sun didn't come out until 11 a. m. We met a lot of Army, Navy and Marine officers who were most cordial hosts, but then they didn't have to drill.

It was just like Van Dyke to pick for his top sergeant in the picture, Ed Dearing, who had been a drill sergeant during the war. A regular fellow, Ed, when he isn't putting you through your drill paces.

The only part of that location I liked was when Franchot and I had a chance to lie down at target practice. And what does he do but show me up by knocking off a bull's-eye at 600 yards.

When we got back to the studio, the war started all over again. But at last I had the laugh on the rest of them. The battlefield was at Chatsworth, which is about five minutes' ride from my home. So I slept later in the morning and got home earlier at night. It's much more convenient to have the war at your back door and come from it at the end of the working day.

Did you ever run across a field while 112 charges of dynamite were exploding in front of you, behind you and to either side of you? Yes, I know that's nothing to what it was actually like in France, but even the veterans who were taking part in those scenes admitted it gave them quite a thrill.

—o-o—

IT'S done so that there's no real danger, if you watch your step. Art Brown, who has been powder man on the lot for the past 14 years, prepares his charges in advance, burying them under sifted earth which has been wet down. Each charge has been marked by a numbered red sack, and the numbers correspond to keys on four keyboards which set off the explosions. The red photographs black and doesn't show in the film, but it's perfectly visible to the advancing troops.

We come charging along and Art's four assistants sit at their keyboards, playing a little tune. It's the bombardment. The charge goes off and the dirt flies up in the air, leaving a shell hole behind it. The keyboard operators sit up on a hillside where they can see the whole panorama, and if any man gets too near to one of those red sacks, the charge is not set off.

Franchot and Ed Dearing and I take shelter behind a cemetery wall. From the roof of a farmhouse down the road, a machine gun crew is trying to wipe us out. You can see the bullets knocking chips out of the wall. We have to duck so that the dirt and grit doesn't get into our eyes.

For another three days we charged back and forth across that No Man's Land, and occupied and lost that village about umpteen times, with time out for lunch, when the Americans, the French and the Germans all lined up at the caterers' vans and got their hot roast beef, beans and spinach, apple pie and coffee. Also milk or orange juice, if you wanted it. And buttered rolls. Van Dyke, like Napoleon, admits that an army moves on its stomach.

—o-o—

WE fought the war and got it over in three days, which must be some sort of a record. Whereupon we started on a third location at Sunland, where Gladys George joined us. By now we were so used to army life that the three of us, Franchot, Gladys and I, used Army tents for dressing rooms.

All this, of course, doesn't begin to tell the story of the picture, but that's beside the point.

The circus sequences were really a lot of fun, after the war stuff, but I never worked in any picture in which I did so much standing up and marching and running around and so little sitting down. Even as the circus barker I had to stand up and shout most of the time. That's why I'm going to be a radio operator, or something, when the next war breaks out. Those guys always seem to be provided with chairs.

The Adolescent Daughter; Way To Handle Her

Mother's Affection Will Do Better Than Any Other Force.

By Angelo Patri

"SHE is cranky, never wants to be told how to do anything, and she doesn't know how to do what other girls her age do without thinking about it. Lately she has turned against me and won't even speak to me. I'm sure I don't know what to do with a daughter like that. I only want to do good to her. It's not for me that I want things done right. It's for her."

That was what mother said about Louise who was in open rebellion against her mother.

"I just can't stand it. She seems to think that I'm still three years old, and I'm 16. I want to go out with some of the girls and boys, just to the house three doors down street. To people we have known all our lives. Mother starts. "Who's going? Who else? Sure there isn't anybody else? Well, I wish you'd stay home then I'd know where you were.' That's the beginning.

"'What dress are you going to wear? It needs pressing.' I knew it needed pressing and I had out the ironing board and the iron. Mother snatches away the iron. Then she takes the board and sets it up, saying, 'So. Now why didn't you put it there first place? Give me the iron. I'll connect it. You might slip, where is that dress? If it's to be done decently I'd better do it.'

"By that time I'm bursting with rage. I could attend to all that myself and with no bother at all. It's the same with everything. I don't know anything; I can't do anything; I'm just a helpless fool in my mother's eyes. Everybody else seems to think I'm at least normal."

—o-o—

THIS IS the adolescent battle. Mother is anxious about many things that the girl knows nothing about and can know nothing about until time and experience teach her. The girl wants to try out her world, try herself in various situations, experiment a bit with life. Even the little that an iron and an ironing board allow is welcome. Mother dreads experiments. She has seen some dreadful ends to experiments, and she fears that her daughter might be caught in one. Affection is not lacking on either side, but understanding is absent—completely.

Adolescent girls, and boys as well, feel themselves grown up in many ways, and they are. But along with their maturity is that part of themselves that is still childlike. It is clear that, being part adult and part child, there cannot be an even progress through life.

—o-o—

EXPERIENCE and strength and full development are on mother's side, weakness, wavering, indecision, uncertainty, ignorance, are strong on the daughter's side. Only an eager will to do and to dare is powerful in the adolescent girl and drives her to want to go alone and experiment without advice or check. Somehow these two situations must be harmonized.

Affection will do that better than any other force. If a mother has trained her daughter to know her as an affectionate and understanding friend there will be no division, and no rebellion at this stage. If that association and understanding is lacking, then it must be provided at the instant. There must be compromise, there must be affection on both sides. Especially must there be faith and trust and hope on the mother's part. Faith is the salvation of the adolescent-parental relationship.

India Print Frock

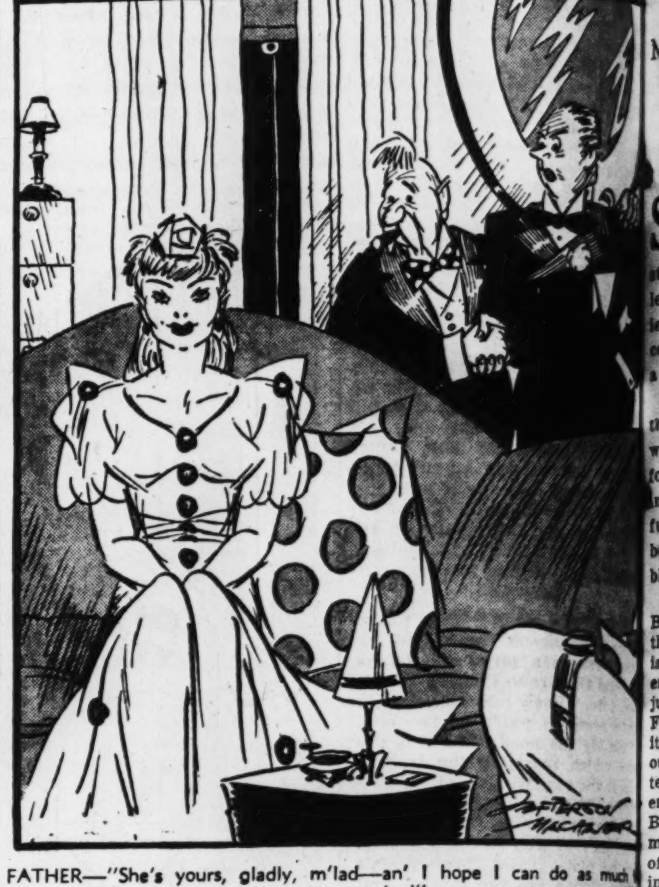
An India print frock is a colorful addition to the summer wardrobe and can be a flattering costume providing the style is chosen with care. Little-girl types which have puffed sleeves, tight bodices and full skirts are being stressed but call for slender figures and youthful faces. More sophisticated are modified redingote themes and two-piece sports dresses to suit other figures and ages.

Popular Herb

Parsley is the best known and most commonly used of all the culinar herbs. It is slow to germinate, so the seed should go into the ground early. Plant in a compact mass so that a small frame can be placed over it before freezing weather. Thus protected it will yield sprigs for use through the winter.

If you would avoid scratching table tops, paste pieces of felt on the backs of the pottery ash trays and vases.

GIVEN IN MARRIAGE



FATHER—"She's yours, gladly, m'lad—an' I hope I can do as much [for] you some day!"

Corned Beef

A recipe that sometimes is difficult to locate is for old-fashioned corned beef . . . like this!

Use a four-pound solid piece of corned beef such as fancy brisket, navel, flank or neck; wash under running water to remove outside brine and tie securely. Cover with cold water, bring slowly to a boil and cook about five minutes, remove scum, cover and simmer three hours, or until meat is tender. Cool slightly in stock; then remove to hot platter and serve with horseradish or mustard sauce as desired. Approximate yield, eight portions. Serve with boiled cabbage if desired.

For extra flavor spread the toast to be used for creamed tuna fish or salmon with butter or margarine creamed in a bowl first rubbed with a clove of garlic.

Baked Rice Pudding

Three-fourths cup uncooked rice.
One and one-half quarts milk.
Three-fourths cup sugar.
Three-fourths teaspoon salt.
Dash of nutmeg.
Three-fourths cup seedless raisins.

Combine rice, milk, sugar and salt in greased baking dish. Bake uncovered in a very slow oven (275 degrees) for two to three hours. Stir mixture well with fork several times during the first hour of baking, then add nutmeg and raisins. Continue baking, stirring, whenever a brown film forms on top. Serve warm or cold.

CALLING ALL DOGS

By Albert Payson Terhune

DO you know the Old English Sheepdog? If not you miss acquaintance with one of the wisest and stanchest and finest canines on the face of the earth. You will notice that most dogs of that breed are tailless. And most of them did not have the tail amputated in babyhood. No, the average Old English Sheepdog is born tailless. Five or six hundred years ago he had a luxuriant tail. But he lost it. Let me tell you how and why.

Back in the fifteenth century he was used all over England for herding sheep. And a splendid job he performed at his life trade. But, at birth, his tail was bitten off—bitten, not cut—by his owner, close to the roots.

One reason for his mutilation was a crazy belief that tailless dogs never go mad. Another reason was his owner's effort to dodge the heavy government tax imposed on all dogs' tails. (The technical term, "curtailed dogs" was shortened, it is said, to "cur dogs").

Year after year, century after century, the Old English Sheepdogs' tails were amputated at birth. At last Nature began to produce a few dogs of that breed which were born without tails. Today many more Old English Sheepdogs are born without tails than with them.

—o-o—

A DENVER READER, A. R., writes me that his last four dogs have died from distemper, and asks why. He says he bought a dog at once to replace the first of these victims. It died of the same malady. So did his next dog; and his next. To me, as to any other dogman, there is no mystery at all in this.

If a man should die of virulent smallpox, and if his room and his bed and his sheets were then used, undisinfected, the next user would be in grave peril of smallpox.

A dog dies from distempter, the most infectious of diseases. Its owner brings home a new dog, to occupy the living quarters of the first animal. It would be a miracle if the newcomer escaped infection.

When your dog dies (or recovers) from distemper, destroy all his bedding and everything else he has used, including his kennel. Then disinfect the whole place thoroughly.

Wait for some weeks before buying another dog. Meantime, repeat the disinfecting several times. Also disinfect any clothes you may have worn while you were nursing his predecessor. Otherwise you are extremely likely to lose the new dog, as you lost the old.

Mal-Distribution Said to Pose Choice

By Max Putzel

SEEN from the vantage of a thousand stream of confident chatter runs a murmur legitimate theater is in so crucial a state of iest old-timers, bucked up by the two most

But with the benefit of a long-range vie that the present situation holds the seeds of way never hoped for. Since this is to be nei for the commercial theater's heyday nor an ng forth of some brave new cult, consider it ful forecast of an observer seated in a Middle boasted 20 thriving theaters and now dares n ble shows a year.

Two problems, among the many Broadway faces, are salient. First, the growing realization that there is an enormous and growing audience starved for "real" theater, and just out of Broadway's reach. (The Federal Theater Project estimates its audience at 15,000,000 and various community and summer theaters play to an unappraised audience possibly as massive.) Second, Broadway likewise suffers from malnourishment—and in the midst of plenty: There is a glut of aspiring youngsters unable to get a chance, much less a living. And since recovery is already established, it becomes obvious that most of them never will. With millions in the West, the South and the Middle West eager to see them act, they simply can't get jobs. Moreover, they don't deserve jobs, for their training hasn't even begun. At this time they should be apprentices, learning the hard rudiments of their art, but there is no longer a school where they can learn. The Road has dwindled to a footpath. Stock companies are virtually extinct. And these were (and in the nature of things will remain) the only adequate schools of practical dramatics. Formal schools cannot take their place.

The supercilious attitude toward the one-night stand that once typified Broadway's attitude, has therefore vanished. Those who smirked when Eva Le Gallienne and Katharine Cornell tried to talk up a national stock theater several years ago, are ruefully silent now. And later this month the American Theater Council, a group supposed to represent every element that takes part in producing a play, is meeting to take up collectively the problem of founding a true American theater.

PROBABLY the Federal Theater Project did more than anyone cares to admit to bring the point home. Under the gifted volatile leadership of its director, Hallie Flanagan, F T P was able to prove the existence of a great public and to hint that theater people must revise their attitude towards the small-town audience. This has been a lesson hard to swallow, but undeniably to the point.

If the reaction F T P perceived when presenting small communities with their first heady taste of the excitement of three-dimensional theater can be called typical, then it must be admitted that there is a demand for legitimate drama which Broadway hasn't even attempted to meet. This fact is more important than that F T P was able to give Christopher Marlowe's "Dr. Faustus" the longest run in its 350-year history. For it proves that the muted cultural desires of all America revolve around the theater. The spontaneous springing up of thousands of "little theaters"—theaters where amateurs perform and where groceries are bartered for admission, shows in barns and factory lofts—all proves that the popular success of F T P was no accident, that the nation, despite a copious diet of movies, is starved for the real thing.

Recently that stalwart veteran, Arthur Hopkins, set down in tones of black pessimism his view that the theater is already dead, killed by the movies. He was sharply reprimanded by Burns Mantle, the critic, a man with a reputation as unimpeachable as the producer's. "I regret with Mr. Hopkins the passage of the theater of our earlier devotions and enthusiasms," Mantle wrote fervently. "But I find satisfaction in the thought that this great new audience that is now coming into the theater, plus the demand it will create, will eventually lift it to even greater heights and accomplishments than either he or I ever dreamt it would attain."

IN OTHER words, the movie producers, whom all stage people credit with having dealt the almost fatal blow from which they are now staggering, may have created a public of unprecedented size, whose demands they themselves will not always be able to satisfy. There are any number of run-down actors ready to swear at the drop of a hat that Hollywood has crushed out all vestige of public taste. Others who have stooped to earn fat checks from the movies will say worse. But the wisest voices in the theater can be heard wondering whether their own calling hasn't suffered from many of the shortcomings with which Holly-

A Mid-Western View of Broadway in Transition

Mal-Distribution Said to Pose Choice Between Change and Extinction; Movies May Prove Beneficial to Stage.

By Max Putzel

SEEN from the vantage of a thousand miles Broadway has the mannered jaunty look of a decaying beauty primping desperately to win back suitors once snubbed without a qualm. Below the stream of confident chatter runs a murmur of anxiety. The fact is, legitimate theater is in so crucial a state of flux that even the crustiest old-timers, bucked up by the two most successful seasons of recent memory, are ready to admit they're scared. One could make out a fair brief to show that American theater is heading for extinction.

But with the benefit of a long-range view one might also argue that the present situation holds the seeds of accomplishments Broadway never hoped for. Since this is to be neither a maudlin obituary for the commercial theater's heyday nor another hysterical heralding forth of some brave new cult, consider it merely the slightly wistful forecast of an observer seated in a Middle Western city that once boasted 20 thriving theaters and now dares not hope for 20 respectable shows a year.

Two problems, among the many Broadway faces, are salient. First, the growing realization that there is an enormous and growing audience starved for "real" theater, and just out of Broadway's reach. (The Federal Theater Project estimates its audience at 15,000,000 and various community and summer theaters play to an unappraised audience possibly as massive.) Second, Broadway likewise suffers from malnourishment—and in the midst of plenty: There is a glut of aspiring youngsters unable to get a chance, much less a living. And since recovery is already established, it becomes obvious that most of them never will. With millions in the West, the South and the Middle West eager to see them act, they simply can't get jobs. Moreover, they don't deserve jobs, for their training hasn't even begun. At this time they should be apprentices, learning the hard rudiments of their art, but there is no longer a school where they can learn. The Road has dwindled to a footpath. Stock companies are virtually extinct. And these were (and in the nature of things will remain) the only adequate schools of practical dramatics. Formal schools cannot take their place.

The supercilious attitude toward the one-night stand that once typified Broadway's attitude, has therefore vanished. Those who smirked when Eva Le Gallienne and Katharine Cornell tried to talk up a national stock theater several years ago, are ruefully silent now. And later this month the American Theater Council, a group supposed to represent every element that takes part in producing a play, is meeting to take up collectively the problem of founding a true American theater.

PROBABLY the Federal Theater Project did more than anyone cares to admit to bring the point home. Under the gifted volatile leadership of its director, Hallie Flanagan, F T P was able to prove the existence of a great public and to hint that theater people must revise their attitude towards the small-town audience. This has been a lesson hard to swallow, but undeniably to the point.

If the reaction F T P perceived when presenting small communities with their first heady taste of the excitement of three-dimensional theater can be called typical, then it must be admitted that there is a demand for legitimate drama which Broadway hasn't even attempted to meet. This fact is more important than that F T P was able to give Christopher Marlowe's "Dr. Faustus" the longest run in its 350-year history. For it proves that the muted cultural desires of all America revolve around the theater. The spontaneous springing up of thousands of "little theaters" —theaters where amateurs perform and where groceries are bartered for admission, shows in barns and factory lofts—all proves that the popular success of F T P was no accident, that the nation, despite a copious diet of movies, is starved for the real thing.

Recently that stalwart veteran, Arthur Hopkins, set down in tones of black pessimism his view that the theater is already dead, killed by the movies. He was sharply reprimanded by Burns Mantle, the critic, a man with a reputation as unimpeachable as the producer's. "I regret with Mr. Hopkins the passage of the theater of our earlier devotions and enthusiasms," Mantle wrote fervently. "But I find satisfaction in the thought that this great new audience that is now coming into the theater, plus the demand it will create, will eventually lift it to even greater heights and accomplishments than either he or I ever dreamt it would attain."

IN OTHER words, the movie producers, whom all stage people credit with having dealt the almost fatal blow from which they are now staggering, may have created a public of unprecedented size, whose demands they themselves will not always be able to satisfy. There are any number of run-down actors ready to swear at the drop of a hat that Hollywood has crushed out all vestige of public taste. Others who have stooped to earn fat checks from the movies will say worse. But the wisest voices in the theater can be heard wondering whether their own calling hasn't suffered from many of the shortcomings with which Hollywood is charged. Commercial theater is an industry, too; it simply hasn't been as efficient as the mass production industry out west.

Hollywood has certainly taught audiences a high standard of technical adeptness. It may have reduced the art of acting to a poor parody, a mere skill at projecting copious streams of "personality" toward a lens. But in doing so it has created directors and technicians. It has built up a criterion of verisimilitude which many road shows can't compete with.

And what is amazing about this is that in spite of the education Hollywood has given them, rural audiences flock to legitimate shows instantly, if admission prices are in any way comparable to those asked by the movies. Before F T P and before stage periodicals began carrying extensive descriptions of amateur productions, Broadway producers would have said that legitimate theater simply can't meet the film box office on its own ground, hence must strive for a more selective audience. Today it is recognized that brilliant scenic effects can be achieved at a lower cost than Broadway believed. Sets costing hundreds rather than tens of thousands of dollars can be remarkably effective. And if the maldistribution problem is to be solved, less expensive production methods must be sought and the ingenuity one has a right to except of the theater must be aimed in new directions. Hollywood has exhausted the possibilities of lavish decor without encroaching on the artistic birthright the stage has so often squandered.

Since New York will remain for a long time the dramatic capital of the nation, it is only fair that hinterland audiences be encouraged to expect more considerate treatment than they have received in the past. As these observations indicate, Broadway may find a realistic attitude towards present demand not only a means for reviving its old prestige, but a sound commercial move. If purely commercial considerations remain paramount, however, it can be safely assumed that Broadway has preferred oblivion to change.

Movie Time Table

AMBASSADOR — Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in "Shall We Dance?" with Edward Everett Horton and Harriet Hoctor, at 10:50, 1:32, 4:14, 6:56 and 9:36; "A Day With the Dionne Quintuplets," at 10:30, 1:10, 3:50, 6:35 and 9:15.

FOX — Eleanor Whitney and Charlie Ruggles in "Turn Off the Moon," at 12:52, 3:59, 7:06, 10:13. Miss Whitney in person at 12:47, 3:54, 7:01, 10:08. "King of Gamblers" with Claire Trevor and Lloyd Nolan, at 11:30, 2:37, 5:44 and 8:51.

LOEW'S — Janet Gaynor and Fredric March in "A Star Is Born," with Adolphe Menjou and May Robson, at 12:23, 2:42, 5:01, 7:20 and 9:39.

MISSOURI — George Brent and Josephine Hutchinson in "Mountain Justice," at 1:00, 3:45, 6:40 and 9:35; "Outcasts of Poker Flat," with Preston Foster and Jean Muir, at 2:30, 5:30 and 8:25.

SHUBERT — French passion play movie, "Golgotha." Matinees daily at 2:30. Evenings at 8:30.

Mummers' Last Play

On Thursday and Saturday at the Wednesday Club Auditorium The Mummers will present the sixth and final play of their current season, Paul Vulpius' comedy, "Gentlemen Wear Gloves."

Translated from the German by John Coman and introduced in this country by a Federal Theater Project unit, the play had a run of 82 performances last summer in New York. It has since been produced by other F T P units and is now doing a two-month tour in California. Willard H. Holland, director of the Mummers, will take the leading role. The plot is a satire on Wall Street plungers.

Hal King Held Over

Hal King's orchestra has been booked for a second week at the Forest Park Highlands ballroom. Rose Helen Shore is again featured singer.

Unique Play Festival Opens at Ann Arbor Tomorrow

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 16.

ON the heels of a musical celebration boasting such distinguished performers as Kirsten Flagstad, Elisabeth Rethberg and the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, comes tomorrow's opening of the Ann Arbor Dramatic Festival, now in its eighth year. Last night the musical fiesta came to an end with a gala concert production of "Aida." When the curtain goes up on Noel Coward's "Tonight at 8:30," tomorrow night at 8:30, it will be the beginning of a month of first-rate theater. Such happenings merit general attention when they take place in a town of less than 30 000.

There is nothing in America quite like this Ann Arbor Dramatic Festival. It has many counterparts, of course, in the summer festivals of Europe—at Stratford-on-Avon and Florence, for instance. But though festivals have been held in several cities in the United States, notably Louisville, Minneapolis, Milwaukee and Toledo— none seems to have had the staying power to grow into such an institution as this one, which is one man's answer to the disappearance of the so-called "popular-priced circuits."

Robert Henderson is the founder and continues to select the plays and to direct them. This young impressario is the son of a University of Michigan dean. He graduated from the university only in 1928, imbued with the intention of creating festival theater in Ann Arbor and hoping the principle would spread to other cities.

How he managed it is unknown or forgotten, but the first festival brought Margaret Anglin to Ann Arbor's Lydia Mendelssohn Theater in a translation of Sophocles' "Antigone." And the same year saw professional performances of three recent Broadway hits and two other revivals, "Lady Windermere's Fan," by Oscar Wilde, and Tchekov's "Seagull." This combination of classic weight and current frivolity seemed to indicate a sure sense of showmanship. Henderson's backers were evidently delighted and somehow the news got around outside.

The result has been the establishment of a theater unlike any in American stage history. Leaders in the profession first fancied the idea, then took it to their hearts. Blanche Yurka and Tom Powers came to Ann Arbor the second year and Noel Coward's "Private Lives" traveled hither almost direct from New York. The same canny blending of ancient and contemporary was pursued that year, with Sophocles and Shaw going hand in hand.

BY 1932 theater goers were reserving seats a year in advance. Stewart Chaney undertook the artistic direction and Martha Graham brought a recital of dancing to spice the fare. That season Glenn Hunter, Violet Kemble-Cooper. Patricia Collinge and Violet Heming were the stars and "Animal Kingdom" was the recent hit piece of the bill. The Greeks were not represented, and haven't been since.

Producers and playwrights in the world's dramatic capitals have become so enthusiastic over the Festival that Henderson doesn't even have to pay minimum royalties for producing the most popular shows of the winter season. Young actors and actresses are being given the opportunity to make their first important American appearances in Ann Arbor.

This year, for example, Henry Miller permitted Henderson to borrow Robert E. Sherwood's translation of Jacques Duval's "Tovarich" on condition that Elena Miramova, a promising Russian actress whom Miller starred in the London production of "Grand Hotel," be given the leading role.

The present season is shorter than former ones owing to the promoter's recent preoccupations with Hollywood, but it promises to be as interesting as its forerunners in most respects. Aside from the two plays mentioned, there will be a revival of "The Merchant of Venice" with Peggy Wood in the role of Portia, Gareth Hughes as Shylock and Rex Ingram (the Negro artist who played De Lawd in the film version of "Green Pastures") cast as Prince of Morocco. Gordon Daviot's "The Laughing Woman," which had successful performances in London and New York, is being given with Tonio Selwart, who headed the cast in New York, taking the leading role. Helen Chandler and Bramwell Fletcher are to be starred in the Coward tryptique, which is a free gift from the author.

One gets a swift understanding of the distinction between this festival and conventional commercial productions on the road by a glance at the tariff. A subscription to all four plays this year costs less than current prices for a single admission to a prosperous Chicago musical.

Feverish Activity as Muny Opera Awaits Arrival of Stars

THE first of the nearly threescore of principals engaged by the Municipal Opera for the coming season will start traveling to St. Louis next week to begin rehearsals for "The Great Waltz," the inaugural presentation, which begins Friday night, June 4, and continues for 10 consecutive nights. Actual rehearsals will get under way at the Forest Park Theater May 25.

A newcomer, Bernice Claire, coloratura soprano of the stage, screen and radio, and three stars of previous Municipal Opera seasons, Guy Robertson, Gladys Baxter and Joseph Macauley, will be seen in the leading roles of the "Great Waltz," which is being presented for the first time at the outdoor theater.

Robertson will sing the part of Johann Strauss Jr., which he took at the opera's world premiere at the Center Theater, New York, three years ago. Miss Baxter will appear as Countess Olga, a part she played for one season with the original company. She was seen in the part when the work was presented at the Municipal Auditorium here two winters ago.

Others who will make their Municipal Opera debut in the season's first production are Eric Mattson, Lew Parker and Harry Mestayer.

The 92 chorus members have been in rehearsal for the last 10 days. The singers, under the supervision of George Hirst and Jacob Schwartzdorf, musical director and associate musical director, respectively, gather daily at the Gatesworth Hotel to run over the scores of each of the 12 productions to be given next summer. Dancers are being put through their paces by Theodor Adolphus, ballet master, and Al White Jr., dance director, at the American Theater. The units will shift their activities to the Municipal Theater some time this week.

Little Symphony Announces Soloists And Further Plans

According to advices from the Little Symphony Association, outside soloists will be featured at two of the four concerts planned for this summer. Soloists drawn from the orchestra will be included in the other programs, according to a custom successfully initiated last season. As announced last week, the association has decided to present the series on consecutive Friday evenings in the Quadrangle at Washington University.

Ruth Wilson, young California violinist and former pupil of Scipione Guidi, will be soloist at the second concert of the season, on July 2, playing the Bach E-major concerto. Miss Wilson is now in New York preparing for a formal debut next fall. She has appeared as soloist with the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra in Hollywood Bowl and has given several recitals in St. Louis.

The final concert will feature a novelty, the Vivaldi-Bach concerto for four pianos and string orchestra, the pianists being young St. Louisans: Dora Minkin, Edith Gordon, Josephine Pipkin and Dorothy Dring. This is Sebastian Bach's arrangement of the same Vivaldi concerto for four violins which was played at the closing concert of the recent St. Louis Symphony Orchestra season.

As previously explained, the forthcoming series, which opens June 25, is in the nature of a test to discover to what extent summer concerts of this nature appeal to a larger audience than could be accommodated in the garden theater where the concerts were initiated. Subscriptions, which are expected to go on public sale within a short time, will be sold at prices 25 per cent below the previous charge. The orchestra will be seated on a platform several feet above the green and facing the main archway. A reserved section will be directly opposite the platform, facing the cloistered porch of the library. Behind this and flanking it will be areas set aside for lower-priced seats. After paying a low general admission fee, the audience will be permitted to sit on the grass or purchase cushions and chairs.

The new site is expected to make the concerts available to a public hitherto barred from attending by the distance and the higher prices.

Passion Play Film Opens at Shubert

"Golgotha," a screen version of the passion play produced by a French company in Morocco, opens this afternoon at the Shubert. Direction is by Julien Duvivier and the role of the Christus is entrusted to Robert Le Vigan.

The film is said to have won the imprimatur of an invited audience of clergymen and teachers here. Dialogue is in English.

The producer, George McLeod Baynes, points out that he was motivated by the historic fact that all theater springs originally from religious festivals. He has modeled his production on the passion plays given periodically in numerous European villages.

Current Movies in Review

WITH only two new bills listed at the first-run houses and the more promising newcomer a mild disappointment, an extra salute to "A Star Is Born" may be not altogether out of order. This Technicolor play, which came in so unpretentiously by comparison with several inferior efforts of recent weeks, remains far and away the most exciting incident of present currency. As previously announced, it has entered on its second week at Loew's. May it prosper!

From the first instant one is made aware that the staff of "Star Is Born" are handling material both familiar and deeply consequential to them. The scene of course is Hollywood and the characters are retainers of its leading industry. For once there is no attempt to treat this material from the bedazzled point of view Hollywood anticipates in its audience. There is no harsh fabrication of glamour. The attitudes represented to be those of movie puppets and those who hold their strings ring true. One feels the insistent tug of reality at every point. Dialogue is restrained and innocent of cliches. The whole structure of the plot, morticed as it is with inner voices of disillusionment, has a unity of purpose and treatment free from the ordinary pressure of compromise.

Perhaps the fact that William Wellman both wrote the story and directed its filming is partly responsible for this. That Dorothy Parker participated in the adapting certainly accounts for the swift unblanching directness of the dialogue and its impeccable editing. Her peculiar blend of rich sympathy and homicidal wit is unmistakable and it tinctures every foot of sound track.

In sum, "A Star Is Born" succeeds because it never relinquishes its bite on emotional truth. Even the moments of electric inspiration that Fredric March, Janet Gaynor and Lionel Stander achieve in their acting seem to arise rather from experience than from mimic skill. At any rate here is one of the momentous exceptions that indicate the scope Hollywood can attain when blurb and box office are subordinated. David Selznick must feel rewarded in the consciousness of that achievement for the courage it took a movie producer to permit his hirelings to debunk their own (and his) profession.

Mountain Justice.

THE rest of the week's crop of celluloid can be taken more calmly. At the Missouri they're showing "Mountain Justice," a piece mounted on par-excellent foundations, but of gawky and shapeless super-structure. The plot obviously derives from the tragic Edith Maxwell case. In this revised and inflated version a mountain farm girl aspires to bring clinics to her people. Her father, a brutish traditionalist, opposes such newfangled nonsense with scorn and bull whips. The tale winds up in a trial for patricide, a lynching bee and escape in an airplane. The whole treatment is childish, though it might be earnestly recommended to the movie houses of Wise, Va. Josephine Hutchinson is tolerable for the leading role, though she plays with apparent sincerity.

At the Fox Theater.

IN contrast to "Mountain Justice," the second feature at the Fox, a racketeer piece called "King of Gamblers," starts with a trite theme and rises above it. Robert Florey endows it with competent direction and the principals—Lloyd Nolan, Claire Trevor and Akim Tamiroff—gallantly lavish on it some very professional acting. The story (of a slot machine racketeer, a floor-show dancer and a reporter) is rangy, but plausible. It's exciting enough if you haven't seen too much of the same plot too recently.

A musical called "Turn Off the Moon" is inadvisedly billed uppermost at the same theater. Those who can enjoy Charlie Ruggles, Eleanore Whitney, Kenny Baker, Phil Harris and Ben Blue, no matter what the producer gives them to play with, will make the most of this—probably admitting the while that "Turn Off the Moon" is pretty thin gruel. There are one or two nice tunes and some pleasant comic dancing by Ben Blue.

Films Revert To Biography For Inspiration

Hollywood Rediscovers the Past When Garbo Takes Role of Mme. Walewska.

By H. H. Niemeyer

HOLLYWOOD, May 15.

THEY'RE getting back to the early days of the movies now, falling back on biographical subjects to make into picture dramas. Garbo, you know, is doing "Madame Walewska" (Napoleon's girl friend), a picture which, incidentally, gives Bonaparte the best break he has had in films since that splendid little one-reeler of a good many years ago, "Napoleon's Barber." Strange to say Napoleon has been pretty much overlooked on the screen and although the Warner Brothers, who have always specialized in these biographical dramas, are reported to have paid a fabulous amount for the rights to Emil Ludwig's "Life of Napoleon Bonaparte," they have never done anything with it.

Be that as it may the present rush of true life stories—well, almost true—is only carrying on the early traditions of the movie game. As far back as 1912 Lou Tellegen and Sara Bernhardt were costarred in "Queen Elizabeth," which was considered a notable picture and a great box office success. One of the high lights in that earlier version came when Tellegen, waving his arms in a generous French gesture, accidentally hit the Divine Sara in the stomach with his fist.

Now in 1912 scenes were made once and only once. Retakes were unheard of and Bernhardt's indignation and pained look of surprise when Tellegen landed amidship, was embalmed for posterity after being shown in picture theaters the world over.

The earliest screen biographies were pretty highly fictionalized—with plenty of "mush interest" injected into the much used stories of Henry VIII, Joan of Arc and the ever reliable Cleopatra.

It was in 1918 that the new and struggling company formed by the Warner brothers got their first taste of the biographical thing with a dramatization of Ambassador Gerard's "My Four Years in Germany." It wasn't much of a picture but due to the general war excitement it made a lot of money for the Warners, who have never lost their interest in making pictures about people. They have lately done "The Life of Louis Pasteur," have just finished "Emil Zola" and have "Beethoven" on the fire.

About the same time that Gerard's story appeared the Universal Studios cut in with "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin." Such a title and such a picture wouldn't get anywhere today but it was rather highly praised at the time and looked upon as a real contribution to biographical history.

A YEAR or two after the war the Rockett brothers made "Abraham Lincoln" with George Billings and Louise Fazenda, both out of pictures now, and then, snowed under by the fad for war stories, biographical plays vanished for a time. The Warners didn't start the ball rolling again till 1928, when George Arliss "consented" to do his famous stage characterization of Disraeli for the screens, a consent which netted him, in that and succeeding films, more than a million American dollars. He still has the million—but now after several years' retirement in England, he is coming back to Hollywood for more.

There have been a lot of biographical screen plays since and any published story about a famous personage, living or dead, is sure to find a purchaser in Hollywood whether it is very accurate or not. We have had Alexander Hamilton, Madame DuBarry, a couple of new Henry the Eighths, Florence Nightingale, Diamond Jim Brady, Robert and Elizabeth Browning—in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street"—Florenz Ziegfeld and a host of others with, as already said, the life of Beethoven and a story of Gen. Goethals building the Panama Canal coming up. Norma Shearer is expected to make her re-entry in a Marie Antoinette drama.

STARS aren't the only movie folk with strange quirks of professional temperament. They get most of the publicity, it's true, but the prize, if any, would likely go to the directors. For instance:

William Dieterle always wears white gloves while he's directing. Thinks he'd be jinxed if he didn't.

Cecil B. DeMille must have $100 in gold in his pocket before he'll do a thing on a picture. Used to carry U. S. coins, but when the Government called in gold he substituted the Spanish equivalent.

Lewis Milestone is superstitious about sitting in a chair marked "Director."

Henry Hathaway, who has been doing "Souls at Sea," a nautical saga, with Gary Cooper and George Raft, won't go to see his own "rushes."

Mitchell Leisen makes a point of taking a small part in each of his own pictures, although he always cuts himself out afterwards. And he wears a brand-new suit on the first day of production.

RADIO NEWS AND CURRENT PROGRAMS

Engineers See Television on Large Screens

Pictures Expanded to Eight by Ten Feet — Radio Not Used in Tests.

RADIO engineers got a glimpse at the future of television the past week. They saw an image projected with excellent detail on a screen three by four feet square, then enlarged until it filled another screen approximately 8 by 10 feet, the Associated Press reports.

The larger picture was not so satisfactory from a viewing standpoint, because of the loss of light, but it indicated that such projection offered possibilities of development into a practicability.

The demonstration came at the concluding technical session of the silver anniversary convention of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

Hardly an engineer in the audience of 700 or more experienced difficulty in seeing all the details of the picture of a girl's face used in the test, even at 50 or more feet away from the screens. The image was not transmitted by radio; a special laboratory setup was used.

The projection was made possible by a new cathode ray tube designed primarily to produce screen images 18 by 24 inches equal to the brilliancy of home movies. It has been in course of development in the television laboratories of the Radio Corporation of America at Camden, N. J. Papers written by Dr. V. K. Zworykin, W. H. Painter and Dr. R. R. Law, who, with their associates have brought the tube to its present stage, explained some of its complicated details.

The engineers call it a "projection kinescope," but it might more aptly be termed a "tulip tube," for it resembles that flower more than anything else. There is a large cup-shaped glass bell with a flat end on which the image first appears. To this is attached a long narrow neck. The device is 18 inches long.

The tube, together with its enlarging lens system, was housed in a metal can mounted on a pedestal not unlike a snub-nosed telescope.

The original image on the tube is 1½ by 2¼ inches square and is 480 times brighter than when it is thrown on the screen.

Tests thus far have shown, the engineers explained, that the tube has a life of well over 500 hours.

While they expressed the belief that it offers a solution of the problem of obtaining large television pictures, they nevertheless pointed out that it was far from the final goal—incorporation in home television receivers.

The engineers also saw television on a screen, with images 18 by 24 inches square, produced by the new cathode ray tube, with brightness equal to that of home movies.

Illumination tests by Harley Iams, R. B. James and W. H. Hickok, also of the RCA laboratories, led them to conclude that outdoor television pickups of football games were less likely to be satisfactory than of parades and races. This, they held, was due to the time of day and the lateness of the season when football was played.

In the measurement and recording of the brightness of scenes typical for television, they also found that present equipment was sufficiently responsive for baseball, which is played in the sunniest months of the year.

Whether outdoor results were good, fair or poor, they added, depended to a large extent on the angle of the sun at various times of the day.

Dr. Zworykin, in a paper written with the collaboration of G. A. Morton and L. E. Flory, said that the "iconoscope," the electric camera of television, still was undergoing improvement toward greater sensitivity.

British Short Wave Broadcasting Power To Be 50,000 Watts

THE new transmitters being erected for the British short wave stations will be of 50,000 watts power and will be in use soon in addition to the present 10,000 watters. Altogether, there will be 23 transmitting systems at Daventry which may be shifted or combined for any desired direction effects.

A 50,000-watt transmitter will be erected this year at Rio de Janeiro.

Four 10,000-watt short wave stations, and a 5000-watter, will be built in India—at Delhi, Bombay, Calcutta and Madras.

An order for a 100,000-watt transmitter to be erected in Rome, Italy, has just been placed.

Reception at high volume of OLR4A, Prague, Czecho-Slovakia, from 9 to 10 p. m. Thursdays on 11.84 meg. is reported in the East. The programs from Holland, from 6 to 9 p. m. Wednesdays, continue to be of high quality. Good programs are coming from Buenos Aires nights on 9.66 meg.

Steps are being taken to acquire a site near Toronto for the first of a projected system of 50,000-watt radio stations to be operated by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, which is controlled by the Government.

Here and There on the Air

Better Broadcasts of Outdoor Events Planned—Stations to Be Built for Rebroadcasting American Programs in in China—500-Mile Auto Race Description May 31.

By J. L. S.

NBC facilities for covering with good tone fidelity events such as the Hindenburg disaster, conventions, parades and outdoor sports will be materially improved in July when new apparatus will replace all short wave transmitters and associated equipment in the regions around New York, Washington, Cleveland, Chicago, Denver and San Francisco. Used with the 70 new high fidelity amplifiers and 200 microphones recently distributed for use in remote control broadcasting in these six and in numerous other regions, the new facilities should insure much more satisfactory special broadcasts.

Appropriations have been made by the RCA for the erection of transmitting and receiving stations at or near San Francisco and at Shanghai for direct transmission of American radio programs for rebroadcasting in China. Meanwhile, arrangements are being made to transmit regular American programs over the commercial systems for reception in China. The plans are based on the expectation that carrying them out will create an expanding market in the Orient for American-made radio sets and for sale of commercially sponsored programs.

The Indianapolis 500-mile automobile race will be described on the WEAF or WJZ network Monday afternoon, May 31.

Lindbergh Tribute Today.

A TRIBUTE to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh for his flight to Paris 10 years ago will be part of the program at 12 noon today on KWK and the WJZ net. It will come from the Chicago Civic Opera House and will involve a four-way pickup.

John B. Kennedy, standing on the stage, will talk with E. L. Loniger, a flying friend of Lindbergh, who will be flying from St. Louis to Chicago on the mail route which Lindbergh once flew. He then will talk with Kenneth J. Boedecker, an aviation executive, who was the mechanic who "warmed up" the "Spirit of St. Louis" just before Lindbergh started his trans-Atlantic flight. Then he will recall the night Lindbergh landed in France, and a pickup in Paris will bring a creation of the scene in which Capt. M. de Lage, an officer who helped Lindbergh from his ship, will play a part. Boedecker will speak from the spot from which the flight started, and Capt. de Lage will be standing at the exact spot when Lindbergh landed.

For Tuesday.

PEGGY WOOD, the Broadway actress, and Terri LaFranconi, the tenor, are billed with Ted Hammerstein Tuesday night; Lou Holtz with Ben Bernie; Edward G. Robinson, the movie actor, with Richard Himber; Sid Silvers with Jack Oakie.

Mrs. Peter L. Harvie, president of the Association of Junior Leagues, will speak on "The Meaning of Junior League," at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday on the WJZ net.

Billed Wednesday.

GELETT BURGESS will talk on "Foibles of Fashion" in the Magazine of the Air Wednesday morning. Other Wednesday programs will include: a Farm and Home Hour broadcast from Iowa State College; a new program, at 1:45 on the WJZ net, by Michael Strange, playwright and actress, who once was the wife of John Barrymore; the weekly talk by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, in which she will go through the upstairs part of the White House; a dramatization of the life of Thomas A. Edison, the inventor, in the Cavalcade period; the singing of Mozart's "Toreador Variations," by Lily Pons; a performance of the first part of "Rogue Song," featuring Jessica Dragonette and Charles Kullmann, the tenor.

Thursday Lindbergh Program.

THE tenth anniversary of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's flight from New York to Paris, will be observed by a program at 12 noon Thursday on the WEAF net and W9XPD (31.6 meg.). The broadcast will come from a luncheon at the Lotus Club, New York, and will feature reminiscences by persons who played important parts in the preparations for the flight, including Maj. William B. Robertson of St. Louis, one of Lindbergh's backers; Edward P. Mulrooney, who at the time was Police Commissioner of New York; James J. Walker, former Mayor of New York; Charles L. Lawrence, inventor of the type of engine Lindbergh used; Dr. James H. Kimball of the United States Weather Bureau, who made up Lindbergh's weather chart; Richard B. Blythe and Harry A. Bruno, friends of Lindbergh; Raymond Orteig, donor of the $25,000 prize for the New York-Paris flight in 1927, and police officers who were assigned to guard Lindbergh before his flight.

A new 9 p. m. Thursday program from Chicago on the WJZ net will be called "NBC Night Club" and will have Morey Amsterdam, the comedian, as master of ceremonies.

Wm. A. Green Speaks.

WALTER PITKIN, the writer, will be Friday morning's Magazine of the Air speaker. A new National School Assembly by Radio program, started last week by the United States Office of Education, is set for 10:30 a. m. Friday on the WJZ net. It is designed to acquaint school pupils and graduates with the newest occupational trends. The keynote address by the Rev. Charles N. Arbuckle, of Newton Center, Mass., at the opening of the annual convention of the Northern Baptist Church will be broadcast at 3:15 p. m. Friday on the CBS net. Claudette Colbert and Melvyn Douglas, of the movies, are billed for the Hollywood Hotel. At 8:45 p. m. Friday, William A. Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, will discuss labor, social and industrial trends, in a CBS net talk. Gov. Frank Murphy, of Michigan, will speak on the same general topic at the same time Friday, May 28. Another Friday program, at 11 p. m. on the CBS net, will commemorate Col. Lindberg's 1927 flight to Paris.

W. C. Fields Will Be Regular Sunday Performer on KSD

Comedian Engaged for 16 Weekly Broadcasts of New Don Ameche Show at 6 O'Clock.

W. C. FIELDS, the movie comedian, who scored a "hit" in his first appearance on a regular radio program last Sunday night, has signed a contract for 16 weekly appearances on KSD's new show of which Don Ameche is the master of ceremonies. Fields, recovered from the effects of accidents which have kept him in retirement for nearly a year, kept listeners laughing continually last Sunday.

Carole Lombard of the movies will play in a sketch in the Ameche show this evening, and Joseph Bentonelli, the Metropolitan Opera tenor, will sing several songs. Edgar Bergen, the ventriloquist, and "Charlie"; Dorothy Lamour, the singer, and Werner Jannsen, the orchestra conductor, again will be in the show.

Changes on KSD.

SEVERAL periods on KSD will be affected this week by program changes. The hour from 8 to 9 o'clock tonight, formerly occupied by Gladys Swarthout's concert and special programs, will be given over to a dramatization entitled "Mice and Men," written by John Steinbeck and Frank Wilson to depict the struggles of two humble field workers to win a place in the economic sun and the tragic failure of their planning. Next Sunday, this hour on KSD will be taken over by the show, headed by James Melton, which has been broadcast from 6 to 7 o'clock Saturday evenings.

The Melton show will be off the air next Saturday night because of the shift to the following evening, and its plays will be taken for the one occasion by the Saturday Jamboree, which will be broadcast from 6 to 6:45, and by an address by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, from 6:45 to 7 o'clock.

The half hour on KSD Friday nights which has been devoted to John Held Jr.'s Varsity Show will be taken by two programs, starting this week—an extra 15 minutes of Jimmy Fidler's Hollywood Gossip from 8:30 to 8:45, and an additional Vic and Sade broadcast from 8:45 to 9 o'clock. The Tuesday night Jimmy Fidler and Vic and Sade programs will be continued at the usual time.

BOY SCOUTS NATURE CLUB TO BE FORMED

Religious Services at Camporee to Be Held at Tilles Park.

A nature club for Boy Scouts will be formed next Thursday evening at the home of Hermann Schwarz, 720 Clark avenue, Webster Groves. He is the senior scout counsellor in charge of the program leading to the rank of Scout Naturalist.

The nature club will be the first group to be formed as part of the program of Explorer Scouts. The club will be divided into smaller groups, each concentrating on a particular phase of nature study. Monthly meetings will be held.

At the first Camporee, to be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Tilles Park, religious services will be conducted Sunday morning. Protestants will hold a service at 10 a. m. with Dean Sidney Sweet of Christ Church Cathedral preaching the sermon. A mass for Catholic scouts and a Friday evening service for Jewish members also are planned.

Tilles Park is on Lay, Litzsinger and Rock Hill roads, between Manchester and Clayton roads.

Two trips to the National Jamboree are being offered as prizes in an essay contest by a downtown department store. The subject is "What I Have Got Out of Scouting." Essays must not be over 150 words.

More than 130 reservations have been made for the scouters' outing at Irondale May 29, 30 and 31. Sports, games and dancing are planned.

TROOP NOTES.

Troop 84, Salvator Evangelical Church, awarded second class badges to Robert Rodenbaugh, Robert Hensius, Edward Linhardt, W. Sproull and Russell Sproull Friday.

Last Saturday Troop 230 of Bellefontaine M. E. Church, South, hiked to the bluffs north of St. Louis and camped overnight.

Troop 129, St. George's Catholic Church, awarded Henry Graber a first class badge and advanced Alfred Goswert, Joseph Dittrich and Rudolph Brudder to first class rank Wednesday.

Scouts Joseph Witika, Ralph Kountzman, Paul Glowsczewski and Cecil Hollingsworth of Troop 215, Carondelet School, were advanced to second class rank Monday and Kenneth Herman, Melvin Verkect, Adolph Ferdina and Howard Mueller were invested as Tenderfoot Scouts.

Troop 156, Brith Sholom Temple, advanced Lester Pearl, Bill Truman and Irwin Moldofsky to first class rank and Stanley Schlessinger to second class at a court of honor last Thursday.

Twenty-fifth Commencement.

The twenty-fifth commencement exercises of the City College of Law and Finance will be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, June 1, at Municipal Auditorium. The college was founded in 1908, but graduation exercises were not held until 1912. Degrees of bachelor of laws, master of laws and bachelor of commercial science will be conferred and certificates of accountancy awarded.

METHODISM 200 YEARS OLD

Year's Celebration of Anniversary Begins Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 15. — The two-hundredth anniversary of the Evangelical conversion of John and Charles Wesley will be celebrated in Methodist churches throughout the world tomorrow.

The church was founded by the Wesley Brothers in 1738 but the plans call for a year-long celebration of the anniversary, culminating with special services in London, England, in May, 1938.

HOTEL REORGANIZATION FEES TOTAL $122,676

Four Law Firms Seek $70,500 From Operators of Congress, Senate and Embassy.

Applications for fees and expenses totaling $122,676 in connection with reorganization of the Koplar Co., which operates the Congress Hotel and the Senate and Embassy apartments, were filed yesterday in United States District Court.

Four law firms sought a total of $70,500 in fees. Burnett, Stern & Liberman, counsel for the debtor company, asked for $25,000. Sullivan, Reeder & Finley asked for $8000 as counsel for the reorganization trustees and, jointly with the Chicago firm of Poppenhusen, Johnston, Thompson & Raymond, for $30,000 as counsel for the reorganization managers. Taylor, Mayer & Shiffrin sought $7500 as attorneys for a bondholders' committee.

Wililam J. Blesse, trustee, applied for an allowance of $14,000 and his co-trustee, M. Ernest Greenebaum Jr. of Chicago, asked for $2500.

The reorganization managers, Greenebaum Sons' Investment Co. and Percy Cowan, asked for $23,000 in additoin to $20,000 already allowed them. They sought also reimbursement for $9051 in expenses.

The bondholders' committee, comprising Isaac A. Hedges, John A. Laird, Richard E. Gruner and Wallace Wilson Jr., secretary, asked for a fee of $2500 and reimbursement of $1125 in expenses.

Judge Charles B. Davis has approved a reorganization plan which gives control to the bondholders and greatly reduces the interest of Sam Koplar, principal stockholder.

AL SMITH GOING TO IRELAND

Sails for Europe; Wants to See Grandmother's Home in Westmeath.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Clad completely in brown, topped by a brown derby, and chewing on a cigar, Alfred E. Smith sailed today on his first trip to Europe.

"This is just a regular pleasure trip. I've never been to the other side and I'm going now, and I want to have a good time," commented the former Governor and presidential candidate on the deck of the liner Conte di Savoia. "I'm going to Ireland. A priest wrote me that he knew where my grandmother's house was in Westmeath, and I'm going there and look it over. I have no relatives there, but I want to look over Ireland."

ST. LOUIS CLINICS FROM MAY 24 TO 29

About 200 Doctors to See Demonstrations of Advances in Medical Science.

The St. Louis Clinics, annual post-graduate course to acquaint physicians with latest advances in medicine and surgery, will be conducted here May 24 to 29. About 250 general practitioners, most of them from smaller communities of the Southwest, are expected to attend.

The clinics will be conducted by specialists in each field, by members of the faculty of Washington and St. Louis universities and by medical officers of the Army and Navy. At each hospital where clinics are to be held, the staff members will be in charge.

The purpose was to give in concentrated form the more recent advances in medicine, embracing all specialties, in such fashion that the physician not closely in touch with medical centers could acquire knowledge in a scientific manner, Dr. Frederick A. Jostes, president, said.

St. Louis, through its large hospital and clinic facilities and through its two class A medical schools, had long been known as one of the medical centers of the United States, he said.

General headquarters for the conference will be at the St. Louis Medical Society, 3839 Lindell boulevard, and meetings on the first day will be held there. Subsequent clinics will be held at Missouri Baptist, De Paul, Desloge, Deaconess, Isolation, Barnes, St. Louis Maternity and City hospitals.

Among the subjects to be discussed are gun deafness, the use of protamine-insulin in treatment of diabetes, surgery in tuberculosis cases, mandelic acid, new drug for kidney infections, and the value of prontylin and prontosil in the treatment of streptococcic infections. Some of those subjects were discussed here at the recent convention of the American College of Physicians.

SCHOOL PLAYGROUNDS TO BE OPENED JUNE 21

Recreational Centers for Children Will Be in Use Until Sept. 3.

Public School playgrounds will be opened June 21 for use as recreational centers for children until Sept. 3, Dr. Henry J. Gerling, Superintendent of Instruction of the Board of Education announced yesterday.

The playgrounds, 52 for white children and 13 for Negroes, and five others at High School fields for use of children more than 16 years old, will be divided into four districts, under supervision of Alfred O. Anderson, director of physical education and recreation.

A program of athletics, handicraft and dancing with other specialized activity has been scheduled. The sports for boys will be directed by Otto Rost, coach at McKinley High School, and Marion Bernard will supervise the girls' athletics. There will be inter-playground competition.

Miss Viola E. Holland will be in charge of handicraft and industrial pursuits for girls. Arthur Kreyling will head this division in the boys' groups. Classes in dancing, directed by Miss Charlotte Lewis, will prepare those who participate for festivals and other public performances to be given during the season. Negro centers will be supervised by William H. J. Beckett.

DROWNED SOON AFTER WEDDING

Pair in Auto Which Goes Through Guard Chains at Ferry.

By the Associated Press.

GREENVILLE, Miss., May 15.—Forty-five minutes after they were married last night, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Wynn of Pickens, Miss., were drowned in the Sunflower River at Slater's Ferry. Their automobile plunged through guard chains. They were on the way from Leland, where they were married, to Pickens.

Mrs. Wynn, the former Myrtle Thrail Kill of Pickens, had been teaching school at Lake Village, Ark., across the Mississippi River from Greenville. She was 28 and her husband 33 years old.

Wedding Invitations For Elizabeth Tupper

INVITATIONS have been received from Mr. and Mrs. Tullius C. Tupper of the Litzsinger road for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth, and Daniel Dougherty of Philadelphia, to take place at 5:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, June 3, at the Church of St. Michael and St. George. A small reception will follow at the Bogey Club.

Parties for Miss Tupper will await the arrival of the bridegroom a few days before the wedding, and the personnel of the bridal party will be announced later.

Among the out-of-town guests will be Mr. Dougherty's mother, Mrs. Francis S. Dougherty of Greenacre, Huntington Valley, Pa.; his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Dougherty of Woodley, Berryville, Va., and their four children, Miss Mary, Miss Gertrude, Frazer and Graham Jr.; his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Webster Dougherty of Bryn Mawr, Pa., and his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. Joseph S. Rowland of Meadowbrook, Pa.

Social Calendar Filled With Varied Parties Honoring Brides for This Month and Next

PARTIES for May and June brides occupy a large part of the social calendar. Nearly every day brings the announcement of wedding plans for a prospective bride, with her bridal party and pre-wedding parties listed. Showers predominate as the most popular form of entertainment, but many cocktail and dinner parties are included on the lists. As the weather gets warmer, more outdoor picnics and luncheons will be given.

Friends of Miss Marjorie Green, daughter of former Judge and Mrs. Ernest A. Green, and of her fiance, Joel Alexander Rogers, have arranged many social affairs in their honor. Their wedding will take place late Saturday afternoon, June 5, at the Church of St. Michael and St. George, to be followed by a small reception at the Green home.

Miss Green's attendants, as previously announced, are to be: Miss Margaret Hemingway, maid of honor; Mrs. Hugh Everard Jackson of Prince George County, Va., matron of honor, and Miss Mary Papin Thomas, Miss Mary Elizabeth Lumaghi, Mrs. Truman E. Walker and Mrs. Marion Blackwell Hocker, sister of the prospective bridegroom, bridesmaids.

Roderick M. Meyer will serve Mr. Rogers as best man, and the groomsmen will include Marion Blackwell Hocker, Allen Green, brother of the prospective bride; Richard Stokes, A. Clifford Saxton, Daniel Upthegrove, George Shotwell Roudebush and Walker Hancock of Philadelphia.

Pre-wedding parties will begin next Sunday night with a buffet supper at which Mr. and Mrs. Meyer will be host and hostess. The next day Mrs. Hocker will give a tea at the St. Louis Woman's Club and the following Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Lazare Baker have planned a picnic. Two weeks from tonight Miss Hemingway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Linn Hemingway, will be hostess at a buffet supper, and on the Tuesday following Mr. and Mrs. Walker will give a dinner. Thursday, June 3, Miss Thomas will entertain at a dinner at the home of her mother, Mrs. Chester E. L. Thomas.

Mrs. Austin P. Leland, Mrs. Joel Y. Lund, and Miss Lumaghi are planning a party in honor of Miss Green.

Another bride of June 5 will be Miss Jean Edmee Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jurian Hopkins, who will be married to Thomas Erwin Gallagher at 11 o'clock in the morning at Our Lady of Lourdes Church. Her list of at-

St. Louis Women Hostesses To Garden Club Delegates At Annual Meeting Here

Series of Social Affairs Arranged for Entertainment of Visitors—Former Residents Return for Convention—Mrs. Robert Fife, National President, Guest of Mrs. Edward J. Walsh.

THREE HUNDRED and fifty women are on their way to St. Louis by train and automobile to visit some of the most attractive gardens in this vicinity and to be entertained for the next few days between sessions of the annual meeting of the Garden Club of America.

Although headquarters will remain at Hotel Chase, where they were established several weeks ago, national officers and directors who, with few exceptions, were to have stayed there, will be guests in private homes because of the hotel strike. Replying yesterday to long-distance inquiries, delegates were told not to alter their plans, and that housing facilities were being provided as rapidly as possible. The only necessary change in entertainment arrangements concerns the opening dinner, which was to have been held at the Chase tomorrow night following the annual business meeting on board a Mississippi River boat bound for Selma, the home of Mr. and Mrs. William O. Schock on the bluffs below Festus, Mo. Instead, the dinnner will be given at the St. Louis Country Club.

One special train, arriving today from the East, carries 150 delegates and smaller groups from as far West as California are joining those from the Southern States and others from the North.

Some of the visitors are former St. Louisans returning as delegates from clubs in cities to which they have moved; others have visited here before and are well known to St. Louisians, and many have been hostesses to local delegates at previous meetings elsewhere. A few, although residents of St. Louis, are representing clubs in resort towns where they have summer homes.

As previously planned, the national president, Mrs. Robert Fife of New York, will be the guest of Mrs. Edward J. Walsh, a director. Mrs. William K. du Pont, whose estate at Wilmington, Del., is noted for its orchids, will be the guest of Mrs. George Welch Simmons. Mrs. du Pont is the mother of S. Hallock du Pont, who married Mrs. Simmons' daughter, Miss Virginia, more than two years ago. Mrs. Albert Burrage Jr. of Ipswich, Mass., a director, will be entertained by Mrs. William G. Pettus, who will also have as her guest Mrs. Ernest C. Savage of Chestnut Hill, Pa. Mrs. Palmer Hutcheson of Houston, Tex., will be with Mrs. Charles Claflin Allen Jr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Godley of Rye, N. Y., will visit Mrs. Charles S. Lamy, who will also entertain Mrs. George McM. Godley of Greenwich, Conn.

Former St. Louisans representing other garden clubs include Mrs. George Fox Steedman of Santa Barbara, Cal., who still maintains a home here although she makes infrequent visits. She has already arrived, and will visit her sister-in-law, Mrs. Edwin H. Steedman, during the convention. Two visitors are the daughters of St. Louisans who have married and moved away. Mrs. Francis Boyer, the former Miss Mary Brooks Holmes, is back from Philadelphia and is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Howard Holmes. Mrs. Philip W. Ness of Ruxton, Md., who was Miss Anne Farrar Semple, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Frederick Humphrey Semple. Mrs. Kent Carver Clow of Lake Forest, the former Miss Frances Reid Jones, will be the guest of Mrs. Charles M. Polk.

Several homes have been opened to more than one visitor. Mrs. Walsh will entertain not only the president, but Mrs. Robert B. English of West Hartford, Conn., and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Kay Chester, N. J. Mrs. Samuel W. Fordyce will have as guests Mrs. James R. Thomas of Charleston, W. Va., and Mrs. George D. McLaughlin of Chicago. In addition to Mrs. du Pont, Mrs. George Simmons will have Mrs. Blayden Lowndes of Chicago; Mrs. Carl H. Langenberg will be hostess to Mrs. H. N. Torrey and Mrs. J. B. Schlotman, both of Grosse Point, Mich.; Mrs. Frank O. Watts has two friends from Nashville, Mrs. George W. Hale and Mrs. George Shwab; Mrs. O. K. Bovard will entertain Mrs. Cleveland Sewall and Mrs. Herbert Roberts, both of Houston, and Mrs. Bruce Seddon will entertain Mrs. F. C. Thomas of Cold Spring Harbor, L. I., and Mrs. Alfred Roelker. Mrs. Charles Claflin Allen will have Mrs. Donald C. Cottrell of Lake Forest in addition to Mrs. Hutcheson.

Mrs. Charles Pope O'Fallon has two guests, Mrs. Alexander Austin and Mrs. R. Brinkley Snowden, both of Memphis. A third Memphis delegate, Mrs. Rayburn Dunscomb, is with her daughter, Mrs. R. H. McWilliams Jr. Mrs. O'Fallon entertained all three at tea yesterday in her garden.

Two Philadelphians, Mrs. Edgar B. Howard and Mrs. Cooper Howell, will be guests of Mrs. Newell Augur; Mrs. Felix du Pont is to be the guest of Mrs. Harry Langenberg;

Bridlespur Club Members to Give All Day Horse Show

EXTENSIVE plans have been completed for an out-of-door horse show by the Bridlespur Hunt Club, in Huntleigh Village, next Sunday. The clubhouse, with its attractive grounds and the kennels will be open to the public from 9:30 o'clock in the morning, when the first event is scheduled, until late in the afternoon. Luncheon will be served to the members and their guests, those taking part and those attending.

The Bridlespur Horse Show will be given in the interest of the Bridlespur Hunt of which August A. Busch Jr., is Master of Fox Hounds. Members, who have been awarded pink coats, will ride hunters and jumpers in many of the events on the all-day program. Mr. Busch is general chairman of the show; Adalbert von Gontard, president of the club, is vice-chairman, and Miss Jane Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Johnson, who conducted a similar show at Trails End Stables last year, is honorary chairman.

Miss Sallie Jones, joint M. F. H., of the Headley Hunt Club, Columbus, O., and the owner of a large stable, will judge the hunter and jumper classes. She is one of the most successful riders of hunters and jumpers and is one of the few women who in hunt club circles has been granted the privilege of wearing hunting scarlet.

The show ring, which has been arranged in the lowlands west of the clubhouse, will be circled by parked cars from which a large number of spectators will watch the show. Among those who have reserved space for their cars are: Mr. and Mrs. August A. Busch Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Adalbert von Gontard, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Griesedieck, Mr. and Mrs. Marquard Forster, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil A. tendants follows: Miss Mary Ann Davie, maid of honor, with the following bridesmaids: Miss Patricia and Miss Eleanor Gallagher, sisters of the bridegroom-elect; Miss Ahden Knight, Mrs. Robert J. Gallagher, Miss Mary Margaret Davis of Dallas, Tex., and Miss Ann Harlan of Austin, Tex.; Miss Ethel Gray and Miss Nina Braxton will be junior bridesmaids, and Marjory May Hopkins, the bride's young sister, flower girl.

The groomsmen will include William E. Gallagher, brother of the bridegroom, as best man; and John J. and Robert J. Gallagher, also brothers; LeRoy Dierker, Allen Maestre, Edward J. Hopkins, brother of the bride, and J. Nolan Shay.

Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock friends of Miss Hopkins have been invited to a tea and shower in her honor to be given by Miss Patricia and Miss Eleanor Gallagher, at the home of their parents, Dr. and Mrs. John F. Gallagher, 205 South Skinker boulevard. A week from this evening Miss Hopkins has invited friends to a birthday supper at her parents' home. The following Tuesday Miss Betty Hulburd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Earl Hulburd, will be hostess at a luncheon at Bellerive Country Club and the next day Mrs. Robert L. Jordan will give a similar affair at her home. That evening Dr. and Mrs. Gallagher will entertain the bridal party at a buffet supper. On Saturday, May 29, Mrs. Robert J. Gallagher has planned an afternoon party and the next day Mrs. Edwin Peters will be hostess at a buffet supper at Glen Echo Country Club. Mrs. Vance P. Braxton will give a luncheon at Glen Echo Wednesday, June 2, and that evening William E. and John F. will be hosts at a dinner. The maid of honor and her mother, Mrs. Joseph Davie, will entertain the bridal party at a dinner and dance at Hotel Chase, following the rehearsal Thursday. The day before the wedding Miss Hopkins will entertain her bridesmaids at luncheon and that evening Mrs. Byron Gray will honor the prospective bridal pair at dinner at Glen Echo.

Miss Mary Margaret Davis, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Davis, former St. Louisans, will arrive Saturday to be a guest at the Hopkins home until after the wedding. She will entertain the bride-elect at a luncheon at the Park Plaza. Miss Harlan is expected next Sunday.

The week is filled with parties honoring Miss Eleanore Hamilton Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Hall, who will become the bride of Frank Lutz Thompson, Friday evening. The ceremony will be a private one at the Hall home at 6 o'clock to be followed by a reception at 8 o'clock at the St. Louis Woman's Club.

Mrs. Francis D. Seward will give a luncheon tomorrow at the Junior League Club Rooms, and later in the afternoon Miss Marjorie Morfit, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Garrison Morfit, has planned a tea. In the evening Miss Eleanor Pendleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Baylor Pendleton, will give a treasure hunt.

The bridal pair will be honored at a cocktail party Tuesday afternoon to be given by Lawrence and Wyatt Shallcross, followed by a dinner by Mr. and Mrs. George Castleman Mackay, and their daughter, Miss Suzanne. The next morning Miss Cecil Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Mitchell, will be hostess at breakfast and in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Fisher will have a cocktail party.

A cocktail party is planned for Thursday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Ibsen of Chicago at the Park Plaza and afterward Lawrence and Wyatt Shallcross will be hosts at the bachelor dinner.

Parties for this week-end included a luncheon Friday by Mrs. Joseph Mullen and a cocktail party in the evening at which Mr. and Mrs. G. Carroll Stribling were host and hostess. Last night there was a dinner given by Rowan Robinson at his family's country home in Eureka, Mo.

In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Ibsen, other out-of-town guests will include Edmund Benoist of Chicago, Robert Aull of New York, Mr. anad Mrs. William F. Benoist of Winnetka, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Montgomery of Sedalia, Mo.

Guests invited to the home of Miss Lucretia Green, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Green, 243 Westgate, for cocktails this evening will be told of the plans for the wedding of Miss Florence Kingsbury and John D. McCausland. The bride-elect, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Newell Kingsbury, 6843 Kingsbury boulevard, has chosen June 19 for her wedding day. The service will be read at the Kingsbury home at 12 o'clock by Dr. John L. Roemer, president of Lindenwood College, in the presence of only the families and a few close friends. Breakfast will be served afterward.

Miss Green will be the bride's only attendant and William Ohle of Chicago, formerly of St. Louis, will be best man.

Among the out-of-town guests expected are Mr. McCausland's parents, Dr. and Mrs. William S. McCausland of San Diego, Cal.; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Kauffman of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Newton Shaw of Washington and Miss Mary Nesbit of Indianapolis, Ind.

The bridesmaids of Miss Ruth Harms, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Harms, were entertained Friday at lunucheon by the prospective bride at the home of her parents. The marriage of Miss Harms and George Watson Skinner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse S. Skinner, will be the first of the week, taking place Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at Bethel Lutheran Church.

Many parties already have been given for Miss Harms, among them a luncheon, May 8, by Miss Jane Blakeslee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Blakeslee, 7010 Lindell boulevard, at the Missouri Athletic Association, and a dinner given that night by Mr. and Mrs. John Higgenbotham at the home of Mrs. Higgenbotham's mother, Mrs. Henrietta Willmore, 3733 Lindell boulevard. Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. J. O. L. Goggin III and Mr. and Mrs. David Hartman entertained at a tennis party in the afternoon, with cocktails and dinner in the evening, at St. Albans. This evening Mr. and Mrs. Norbert L. Harms will honor the prospective bride and bridegroom at cocktails at the home of Miss Harms' parents, and following that Miss Dorothy Waltke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Waltke, 6224 Forsythe boulevard, will be hostess for Miss Harms and her fiance at dinner at Bellerive Country Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Skinner, the bridegroom's parents, will entertain the wedding party at the rehearsal dinner, to be given Tuesday night at the Algonquin Country Club.

Two out-of-town guests at the wedding, who will visit Mr. and Mrs. Harms, are two of the prospective bride's aunts, Miss Renata Lange and Mrs. T. E. Hill of Paducah, Ky.

Junior Leagues to Hold Convention in Chicago

partment; Mrs. Robert E. Dingman, secretary of the finance department; Mrs. Faxon Saunders, editor of the Junior League Magazine, and Miss Pauline E. Mandigo, secretary of the publicity department, all of New York.

Delegates from St. Louis are Mrs. Alfred W. Brown and Mrs. James Crawford Ward, who, like others, will be guests of Chicago league members.

The opening banquet will be held tomorrow night at the Palmer House after a series of conferences with staff members on local chapter problems. The president will make the chief address of the evening.

Tuesday morning, delegates will attend a publicity conference led by Mrs. Cyrus L. Philipp and Miss Pauline Mandigo, and meetings directed by Mrs. William Ellery Bright, Miss Mary Louise Breen and Mrs. Joseph W. Seacrest, to discuss the pros and cons of the league's support of controversial movements, league participation in state and local social legislation, and political activity. These meetings will be followed in the afternoon by an open forum led by Mrs. Harvie, on association policies on these questions.

A magazine conference conducted by Mrs. Faxon Saunders, editor or the Junior League Magazine, and Miss Helen Leovy will be a feature of Wednesday morning's program. There will be a luncheon that day at the Chicago Historical Society, where the association's art exhibition (consisting of the prize winning entries of the year's regional exhibits) will be on view. In the afternoon, a panel discussion of league problems will be conducted by members of the A. J. L. A. staff, and Wednesday evening representatives from the nine regions will attend the Regional Dinners.

Thursday morning, delegates will attend an open forum on plan of nominations, A. J. L. A. by-laws and recommendations for regional meetings to be led by Mrs. Billy Shaw Howell, with Mrs. John L. Hutcheson Jr. and Mrs. Arthur St. Julian Simons assisting.

Mrs. Leighton McWhinney will head the luncheon conference of the Canadian League to be held Thursday. That night, a dinner is planned at the Arts Club.

Friday morning, the annual meeting will be held at which delegates will vote on measures presented; elect two officers (vice-president and secretary) and directors for Regions I, II, II, IV, V, and hear reports of officers and department heads. There will be a luncheon at the Casino Club.

Presbyterian Mothers' Group.

The Mothers' Group of the First Presbyterian Church, Overhill drive and Delmar boulevard, will have its annual spring luncheon at Glen Echo Country Club Friday at 1 p. m.

How George VI and His Queen Put in Their 12-hour Working D

LONDON, May 15.

THERE are no 40-hour weeks for Great Britain's Kings. George VI has a 12-hour day. Every minute of these 12 hours is carefully planned and the schedule is rigidly followed. Otherwise he could never fulfill half of the tasks his position demand. King George has one advantage; he sleeps well, which his brother Edward never did.

Half-past seven in the morning is the King's normal waking hour, and he arises after a minimum of eight hours of sleep. Like his father, George V, the present King dislikes late hours and loathes being up after midnight.

On rising, the first thing the King does as he dresses without the aid of his valet, is to ask his valet about the news. Before breakfast, he skims over the newspaper.

At breakfast he joins Queen Elizabeth, and the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose. If they are in London this meal takes place in the Chinese room at Buckingham Palace—a lofty square room overlooking the Mall, decorated lavishly and vividly with rich silk hangings of crimson, embroidered with Oriental dragons.

Begins Work at 9.

Nine in the morning finds the King at his desk for the first conference with his secretary, Sir Alexander Hardinge. In front of the King is a neatly typed memorandum marked off in half hours, detailing his dates for the day. Before this talk is finished the first of the red and black dispatches come in from Whitehall and the King settles down to read them.

In other rooms Secretary Hardinge and three assistants are preparing the minor papers for the King's signature.

The King's room must never be entered from the moment the chief secretary leaves, until the King touches his little electric bell which brings in the page-of-the-presence who is always on duty immediately outside the door.

To this minor functionary is generally entrusted the task of carrying documents between the King and his chief secretary. This King, unlike his great-grandmother, always uses the upward personal pronoun "I," never the Victorian "we."

After two hours the King takes a brisk walk in the grounds of Buckingham Palace, sometimes with an equerry and sometimes alone, and even if it is raining.

On his return to his desk he begins with important audiences, such as with a cabinet minister or some distinguished foreigner. Like his father, he likes to get his audiences done with in the morning.

Queen's Busy Day.

The King rarely sees the Queen during the morning, for she also has an exacting routine to fulfill. She generally gets rid of most of her correspondence with the help of her lady-in-waiting, Lady Helen Graham. Then she has the Palace domestic details to settle, and in this department she is helped by the Palace housekeeper, Mrs. Fergus.

The King and Queen therefore wait until lunch time before they relax, and unless there are special grown-up guests of great importance the two little Princesses have their lunch with their parents.

In the afternoon the Queen devotes most of her time to looking over her new home and fin out the way things are run. O sionally she slips up to the nur to find out how her two daugh are progressing with their les CORDIAL assent was given by all Washington Tuesday night when the National Red Cross ave a testimonial dinner to Miss abel Boardman, secretary of the merican Red Cross. More than 000 persons attended.

Miss Boardman is a social celeb- ity of the national capital and her ame long will be associated with hat of the Red Cross for the part he played in its reorganization nd rebuilding. To that organiza- on she has given many years of ervice as a volunteer officer. In he days before the World War, efore the Red Cross had its pres- nt great membership and spacious uarters, Miss Boardman kept of- e hours daily at the little room the War Department set aside or the agency. Then the member- hip was considerably under 50,- 00.

Then came the World War. Miss oardman hurried from her sum- er home at Murray Bay, Canada, o see what the Red Cross of a eutral nation could do to lessen uman suffering in the war. Miss oardman enlisted her friends to lan what the Red Cross must do America entered the war. She ecame a member of the commit- e of the first National Service chool of the Woman's Naval Serv- e at Chevy Chase and helped to lan first aid classes for woman tudents who came from all parts f the country.

Also, Miss Boardman took the ath of office as the first and only oman thus far to hold the posi- ion as a commissioner of the Dis- rict of Columbia.

She did a good job, too, as com- issioner. The work assigned to er was the oversight of institu- ions, welfare and health, in the ommunity. Miss Boardman did ot content herself with reading re- orts; she visited all these places nd suggested many changes.

Miss Boardman's resemblance to ueen Mary of England has been mmented on frequently and it d confirmation in an incident hich took place when the Duke of indsor, then the Prince of Wales, isited Washington in 1919. A re- ption was given to him at the ritish Embassy. The Prince was reeting the guests when in the ne a few paces from him he saw iss Boardman. His eyes opened ide in amazement and he grasped e arm of his aid, Sir Lionel Hal- y, and whispered to him: "Look, alsey, look! There's Mamma!"

Mrs. Mercedes Penn Wed to R. G. Kaiser

MRS. MERCEDES WEISSENBORN PENN, daughter of Arthur L. Weissenborn, 911 Glen Ridge drive, and Raymond G. Kaiser were married Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Peters Memorial Church. The Rev. Frederick A. Roblee performed the ceremony, after which the families returned to Mr. Weissenborn's home to greet the bridal pair informally.

Mrs. Edward Fritz attended the bride, who wore a white net frock embroidered in pastel shaded petit point, and a white net halo hat with velvet streamers. Her flowers were lilies of the valley, arranged in a corsage.

The bridegroom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Kaiser, 162 North Central avenue, Clayton, had his brother, Otto, as best man.

Mr. Kaiser and his bride will live with her father after a wedding trip. She was educated at Miss White's School for Girls and at Lindenwood College. Her husband attended Washington University and was graduated from Westminster College, Fulton, Mo.

Jane Luckett's Plans for Wedding

IVITATIONS have been received to the wedding of Miss Jane Luckett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian B. Luckett, 14 West Cedar avenue, Webster Groves, and Harry C. Stroot, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Williams Stroot, 6 Armin drive, Webster Groves. The ceremony will be performed Wednesday morning, June 2, at 9 o'clock, at Holy Redeemer Church, with a breakfast afterward for the bridal party at the Luckett home.

The bride will be attended by her sister, Miss Ann Luckett, as maid of honor; by Miss Mary Jane Wright and Miss Betty Mason as bridesmaids and by Betty Lou Harris, a young cousin, who will be flower girl. Arthur Stroot will be his brother's best man, and the groomsmen will be another brother, Robert C. Stroot, and Julian B. Luckett Jr., brother of the prospective bride.

First of the pre-wedding parties for Miss Luckett was a luncheon given yesterday by Miss Wright.

Dockery-Schatzman Wedding This Month

CLOSE friends of Miss Mary Schatzman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jules Schatzman, 4482 Maryland avenue, have received word of her approaching marriage to James Dockery Jr., son of James Dockery, 950 Maryville avenue. The wedding will take place Thursday morning, May 27, in the Blessed Sacrament Chapel of St. Louis Cathedral, with the Rev. Nicholas Brinkman performing the ceremony.

Miss Schatzman will be attended by her sister, Miss Alice, and Mr. Dockery's brother, John, will be best man. Following the wedding a breakfast for both families and the bridal party will be given at the Park Plaza.

The bride-to-be attended the Academy of the Visitation and Webster College, and Mrs. Dockery is a gradaute of the St. Louis University school of law.

Lindbergh Flight Tenth Anniversary To Be Celebrated

THE Spirit of St. Louis Association, organized to commemorate the non-stop flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh from New York to Paris, in the Spirit of St. Louis, will celebrate the tenth anniversary of the flight Thursday. In accordance with its annual custom, the association, with the Missouri Historical Society, will keep open house from 5 to 10 p. m. in the west wing of Jefferson Memorial, where the public may view the Lindbergh trophies.

The Spirit of St. Louis Association will have a luncheon for members and guests at the Park Plaza Friday at 12:30 o'clock. Mrs. Joseph S. Calfee, acting chairman, will preside. Mrs. Nettie H. Beauregard, Mrs. Hugh David Parry, Mrs. Charles H. Hoyle, Mrs. F. H. Littlefield, Mrs. C. E. Champ, Mrs. William Watt Spear, Mrs. Joseph T. Davis, Mrs. Waler Fabricus, Mrs. H. F. Urbauer, Mrs. Frank Robertson and Miss Lulu M. Champ will be hostesses. Mrs. Elizabeth Robertson Uhl has charge of the luncheon arrangements.

A painting of the Lindbergh flight will be placed on exhibition with the trophies Thursday. The painting, "Epochal Dawns," by Frederick J. Waugh, is being loaned by its owner, Dr. W. L. Frazier of Shallis, Ida. Mr. Waugh, a marine painter, has won three Carnegie Intsitute awards. The painting shows Lindbergh flying the Atlantic.

The trophies are on display in cases purchased by the Spirit of St. Louis Association with funds collected from the public for that purpose. The association, organized immediately following the flight, in May, 1927, has also placed a bronze tablet commemorating Lindberg's flight at Lambert-St. Louis Flying Field, and a replica of that tablet in the west wing of Jefferson Memorial with the trophies, and has celebrated the anniversary of the flight each year. Members have acted as hostesses when delegations visited the Lindbergh display outside of regular visiting hours.

Charles L. Lash Weds Ponca City (Ok.) Girl

A WEDDING of interest to St. Louisans was that of Miss Betty Biggs of Ponca City, Ok., and Charles L. Lash of St. Louis, which took place recently at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Biggs. The Rev. Gordon V. Smith officiated.

Miss Peggy Sue Biggs served her sister as bridesmaid and Robert Lash was best man for his brother. Sammy Sinderson of Kansas City, Kan., was ring-bearer. The bride was gowned in ivory satin made on simple lines and ending in a short train. The dress was designed with a V-neckline and long puffed sleeves banded tightly at the wrist. Her tulle veil, edged in Chantilly lace, was fastened to a cap made of the same kind of lace, and she carried white roses, gardenias and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaid wore pink taffeta made with a close-fitting bodice and off-the-shoulder neckline. Her flowers were Briarcliffe roses.

Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Lash departed for St. Louis and will make their home here. In addition to the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Lash, the following St. Louisans were present at the ceremony: Miss Bette Lash, Mr. and Mrs. John Schaeffer and son, Harold; Mr. and Mrs. H. Frei and daughter, Miss Bobbette, and son, Richard; Mr. and Mrs. I. F. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Reed and Howard and Jack Reed.

The bride was educated in Kansas City and St. Louis and later attended Lindenwood College at St. Charles and Washington University. Her husband was educated in St. Louis.

Elizabeth Jones' Wedding in Fall

THE engagement of Miss Elizabeth Gertrude Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Jones of Boonville, Mo., to Robert Lloyd Young, 12 Pitman place, Kirkwood, was announced yesterday at a tea given by Miss Jones' sister-in-law, Mrs. David Lee Jones, 403 East Jefferson avenue, with whom she makes her home. Guests, calling between 3 and 5 o'clock, received miniature newspapers bearing the announcement, pictures of the engaged pair and an account of the party, by Mrs. Jones' little sons, David Lee Jr. and Herbert. The hostess and the bride-elect were assisted in receiving by their sister, Mrs. Joseph Pennell Ramsey of Chicago and by Mrs. Edgar Idol who shared honors with Miss Jones. Mrs. Idol recently moved to Kirkwood from Washington.

The tea table, which was decorated with spring flowers, was presided over by Mrs. George Schuster, Miss Lois Wilson, Miss Nancy Crosby and Mrs. J. Torrey Berger.

The prospective bride received her education at William Woods College. Mr. Young, who is the son of Mrs. R. L. Young of Detroit, Mich., attended Central State Teachers' College at Warrensburg, Mo. The wedding will take place early in September.

51st Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Hahn, 3348 South Jefferson avenue, celebrated their fifty-first wedding anniversary Sunday, May 9, at the home of their nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Knapp, 4332 Gibson avenue. A 6 o'clock dinner was served to 21 guests.

Community School Pupils to Entertain Their Grandparents

COMMUNITY SCHOOL pupils' grandparents, who are sometimes omitted from school parties because of lack of space in which to entertain, will have their special day Thursday. Beginning at 3 o'clock in the afternoon at the County Community School on Lay road, there will be a program of events by the students, followed at 4 o'clock by tea.

In a few instances four generations will be represented, as in the families of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Danforth and Mr. and Mrs. James A. Seddon Jr. The Seddon children will have their mother, their maternal grandmother, Mrs. Hugh McKittrick Jones, anad their great-grandmother, Mrs. Robert McKittrick Jones. The Danforth family will be represented, in addition to the students, by their mother, their paternal grandmother, Mrs. William H. Danforth, and her mother, Mrs. Bush.

Mrs. Guy W. Oliver, Mrs. Frank Mayfield and Mrs. Edward Vernon Mastin are co-chairmen of arrangements, and will be assisted by a large committee including Mrs. Asa B. Wallace, Mrs. John R. Shepley, Mrs. Festus J. Wade, Mrs. Archie Lee, Mrs. Lindell Gordon Jr., Mrs. Martin Lammert III, Mrs. Randolph Dyer, Mrs. Hugh M. Bowen, Mrs. S. Watts Smyth, Mrs. A. E. Lacomble and Mrs. Donald G. Gibbins.

Horse Racing in Russia Still Popular Sport Under Soviet Which Owns All Thoroughbreds

State Maintains Breeding Farms—Improves Quality of Cavalry Mounts—Races Up to Three Miles.

From a Special Correspondent.

MOSCOW, April.

REPORTS that Soviet organizations were actively buying a large number of blood horses in England were published recently in the British press, and the fact that the Moscow public is eagerly looking forward to the appearance of some of these newly acquired horses at the Moscow Hippodrome track in the near future will remind foreigners that horse-racing, which was a well-established sport with a wide popular following even before the Revolution, has not been abolished under the Soviet regime or deprived of its public, but actually placed under the patronage of the Government.

The difficulty of obtaining tickets at the Moscow Hippodrome on every Soviet "free day" during the racing season testifies to the hold which the "sport of kings" still has over the Russian people, and the excitement which prevails here over the All-Union Derby is no less intense than that which animates the crowds on Epsom Downs.

Eager Betting on Favorites.

No time is spent at the Soviet Derby on the appraisal of the dress of attending celebrities, but the attention paid to the fine points of the racing is probably keener than it would be at Louisville or Auteuil. The crowd has put its money down at the totalizator on its various favorites and is just as breathless over its stake in the outcome as a similar crowd in a capitalist country.

The Revolution caught the Russian breeders with the greater part of their horses in Odessa and Piatigorsk, where they continued to hold races up to 1919, while the civil wars raged round them. Those horses which were in Odessa were mostly evacuated to Poland and Rumania, and consequently were lost to the U. S. S. R. Only a small group, headed by Brimstone, the crack of the 1916 generation, was seized by the Red Guards and returned to Odessa. Those at Piatigorsk were in great part dispersed during the civil wars or evacuated to Asia by the White Russians.

Government Gathers Thoroughbreds.

At the end of the civil war the Soviet Government quickly began to appreciate the importance of the thoroughbred to the nation and appointed a special commission to search out all the remaining racing horses. In all 349 were found, 170 colts and 179 fillies. These horses were at first assembled at the Khrenovo farm (the well-known stud founded by Count Orloff for his trotters) and later were distributed to the Chesmen, etz, and Kultura farms.

Among these horses were 17 by Salpetre (Goodwood Cup), by St. Simon and Billow; 13 by yeur (Derby), by Desmond; and 17 by Minoru, by Cyllene, formerly belonging to King Edward and winner of the 1909 Epsom Derby. Among the colts, in addition to Brimstone (by the Austrian Derby winner Sorrento and the American filly Bonnie Belle, by Nasturtium), which may be considered the best Russian stallion of the after-war period, were such stallions of quality as the winner of the Russian 1916 Derby, -boy (by Gouvernant), Her (by Grimza), Tagore (by Flo, by Florizel II), the leading stallion of the Voskhod stud; Sai (by Polymelus and Serenade), k (by Capo Gallo), Brancy (by Bravo le Sancy), Sanitar (by ar), and two by Minoru—ique and Marconi.

Foreign Horses Purchased.

After the creation of a special department under the Commissariat of Agriculture, centralizing control of all the studs and directed by Marshal S. M. Budenny, commander of the Soviet Cavalry, it was decided in 1925 to buy horses in Hungary to improve the Russian strains. In 1928 a large number of horses were bought in France, Germany, England and Italy, and a second lot of horses was bought in 1930 in Germany. In 1935 Soviet organizations began to make purchases again in England and France and continued to do so throughout 1936. more than 100, most of them stallions, were bought in England last year. Of the English stallions bought those considered the best were Press-Gang, Cyclonic, and Diligence.

Cavalry Mounts Improved.

With the increase in the numbers of horses new studs were built or reorganized. The best studs are those of Voskhod (North Caucasus), Streletsk (Ukraine), Mukhrovan (Georgia), Issik Kul (Central Asia), and the stud of the Commissariat of Defence. An institute was opened in Moscow for study in all branches of horse-breeding. This institute has carried out interesting studies in artificial fertilization, which has been adopted in studs giving horses to the cavalry. These experiments have been of tremendous value to the army, which has been demanding a better grade of horse, because the artificial fertilization has enabled the farms to use one stallion for 4000 mares, and in some cases the number has reached 8000. Every State farm and large collective farm which has received stallions from the Government is required to deliver a certain number of horses every year for the cavalry. There has been a striking improvement in the quality of cavalry mounts as a result.

Regular Racing at Moscow.

Regular races began in 1924 at Khrenovo, where the first Soviet Derby was won by Red Terror (by Grey Terror), and the second by Dago (by Don Juan). In 1926 the Moscow Hippodrome was reopened, after reconstruction of the grandstand, which was burned during the civil war. From that time a racing season has been regularly held in Moscow, with the exception of 1930, when, owing to the construction of a new track, the season was raced in Odessa. Both races (trotters and thoroughbred) are run at the same hippdrome, but on different tracks.

A new racetrack with stands is planned near Moscow and 30,000,000 roubles has been guaranteed by the Government to cover the expense. A riding-hall will be built in proximity to the track.

Some Notable Winners.

Terek (by Tagore) was the first Moscow blue-ribbon winner; Hetman Ney (by Herzog), a stallion at the Mukhrovan stud, was the winner in 1927. In 1928 the first filly, Subsidia (by Sirocco, by Cicero), won the blue- bbon. In 1929 Budinok (by Brimstone and St. Makhesa) won the Derby in the record time of 2 minutes, 32¾ seconds. In Odessa Karta (by Tagore) won easily. In 1932, again in Moscow, Bunchuk (by Brimstone) won easily. Next year the great favorite Gazelle lost the Derby, which was won easily by the daughter of Tagore, Guitara. Sproot (by Temrink, a stallion born in the Soviet period) won at 19 to 1 in 1933. In 1934 the great favorite Evolutzia (by Yunak) won in superior fashion after having won the Russian Oaks. In 1935 another filly won the Derby at 7 to 1, Geroinia (by Brimstone), and the last one was won by the crack Grab (by Beskarny, by Brimstone), which can be considered as the best product of Russian studs, with second place going to Rain Cloud, by Obliterate, which was bought in England and admitted to the Derby. Rain Cloud afterwards was third in the St. Leger. Of Life in International Brigade Described in Letters

Why Foreign Youths Fight for Spain

Britons Most Impressed by Fascist Air Raids

In the Trenches at 91 Cents a Week, "Proud to Do Bit Against Fascist Invaders," English Soldier Writes.

Slaughter of Civilians Horrifies Volunteers—Spirit of Wives at Home as Sturdy as That of Husbands.

From the Manchester Guardian.

(This article is based on letters sent home by members of the British battalion of the International Brigade fighting for the Government in Spain.)

ALL the British volunteers comment on the hospitality, kindliness and bravery of the Spanish workers. A British doctor wrote: "Both townspeople and peasants make a great fuss of us. Whether Catholic, Anarchist, Trade Unionist, or Communist, we look on ourselves and everyone else as anti-Fascists, that is our common basis. . . . A democracy—the English type of Government—is as far as they look forward at present. . . The Fascists may wipe out the whole of the Spanish workers with the help of Germany, Italy and Portugal, but the Spanish people will never live again under the awful conditions of the past."

"Even Franco knows we have a slogan," writes a British officer in the International Brigade, and he is speaking, it is clear, for the Spanish workers as well as the anti-Fascist volunteers. "We carry that slogan to the bitter end: 'No pasaran'—they shall not pass—and our boys did not let them pass."

Why Foreigners Join Loyalist Forces in Spain.

To many the actual deeds of the International Brigade in Spain may in the end seem less important than the motives of those who are fighting in its ranks. For since the Crusaders left their homes to fight for Christianity in Palestine there have been few ideals strong enough to recruit an army of many nations in a foreign land, and none of such wide influence. Even the Tory who believes that the Spanish Government represents the "lowest elements" in the country must sometimes wonder what is the faith which has sent men from all over Europe to risk their lives in its defense.

Since they are men of all classes, though most of them are workers, and of all political opinions, though most of them are Communists, it would not be easy to define one ideal as common to them all, but a glance at letters written by members of the British Battalion may perhaps reveal better than anything else what manner of men these are and why they have gone to Spain.

One thing is certain: they have not gone for money.

Serving in the Trenches For 91 Cents a Week.

"I would like to protest," one writes, "of the lies that have been published in the press about the reward of a sum of money that we are supposed to receive. I can definitely say that the pesetas I received in Spain amounted to three shillings and sixpence in English money per week (about 91 cents), and we received no gratuity and don't look for any as I was a Voluntary Volunteer and I was proud to go to Spain to do my little bit against Fascist invasion."

And another: "Having returned from Spain this week I am able to give facts as to what the conditions are there. I never was deluded with tales about £6 a week (about $30) and work in the vineyards. I knew before I left the country that I was going to fight for democracy against the Fascists who are trying to make Spain the graveyard of democracy. My actual pay was three pesetas a day and I can vouch that all the other comrades are not in Spain for what they can get out of it in the way of remuneration, but are fighting for the workers of the world in their fight against Fascist aggression.

And, finally, most convincing of all, this letter from the wife of a man who was killed: "As you know I shall always be willing to give the lie to there being any trickery about B's going. He went willingly and gladly with full knowledge of the likely consequences, to fight for the Spanish workers. May his sacrifice and that of his many comrades not be in vain is my one wish. We are terribly sad but so very proud of him."

"Like Being Selected For a Special Privilege."

It is easier to say why the members of the British batallion have not gone than to show why they have, for most of the letters are those of illiterate men and follow the pattern of soldiers' letters in all wars, just or unjust. Many are Communists with complete faith in the policy of their party, but a few make some attempt to explain the feelings which led them to join the International Brigade.

"You know I was a little worried when I came out, or rather when I decided to come out, as to how I would face up to the job when it came to the real thing," one writes. "I found when it did come it was all right. The other day someone here on a visit spoke of the sacrifices we had made to be here. It was like someone speaking a foreign language. It is not a sacrifice to be here as I feel it. It is like being selected from a great many for a special privilege. . . . While the job required doing, I couldn't stay out of it with any great satisfaction to myself."

Once there, no matter what they endured, none seems to have questioned his position. A wounded man writes from hospital: "I am more than proud to have spilt a little of my blood for the Spanish workers. They are worthy of it and I know it."

Only one letter expresses any doubt—and that only as regards others: "After this I begin to question your coming to Spain; it is a situation that every worker will have to face and prepare for, but no one should anticipate it except for very definite reasons."

Varying Views Regarding Final Outcome of Struggle.

Few look farther than the victory of the Spanish Government, and there is a curious strain of Utopianism in the letters of those who do.

"I am home wounded and ill but my Spanish comrades I hope when you have gained your objective to return again to be with you so that we can all live in peace and harmony as I know that's all you and I ask," writes a volunteer.

One or two of these visions of the future, however, take a more practical turn: "Our comrades are great. With such comrades and arms and with the help of the workers at home we will win, but as soon as we have done so we hope we will be able to build a workers' army in Britain and win our own freedom, and chase the national Government like we have chased Franco."

Letters of Volunteers' Wives Show Their Spirit.

But in some ways the most impressive letters are those written by the wives and daughters of the men who are fighting, for women are less easily swayed by an idea and have a harder part to play. One of them writes with reference to a letter from her husband:

"He tells me in his letter that they all have been wounded. One of them died of wounds. My husband says that they are all longing to get out of hospital to have another go at them. He says he is willing to give up his life for the cause, if it will encourage others to take their stand. He has left behind a wife, a boy 11 years old and a girl 14 years old. Surely that should be an example for others."

Another woman wrote to one whose "good name" had been "slandered":

"Please let me tell you I honor it as one of the wives of our men who will gladly lay down his life for the benefit of our children and fellow workers' children, so if any time I have any bad news, I for one will be proud to acknowledge my husband's good work and yours, so carry on, comrade, and we will do our share here."

Another woman, whose boy was wounded,

Expansion of Congo Basin Proposed as Way to Satisfy Germany's Colonial Demands

Addition of Nigeria and Sudan to Area, Where "Open Door" Was Proclaimed in Bismarck's Day, Suggested.

By SIR JOHN HARRIS,
Secretary of the Anti-Slaevry and Aborigines Protective Society.

LONDON, April.

THE chief difficulty in attempting any solution of Germany's colonial demands is that we do not know what it is Germany wants. We know that the mandated areas held by Japan, France and Great Britain never did and never could satisfy German requirements, as set forth in recent speeches. At the same time it is clear that, whatever the motive, the German public is anxious to share what is called "the white man's burden," and that there is wide support in Britain for any action designed to remedy any established grievance. The passage of time has now presented the nations with one possibly solution, large enough to satisfy any colonial appetite and burdensome enough to occupy the energies and resources of the whole of Europe.

In the summer of 1874 the New York Herald and the Daily Telegraph sent Sir Henry Stanley upon that romantic and memorable journey which was to lead first to the opening up of Central Africa and secondly to the inauguration of a novel colonial conception, the forerunner of the mandatory system, for an African territory exceeding 2,000,000 square miles. In 1884 Prince Bismarck invited Henry Stanley, Sir Edward Mallet and Mr. Kasson to Berlin, together with Ambassadors and Ministers of another 12 European and American states, to give birth to this new form of colonial state—the Conventional Basin of the Congo.

In 1919, at the close of the Great War, the principles of the Berlin Act of 1885 were, in the absence of Germany and Austria, reaffirmed in the Convention of St. Germain "for a period of 10 years"—that is until war passions might have spent their force and calmer consideration could be given to the affairs of the great enterprise founded over 30 years earlier. And the convention lays down in article 15 that the signatory Powers "will assemble at the expiration of 10 years" —1929— "to introduce into it such modifications as experience may have shown to be necessary."

Basis of Settlement.

That moment has come, and is indeed overdue, and the question must automatically be faced whether "modifications" can be introduced capable of satisfying the desires of certain nations for a larger share in colonial responsibility. Here, then, ready to hand, is the basis of a big colonial settlement. The treaties must come up for discussion in the very near future. Germany's presence at such a discussion could not be refused and should assuredly be welcomed. Could not the occasion be used to satisfy, anyhow in substantial measure, the demand of Herr von Ribbentrop for "a reasonable solution"?

What was the original conception of the Conventional Basin, which stretched from the Atlantic to the Indian Ocean and from the Nile to the Zambesi? Bismarck thus described the economic pillars of the international enterprise launched in 1885:

"The resolutions which we are about to sanction formally secure to the trade of all nations free access to the interior of the African continent. The guarantees by which the freedom of trade will be assured in the Congo Basin and the whole of the arrangements embodied in the rules for the navigation of the Congo and the Niger are of such a nature as to afford the commerce and industry of all nations the most favorable conditions for their development and security."

Huge Territory Involved.

What does the Berlin Act-cum St. Germain Convention provide? It falls into three main categories —(a) trade and commerce, (b) welfare of the inhabitants, (c) international peace.

Trade, commerce, and (in the case of the Niger) navigation are free to all nations throughout the Conventional Basin. The line of the Conventional Basin affects but does not include Nigeria. It embraces part of the French Congo, the basins of the Shari, Niari and Nile, the whole of the Belgian Congo, part of Portuguese Angola on the Atlantic, and then across Africa to the Indian Ocean, where it embraces the territories "from the fifth degree north to the mouth of the Zambesi south," which include the eastern ridges of the rivers of Tanganyika, some of the territory through which flow the tributaries of Lake Nyasa, and parts of Portuguese East Africa, an area, as Stanley pointed out, covering 2,400,000 square miles consecrated to the "open door" policy.

Open Door in Africa.

"The trade of all nations shall enjoy complete freedom . . . no differential treatment shall be imposed" either on imports or exports, whilst flags of all States have access to all ports and may not be subjected to any differential treatment. In the matter of concessions there must again be no differentiation. It is true that Germany, debarred from being a signatory of the convention and at present, by her own decision, outside the League, is not, in fact, entitled to benefit. But these points have never in practice been taken against her.

In this conception the moral and material well-being of the inhabitants goes hand in hand with articles upon freedom of trade and commerce. All religious bodies and scientific missions are by the convention to be the "objects of special solicitude" by all governments. Freedom of conscience and the free exercise of all forms of religion are guaranteed, and the suppression of slavery in all its forms by land and sea is an obligation of each government. The whole area is subject to a special article rendering it immune from the ravages of war, because each signatory has agreed that any dispute arising between them goes automatically to the League of Nations for adjudication.

Possible Modifications.

In what respects could the treaties be "modified" to meet Herr Hitler's demand for "opportunity"? Given vision and courage, it should be possible to agree to extend the trade and commerce section to an open tender for all contracts for public works, the right to share in public loans and in the encouragement of international enterprise. It cannot be denied that there is immense scope for large-scale irrigation, mining and planting in these areas, far beyond anything yet attempted or even conceived. Another "grievance" which has substance might be met by a general agreement to "absorb" a given percentage of other nationals into the administration of the several territories.

Next comes the problem of native welfare. The clauses of the Berlin Act and the St. Germain Convention provide almost everything that ethics demand. A single "turn of the wheel" providing for racial equality, and adopting "trusteeship" as the basis of native policy, would bring the whole of the territories into complete harmony with the mandatory system.

If there were courageous state-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The name and address of the author must accompany every contribution but on request will not be published. Letters not exceeding 200 words will receive preference.

A New Missionary Movement.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A MOST interesting visitor of splendid appearance and disarming manner has just left my door—a representative of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who has been doing missionary work in our county for the 10 days past. I was particularly glad to talk with him. In fact, I had asked a friend to steer him out to see me.

He tells me that the United States Chamber has at this moment 400 missionaries in the field. The movement has been in progress some months. When it is completed, every business man in America will have been offered "affiliate membership," sort of on the fringe of the great organization, in return for $7.50 cash in hand. He states that nine out of 10 business men grasp at the opportunity. I take his word for this, because I found it difficult to doubt anything that he said.

The merchant gets a subscription to Nation's Business, the official organ of the chamber, which, he said, would keep the busy reader informed upon matters of national policy which are related to his business success. It seems that the United States Chamber is now entirely devoted to the interests of small business men. Big business is represented by the National Manufacturers' Association and the Liberty League.

If there were ever conflict in the chamber between big members and little, the issue could resolve in only one way, he said, because the vastly more numerous small fry would outvote the big boys 100 to 1. No doubt of that, if all communities respond like ours to the campaign that is now on.

It was not made clear to me, however, just what voting power goes with this affiliate Class D stock. But each merchant had the thrill of marking "yes" or "no" opposite a half-dozen questions of burning interest to him, such as, Do you favor Government promotion of consumer co-operatives? Also, the new member saw his letterhead pasted into a scrap book in convenient form, so that his Congressman can see that his business constituents are stanchly behind all the policies of the United States Chamber.

This representative of the great organization really had missionary zeal. He serves as he goes. He told me with pardonable pride how he had found the management of a shirt factory in a near-by town pulling their hair because of talk about John L. Lewis and C I O among the workers. He suggested that a quick bonus was good medicine for union fever. Action was taken forthwith and announcement made that a $15 to $30 bonus would be added to the next pay check. The effect was gratifying. The management was grateful to the United States Chamber representative. The workers learned that he had made the suggestion and they were grateful to him as well as to the management.

I said it looked to me that the workers ought to be grateful also to John L. Lewis, and the missionary replied, with charming candor, "I guess you're right, at that." THAD SNOW.

Another Monument?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IS the Board of Education going to build itself another monument on the Vashon High School campus by erecting the new Waring Elementary School there?

Look what they jammed on the front of Garfield School at Jefferson avenue and Wyoming streets: a monument St. Louis must be ashamed of as long as it stands. Why cannot good old common sense prevail in the board? J. P. GALLUS.

Terrorism at Caruthersville.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

PERHAPS there are many persons who thought that the terror which has gripped large sections of the cotton fields of Arkansas and other Southern states could not happen in Missouri. But at last the surface indications of Southeast Missouri's delta lands have given way to the same underlying emotional expressions that have caused so much terror for sharecroppers deeper in the South.

The affair at Caruthersville is inexcusable and should be promptly dealt with by the Governor as well as other officials, especially Federal officials, whose duty it is to see that the right to organize labor unions is not hindered.

The two organizers of the Southern Tenant Farmers' Union are entitled to the apologies of local and State officials for their being driven out of Caruthersville. More than that, they should be permitted their rights—civil and workers' rights—without molestation. Their experience, it is to be hoped, will not be repeated—and not least, sharecropping conditions underlying entry of the S T F U into Missouri should be corrected.

Now is the time for the Governor to appoint a commission to inquire into them. The appointment of such a commission—if it included persons who are sincerely interested in solving the sharecropper problem—would be a suitable way of expressing apology to the S T F U organizers whose treatment is a scandal of more than local importance.

THE DRED SCOTT CASE.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The Dred Scott decision is frequently mentioned in the current discussion about the Supreme Court and the Constitution. Now I read that Sidney Howard has been in St. Louis with a view to writing a play about Dred Scott. Just what was the Dred Scott decision and what is its significance? Many of us who see it referred to in the newspapers do not know.

REGULAR READER.

Volumes have been written on the case and decision about which our correspondent asks. It is possible, however, to state the essentials of the case briefly.

Under the historic compromise law of 1821, Missouri was admitted to the Union as a slave state and all territory west of Missouri and north of latitude 36 degrees and 30 minutes was set aside as free from slavery. So long as Dred Scott, an illiterate slave from Virginia, remained the property of members of the Blow family in St. Louis, there was no question as to his slave status. But after his sale in 1833 to an army surgeon and three years of residence in free Illinois and two in free Wisconsin Territory, the question arose, upon his return to St. Louis, whether sojourn in free territory had made him a free man.

The ignorant bondsman knew little or nothing of the epoch-making proceedings which were brought in his name, first in the Missouri courts in St. Louis and then in Federal Court. Henry Blow, St. Louis abolitionist and son of Scott's first St. Louis owner, financed the State proceedings, which dragged out from 1846 to 1852. Finally, the Missouri Supreme Court, speaking through Judge William Scott, a pro-slavery man, overruled eight Missouri precedents and held, among other things, that a slave taken by his master into free territory could not, on returning to slave soil, sue for freedom.

In order to get the case into the Federal courts, his white sponsors arranged a fictitious sale by which the Negro was supposedly transferred to one John F. A. Sanford of New York, son-in-law of Pierre Chouteau. It was this which gave the celebrated case its name of Dred Scott vs. Sandford—curiously enough, a court clerk's error caused an official misspelling of the name of the "defendant," a misspelling adhered to ever since on the authority of the Supreme Court opinion.

In 1854, the United States Circuit Court found against Scott, and Roswell M. Field (father of Eugene Field, the poet), who was employed as counsel, took the case to the United States Supreme Court on a writ of error. The case was docketed for argument in December of that year, but it was not called until February, 1856. Greeley's New York Tribune, unaware of the facts, charged that the case had been "fabricated" by slaveholders in order to secure a favorable decision from the Supreme Court. Montgomery Blair and Henry S. Geyer, then a Missouri Senator, argued the slave's case.

The expected speedy judgment was not forthcoming. Apparently, the Supreme Court was divided as to whether it had jurisdiction in view of the Missouri Supreme Court's decision. At any rate, a presidential campaign came on, Buchanan was elected and still there was no decision. Then came an order for reargument, which was held on four days in December, 1856. By this time, the case had become a grave political issue, much discussed in Congress and the press.

With Buchanan inaugurated, the court at last handed down its decision on March 6, 1857—just 80 years ago. Chief Justice Taney, then 80 years old, delivered the majority opinion which held first that Dred Scott, not being a citizen, could not sue in the United States courts, and then went on to say that Congress could not prohibit slavery in the territories.

This last pronouncement was unnecessary: first, because it was not needed to dispose of the case, and, second, because Congress had in effect repealed the law under which the case arose when it passed the Kansas-Nebraska Act in 1854. Taney had sought to do more than dispose of the case; he had attempted to settle the slavery issue. His action was well-intentioned, but politically most unfortunate. Two Justices, McLean and Curtis, Northerners, dissented. Justice Nelson of New York conceded that Scott was not a citizen, but declined to agree that Congress could not prohibit slavery in the territories. Justices Daniel, Campbell, Wayne, Catron and Grier, four Southerners and one Northerner, joined Taney, himself a Marylander.

Deliberate distortion of the Taney opinion by abolitionists in the North widened the crack which was to grow into a breach. Lincoln dissented respectfully and debated the issue with Douglas the next year in their race for the senatorship from Illinois. Less than three months after the decision, Dred Scott was sold again, this time to Taylor Blow, who freed him and his family; but, as many historians put it, the Civil War had been made inevitable. In reviewing the case in his Columbia University lectures, Charles Evans Hughes described the decision as the first of the Supreme Court's three "self-inflicted wounds," one which required "many years before the court, even under new Judges, was able to retrieve its reputation."

The case has a further significance in that it was the second instance of a finding of unconstitutionality by the Supreme Court against an act of Congress. The first such ruling came in 1803 in the case of Marbury vs. Madison. Fifty-four years passed before the Supreme Court again ruled against Congress in the case of St. Louis' Dred Scott.

PRETTY SLICK.

Senator Donnelly of Lebanon may possibly gain admittance to the Hall of Fame on a counterfeit pass. He has pulled a slick trick.

Gov. Stark recently vetoed two Senate bills. One had to do with the issuance of preferred stock; the other with the withdrawal of water from Missouri streams by non-owners of abutting lands. Both were corporation-favored measures. The vetoes were filed on the last day of the 10-day period allowed the Governor for approval or rejection of legislative enactments that reach his desk. The Senate having adjourned, the messages were delivered to the Secretary of the Senate.

The Constitution provides that a veto must be returned to the body in which the bill originated. Senator Donnelly's point is that a communication to the Secretary of the Senate is not a communication to the Senate, within the meaning of the Constitution, that the Governor has not complied with the letter of the organic law, that the vetoes are void. He has moved they be expunged from the Senate journal. Such a motion could be carried by a mere numerical majority, whereas a two-thirds majority vote would be required to override the veto. The legislation would thus be reinstated, the Governor's vetoes overridden and when the question was submitted to the Supreme Court, as it would be, there would be nothing in the journal to record the Governor's action.

This is technicality's reduction to the absurd. If the trick worked, we should see a Governor's pocket picked of its veto, the Constitution stymied and the Supreme Court trying a case in which the documentary evidence had been deftly destroyed.

And the interested corporations would be gratefully patting Senator Donnelly on the back and calling him a smart boy.

PHILIP SNOWDEN.

Whatever else Philip Snowden was—and one commentator said he had been "called almost everything except a gentleman"—there can be no denying that he was an indomitable battler for all causes, however unpopular, that his conscience found just. Despite what his opponents called him, they respected Snowden. They respected his profound knowledge of economics and statecraft, his constancy and consistency, his ability as a budget-balancer and analyst of public affairs. They feared him, too, for an acid eloquence that seared and destroyed.

Snowden was reviled as a traitor when, during the World War, he took his stand with Ramsay MacDonald against the conflict. He was hailed as a savior and "man of the hour" when, as Prime Minister MacDonald's Chancellor of the Exchequer, he set finances in order and, while urging fairer treatment for Germany, won a stubborn battle to retain a full share of reparations payments for Britain. Then came his rift with MacDonald, whom he considered an arch-traitor to the cause of Labor, and Snowden's bitter tongue vented new extremes of denunciation against the former comrade who brought the Tories back to power.

The key to Snowden's personality and methods was doubtless his bitter struggle upward from poverty, and the cruel physical impairments that dogged him. He accepted a peerage, to become Viscount of Ickornshaw, but the glitter of the House of Lords did not blind his eyes to the workers' needs. His aggressiveness and ability were long a vital force in the Labor party, a mainstay in its periods of power, and he leaves a shining mark on the long roll of British statesmen.

TWO BOOKMEN.

The McGuffey readers of fond recollection may return to the classroom. New York's superintendent of schools, Dr. Harold G. Campbell, has named a committee of teachers and associate officials to study the possibility of modernizing the eclectic "classics" and restoring them to the companionship in which they were enthroned for a century.

It was last summer that the centenary was observed of their first edition's appearance in Cincinnati. The occasion was largely sentimental. But here and there a note of practical appraisal was heard. Dr. Campbell's judgment, which has inspired the projected revival, will evoke many an answering echo. "No other series of school readers," he avers, "has exercised so great an uplifting influence on the youth of the country. No other series has left such an enduring impression on their thoughts, their emotions, their morals and their character."

We would add a word to that high estimate. Unwittingly, perhaps, but surely, William Holmes McGuffey introduced "theater" into a school life that was mostly colorless, that, compared with today, was prosy, interminable and drab. The drumbeats of balladry, the deeds of derring-do, the triumphs of great decision that reckoned not the cost—what nobles, what nobility, marched bravely down those pages! And how ardently they were memorized and proudly declaimed from humble platforms that had somehow become historic forums, before audiences that, to the youthful actors, were a listening, applauding world!

There ought to be a place for the McGuffey readers in the grade schools of this twentieth century, and, in a higher key, but maintaining the spiritual and educational continuity, a relatively unknown but transcending book might well, we believe, be installed as a textbook in the high schools of America. The volume is affectionately titled "Much Loved Books." This labor of love is the work—let us say the life work—of a Chicago newspaper man, James O'Donnell Bennett. The man has traveled up and down the inviting lands of books. He has called with delightful informality upon the men of deathless letters, chatted with them in charming ease, paid them the compliment of discerning attention, and quoted such words of theirs as he could never forget.

Here is a book for adolescence to adore, for maturity to refresh fading experiences, for old age to treasure. It is a textbook, a library, an education.

"JUST A ROUTINE TRIP."

There was nothing of a stunt or histrionic or promotional nature about the flight. To Dick Merrill and Jack Lambie, flying pictures of the Hindenburg disaster across to England and bringing back photographs of the coronation was "just a routine trip, a round-trip flight over the ocean on a job of business."

Editors on both sides of the Atlantic want spot news photos as quickly as possible. So Merrill and Lambie delivered the goods with the same precision that they would use in hauling a load of passengers and mail from New York to Boston. So readers of the Post-Dispatch saw a page of coronation pictures yesterday and have a four-page supplement today, days earlier than the fastest liners could have brought them and in greater detail than radio transmission can as yet provide.

Well, perhaps it was a promotional trip of a sort—promotion of regular trans-Atlantic commercial service. Merrill is convinced that it has arrived. Despite head winds and fog, flying blind all the way, the aviators had no trouble in flying or nagivation. "Any pilot from the regular commercial air lines can do it," says Merrill. The fine job he and Lambie did on their trans-Atlantic errand certainly is one of the best possible indications that a new development in transportation is imminent.

Dilemma of the Cities

Rapid rise of great urban regions has brought many problems that cry for solution, says former City Manager of Cincinnati; uncertainty of employment and bad housing are among these; lays many of cities' troubles to patchwork tax system and overlapping governmental units; offers metropolitan autonomy as possible remedy.

From an Address by C. A. Dykstra, Now President of University of Wisconsin, Before Council of State Governments; Reprinted From Vital Speeches Magazine.

I BRING you the American city; in fact, I bring you all of them—3165, the count of Uncle Sam himself. Five of these mean home to more than 14,000,000 souls. Half the nation's population lives either in or in the shadow of cities of 100,000 or over.

In 1870, 52.8 per cent of American workers were gainfully employed in agriculture; by 1930, this percentage had dropped to 21.3. It should be apparent, then, that our straggling rural frontier settlement has come to be a full-grown urban industrial society. Moreover, it did this within one century, not slowly and with gradual accommodation as did the urban centers of Western Europe.

This is the great revolution of the United States, a vital change in the way of living and in the making of a living; a changed character in our national life.

And yet, broadly speaking, the city as city and its people as people, until the 1930s, have been the forgotten item in the nation's inventory. Even the Census Bureau tells us less about the facts of city life and the city's people, relatively, than it did 40 years ago. Government is pretty thorough in its reporting on rural life, on business conditions and foreign trade, on mines, forests, oil and a host of other things, but for those who wish reliable guidance on urbanism, there is nowhere to turn for adequate data upon which to base a serious study.

I bring you just the briefest sketch of a few of the problems of our cities. Millions who make up these teeming populations have such low incomes, and, because of the technological development of our industries, live in such precarious insecurity in so far as their jobs are concerned, that life is a long-drawn-out nightmare. Working today, idle tomorrow, hungry next week, homeless next month—how can such citizens be the backbone of a free society!

In the long run, the stability of the nation itself depends upon a solution of this fundamental problem—one known somewhat to our rural people but aggravated and intensified many times in our cities because these city folk are removed completely from any means of primary subsistence.

Linked closely with the fact of social insecurity is the specter of the slum and the gaunt picture of bad housing and ill health. Millions of families live in rabbit warrens, which induce delinquency and destroy family life. It will take a generation to remedy this condition, even with a program of rehousing larger and more significant than anyone as yet has been bold enough to suggest. The need is here for a national housing policy.

We face fiscal and governmental difficulties of grave importance. The most elementary public services essential to congested urban life have been threatened and weakened time and again in recent years by an archaic and impossible taxing system. Our governing units on the Federal, state and local levels have vied with each other to tap the possible sources of public revenues. In this contest, the cities have come out third best. They have no inherent taxing powers, but by and large are the great reservoirs of taxable wealth. Left for the most part with a revenue system based on the general property tax, faced with tax delinquencies, many cities have found themselves unable to carry the burden of their services, their debt and their relief.

Here is a challenge that must be met—the revising of our national revenue system from top to bottom. This is a co-operative enterprise which all of us must undertake now, immediately. The havoc created by our conflicting, overlapping and contradictory tax policies, both in urban life and in our industrial system, must come to an end.

Cities are still the creatures but not the wards of the state. They find themselves today with the same organic structure and with approximately the same powers of local government which were given them by frontier Legislatures when there was no urban center with as many as 25,000 souls. The creation of new units of authority by state Legislatures in local areas has given us overlapping and duplicating tax authorities and power groups.

What we need from our states is a simplification of this crazy establishment and a grant of authority commensurate with the duties and responsibilities of modern life.

The urban community overflows county lines and state boundaries, and, in several cases, cuts straight across the international line. Twenty-two of our 96 metropolitan districts, containing more than one-fifth of our total population, straddle state lines and answer to two or even three state governments.

This fact—a vital fact in our industrial, economic and public life—is utterly disregarded by the existing machinery of the states and by the Federal Government. Our system forces these cities to work through state establishments, which singly and collectively have been completely inadequate in dealing with urban problems.

It would seem that two courses are open to the states in their relation to our larger cities. They must recognize the urban problem and deal with it adequately, or they must release the cities from state obstruction and allow the building up of a new federal-city device which will represent a realistic approach to solution of the dilemma.

Cities can no longer be the pawns in the game of state politics and revenue-collecting—the place where the money and the jobs may be had. Cities are a vital force in American life, our major material and human resource, and they deserve to be treated as grown-ups, not as children.

We stand, then, on the brink of new public relationships—local, state and national. Not to recognize this is to be blind to the facts. The American city asks to be admitted into a new partnership—it asks to be understood. It wants recognition of its problems as it shares its wealth with the state and the nation. It has come of age and it recognizes its maturity. It wants no advantage over agriculture; it asks only parity and understanding. It seeks the chance to help itself, to handle its own responsibilities.

These things it cannot do unless the states and the Federal Government will recognize its difficulties and co-operate generously in their solution. I bring you the American city and I leave you with its challenge.

e principal allegations on be- of Gaines follow:

at he is entitled to attend university and that the action the curators in rejecting his ication was solely because he Negro, and was in violation onstitutional guaranties. State s and was contrary to public cy.

the university has the publicly-supported law school Gaines was eligible to attend Missouri.

hat the rejection by the Board Curators was an arbitrary and riminatory exclusion on ac- nt of his race.

hat the exclusion deprived of property without due pro- of law, and deprived him of l protection of law, in violation of the fourteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United States.

That the State, under the Constitution, can not establish or perpetuate the University of Missouri as an institution for whites in the absence of provision of equal educational opportunities to qualified Negro residents of the State.

No Substantial Equivalent.

That the State law providing that the State shall pay the tuition of Negro residents of Missouri desiring to take courses provided by the University of Missouri, but not taught at Lincoln University, if they attend universities in adjacent states admitting Negroes, does not provide substantial equivalent for the legal education afforded white students in the University of Missouri.

That Gaines was not trying to enter the University of Missouri as a Negro but in his individual right as a qualified resident of the State under the law. It is urged the Board of Curators can not exclude a Negro student from a school established for white students, even though the educational facilities in a segregated Negro school are equal or superior to those of the white school.

"It is not his physical presence in the School of Law which afflicts them (the board)," it is urged, "for no question would be raised if he were in the building as a porter or in any other menial capacity. The trouble is that as a student he offends the traditions of an age which is dead, and the memories of which should be dead."

Constitutional Provision.

Counsel for the university refer to Section 3 of Article II of the State Constitution, requiring establishment of separate free public schools for Negroes, and states providing for development of Lincoln University to afford Negroes educational opportunities of the same standard as furnished by the University of Missouri in support of the exclusion of Gaines from the latter university.

The present Lincoln University act, passed in 1921, authorizes development of the school to provide the same opportunities as provided by the University of Missouri. It authorizes the board of Lincoln University, pending such development, to arrange for attendance of Negro students in universities of adjoining states, if desired courses are not taught at Lincoln University, and for payment by the State of the tuition of such students.

Reference also is made by university counsel to a State law prohibiting a Negro child from attending a white school or for a white child to attend a Negro school, as defining the public policy of the State.

Gaines, according to the briefs, never called on Lincoln University to afford him facilities for a legal education or to pay his tuition for such a course in universities affording such an education in adjoining states.

Curators' Position in Case.

The university Board of Curators, in rejecting Gaines' application in March 1936, held that any change in the State system of separate education of white and Negro students would react to the detriment of both Lincoln University and the University of Missouri.

Other points advanced in support of the exclusion of Gaines include the following:

That the Constitution, laws and public policy of the State do not entitle a Negro to admission as a student in the University of Missouri.

That the public policy of the State is to provide separate educational facilities for whites and Negroes.

That rejection of Gaines' application does not deny him property rights without due process of law, or deprive him of equal protection of law under the Fourteenth amendment to the United States Constitution.

The mandamus against the Board of Curators of the University of Missouri is not the proper legal remedy.

"The question whether the races shall be separated for purposes of higher education and the determination as to which schools shall be open to whites and which shall be open to Negroes are matters within the jurisdiction of the law-making branch of the Government," the university says. "The people, through their Constitution, have directed the Legislature to separate the races for purposes of education—the system so established represents the settled policy of the people of this State. Experience has shown it to be a wise policy."

NAZI POLICE CLOSE CATHOLIC SEMINARY

Action Interpreted as Start of Drive on Church's Educational Institutions.

By the Associated Press.

ERFURT, Germany, May 15. — Nazi state police today closed the doors of a Catholic boys' seminary in Heiligenstadt, declaring they did so "on account of wretched moral conditions prevailing among youthful inmates."

The Gestapo action, following numerous Nazi-publicized trials of priests and lay brothers on charges of improper conduct, was interpreted in some quarters as the beginning of a police campaign against Catholic educational institutions throughout the Reich.

Last Wednesday, the Gestapo closed a Catholic hospital at Duisburg because, it said, of inexpert treatment. At the same time, a young East Prussian priest was given the equivalent of a life sentence on conviction of alleged immorality, and the Ministry of the Interior extended official recognition, as a "religion," to Gen. Eric von Ludendorff's pagan "German God" movement.

This anti-Catholic campaign has been waged increasingly since Pope Pius, before Easter, charged the German Government with overstepping its sphere of influence as defined by the 1933 Church-State concordat, particularly in its efforts to form a unified "Hitler youth" and to set up what the church regards as a "false deity" in Adolf Hitler.

The Heiligenstadt Seminary, closed today, was one in which youths of secondary school age were prepared for later priesthood training.

BALDWIN CONSULTING DOMINIONS ON 'H.R.H.'

Takes Leaders With Him to Chequers to Consider Mrs. Simpson's Status.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 15. — Prime Minister Baldwin was believed tonight to have taken his renewed difficulties over ex-King Edward and Mrs. Simpson to the Prime Ministers of the Dominions. He took with him to Chequers, his official country house, for the week-end, some of the Dominion leaders.

Baldwin is considered to be the leader of the Government in its stand to keep Edward's bride-to-be from becoming "Her Royal Highness" when she becomes the Duchess of Windsor, probably early next month. Edward, who opposed Baldwin in the constitutional crisis which led to abdication last December, once more is opposing him by insisting that his wife shall have a royal status.

During the constitutional crisis Baldwin consulted the heads of the Dominion Governments by telephone; and the present gathering for the imperial conference was suggested as an ideal opportunity for him to confer with them again on the vexing issue of Mrs. Simpson. This controversy is being kept from public knowlegde. Not a line concerning it has appeared in the British press, which also unanimously censored itself on the December controversy until the crisis was imminent.

The possible retirement of Baldwin as Prime Minister—many believe it will come within a month—would not weaken the opposition to royal status for the future Duchess of Windsor. His prospective successor, Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is known to see eye to eye with Baldwin on this issue.

Social leaders who disliked Mrs. Simpson before the abdication crisis are just as bitter now against recognizing her royal status. Said one high-born lady, "She will never be called Her Royal Highness—she just won't; that's all!"

Paris Tailors Measure Edward for His Wedding Suit.

By the Associated Press.

MONTS, France, May 15.— The Duke of Windsor started today to replenish his wardrobe for his marriage to Wallis Warfield. A squad of Paris tailors measured him for his wedding suit. He was said to have agreed after a friendly argument with his bride-to-be to buy his first new suits since he gave up the throne of England.

Herman L. Rogers, spokesman for the pair, indicated he would announce their wedding date between 2:30 and 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The ceremony probably will be in June.

That information was given after the Duke talked at length by telephone with London.

Rogers said Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, of Washington, D. C., Mrs. Warfield's "Aunt Bessie", would come directly to the chateau for the wedding after her arrival in France next week.

An extra butler and two chambermaids were added to the chateau's staff as preparations for the wedding were accelerated.

The Duke played golf today, unruffled by the controversy with the British Government over what title Mrs. Warfield shall have after her marriage.

May 21-28 Air Mail Week.

The period May 21 to 28 has been designated Missouri Air Mail Week by Gov. Stark. May 20 and 21 is the tenth anniversary of Col. Lindbergh's flight to Paris. Lindbergh made the first contract air mail flight between St. Louis and Chicago on April 15, 1926. Today an average of 15 planes leave Lambert-St. Louis Field daily with air mail.

MUSSOLINI SAYS ITALY MUST HAVE SELF-SUFFICIENCY

Declares It Will Achieve Economic Independence If It Has to Work "25 Hours a Day."

IRONICALLY REFERS TO UNITED STATES

Speaks of Country Which "Prohibited Collective Labor Contracts Until a Month Ago."

By the Associated Press.

ROME, May 15.—Italy will make itself economically self-sufficient even if it has to work "25 hours a day," Premier Mussolini proclaimed today. He called this program a guarantee of peace and a surety of "the life, the future and the power" of the Italian people.

Mussolini laid down his policy before cheering members of the Corporative Guild, which includes representatives of all phases of Fascism, at their annual meeting in the Julius Caesar Hall of the old capitol building.

His audience laughed and applauded his ironic references to democracies, which, he declared, wished Italy to abandon its self-sufficiency program "for we know not what."

Reference to U. S.

He provoked a demonstration by an apparent reference to the United States when he spoke of a country which "prohibited collective labor contracts until a month ago." Presumably he referred to the upholding of the Wagner Labor Relations Act by the United States Supreme Court.

(Mussolini has set up a corporative system under which strikes are forbidden and arbitration of labor disputes is compulsory.)

Standing near the statue of Julius Caesar, Mussolini declared:

"Economic autarchy (self-sufficiency) is a guarantee of peace which we firmly desire. It is an impediment to war.

"For us it is impossible in a world armed to the teeth to abandon such a policy. It would mean putting ourselves tomorrow, in case of war, at the mercy of those who have all and who can make war without limitation of time or consumption.

"Fascism does not wish to absorb the economic life of the people," he added, "because Fascism doesn't wish to become elphantic and paralytic as happens under Bolshevism."

Iron and "Political Humor."

Mussolini said the price and availability of iron were often dependent on the "political humor" of the Western countries which supply it. He stated that Italy had 50 per cent of its requirements in iron and had a limitless supply of manganese and bauxite. The country will be self-sufficient in petroleum by 1938 and has already begun to export aluminum, he said.

Although he asserted his economic policy would not "diminish the volume of world trade," political sources said they thought his speech indicated Italy was not in a mood to make active contributions to solution of the world's economic difficulties.

By contrast, Count Galeazzo Ciano, Mussolini's Foreign Minister, told the Chamber of Deputies Thursday that Italy would co-operate in any effort by the United States for world economic betterment.

Some sources believed Mussolini would press for self-sufficiency in materials necessary in war-time but might consider trade agreements in other fields.

PRESBYTERIAN GENERAL ASSEMBLY MAY 27-JUNE 2

149th Meeting in Columbus, O., to Elect Moderator and Discuss Economic Problems.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., May 15.—A program embracing social and economic problems, will be submitted by commissioners to the one hundred forty-ninth general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States, May 27 to June 2.

Election of a new moderator to succeed Dr. Henry B. Master of Philadelphia will be the first important business of the assembly, which will convene here for the sixth time.

After that the commissioners will proceed with other matters, which are likely to include: Attitude of the church toward today's economic and social problems; living salaries for pastors and a new plan for official grants to help churches pay adequate salaries; a new method of electing the stated clerk in 1938 for a five-year term, and debts on property of the churches.

Quits G. O. P. National Committee.

By the Associated Press.

WILMINGTON, Del., May 15. — Former Gov. C. Douglass Buck has sent his resignation as a member of the Republican National Committee to Chairman John D. M. Hamilton, party leaders announced today. His desire to devote more time to business was given as the reason. Buck has served on the committee since 1930.

Why Foreign Youths Fight For Spain at 91c a Week

writes asking for information: "Needless to say, I am very proud of my boy and all the comrades who are fighting so desperately. I gave him up willingly, otherwise he would not have left me, but I do want to know whether he lives still; if so, where he is and how he is, and if I hear he is at rest, I will bear the loss just as bravely as I can."

One of Men Who Fell Wanted Mother to See Russia.

And this letter, from the wife of a man who had been killed, ends with this strange and touching message: "One of A's greatest wishes was that his mother should visit the U. S. S. R. and the family think that should she make the trip it would be of great benefit to her health and she should be able to see that her son's death was not in vain. That the May day celebrations would be a nice time for such a visit, we would like you to send particulars as to expenses, passports and a list of things she would require during the trip."

But it would be a mistake to think that the majority of letters are tragic or political or even serious. Most of them are cheerful descriptions of life in Spain, pointed with the language of all soldiers and more concerned with a packet of cigarettes than the future of the world or themselves. Yet even the most cheerful and ordinary are impressed by the horrors of air raids on the civil population, and the following is a quotation from one of the most cheerful and least self-conscious of all the letters:

"After coming from hospital I returned to Albacete and I was in an air raid. Red Cross men and women and troops were moving about doing rescue work. The sight I saw at the pharmacie makes me, a soldier, even shudder. Children were brought in with legs in shreds; one beautiful young woman was screaming 'Madre Mio' on a stretcher. The doctor started to cut her clothes off. She had a wound on the head, one on the left shoulder, another below the armpit. By the time they had done up a hip wound there was no strychnine or heart stimulant. She was removed to the mortuary to make room for more and there died."

Makeup of the Brigade.

The splendid work done by the International Brigade in the defense of Madrid against the Spanish rebels and their foreign auxiliaries has already become a matter of history. The exact composition of the brigade and the number of its losses since it was brought to the Madrid front early in November are not yet known with exactitude, but is is doubtful whether it ever numbered much more than 20,000 men.

The brigade consists for the most part of Frenchmen; an outside figure of 15,000 has been given. There are said to be 2000 German anti-Nazis (the Thalmann battalion), perhaps 1000 Italian anti-Fascists (the Garibaldi battalion), a number of mixed nationalities, including Irish, and the British or Saklatvala battalion.

Death of Novelist.

The British battalion, consisting of 500 or 600 "hardened old fighters and quite young lads," did not come into action as a unit until the second week of February, when it was brought up to defend the Madrid-Valencia road, the only remaining channel of communication open to Madrid along which supplies could be brought to its harassed defenders. But before that British men individually had fought at Cordova, on the Aragon front, and elsewhere. It was at Cordova during the fighting on Dec. 27 and 28 that Ralph Fox, the Communist author and novelist, was killed. One who fought with him wrote:

"I saw Ralph smiling encouragement to comrades under heavy machine-gun and artillery fire on Sunday evening, Dec. 27. He was killed with many more next day. It was a terrible trial for men just come from England; no trenches or cover but olive trees."

Machine-Gunned From Planes.

The men who were killed at Cordova were shot down for the most part by machine guns from German airplanes. The Englishmen who survived these two days on the Cordova front were later transferred to a quiet sector doing patrol duty, but afterwards they were taken to defend the Escorial road, northwest of Madrid, and helped to push back the rebels at Las Rosas, vital junction of the Escorial and Corunna roads. Here the discipline of the International Brigade under fire was excellent. The Garibaldi battalion "performed marvels." They sang the "Internationale" as they fought and punctuated the "Avanti Popolo" with hand grenades.

On Feb. 10 the rebels last launched their effort to cut the Valencia road.

Defense of Arganda Bridge.

The British battalion, consisting at first of 500 men, was stationed to defend the long steel bridge known as the Arganda Bridge, which carries the road across the River Jarama. The attack was begun directly after the fall of Malaga had encouraged the rebels to new efforts. Every possible technical preparation was made for the offensive; picked troops were employed, and tanks, cavalry and airplanes were used.

At one point German Nazis advanced on the British singing the "Internationale" and raising their hands in the Communist salute. The British jumped up to cheer them and prepare a welcome. But no sooner were they close enough than the enemy threw incendiary grenades. A bayonet charge in reply was driven off with bombs and bullets, and out of a platoon of 35 only five men survived.

Breaking Up a Wing Party.

Although only 80 of them had been in action previously the British resisted a terrific offensive "with a reckless bravery which no seasoned soldiers could surpass." They "fought like tigers for every inch of the ground," says one who was there. When the battle began on Feb. 12 sheer weight of numbers at first forced them back on the crest of a ridge. The ridge was successfully held, and at night they dug themselves in. The battle was resumed at dawn on the following day. The rebels tried their cavalry, but they were repulsed with machine-gun fire. "On the late afternoon of the third day" one of the men wrote: "A told me of an incident in which a number of French, Spanish, and other troops gathered round some wine-barrels and water-tanks on the road. They were drinking, talking, and it appeared impossible to get things sorted out. In barged B, using a rifle-butt freely, blew holes in the barrels and let the wine run off. Then it was possible to get the men turned back."

Valencia Road Saved.

On the third night the British battalion counter-attacked, singing the "Internationale." Many were killed, including the leader of No. 1 company. Kenneth Stalker, son of a St. Andrews professor, took over, "puffing away at his pipe and steadying the boys by his example. A machine-gun bullet killed him during the retreat from a wall in front of the sunken road." But next day the fury of the rebel attack abated, and by Feb. 22 the International Brigade was advancing and the Valencia road was saved.

The victory was won at a terrible price. A hundred members of the British battalion were killed, and it was thought at one time that altogether 400 were killed, wounded or missing. Out of a battalion over 500 strong, with a brigade guard of 60 and reinforced with drafts of 85 and 25 men, only 250 were left. The battalian had dwindled to two companies.

The members of the British battalion were much more impressed with the horrors of air raids on innocent civilians than they were by any fighting at the front. In Albacete an air bombardment is said to have "crumbled up houses like one would tear a piece of paper. Even some of the largert and more solid-looking buildings are just one mass of rubble inside when the bombs had finished with them."

Congo Basin Suggested for Nazi Colony

craft it should be possible to take one further step and expand the geographical area throughout territories partly under the Conventional Basin, and thereby enhance enormously its attraction. There could be no practical objection to including Nigeria in the "open door" area. The German-Italian rapprochement might, in view of other known difficulties, incline Italy to agree more readily to an inclusion of Abyssinia —all the more so if Great Britain and Egypt would consent to place the Sudan, already an "open door" area, under the same measure of international co-operation and oversight. By this means an area of nearly 5,000,000 square miles could be brought under the mandatory principles of colonization, and untold blessings conferred on nearly 50,000,000 Africans.

Mandates Commission.

It is clear that, no matter how widely the door of material opportunity is thrown open, no matter how immense the substance of economic possibility, the sense of grievance will remain unless there is at the same time a measure of responsibility for actual government. Fortunately this exists in embryo today. The Mandates Commission has made great strides during its 15 years of office; it has built up a service of international colonial oversight, which has been of enormous advantage to the people inhabiting the 1,500,000 square miles under its supervision, whilst at the same time no Power has had any solid reason to complain of its activities. Here, indeed, is a machine ready to hand.

If the mandatory system of 1920 could be allied to the Bismarck-Stanley creation of 1885 and then expanded so as to satisfy the substance of any grievance, and a form of mandatory control developed which would bring in adequate German and possibly Egyptian, Indian, and African co-operation from the Nile to the Zambesi, from the Atlantic to the Indian Ocean, there would be provided scope for all the colonial energies of Europe. But for so great an enterprise there must be a real desire to co-operate in a spirit of goodwill in developing Central Africa for the benefit of civilization as a whole. The moment and the opportunity have been provided by expiring treaties. Will the statesmen of Europe and the United States seize this moment an opportunity to give to the world a colonial solution which might lead on to world peace?

Heads Optimists.

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., May 15.—Milton Morris of Denver, Colo., was elected Governor of the Tenth District of the International Optimists' Club at the annual convention here today. He succeeds G. Clay Baker of Topeka, Kan. Hutchinson, Kan., was selected for the 1938 district meeting. Dr. Albert H. Muench of St. Joseph was elected Lieutenant-Governor and John Jenkins of Denver secretary and treasurer. The convention ended tonight.

Horse Racing Popular Sport Under Soviets

the horses born in England which were raced in Moscow after Rain Cloud, the best was Ilias (by Call Boy), twice winner; Zabota (by Money Maker), twice winner, and Quadrille Boy (by Tetratema, once winner (broke down in his fourth race).

Handicaps Rare.

Regarding the rules of the races in Russia, it is interesting to know that handicaps are rare. Only one, the Zakrytie, which is like the Optional, but raced at the end of the season, appears on the program, the others being extra races. The horses are classified in categories (as in the United States for the trotters). For example, the maiden is a fifth category, and after a victory or two seconds he passes to the fourth, and so on, with the exception of classic races, when a victory is counted as two.

The distances of the races are longer than in England. A two-year maiden starts at 1200 meters and afterward at 1500, and the last day of the season at 1800 meters. (A mile is just over 1600 meters.) Three-year-olds run few races of a mile and mostly at 1800 meters. When in a higher category they start at 2000 meters, then 2200 (one and one-half miles), 2400, 3000, and in the last handicap at 3200 meters (two miles). For four-year-olds the distance is 2400 meters and more seldom 3000, 3200, 4000 and 4800 meters (three miles). Sometimes they start in extra races at 2000 meters.

The Classic Races.

Horses of different ages are admitted to only a few races and about 15 per cent of the races are reserved for fillies. The classic races are: For two-year-olds, the Produce Stakes (1200 meters), on the first day of the meeting; the Kalinin Stakes (1600 meters), the main race for them, with a prize of 20,000 rubles; the Criterium (1500 meters), for horses of two and three years, and the Closing Stakes, 1800 meters. For the three-year-olds, the Opening Stakes, 1800 meters; the Oaks, 2400 meters, the Derby, 2400 meters; the St. Leger, 3000 meters; the Sravnenie, 2400 meters, where they meet for the first time the four-year-olds.

For the four-year-olds, the Republic Stakes, 3200 meters, and the Farewell Stakes, 4800 meters. In order to have not more than eight or 10 horses starting in the Derby, a lesser Derby is raced with one-third of the amount in prizes. A special stake for fillies is raced in the autumn over 2400 meters.

Retired as Four-Year-Olds.

The category system is made possible also by the fact that all the horses are the property of the State. Prizes are given and paid as premiums to the trainer, the jockey, the lad, the stud-workers, the blacksmith and others. This premium may be reduced when the horse has some defects of constitution. As studs have always about a hundred or more mares, each of them has three or four trainers, with an adequate number of jockeys.

It is interesting to observe that geldings are not admitted to the hippodrome, as the latter is maintained primarily for the improvement of the breed and not for sport. Horses are raced only up to four years (some exceptions are made, but seldom, and principally for horses born in foreign countries). After the third year only the best are kept in training. Fillies at four years may be raced only six or seven times.

SOVIET INVESTIGATES CUT IN DON BASIN COAL OUTPUT

Area Produces 65 Pct. of Russia's Fuel; Arrest of Vice-Commissar Denied.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, May 15.—State Prosecutor Andrey Vishinsky sent a special investigating commission today into the Don basin, important Soviet coal area, where there has been a recent shake-up of executives.

Press reports have disclosed wide-spread unrest in the Don basin with thousands of miners missing work regularly or leaving in search of other employment in protest against working, living and wage conditions.

Don basin production is from 15 to 20 per cent below its quota. The deficiency is keenly felt because its superior anthracite coal is used in Russia's key industries as well as for export. It supplies 65 per cent of Russia's coal.

The Tass (official) news agency announced it was authorized to deny reports that A. P. Serebrovsky, vice-commissar of heavy industry in charge of base metal production, had been arrested. Serebrovsky, former head of the gold trust, is reputed to be one of the Soviet's finest mining engineers.

FORMER SINN FEIN LEADER TO SPEAK FOR LOYALISTS

The Rev. Michael O'Flannagan to Talk in City May 25 in Defense of Spanish Government.

The Rev. Michael O'Flannagan, Irish priest who served as vice-president of the Sinn Fein during the movement for Irish independence in 1918, will speak in defense of the Spanish Government at a meeting at the Municipal Auditorium May 25 under auspices of the St. Louis Chapter of the Medical Bureau of American Friends of Spanish Democracy.

Father O'Flannagan has been touring the United States in recent months in the interests of the Spanish loyalists under auspices of the bureau, which has sent medical supplies and doctors and nurses to Spain and established four hospitals there. Dr Walter B. Cannon, professor of physiology at Harvard University, is national chairman of the bureau and Dr. George H. Bishop chairman of the St. Louis chapter.

ROMAN HISTORY MODERNIZED WITH SATIRICAL INTENT

THE PRETENDER. By Lion Feuchtwanger. (Viking Press, New York.)

WHEN Nero died on June 9, 68 A. D., in the thirty-first year of his age and the fourteenth of his reign, many doubted the report, thinking it somewhat exaggerated, and through the following years numerous false Neros appeared, won support and flourished for a time. One of these was a potter of Edessa, a freed slave named Terence, who bore a resemblance to the dead Emperor, giving some color to the claim that Terence had died in Nero's stead and that Nero still lived.

The conspirators who supported the claim knew better, but the real Nero had been dead 13 years and it was not difficult to fool the populace with a resemblance accentuated by the arts of suggestion. They were not able, however, to fool Caia, the wife of Terence, for she was sure the real Nero would not have complained that there was too little garlic in the mutton stew, as her husband did; so she flatly called him a fathead and warned Senator Varro, chief sponsor for the impostor, that he couldn't pull her leg. For her forthright speech and other indiscretions she was put to death in a blood purge so gruesome that Emperor Titus, over at the Palatine, was moved to inquire concerning Terence: "How can such a little fish make such a big stink?" The answer was that the odor came from the big fish who were using Terence as their creature.

As for Terence, what was said at the Palatine about him left him cold. He saw to it, by laws of lese majesty, that others did not speak lightly of him. Common people were even forbidden to swear or belch in the presence of his statue. And Varro, although he no longer cut any ice in Rome, was still somebody "in this lousy Antioch," and never doubted that he could pull it off and put the false Nero across, even though Trebonius the soldier, who called himself "yours truly" and barked his orders and was not to be sneezed at, declared that he would settle the hash of this new Nero in a couple of shakes.

It took longer than a couple of shakes, but the hash of Terence was finally settled to the satisfaction of everybody except himself and his co-conspirators.

The speech of the noble Romans and provincials, it will be observed, has gone colloquial in Mr. Feuchtwanger's fiction. Perhaps the author had it in mind to be satirical concerning the dictators who flourish in our day. The pretender is a poor fish, and the stench that he stirs up is out of all proportion to his importance; but the tale that Mr. Feuchtwanger tells is highly entertaining and not unimportant at a time when little fish, as false Neros, are again agitating the waters of the world.

BIG DOINGS IN THE MOUNTAINS

MOUNTAIN MEN. By Stanley Vestal. (Houghton Mifflin Co., Boston.)

FIFTY years ago, when Hubert Howe Bancroft was compiling his histories of the Far Western states, he engaged James Robert Campbell as one of his assistants. During the course of his researches for Bancroft, Campbell became acquainted with many Plains Indians and a few surviving mountain men who were later to supply him with much valuable information on certain phases of Rocky Mountain history.

The stepson of James Robert Campbell is Walter Stanley Campbell (Stanley Vestal to you), the author of this work on the mountain men, who has supplemented by his own careful investigations among the Southern Cheyennes and Arapahos the important information gathered by his stepfather. Thus, there is considerable information in the book that has not heretofore been published; and much of it, from Indian sources, throws new light on some hotly disputed points in Western history.

The high points in the volume are the chapters on the battle of Pierre's Hole, the adventures of Sol Silver, that old hard case, and Fremont's fourth trans-mountain expedition. But anybody who doesn't read the book from cover to cover and (because it contains less than 300 pages) look around for more, just doesn't love his mountain men and his old West.

Thar wuz big doin's in them mountains when ol' Bill Williams, Jim Bridger, Jed Smith, Sol Silver, Tom Fitzpatrick, Dick Wootton, Jim Beckwourth, Kit Carson and all the others gathered at rendezvous with their pelts and their thirst and their tall tales. The yarns they told about themselves, their friends and their enemies are here in this book—talk of trap lines, Injun fights, grizzlies, hump meat, sprees, squaw doin's, starvation and incredible hardship.

The author does not, by any means, present all new material. Probably a third of the book is new. This portion is a real contribution to the history of the West; its authenticity appears beyond question; and it comes from sources not usually tapped. The rest of the book is old material re-written, mostly in mountain style, with all the juice of roast hump meat and the keenness of Taos lightnin'.

"Mountain Men" is written in Stanley Vestal's best manner. It is a companion to his former book on Kit Carson, and probably a notch or two higher in general merit.

Pure Gold Tried In the Furnace

NOR TIME NOR TIDE. By Edward Carroll Sibley. (Robert Speller Publishing Corporation, New York.)

THIS is a novel of Saint Louis and its Society (big S). The author is concerned with the fifth or sixth generation of Camerons to live in Saint Louis and, "next to the Chouteaus," to furnish the city's business, civic and social leaders. Now Saint Louis has a significant tradition and a social hierarchy extraordinarily homogeneous for an American metropolis. The trouble with "Nor Time Nor Tide" is that it says all this in such an impressed and breathless manner.

The local squirearchy are a worthy and remote group, but they have none of the Olympian splendor with which Mr. Sibley's imagination invests them. The country club is an agreeable place, but in no sense Lucullan in its sumptuousness. Conversation at the business men's noon-day club, one guesses, turns rather more frequently to the Cards' pennant chances than to high finance. In short, Mr. Sibley is too awed by his characters to tell us about them objectively as human beings.

The novel demonstrates that breeding tells. A family may be lazy, selfish, indifferent, but, if it be to the manner born, when the crash comes, all baseness melts away in the blast furnace of adversity, and the true metal shines again in its pristine brilliance. This family is really tried, too. First the depression, then kidnaping, then indictment for the misuse of entrusted securities. Loyalty and suicide save the day, and the family emerges at last brightly whitewashed.

The tale is written in short, disconnected scenes. It has courtrooms, kidnapings, homicide, sex, drunkenness, mother love and plenty of thrills. Its characters, moreover, are all either pleasant or unpleasant, which is much nicer than having them either good or bad. The author is careful to let us know which ones we are to like best. He inclines toward gentlemen and ladies, though faithful old servants also get a good break.

This is a poor novel, but it could be turned into a hair-raising, tear-jerking movie.

The Son of Mary Queen of Scots

MINE IS THE KINGDOM. By Jane Oliver. (J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia.)

IN spite of their importance in the development of human affairs, certain periods and personages of history are commonly ignored by the layman. This is true of the person and the times of James I of England, and particularly so of his work when he was James VI of Scotland, waiting for the stubborn Elizabeth to recognize him as her heir. Jane Oliver's "Mine Is the Kingdom" is, therefore, especially welcome, for it is the story of James up to his accession to the English throne in 1603.

Son of Mary of Scotland and born only four months after the murder of Rizzio, James was early deprived of his mother and for the last 20 years of her life ruled Scotland in her stead. Being King of this northern country was no sinecure for either boy or man. There were quarreling nobles to be pacified or played against one another; there were the Kirk with its stubborn ministers, and the Catholics with their plots to give the country into the power of France or Spain; there were conspiracies to return Mary to the throne or to put some other claimant in the high place occupied by James.

In this setting Miss Oliver's James grows from a timid, frightened little boy into a crafty and unlovely, although scholarly, man imbued with the idea of the divinity of his kingly power. When he becomes King of England he shocks his wife by declaring, "Mine is the kingdom and the power and the glory." To her ears this statement smacks of blasphemy.

Among the most interesting incidents in the novel are those connected with the famous Gowrie conspiracy. Miss Oliver accepts the belief that James was the murderer of the Ruthven family, whereas sober historians are not prepared to say that there actually was a conspiracy, in which case James would be guiltless, or whether the King did deliberately plan the destruction of his old enemies. The circumstances are inexplicable in either instance. Miss Oliver's story of what might have led up to the tragedy is convincing.

A New Hampshire Fantasy

THE DEVIL AND DANIEL WEBSTER. By Stephen Vincent Benet. Illustrated by Harold Denison. (The Countryman Press, Weston, Vt.)

UP AROUND Marshfield, New Hampshire, unless the present tale be over-tall, the natives know, or knew in better days than these, some things about old Dan'l Webster that historians never have learned.

There lived the great man in his prime, "with a mouth like a mastiff, a brow like a mountain and eyes like burning anthracite." He could "turn on the harps of the blessed," when he talked, until "the whole sky filled with stars and stripes"; and yet so efficient was he as a real dirt farmer that "the chickens he raised were all white meat down through the drumsticks."

In a sense it's true enough that Dan'l Webster is dead and gone; at least he was buried. But it used to be (and maybe is yet) that if you stood by his grave and called his name three times, there'd be a deep rumbling voice that said: "Neighbor, how stands the Union?" And anyone hearing that voice just had to reply, "She's standing rock-bottomed and copper-sheathed, one and indivisible," or else old Dan'l "was liable to rear right out of the ground."

But it was the Jabez Stone affair that really marked old Dan'l as "the biggest man in the country." Jabez hadn't been doing so well with his farming. It was just one stroke of bad luck after another for him, and yet he wasn't a bad man, as men go. One day he remarked that "It was enough to make a man want to sell his soul to the Devil."

The Devil appeared, a bargain was made, and Jabez prospered—for the stipulated term of seven years. But when the Prince of Darkness came to foreclose the mortgage, Jabez didn't want to pay. That's how the biggest of all law suits came about, with Dan'l Webster as attorney for the defendant, and such a jury as no man ever faced before or since—12 dead men straight from the Burning Pit, pirates, murderers, traitors, hanging judges and the like.

All night long Dan'l orated—with the aid of his faithful jug, which is plainly shown in one of the pictures. And what a speech that must have been! No thundering denunciations—just pity and kindness for all men, the worst and the best. "With a voice like an organ" he was showing that "there was sadness in being a man, but it was a proud thing, too"; and he was "telling the story and the failures of the endless journey of mankind" in a way to make even that jury pitiful. For once, at least, the Devil lost.

Here is a masterly bit of yarning in the authentic folk-tale manner. Benet could have turned his material into one of the most delightful ballads in our literature, but it would be ungrateful to wish that he had done so.

The five drawings by Harold Denison are worthy of the text, and that is praise enough. The book is a "natural," and it seems regrettable that the edition is limited.

Nation of Joiners

FIFTY MILLION BROTHERS. By Charles W. Ferguson. (Farrar & Rinehart, New York.)

MUCH scholarly research has gone into the making of this book and with it a great deal of sage observation on the phenomenon of American fraternalism. While Mr. Ferguson is not above occasionally kidding the more fantastic fraternal orders, he is aware that some deep-lying impulse leads Americans into the most absurd antics under the most high-sounding disguises. It is, he says, the desire of the individual to identify himself with something that is larger and more important than his own ego. Perhaps upon this impulse European dictators have founded the cult of the state.

The author traces the origins of more than 20 major fraternal societies and gives a brief account of at least a score more. In the chapter called "Animal Crackers" we are told of the miraculous origins of the Elks, the Moose and the Eagles. There is the story of how James J. Davis amassed his personal fortune through his connection with the Moose, and almost went to jail for it. Yet, Mr. Ferguson tells us, and it sounds entirely credible to anyone who is aware of our curious dualism, his motive has been "intense sentimental devotion to children." Beneath all the panoply of high sounding titles and fantastic regalia the avowed aim is almost always humanitarian.

In the struggling pseudo-Fascist organizations that Mr. Ferguson discusses there is the same confusion of motives. Most fantastic of all these is the Silver Shirts of William Dudley Pelley, now happily in eclipse. Pelley, according to the author, lacked the demagogic touch; and, in any event, his Silver Shirts would probably have dwindled. The author, however, does not rule out the possibility of a shrewder Pelley who may seize the opportunity of another economic depression to play upon American fondness for fantasy and make-believe.

"Fifty Million Brothers" is an extremely interesting commentary on the American temperament with no little significance for the present day.

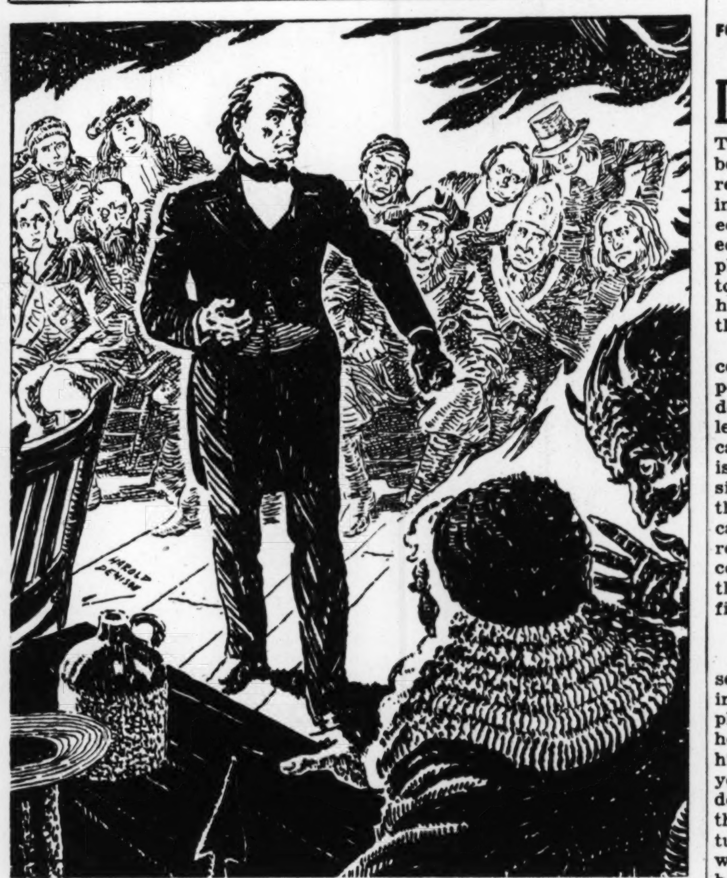
WEBSTER'S BIGGEST MOMENT



A Drawing by Denison From Benet's Latest Book.

A COUNTRY EDITOR WHOM THE WHOLE NATION HONORS

FORTY YEARS ON MAIN STREET. By William Allen White. Compiled by Russell H. Fitzgibbon from the Emporia Gazette. (Farrar & Rinehart, New York.)

A YOUNG man with $1.25 in his pocket, fortified by a $3000 note signed by local politicians, purchased a Kansas country daily 42 years ago next month. With good luck, he would make a living, wield a certain influence locally, perhaps become known over the State. Today, still editor and publisher of the same country daily (circulation 6048), he is a national figure, one of America's foremost newspaper men, a spokesman of independent thought whose opinions are eagerly sought.

This collection of some 400 editorials written since 1895 by that country journalist, William Allen White, offers the best possible explanation of his renown. Their shrewd wisdom, their vigorous style and above all their consistent retention of the common touch show why their author has become an oracle not only of Emporia and Lyon County but of the country at large.

His subjects have covered the whole range of human affairs, from, say, the defects of the League of Nations to the best way to make brown gravy. His position on the national stage has made Mr. White no less a small-town editor. He still writes of golden wedding anniversaries, of Emporia boys who make good, of the first pawpaws, of Dr. Higgins' zinnias, and with the same zest that he analyzes New Deal policy, or takes the measure of Hitler and Mussolini, or pictures Zaharoff's entry into Hades.

One interesting aspect of the compilation is the record it gives of how the editor's horizon has broadened with the years. He began as an orthodox reactionary, and stands today as one of the most virile progressives. His celebrated editorial, "What's the Matter With Kansas?" (1896), carries the two-fisted punch that is still characteristic of the writer, but its ideas are of his dead past.

Mr. White recognizes frankly what has happened to him. In many an honest footnote, he makes such confessions as: "How ashamed I was of those words a few years later," and "I don't believe a word in either of these editorials now."

Mr. Fitzgibbon, the compiler, faced a formidable task in examining the Gazette's files since 1895 and checking perhaps 40,000 White editorials. He has made a representative selection, fairly divided among the countless subjects and the various epochs, and has written introductions for each chapter.

It is a tribute to his subject that there has been a predecessor in the field: "The Editor and His People," a similar compilation by Helen Ogden Mahin of the University of Kansas journalism faculty, which appeared in 1924. The two collections have many editorials in common, but Miss Mahin may be conceded several points for having induced Mr. White to supply the chapter introductions, though Mr. Fitzgibbon has presented a larger collection.

The book is several things in one: the life story of a remarkable character, a pungent running commentary on events during his writing span, a literary classic in its telling use of the American language, a historically important record of one of the last exponents of personal journalism on the editorial page, the philosophy of a contemporary who has kept a sense of humor and a love for simple things in a complex, reeling world.

Adventures of an English Tramp

THE OTHER HALF. By John Worby. (Lee Furman, Inc., New York.)

IT is a pity that the publishers of this straightforward and moving recital of a young English tramp's adventures in England and America have resorted to a questionable publicity stunt. The book is eminently capable of standing on its own merits and does not need the artificial stimulant engendered by quotations from agitated moralists and critics who have demanded that it be banned. It should prove no more offensive to delicate minds than other books whose publishers have not assiduously invited the left-handed services of the censor.

John Worby not only has had access to a treasure trove of engrossing and sure-fire material, but he is endowed with the true instinct of a born story teller, enabling him to separate the gold from the dross.

As an orphan of less than five years, Worby was adopted from the Home by a couple whom he came to love as his own father and mother. Shocked by the discovery of his true relationship to his supposed parents, he became involved in petty crimes which finally led to his being shipped to Canada and bound out to a farmer. The Home was collecting a portion of his wages, so he ran away to the United States, trying to escape forever the domination of hated authority and the haunting stigma of his birth. He soon became a tramp, cunning in the ways of the hobo jungle, where the law of the survival of the fittest operates as implacably as in the African wilds. He met and loved several women, vagrants like himself, parting from them with varying degrees of pain. He realized that he bore the indelible stamp of the wanderer. Deported to England, he found it comparatively easy and pleasant to live by his wits.

It will not be difficult for the pedantic critic to discover flaws in Mr. Worby's writing. Cliches abound, and there are inaccuracies of fact and interpretation necessarily imposed by a tramp's distorted and circumscribed observation. However, these limitations help to lend a plausible flavor to the narrative, which moves with admirable precision and economy to its end.

Made Their Own Queer World

FOOL'S MELODY. Anonymous. (The Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.)

DR. LEONARD was master of The Moorings, a nursing home in the south of England, but Tony, the newest patient, had not been there five minutes when he realized that the entire household, including the doctor, was dominated by Sidney Patch, an acknowledged madman. He hears Patch, playing chess with one of the doctor's daughters, Miranda, ask what happens to chess games after they've been played.

But the domination is not as yet complete, and there is much purposefully supercilious talk on the doctor's part with his learned colleagues from London as to Patch's case, which they profess to believe is one of split personality and messiah complex. Then one day the three children of the household get caught in a storm on the river. The resultant hysteria establishes a common denominator that makes the mad and the sane equal, and firmly establishes Patch's power.

Tony, not understanding Patch's seeming joy in the face of impending tragedy, has demanded an explanation. "I expect I should be horribly nervous," says Patch, with his beautiful smile, "far more than you are—if it weren't for my breakdown. You see, I can't take these things literally"—. With a gesture, he indicates the wind and the water through which their frail boat is driving to the rescue. "They seem to me like metaphors." And he explains that these can be quite thrilling and meaningful, as good metaphors always are, but never frightening. Later, when two of the children are rescued and the house is plunged into grief for the third child, Patch, once a great musician, goes out into the garden and plays the piano. Grief ceases. What science, bound like Prometheus to details, was powerless to do, faith accomplishes. The music, ascending like ladders, becomes more real than death, and life at The Moorings, a broken thing, is made whole.

The foregoing makes the book appear much simpler and clearer than it actually is. The plot is full of intricately worked out sequences of deaths, marriages, teas, old maids' intrigues and the common details of living, but all is made subordinate to the meanings which are pressed from them, fading into a mystical glow in spite of a vivid and skillful rendition of each. This meaning, an impressive rationalization of a case against any kind of change or everyday reality, will not be accepted by most readers in the spirit in which the anonymous author advances it. But what remains is certainly a gallery of living portraits. That of Patch, in particular, is a psychological tour de force.

Age-Old Teaching

YOGA, A SCIENTIFIC EVALUATION. By Kovoor T. Behanan, Ph. D. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

YOGA, THE SCIENCE OF HEALTH. By Felix Guyot. (E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.)

THE afternoon-tea faddism of some years back for Oriental mysticism has been replaced by a growing interest in Yoga as an age-old philosophy of life that may hold something for the Occident, at least from the ethical and physical standpoints. For Yoga embodies some hygienic and mental practices that have been but recently "discovered" by the Western world.

Here are two books which approach the subject from different angles. Dr. Behanan, a native of Travancore, India, is a Fellow at the Institute of Human Relations of Yale University. He offers a complete analysis of Yoga theory, while Guyot, an Occidental, offers a handbook on its practice.

Dr. Behanan gives a far more comprehensive and unbiased account, of considerable value to psychologist and physiologist, for under a fellowship from Yale he spent two years as disciple of a noted Yogin, yet he does not proselytize. He discusses in detail, among other things, Indian culture, origins and deviations of Yoga concepts, Yoga psychology and its analogy with that of the West, giving physical and mental exercises, as well as an appraisal of Yoga with laboratory tests of some of the practices.

Guyot deals with Hatha Yoga, which is that phase of the philosophy dealing with health and is free of most metaphysical associations. He gives, in simple terms, directions for carrying out muscular and breathing exercises, dietary principles and control of the senses and nervous system. He believes that by following Hatha Yoga not only are general health and mental faculties improved and renewed, but that the life span can be considerably lengthened. He is convinced, from comparison with animals, that man should live to eight times his period of development, or more than 200 years, and that Hatha Yoga offers the means to that end.

A REALISTIC STUDY OF LIFE IN PUERTO RICO

CANDLE IN THE SUN. By Edith Roberts. (The Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.)

WHEN Avery Carpenter, young and enamored of romance, married the fascinating Hernan Colon, who claimed descent from Columbus, and went to live in the "Island" (apparently Puerto Rico), she was not quite prepared for the Latin attitude toward life. The furor caused by her dancing with other men than her husband amazed her. She could not understand her devoutly religious mother-in-law who ignored science and preferred to trust the cure of ills to a "promesa." Certain devious political methods of the islanders, an over-sensitivity concerning personal "honor," together with a callousness to the obvious maladies existent in the social order appeared incongruous to the straightforward mind of the American girl.

All of this, however, and even the double standard of morality accepted as inevitable by the women as well as by the men, might not have been so difficult for Avery to tolerate had it not been for the suspicion which began to form in her mind. The young wife came gradually to understand that, though her husband's family were leaders in the society and politics of the Island, their blood was not pure Spanish but held a trace of African admixture. Her final acceptance of a problem for which there is no definite solution and her determination to make the best what life offers mark Avery's co ing to maturity.

The author has handled a dif cult subject with a great deal understanding and restraint. The is never any melodrama in this co trast between two civilizations a two totally divergent points of vie The skill with which the chara ters are developed makes credi the somewhat bizarre story. H nan, who might easily have d generated into a sinister villain, r mains a typical young Latin, im pulsive, suave, passionate, unab to resist a pretty woman, but with a kindly and likable fellow. Nor the golden-haired Avery a sen mentally perfect heroine who su fers irreparable wrong. In the b ginning she is a thoughtless gi swayed by a longing for adventur Her disappointment at the shallo ness of her husband and the su fering she experiences because h beautiful child shows the unm takable signs of his mixed bl teach her that wisdom is grea than theories learned at college a that reality is not based upon r mantic dreams.

Miss Roberts has done more th merely analyze an ill-assorted ma riage. She has painted a realis picture of the exotic civilization the Island with its sun-drench tropical beauty, its spots of appa ing degradation, its religious sup stition, and its fiery political battl

THE CASE OF THE DANGEROUS DOWAGER. A Perry Mason Story by Erie Stanley Gardner. (William Morrow & Co., New York.)

THE GIRL IN BLACK VELVET. By Louise De Jean. (The Macaulay Co., New York.)

DEATH AT EIGHT BELLS. By Frederic Arnold Kummer. (Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co., Boston.)

THE OAKDALE AFFAIR AND THE RIDER. By Edgar Rice Burroughs. (Edgar Rice Burroughs ,Inc., Tarzana, Cal.)

ADVENTURE stories are ground out in such large numbers that striking originality is seldom achieved. "It Wasn't a Nightmare" attains some distinction by mixing clairvoyance with a Balkan munitions-maker, death in the Pyrenees, kidnaping in Macedonia, Nubian servants, treachery in high places, and an important official in the British Government. The author creates in Archibald Medrum and his young ward, Nigel Blair, an appealing and human pair of adventurers who are in there doing their best. After a tortuous beginning, the story gathers pace and excitement, at times outstripping E. Phillips Oppenheim.

"An Official Secret" takes the glamour out of the international secret-service system. Written under a pseudonym, it purports to be based on actual happenings. The beginning is confused, but things clear up and become genuinely interesting. However, few people w be surprised to learn that inter tional spying isn't all beer and s tles and Mata Haris.

In "The Case of the Danger Dowager" Perry Mason contin flouting the law and narrowly mi es winding up in the electric cha The scene is laid aboard a ga bling ship. Followers of Perry M son know what to expect by th time and they will not be disa pointed by his latest adventures.

"The Girl in Black Velvet" is amateurishly written story of t murder of a girl who took t easy route to orchids and ermin Her murder is avenged by a ch hood sweetheart, with a couple people dying by the wayside. C tains a few exciting moments.

"Death at Eight Bells," a slo moving novel, involves such a d picable victim that one alm wishes his death were as slow the pace of the book. Interest only to those who read detect novels as some people take drugs.

Edgar Rice Burroughs lea Tarzan in the jungle and tries hand at something different. "T Oakdale Affair" deals with a je robbery, a haunted house, a gent man hobo, some hoboes who are d tinctly not gentlemen, and a cou of murders. "The Rider" conce itself with a prince disguised a highwayman, a highwayman d guised as a prince, a princess, American heiress in search of title, and a newspaper reporter. T stories are evidently written f adolescents.

Will Posterity Call Him Prophet?

IN THE AMERICAN JUNGLE. By Waldo Frank. (Farrar & Rinehart, New York.)

WALDO FRANK is a philosopher and writer who believes that philosophy and writing have a serious function in the world. Seeing clearly the vulgarity and shoddiness in much of present-day America, he believes that America holds the seeds of a civilization and a culture as yet undreamed. Realizing fully the disintegration of Western civilization, he believes that out of the wreckage may be created a new society that will universalize the values conceived and nurtured by the finest Western minds. The philosopher's task is to plot out the spiritual synthesis that will make such triumphs possible; the writer's task is to give this synthesis life in the minds of the people. Frank has attempted to make a beginning in both directions.

The present volume is a collection of short articles published in magazines and pamphlets during the past 12 years. The selections are uneven in worth, some of the earlier ones sinking to the level of mere cleverness. But there is more gold than dross. Anyone who is attempting to do creative work today would do well to read and ponder the speeches to the American Writers' Congress and to the International Congress of Writers for the Defense of Culture. And anyone who is chilled by the contemporary mood of disillusion and defeat will find fresh courage in the luminous warmth that exudes from the devastating analyses of Spengler, Joseph Wood Krutch and T. S. Eliot.

Waldo Frank may conceivably be looked upon by future historians of the twentieth century as the prophet of a new and brighter day.

WHEAT MARKET IS STRONG ON CANADIAN NEWS

Unfavorable Crop Advices and Strengthening Wheat Export Situation Are Influences.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 15.—Unfavorable crop advices, particularly from Canada, and a strengthening wheat export situation helped bring out buying that lifted wheat prices as much as 2⅝ cents a bushel today.

The market was strong most of the session, continuing the recovery which began Friday. There was little selling pressure. Traders said the market apparently was well liquidated during the recent decline and that part of the buying was short covering.

Other grains rose with wheat. May rye advanced 3¾ cents at one stage, stimulated by export sales of 100,000 bushels to Norway and 250,000 to Germany, representing deliveries on contracts here. There was talk of further similar business.

Wheat closed 1 to 2¼ cents higher compared with Friday's finish, May $1.25⅞@1.26; July, $1.18@1.18⅛; September, $1.16¾@1.16½; corn was ⅝-¾c up, May new $1.30⅜; July new, $1.17⅝@1.17¾; September, $1.09⅛@1.09¼; oats were unchanged to 1¾c higher, May 50⅝c, and rye gained ⅜@1½c, May $1.12. Provisions advanced 17 to 23 cents.

Wheat rose soon after the opening to $1.25½ for May, reacted slightly, steadied and then pushed up to $1.26¾ for May just before the close. From this point there was another slight reaction. Liverpool was closed but the market at Winnipeg largely paralleled action here.

News interest centered on an authoritative statement that half of the Canadian wheat acreage needs immediate moisture relief to prevent reduction in yields. Parts of the spring wheat belt, both sides of the border, were reported so short of subsoil moisture that a period of hot weather or high winds prior to generous precipitation might result in serious damage.

Overnight export sales of Canadian wheat were estimated at about 500,000 bushels and one report indicated expected further German purchases have been deferred due to the holiday abroad. With domestic wheat prices believed near an export basis, various authorities continued to stress likelihood of increase export of United States wheat in the near future. In less than six weeks new wheat will be moving to market in commercial quantities, far ahead of new grain in any other producing country.

Short covering that appeared in May corn lifted the contract to $1.31⅛ at one stage, up almost 2 cents, but buying was tempered by receipt of 100,000 bushels of Argentine corn in Chicago. Cash corn prices were 1 to 2 cents higher. Oats was higher with corn.

Lard market gains were associated with advances in corn and the sharp hog upturn this week, together with estimates that receipts would reach only 55,000 head here next week and the possibility of a decrease in local lard stocks the first half of the month.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 27,188,000 buschels, corn 7,360,000 bushels. Open interest in wheat was 89,-221,000 bushels and in corn 33,248,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, May 15.—Wheat sold more than a cent higher today. July closed at $1.16⅞, up 1¼c and September at $1.16¼, ⅞c higher.

Winnipeg wheat opened unchanged to ⅛c higher and early was 1@1⅜c higher. Liverpool was closed today.

Argentine wheat and corn opened unchanged. The close was ⅜c higher for wheat and ⅛c up for corn.

ST. LOUIS CASH GRAIN

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was nominally 2¼c higher and hard wheat nominally 3¼c higher. A car of light garlicky No. red was the only wheat offered and this sold at $1.34. Inquiry was more active. Corn was ½ to 1½c higher. Receipts were light and demand slow. A mill was the only buyer, and some grain was carried over. Oats were 1½@ 2c higher. Demand was slow and most of the light offering was carried over. The only car sold went to a mill.

Local wheat receipts, which were 6000 bu, compared with 15,000 a week ago and 3,000 a year ago, included 2 cars local and 2 through. Corn receipts, which were 3,000 bu, compared with 45,000 a week ago and 28,500 a year ago, included 8 cars local and 2 through. Oats receipts, which were 16,000 bu, compared with 12,000 a week ago and 44,000 a year ago, included 2 cars local. Hay receipts were 2 cars local.

The author has handled a diff cult subject with a great deal of understanding and restraint. Ther is never any melodrama in this co trast between two civilizations an two totally divergent points of view The skill with which the chara ters are developed makes credib the somewhat bizarre story. H nan, who might easily have d generated into a sinister villain, r mains a typical young Latin, in pulsive, suave, passionate, unab to resist a pretty woman, but with a kindly and likable fellow. Nor the golden-haired Avery a sent mentally perfect heroine who su fers irreparable wrong. In the b ginning she is a thoughtless gi swayed by a longing for adventur Her disappointment at the shallow ness of her husband and the su fering she experiences because h beautiful child shows the unmi takable signs of his mixed blo teach her that wisdom is greate than theories learned at college an that reality is not based upon ro mantic dreams.

Miss Roberts has done more tha merely analyze an ill-assorted ma riage. She has painted a realisti picture of the exotic civilization o the Island with its sun-drenche tropical beauty, its spots of appal ing degradation, its religious supe stition, and its fiery political battle

A Naughty Boy Growing Up

THE OLD GOAT. By Tiffany Tha (Julian Messner, Inc., New York.)

WHILE not quite up to the d bious standard of his previ novels, Tiffany Thayer's "T Old Goat" does manage to b come exceedingly hilarious at tim With one exception, Thayer's ea er books have been quite fra ly based on lurid and ludicro amatory adventures. In his pr ent offering, he gives one t impression of a naughty boy gro ing up, displaying now and th a brief flash of his youthful dev ment. Sub-titling his book, "A Si ple Picture of Home Life in Ame ca," he unfolds the chronicle the Firestones at a constantly creasing tempo—starting with who was once a sinner, but hasn't repented very much, con uing with Ma, who strives to ke him firmly in hand, and windi up with a heterogeneous collect of children and grandchildren, alt nately prudish and sensual, and thoroughly neurotic.

At one time satirical, at anoth boisterous, and at no time suitab company for one's maiden au "The Old Goat" waggles his hor in unpredictable directions and g lops madly off, battering his he occasionally on a sprightly col tion of random illustrations w frequently provoke an additio chuckle.

WHEAT MARKET IS STRONG ON CANADIAN NEWS

Unfavorable Crop Advices and Strengthening Wheat Export Situation Are Influences.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 15.—Unfavorable crop advices, particularly from Canada, and a strengthening wheat export situation helped bring out buying that lifted wheat prices as much as 2⅝ cents a bushel today.

The market was strong most of the session, continuing the recovery which began Friday. There was little selling pressure. Traders said the market apparently was well liquidated during the recent decline and that part of the buying was short covering.

Other grains rose with wheat. May rye advanced 3¾ cents at one stage, stimulated by export sales of 100,000 bushels to Norway and 250,000 to Germany, representing deliveries on contracts here. There was talk of further similar business.

Wheat closed 1 to 2¼ cents higher compared with Friday's finish, May $1.25⅝@1.26; July, $1.18@1.18⅛; September, $1.16⅜@1.16½; corn was ⅝-⅜c up, May new $1.30⅜; July new, $1.17⅝@1.17¾; September, $1.09⅛@1.09¼; oats were unchanged to 1¾c higher, May 50⅝c, and rye gained ⅜@1½c, May $1.12. Provisions advanced 17 to 23 cents.

Wheat rose soon after the opening to $1.25½ for May, reacted slightly, steadied and then pushed up to $1.26⅜ for May just before the close. From this point there was another slight reaction. Liverpool was closed but the market at Winnipeg largely paralleled action here.

News interest centered on an authoritative statement that half of the Canadian wheat acreage needs immediate moisture relief to prevent reduction in yields. Parts of the spring wheat belt, both sides of the border, were reported so short of subsoil moisture that a period of hot weather or high winds prior to generous precipitation might result in serious damage.

Overnight export sales of Canadian wheat were estimated at about 500,000 bushels and one report indicated expected further German purchases have been deferred due to the holiday abroad. With domestic wheat prices believed near an export basis, various authorities continued to stress likelihood of increase export of United States wheat in the near future. In less than six weeks new wheat will be moving to market in commercial quantities, far ahead of new grain in any other producing country.

Short covering that appeared in May corn lifted the contract to $1.31⅛ at one stage, up almost 2 cents, but buying was tempered by receipt of 100,000 bushels of Argentine corn in Chicago. Cash corn prices were 1 to 2 cents higher. Oats was higher with corn.

Lard market gains were associated with advances in corn and the sharp hog upturn this week, together with estimates that receipts would reach only 55,000 head here next week and the possibility of a decrease in local lard stocks the first half of the month.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 27,188,000 buschels, corn 7,360,000 bushels. Open interest in wheat was 89,-21,000 bushels and in corn 33,248,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, May 15.—Wheat sold more than a cent higher today. July closed at $1.16⅞, up and September at $1.16⅛, ⅞c higher. Winnipeg wheat opened unchanged to ⅛c higher and early was 1@1⅜c higher. Liverpool was closed today. Argentine wheat and corn opened unchanged. The close was ⅜c higher for wheat and ¼c up for corn.

ST. LOUIS CASH GRAIN

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was nominally 2¼c higher and hard wheat nominally 3¼c higher. A car of light garlicky No. red was the only wheat offered and this sold at $1.34. Inquiry was more active. Corn was ½ to 1½c higher. Receipts were light and demand slow. A mill was the only buyer, and some grain was carried over. Oats were 1½@ 2c higher. Demand was slow and most of the light offering was carried over. The only car sold went to a mill.

Local wheat receipts, which were 6000 bu, compared with 15,000 a week ago and 54,000 a year ago, included 2 cars local and 2 through. Corn receipts, which were 15,000 bu, compared with 45,000 a week ago and 28,500 a year ago, included 8 cars local and 2 through. Oats receipts, which were 16,000 bu, compared with 12,000 a week ago and 44,000 a year ago, included 4 cars local. Hay receipts were 2 cars local.

NON-FERROUS METALS ARE QUIET, EXCEPTING LEAD

Consumers of Latter Metal Book Good Volume for May and June Delivery.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Lead was the exception last week in a quiet market for non-ferrous metals. The holidays at London served to curtail interest.

Lead consumers of all classifications booked a good volume of business for May and June delivery. The call for prompt shipments indicated consumers had underestimated current needs. Producers easily disposed of current intake and at times drew upon reserve stocks to fill demand.

Domestic copper was unchanged at 14 cents a pound, delivered Valley. Variations in the export market were narrow. While new business was light, shipments against contracts were good. April statistics showed domestic stocks decrease 21,870 tons to 99,576 tons, a new low and equal, at present rate of consumption to a little more than a month's reserve. Domestic consumption of 95,900 tons, plus 121,000 tons abroad, showed a monthly total of 217,000 tons, which, if maintained promises an annual world consumption of 2,600,-000 tons, the closest approach has been 2,076,000 tons consumed in 1929.

Interest in zinc was at a standstill. Producers unfilled orders are substantial. Consumers are well covered and interest for the present is confined to immediate routine need.

Tin was in the doldrums.

Prices eased after an early advance.

Steel ingot output was unchanged at 92 per cent of capacity. New business, however, showed a further tapering off.

Steel scrap prices continued easy, with Chicago reporting sales at concessions of $1.50 a ton.

Resales by second hands forced a reduction of ⅞ of a cent to 14½ cents a pound for Chinese antimony in bond.

Horses and Mules.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., May 15. —Moderate supplies continue to arrive at the horse and mule market. Commission offerings the past week totaled around 500 head. There was a satisfactory clearance and average prices held about steady, but trading lagged at times, notwithstanding a fair number of buyers. Mules, particularly, were quiet. In horses the best sellers were young mares and fillies and medium chunks. Part of the run embraced rail stock from the West and remainder of the quota was made up of truck shipments from nearby sections.

*NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice draft, $125@160; medium to good draft, $100@125; good to choice chunks, $100@125; smooth - mouthed chunks, $80@110; large farm mares, $125 @150; medium farm mares, $90@110; fillies, yearlings and twos; small, common, $30@50; good size, $60@85; extra size and quality, $120@160 (horse colts sell $15@25 per head less than fillies); good Southern mares, $75@100; small Southern mares, $40@60; small cheap horses, $30@50.

*MULE QUOTATIONS.

Farm mules, 15.2 to 16 hands, $110@ 140; colt mules, small, $60@85; draft mules, $150@200; mine mules, 15.3 to 16 hands, $135@160; mine mules, 14 to 15 hands, $90@125; choice cotton mules, 14.2 to 15 hands, $150@175; small green mules over 3 years old, $50@85.

*Quotations are for average animals and do not cover those of outstanding quality or the very cheapest grade.

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY STOCKYARDS.

Mississippi Valley Stockyards at St. Louis officially reports the market as follows:

CATTLE—Steers closed the Friday-to-Friday period around 25c higher. Medium quality mixed yearlings, $8@9.50, met good demand and sold 25c higher. Stock Market Sells Down to New Low for 1937 During Week; Slight Rebound Is Unimpressive Movement in Some Circles Is Described as Due to Dampening of Bullish Sentiment—Several Influences Cited.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The stock market fell last week, but met support as the period closed.

Pushing shares down, it was said, were strikes in the steel, motor and moving picture industries and growing fears that general business might lose some of its pep during the summer.

Other factors mentioned were conflicting reports of foreign liquidation, rumors in Wall Street margin requirements might be boosted and various symptoms of changing psychology.

In back of these, financial circules said, was the belief higher prices might bring sales resistance and possibly the heavy inventory accumulation of the past several months may have been too vigorous.

Those who study the market by charts, however, said the long-pull bullish pattern remained unchanged, although some opined the drop of industrial issues through the lows of April might signify irregularly lower prices for the near-term.

Some Wall Street men insisted they would keep eyes fastened on the Washington scene for hints of trend over the next few weeks.

Bonds Drift Lower.

In that quarter, they said, might be indications of action on policies related to commonwealth price control, credit, labor problems and legislation.

The bond market drifted lower with activity limited. Commodities averaged lower. The money market noted continued good demand for commercial funds, a large part of which was reported to have been for the account of heavy industry.

The market declined to a new low for the year during week-end. The rebound was described as unimpressive. According to the Associated Press average of 60 shares, the market was down 2.6 to 66.3.

Sales during the week amounted to $5,548,330 shares, compared with 4,136,280 a week ago and 4,610,410 a year ago. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were 204,109,405 shares, compared with 230,390,803 a year ago and 90,538,238 corresponding period two years ago.

Slow Weekend Trade.

The going was slow and a trifle rough in the week's final session market although a handful of industrials and rails managed to gain ground moderately.

Trading forces were shy and shifty from the start and few backed judgment with extensive commitments either way. Those who appeared in the boardrooms confined themselves principally to tape watching.

Stimulus seemed to have faded from the truce in the Jones & Laughlin and General Motors strikes. Current business news was still cheering so far as it went, but talk of a summer set-back was again heard in analytical quarters.

Rails swung up at the start of the two-hour proceedings but found the track slippery before the close and the majority yielded a large part of their gains in final dealings. Steels, motors, utilities and tobaccos were backward throughout.

Transfers of 343,560 shares compared with 285,390 last Saturday, with the exception of the latter date it was the smallest turnover since June of last year. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks ended with an advance of .2 of a point at 66.3.

Friendliness toward the carriers was in the face of a contra-seasonal drop in last week's freight loadings. At the same time observers of this field believed the recession was only temporary with an upturn likely later in the month.

There was nothing particularly disheartening for either the automotive or steel groups, but they failed to attract a great deal of buying attention. Prospects of a new governmental power program kept utilities subdued.

Whitsuntide Holiday.

With London closed today and Monday for the Whitsuntide holiday, inspiration from overseas was lacking. Foreign buying and selling of American securities was also at a minimum.

Bonds did little or nothing, with the utility average hitting another new bottom since 1933. Commodities pushed upward. Wheat at Chicago gained 1 to 2¼ cents a bushel and corn was ⅝ to 3 better. Cotton advanced 40 to 70 cents a bale.

Shares of Homestake Mining got up 5 points at 352. Up fractions to 1 or so were Southern Railway at 36⅝, Pennsylvania, 43, Union Pacific 145, Southern Pacific 56¼, Northern Pacific, 33¾; Baltimore & Ohio 32¼, Kennecott 54, International Nickel 59, Briggs Mfg 42⅝, Paramount 19⅝, Republic Steel 34⅛, American Steel Foundries 51½, Yellow Truck 21⅞, Loew's 77, Union Carbide 100, Goodyear 37½, Goodrich 40½ and Barnsdall 25¾.

On the downside were U. S. Steel at 95, General Motors 55, Chrysler 109, American Telephone 164, Deere 126, Firestone 33¼, du Pont 154, Consolidated Edison 35⅜, Cerro de Pasco 62, Douglas Aircraft 49⅛ and Western Union 56¾. American Tobacco "B" and Reynolds "B" were down to new lows for the year.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY INDEX TOP SINCE '29

Movement of Component Indices Are Mixed, 3 Up, 3 Off.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Pushing ahead for the fifth consecutive week, industrial activity has established a new recovery peak at the highest level since November, 1929.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index rose to 108.6 per cent of the 1929-1930 average from 108.3 a week ago, and compared with 89.3 in the comparable period last year.

Movement of component indices was mixed, three advancing and three declining. Rising automobile production, steel and cotton mill activity were more heavily weighted than slumping electric power output, residential building and total freight carloadings.

Automobile assemblies were estimated to have been somewhat larger than in the previous week, at a time the normal seasonal trend pointed downward. Sales continued to set a fast pace, trade quarters stated, and most companies built up still-depleted inventories.

Steel and cotton manufacturing moved up fractionally, with little change reported in underlying conditions.

Railroad carloadings, on the other hand, were lower, as the movement of coal was sharply curtailed. The ltater resulted from unusually warm weather over much of the Midwestern and Eastern area. Miscellaneous fright, including most industrial classifications, also dipped more than seasonally expected.

The index, with its seasonally adjusted components based on the latest available statistics and with 1929-1930 as 100, compared as follows:

	Latest Wk.	Pr. Wk.	Yr. Ago.
Composite index —	*108.6	108.3	89.3
Automobile Prod. —	110.9	108.1	93.4
Steel mill Act.—	122.4	122.1	92.7
Cotton Mfg. Act—	131.7	131.5	105.4
Elec. Pow. Prod.—	118.1	118.9	107.9
Residential Bldg. —	67.5	69.4	43.4
Total carloadings—	79.8	81.8	69.3

FOREIGN CURRENCIES RISE IN TERMS OF DOLLAR AT WEEK-END

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Foreign currencies were higher in terms of the dollar in all centers today.

The British pound sterling rallied one-quarter of a cent in New York, French francs gained .00¼ of a cent, German marks bounded up .04 of a cent, Holland guilders improved .02 of a cent and Swiss francs closed .00½ of a cent higher.

In London the dollar was off 7-16 of a cent to 4.94⅛. The market was closed in Paris as usual on Saturday.

The Federal Reserve Bank reported gold engagements abroad totaled $3,921,000 in England.

The flow of exchange turned in favor of the dollar after the British coronation rites this week, erasing most of the gains foreign currencies had scored early in the period.

How much the reversal could be attributed to the passing of the coronation was not clear to exchange observers. However, some reasoned a slackening in transfer of funds abroad for tourist and other accounts could be expected after that event

It was suggested in certain quarters heavy liquidation of commodities and some selling of securities for foreign account lately, as mirrored in the fall of speculative markets, may have led to withdrawal of capital from this market, contributing to rise of currencies against the dollar at the outset of the week.

Most currencies yielded to the dollar toward the end. On the whole, though, exchanges stuck close to their recent courses, rising and falling in a rather narrow range.

Engagements of gold for shipment to New York picked up again after a lull. The week's total, exclusive to today's figure mentioned above, was $31,804,000, mostly in England, compared with $14,577,000 the preceding week.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Foreign exchange closing rates follow: Great Britain in dollars, others in cents: Great Britain, demand, 4.94⅜; cables, 4.94⅜; 60-day bills, 4.93¼. France, demand, 4.48⅜; cables, 4.48⅜. Italy, demand, 5.26¼; cables, 5.26¼.

LOCAL STOCKS LOWER ON A LIGHT VOLUME

Extreme Downward Ranges of 4 Points Recorded by Several Issues.

A lower price level on a light trade marked the week on the St. Louis Stock Exchange. There were several instances of wide downward sweeps, partially retraced before the close.

Scullin Steel preference and Wagner Electric each lost 4 points at low for week. Declines of more than a point were shown in Burkart and Dr. Pepper. In the preferred share group St. Louis Car preferred sold 3 points lower and Emerson Electric preferred 10 points.

American Investment issues closed higher.

Whitsuntide Holiday Abroad.

LONDON, May 15.—All commodity exchanges throughout Great Britain suspended trading today and will remain closed Monday due to the Whitsuntide holidays.

Banks were opened for business and there was trading in gold, silver and foreign exchanges. The Stock Exchange was closed for Saturday as usual.

White Motors Makes Par $1.

CLEVELAND, May 15.—Stockholders of the White Motor Co. voted today to reduce the par value of 625,000 common shares from $50 to $1. The object, President Robert F. Black said, was to simplify the concern's financial structure through a write-off of a capital deficit of $5,700,000 consisting largely of good will and patents. Black said the capital surplus remained at more than $20,000,000 after the write-off.

Sugar Deliveries.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The A A A reported that refined sugar deliveries by refiners, beet sugar companies, and importers, amounted to 516,362 short tons in April, compared with 589,050 tons in April last year.

CORPORATION REPORTS

NEW YORK, May 15.—Pacific Gas & Electric Co. and subsidiaries reported for the 12 months ended March 31 net income of $25,202,035, equal after preferred dividends to $2.75 a share on common stock. This compared with $22,185,580, or $2.25 a share for the 12 months ended March 31, 1936. The report said provision is now being made for enlargement of the company's principal steam-electric generating station in Oakland, Cal., where it is proposed to install 72,000 horsepower of additional capacity. This work, including incidental plant betterments, involves an estimated expenditure of about $5,250,000, and represented the most important construction program undertaken in several years, the company said.

Packard Motor Car Co. shower net profit of $2,610,701, or 17 cents a share, in the first three months, compared with $1,248,029, or 8 cents a share, in the first quarter last year.

Columbian Carbon Co., with plants in Eastern industrial centers and in Eastern and Southern gas and oil fields, reported for the first quarter net income of $1,448,536, or $2.69 a share, against $1,028,153, or $1.91 a share, in the first quarter last year.

Continental Gas & Electric Corporation and subsidiaries, serving nearly 900 communities in the Middle West, reported for the 12 months ended in March net income of $4,470,341, equal to $14.69 a share on the common, compared with $3,626,750, or $10.75 a share, in the preceding 12 months.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation, a leading utility system, with properties in the east and northeast, and its subsidiaries, reported today for the March quarter net income of $4,434,024, equal to 22 cents a share on the common stock, compared with $6,367,779, or 39 cents a snare, in the first quarter last year. For the 12 months ended in March, net totaled $11,289,486, or 36 cents a share, against $13,230,489, or 54 cents a share, in the preceding 12 months.

CINCINNATI, May 15.—The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., music house, reported today largest earnings in the 81-year history of the firm—$2,172,593 for tne fiscal year ended March 31. The figure is equivalent to $5.74 per share on 378,520 shares of common stock outstanding. It compared with net profit of $909,163 for the previous year, and was recorded after taxes and an amount equal to one year's dividends on 13,066 shares of the company's 7 per cent preferred issue and provision for a contingency fund of $395,441.

DENVER, May 15.—American Crystal Sugar Co. today reported a net profit of $1,807,707 for the fiscal year ending March 31, compared to $915,261 the previous year. Earnings were equal to $3.80 a share on outstanding common stock, compared to $1.44 in the previous year and $2.09 in 1935. Improved earnings during the last year were attributed principally to an increase of 41 per cent in volume of sugar sales and an increase of 24 per cent in the average seaboard quoted price for beet sugar.

COMMODITIES FOR 6TH WEEK DECLINE

Index of 35 Important Wholesale Items Drops to 91.29 of 1926 Average.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Commodity prices swept downward for the sixth consecutive period this week, with selling pressure against agricultural and industrial staples still heavy.

Livestock alone stood out against the tide, rising to a new top for the year.

The general picture, however, was one of slumping quotations. The Associated Press weighted index of 35 important wholesale commodities dropped to 91.29 per cent of the 1926 average from 91.98 a week ago and compared with 71.65 last year.

Declines among staples making up the index outweighted advances three to one; 18 fell back, six were higher and 11 remained unchanged.

Several Sold Heavily.

Several individual commodities were heavily sold. Rubber broke well over a cent a pound cocindent with announcement Germany had boosted the duty on imports. Some commodity men attributed the drop in cocoa to fear Hitler's search for substitute commodities might next hit that product.

With corn and wheat setting the pace, agricultural commodities slipped badly. Heavy rainfall in many hitherto dry areas and the recent Government crop report conjured up visions of considerably larger harvests this year than last to many analysts, and incidental lower price so rye and cotton also were weak, while oats managed to eke out a small gain.

In the buoyant livestock group, hogs and lamb concurred, with cattle dipping slightly. Official forecasts pointed out feed prices have been unusually high, causing larger shipments of animals to market, and indicated smaller supplies would be available in a month or so.

Foods offered some resistance to the downward surge; eggs, coffee and lard moved up. Setbacks in sugar, flour, butter and cocoa, however, were more heavily weighted.

Textile quotations dropped to a new low for the year, including wool, cotton cloth and silk. The inventory question continued to be the most pressing factor, increasing steadily while no attempt was made to cut production.

What Index Shows.

Industrial staples, including non-ferrous metals, were soft. Steel scrap, lumber, burlap, antimony and tin reacted, leaving bituminous coal the only item on the plus side of the ledger.

The index, with its components based on 1926 as 100, compared as follows:

MILK PRODUCERS GOT HIGHER AVERAGE PRICE LAST MONTH

Milk producers in the St. Louis area were paid the highest weighted average price for April deliveries given to handlers since 1929, according to Fred L. Shipley, Market Administrator. Production amounted to 32,255,365 pounds, 7 per cent less than April, 1936. Total value was $663,308, and the weighted average price was $2.06 per cwt., both f. o. b. marketing area, for 3.5 per cent milk. Daily average Class I sales by distributers in April were 2.4 per cent higher than March, while total Class I sales were 2 per cent higher than April, 1936. Individual handlers paid producers from $1.94 to $2.23 per cwt. for April deliveries and six handlers paid premiums over their minimum blended price to producers.

MAIN BODY OF BONDS LOWER ON THE WEEK

U. S. Government Issues Stiffen Perceptibly, Cutting Period's Losses.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 15.—In the bond market as the week came to an end prices improved in light dealings.

U. S. Governments stiffened perceptibly as demand accompanied a creeping advance which materially reduced losses administered earlier in the week. The reversal of trend in this quarter led many to believe Federals have reached a price basis more in line with market appraisals of institutional investors.

Today's trading sent Governments up 1-32 to 9-32 of a point. Several issues held back or drooped a little. On the week, a few bonds were up ⅜ to ½ of a point, but the main body closed a bit lower.

Domestic corporate loans held even or ventured fractionally upward, except for the utility group which continued to work lower. High grade corporates and industrial loans were even to a little better and rails moved forward small fractions.

Delaware & Hudson refunding 4s gained ¾ to 90⅞, Nickel Plate 5½s lifted ¾ to 99 and Pennsylvania 3¼s rose ¾ to 109⅜. Southern Pacific 4½s and Southern Railway 5s also improved.

The Philippine Railway 4s gained 1¾ to 28¼. These bonds have veered widely from time to time in recent months with changing opinion concerning their chances of being paid off by the Philippine Government.

The Associated Press average for 20 rails advanced .1 of a point to 93.0 while the mean for 10 utility issues dropped .1 of a point to 98.3, the lowest since Oct. 30, 1935, when it reached that point.

Little took place in the foreign list where most of the active obligations dipped, the Associated Press averages for such bonds dropped .2 of a point to 71.0.

Volume for all bonds was held to the unimpressive total of $4,038,000, face value, the smallest Saturday turnover since Aug. 22, 1936. A week ago $4,273,000 of bonds changed hands.

CURB TRADE AT WEEK-END IS LIGHTEST IN NEARLY YEAR

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Minor gains predominated in all sections of the Curb market today despite the lethargy of trading as evidenced by the smallest turnover in about a year.

Shares closing small fractions to a point or more improved included Sunshine Mining 18⅛, Pantepec 7⅜, International Petroleum 35⅞, Glen Alden 11½, Consolidated Copper 8½, American Gas 32⅛, and Aluminum Co. 143.

Those holding unchanged or slipping back a trifle included E. W. Bliss, 16, Cosden Oil 1⅝, Electric Bond & Share 16½, and Creole Petroleum 32¼.

Transfers of 96,000 shares were the smallest since Aug. 22, 1936, and compared with 118,000 last Saturday.

MODERATE ADVANCES MADE BY COTTON ON SMALL TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Further moderate advances were registered in cotton today on a small trade and foreign demand while offerings were light. July, which had sold up to 12.84, closed at 12.76, with final prices 8 to 14 points net higher.

The market opened 8 to 12 points higher on price fixing, continental and Bombay buying as well as covering for over the week-end. Contracts were scarce and prices soon got up 15 to 17 points. A little local realizing appeared at these levels and partial reactions from the best followed.

Loan cotton releases for the week were restricted to 70 bales and Washington advices indicated the Commodity Credit Corporation was considering either modification of its release terms or suspension of the disposal program but corporation officials refrained from expressing opinions as to which course would be followed.

Amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the close of the week was estimated at 53,000 bales against 63,000 last year and 74,000 two years ago. Spot steady, middling 13.26.

April domestic consumption figures issued during week reflected continued mill activity but reported use of 718,947 bales last month compared with 779,302 bales in March and 576,762 in April last year. For the first nine months of the season domestic consumption totaled 6,010,883 bales compared with 4,657,761 last year.

Exports continued to lag, the nine-month total of 4,762,357 bales compared with 5,167,070 a year ago. Reports by the New York Cotton Exchange service revealed that while forwardings of American cotton to mills of Japan to March 31 had decreased to 849,000 bales from 1,116,000 in the same period last year, forwardings of foreign cotton had increased to 1,800,000 bales from 1,137,000 a year earlier.

Memphis Spot Cotton.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 15.—Spot cotton had a steady tone. Middling closed at 12.75c, compared with 12.70c yesterday. Sales amounted to 1197 bales.

New Orleans Spot Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, May 15.—Spot cotton closed quiet, nine points up. Sales 633; low middling 11.57; middling 13.07; good middling 13.62. Receipts 1819; stock 408,054.

NEW ORLEANS, May 15.—Cotton futures closed steady at net advances of 7 to 9 points. July, 12.67; Oct., 12.57; Dec., 12.67b-12.68a; Jan., 12.69; March, 12.71.

WALL STREET BRIEFS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Price of No. 1 yellow brass ingots has been reduced ½ cent a pound by leading makers and other grades have been cut ¾ of a cent a pound. The reduction is a result of a lowering in the refinery buying price for scrap copper. The new price for No. 1 scrap is 11¾ cents a pound, equivalent to 13¼ cents a pound for refined copper.

Union Pacific Railroad has placed orders for 3800 freight cars, "Railway Age" reported, of which 2600 will be built in its own shops, 1000 will be constructed by American Car & Foundry Co., and 200 tank cars by General American Transportation Corporation.

Trade sources reported first quarter shipments of electric industrial trucks and tractors totaled 597 units, compared with 360 in the first quarter last year.

Revenues of the transit industry for the week ended May 8 improved moderately over the like 1936 period, the "Transit Journal" announced following a telegraphic survey of the industry. The trade publication's revenue indicator showed a gain of 5.22 per cent over the like 1936 period. The week ended May 1 recorded a 4.44 per cent increase over a year ago.

The automobile accessory industry did a heavy volume of business in the March quarter compared with a year ago, Poor's Publishing Co. reported. Aggregate earnings of the first 20 companies to report totaled $14,234,684 against $9,056,924, a gain of 57.1 per cent, the report stated.

National Gypsum Co. stockholders have authorized 100,000 shares of no-par cumulative preferred stock, issuable in series. It is proposed to issue the first series of 80,000 shares, carrying $4.50 annual dividends, in the near future, to be followed by the retirement of the first and second preferred stock.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Franklin Insurance Co. announced today Harold V. Smith was elected president of the company. He succeeds Wilfred Kurth who was made chairman of the board of directors.

TURPENTINE, FLAX AND LINSEED

JAPAN TAKES ANOTHER STEP TOWARD FASCISM

Two Planning Boards Will Work Out National and Economic Policies for Country..

ELECTION LAWS TO BE REVISED

Government Seems Bent on Eventually Eradicating Existing Political Parties.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

TOKIO, May 15.—The Government's Planning Board was formally inaugurated as an adjunct to the Cabinet at a meeting at Premier Gen. Senjuro Hayashi's official residence yesterday.

It is to work out plans for the carrying out of important national policies submitted by Ministers at Cabinet meetings, while a parallel board, to be known as the Central Economic Council, will be established within a few days and will devote itself to formulating economic projects. The two boards are to work in close co-operation as advisory bodies to the Cabinet.

The first project on which the Planning Board will be instructed to work will be a drastic revision of the election laws. This will be followed by projects for a new Ministry of Aviation, combining the Army, Navy and civilian air services; a new Ministry of Hygiene to promote physical well-being as a measure of national defense, in accordance with the wishes of the Army, and the formulation, in conjunction with the Central Economic Council, of a five-year industrial and economic program, which is expected, according to Domei (official news agency), to bring about "a gradual turn in Japan's economic policy from a controlled economy to a deliberately-planned economy."

Another Move Toward Fascism.

The establishment of the Planning Board is regarded as leading the nation further toward Fascism, both politically and economically. By revision of the electoral law the Government seems bent on eventually annihilating the existing political parties, while the five-year economic program is expected to tighten Government control over all big business and industry along Fascist lines.

Finance Minister Toyotaro Yuki is the nominal head of the Planning Board, which comprises as members a number of minor Government officials, including heads of Government departments. It is not, therefore, expected that the board itself will evolve any sensational scheme, but that it will be merely the agency for working out in detail broad policies and schemes submitted to it by members of the Cabinet.

The Government's plan for reform of the election law, which will claim the board's first attention, is understood to call for a reduction of the number of electoral constituencies from the present 122 to 47; that is, one for each prefecture; reduction of the number of representatives in the lower house of the Diet from the present 466 to 250, and strengthening of Government "management" of elections.

Vocational Representation.

There has been talk of changing representation in the Diet from the party system to vocational representation, as in the Council of Corporations in Italy, but it is not generally believed the Government will attempt such a drastic reform at a single blow.

Revision of the election law will require either approval by the Diet or th eissuance of an imperial ordinance, which would need the consent of the Privy Council. It is evident that the present Diet will not approve the Government's plan, so the Government will have to depend on the Privy Council. This will probably sanction some measure of reform, but it is not expected to approve at present such a drastic change as vocational representation. This, it is acknowledged, can be done only over a protracted period of time and after several dissolutions of the Diet.

The Government's five-year economic program is expected to embrace Japan and Manchoukuo as a unit and to bring about stricter control and supervision over natural resources, industrial technique and labor. The Government will attempt, in so far as possible, to induce private corporations to organize into close groups and form as a whole an economic structure to conform with the Government's policies.

Clayton Fireworks Show July 5.

An Independence Day fireworks display will be given for the Clayton Fire and Police Benefit Association at Washington University Stadium the evening of July 5. The demonstration is sponsored by a committee of Clayton citizens, including members of the School Board. Russell D. Meyers, president of the association, announced yesterday that telephone solicitation to sell tickets in the Clayton district would begin this week.

250,000 Cheer Danish King, 25 Years on Throne

Special Honors Paid Christian X at Deferred Celebration of His Assumption of Crown.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, May 15. — Denmark today celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the accession to the throne of King Christian X.

The celebration reached its peak of enthusiasm in flag-bedecked Copenhagen when most of the capital's population and thousands of visitors cheered the King on his return to Amalienborg palace from the chambers of Parliament, where a joint session honored him.

Four hundred diplomats and officers of State were among those waiting at the Palace to greet the King.

Earlier in the day, crowds massed in front of the Palace to cheer their Sovereign. He appeared on the balcony with two other Kings here for the celebrations, King Haakon of Norway, his brother, and King Gustav of Sweden.

The King adhered to one of his most democratic customs and took his usual early morning horseback ride through the capital's streets. A dinner and a torchlight procession concluded the celebrations tonight.

About 250,000 persons lined the route as he and Queen Alexandrine drove in an open state carriage drawn by four black horses to services at the Cathedral of Our Lady.

Christian ascended the throne May 14, 1912, but the ceremonies were held today because the actual date fell on the anniversary of the death of his father, Frederick VIII.

Denmark's King is the fifth longest reigning sovereign in Europe, but his reign is not unusual in Danish history. Since 1448 the nation has had only 19 rulers, ten named Christian, eight Frederick and one Hans.

In Europe only Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy, King Haakon of Norway and King Gustav of Sweden have reigned longer than King Christian.

W P A AIDS FLORIDA SCHOOL FOR ADULTS

Courses at Abandoned Headquarters of Ship Canal Described by Dean Riley.

Use of the abandoned headquarters of the Florida ship canal as a school for adults, sponsored by the University of Florida and the Works Progress Administration, was described yesterday before the concluding session of the National University Extension Association at Hotel Chase by Dean B. C. Riley of the general extension division of the university.

Camp Roosevelt is a modern village of 154 acres with white houses ranged on either side of graveled streets, a United States engineer as city manager, police and fire departments, postoffice, telephone and telegraph exchange, but no politics.

There short courses, from three days to one month, are offered to adults not interested in college credits. The maximum enrollment is 300 students. At present all courses are primarily designed to help men make better livings.

Professional courses include architecture, ministry, medicine, dentistry, nursing and pharmacy. Other courses are retail merchandising, real estate appraisal, home furnishing, motion picture projection, Neon sign construction, carpentry, plumbing, and industrial safety. Short courses in municipal finance, street construction, water and sewage treatment, conservation and parent-teacher leadership are offered as part of civics.

"In the adult school village adults from different groups live together, eat together and play together," he said. "A professional man and a plumber may share the same room in a dormitory. This has made for better understanding."

An interdenominational short course for ministers, with the Catholic Bishop of the diocese of St. Augustine as first speaker, aroused more interest than any other course offered at Camp Roosevelt, he asserted. In all, 205 ministers representing 12 denominations attended the week's course.

Students are enrolled in the school from each of the 67 counties of Florida. A total of 3050 adults have attended 60 short courses and 22 conferences in the last six months.

D. Walter Morton of Syracuse University was elected president yesterday, Dean C. F. Smith of the University of Chicago, vice-president, and W. S. Bittner of the University of Indiana re-elected secretary.

Next year's convention will be held at Hot Springs, Ark., with the University of Arkansas as host.

FESTIVAL OF SACRED TOOTH GAY SPECTACLE IN CEYLON

It Lasts for 10 Days; Richly Dressed Chiefs and Hundreds of Elephants Take Part.

(Copyright, 1937)

MANILA, May 15.—Visitors to Ceylon this year will be able to see one of the most elaborate festivals, the pageant of the Sacred Tooth of Buddha at Kandy. The festival lasts for 10 days, ending on the night of the full moon. Richly adorned Kandyan chiefs, troups of masked dancers, gaily decorated elephants, brilliantly illuminated streets and brilliant processions will turn Kandy into a festive city. On the last night the climax is reached with one magnificent procession.

Hundreds of elephants take part, and full-dress regalia is worn by the chiefs. On one elephant is carried the golden casket said to contain the sacred Tooth of Buddha. This sacred tooth is said to have been taken from the flames of Budda's funeral pyre, and is held in reverence by one-third of the world's total population.

General Council on Civic Needs.

The annual meeting of the General Council on Civic Needs will be held tomorrow evening at Fairground Hotel. Officers will be elected and John J. Nangle of the National Park Service will speak.

Memorial to Sun Yat-sen.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15.—This city, once the home of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, Chinese revolutionist and one-time President of the Chinese republic, will honor him with a statue. A 14-foot image of stainless steel will be erected in St. Anne's Square, where Sun Yat-sen often studied while planning his revolt against the Chinese imperial house. The memorial is to be the gift of the local Kuomintang, Chinese Nationalist party.

PIONEER FLYING FIRM'S RECORDS ON DISPLAY

Exhibition at Jefferson Memorial in Connection With St. Louis Air Races.

Documents of the first aviation company in Missouri, graphic evidence of the primitive nature of airplane flight 25 years ago, will be on exhibit in the Lindbergh trophy room in Jefferson Memorial for a month beginning early this week.

The contracts, training certificates, letters and contest regulations which comprise the collection record an era of flying in strange contrast to the present. They were lent to the Missouri Historical Society for exhibit in connection with the International Aerobatic Competition at Lambert-St. Louis Field May 29, 30 and 31, and the tenth anniversary of Col. Lindbergh's flight to Paris, May 20 and 21, 1927.

Stockholders Lost Money.

The records for display are those of the Pioneer Aeroplane & Exhibition Co., which was formed by youthful aviation enthusiasts in July, 1911, and continued in existence for only a few months before the stockholders were wliling to sell their plane, a Wright Flyer, and disband their business. All of them lost money, but none lost his life, and the brief venture was considered reasonably fortunate.

Cornelius J. Shea, now president of the State National Life Insurance Co. here, was president of the Pioneer Co. It was he who kept the records and turned them over to the historical society in a loan.

Showing the documents to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday, Shea recalled the difficulties the company had in getting anyone to fly the plane and how he and the other members held their breath every time the plane got off the ground. "Riding in that box kite was like sitting up in the air on a drug store counter stool, one bad move and you would be pitched right out of the thing," he said.

Dealings With Wright Company.

The Wright company, headed by Wilbur and Orville Wright, was very careful about the conditions under which it would sell a plane. The price was $5000, and, in addition, the buyer had to agree to pay the company a royalty of $100 for each day the machine was used in exhibitions.

A letter by the Wright manager, setting out the terms, is included in the records. It says: "You appreciate that the exhibit field is the most profitable end of our business and one which we most naturally must protect as far as possible." The final deal with the St. Louisans permitted them to show the machine in towns of 20,000 population or less, but the contract was never rigidly observed.

One of the company's big expenses was training pilots who did not learn to fly in time to be of use demonstrating the plane. Two men thought they could learn in a day or two, but getting confidence in the "box kite" took longer than they had thought. One of these was Andrew Drew, a former Post-Dispatch reporter, who later learned to fly, and became one of the foremost pilots of the time before he was killed in 1913 when his plane crashed in Ohio.

Plane Entered in 1911 Meet.

Immediately after acquiring the airplane, Shea and the others shipped it from Dayton, O., where it was built, to Chicago for the International Aviation meet which was held there during August of 1911. Railroad bills of lading, evidence of the utter impossibility of overland flight at that time, are in Shea's collection.

The Chicago meet was a big event, far bigger from a financial standpoint than such an important modern contest as the races which will be held here this month. The prizes amounted to $80,000; the pilots here will compete for a total of $15,000 in cash prizes and some trophies.

The rules of the Chicago contest will be in the exhibit. One of the instructions to the flyers on the printed list is "Immediately descend on the violent waving of a danger flag."

Dispute Over Pilot.

Flying for the St. Louis company was Walter Brookins, one of the crack pilots of the day, and also one of the few pioneer airmen who survived the period. He had been under contract with the Wrights, and when Wilbur Wright learned Brookins was to fly for the Pioneer Co., he wrote Shea, "If he attempts to fly for others, without our consent, we will have him enjoined."

In October, 1911, the company took part in an exhibition here in connection with the Veiled Prophet festival. It received $3000 a day for three days on which flights were made, according to the contract which is included among the papers.

"One type of business we anticipated getting was the county fair performance. It didn't work out because we couldn't confine our show to a restricted view, and the country people wouldn't pay if they could see anyway," Shea said.

LEGION CHARITY BALL GAME

It Will Be Browns-Yankees Contest on June 12.

The first annual American Legion charity baseball game will be played at Sportsman's Park Saturday, June 12, with the Browns opposing the New York Yankees. Part of the proceeds will go to the newly organized Child Welfare and General Youth Movement in the Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth Districts of the American Legion.

Missouri and Southern Illinois Legion posts will send delegations and there will be contests between senior and junior drum and bugle corps throughout the area. Bands and drill teams from various posts also will participate.

Law Forbidding Divorces Retained in South Carolina

Legislature Tables Bill Which Would Call for Popular Vote on 1895 Constitutional Provision.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 15.—For at least another year South Carolina will be one of the easiest places in the United States in which to get married (no license delay) and the only place where it is impossible to obtain a divorce.

The State's Constitution of 1895 in Article 17, Section 3, reads: "Divorces from the bonds of matrimony shall not be allowed in this State."

Since that sentence was voted into the law, attempts have been made to remove it. The latest failed this week when the House of Representatives continued until the next legislative session a bill to submit to popular vote a constitutional amendment permitting divorce.

South Carolina's matrimonial situation presents a puzzle to newcomers and very often old residents. A survey of legal decisions discloses:

A pair may gain a legal separation and live apart as they please, so long as they do not attempt to remarry.

Citizens of another state, granted a divorce by that state, may become citizens of South Carolina and marry again.

But a citizen of South Carolina who goes across the state line for a divorce is liable to investigation by the courts should marital complications arise when he returns.

A noted case in 1918 laid down much of the present procedure for such situations. The Supreme Court ruled:

" . . . When a citizen of this State marries in this State and as long as he remains a citizen of this State he cannot temporarily absent himself from the State and, pretensively as a citizen of another state, obtain a divorce and when he obtains it remarry and come back or come back and remarry. . . .

"If he is dissatisfied with his marriage he can remove to another state, obtain his divorce and remarry and stay out of the State, but he cannot leave for the purpose simply of obtaining a divorce and with the intent in his mind at that time of returning after he obtains the divorce. . . ."

The court ruled that "in no case would a divorce be recognized unless the defendant had been served personally with the legal complaint in the state in which the divorce was sought."

Despite that ruling, Georgia, particularly border line Augusta, has become a Mecca for South Carolina divorce seekers. Georgia requires service of the complaint only by publication (not personally).

Constitutional lawyers say that for this reason the majority of divorces granted in other states are invalid in South Carolina. Comparatively few are contested, however, and the courts generally stick to the rule-of-thumb the State Supreme Court once laid down in an opinion: "We have enough to do looking after our own citizens and forbiding divorces."

YOUNG ITINERANTS IN U. S. SAID TO HAVE SETTLED DOWN

Officer of Volunteers of America Says N Y A and C C C Helped to Solve Problem.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 15.—The boys and girls who roamed the United States a few years ago are now at work or in school, Col. Hulda Smith of Chicago, commander of the northwest area of the Volunteers of America, reported today at the organization's annual national council.

She expressed the opinion the National Youth Administration and the Civilian Conservation Corps camps "had a wonderful influence" on the young itinerants of the depression while business, industry and agriculture had removed many of them from the road.

"A few years ago, when the depression was at its worst, so many of our young people started drifting," she said. "Drifting from one town to another—from their homes to parks and hobo 'jungles' in strange cities—from wholesome circles to petty thievery and crime—in short, from bad to worse.

"Most of the child hoboes, as they were called, were not homeless orphans or waifs, but mere children of parents who were unable to survive the depression. In a great many cases the boys, sensing they were a burden to their parents, left their homes to seek jobs in other places. Usually, of course, they didn't find any.

"But wandering youth, at least the young hobo type so common a few years ago, has practically disappeared from the United States."

RUNNING TRACKS, SWIMMING POOLS FOR NEW YORK DOGS

Vita-Glass Solarium and Sun Lamps for Pets Cramped by City's Congestion.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The dog bath club is receiving membership applications.

To offset the city's cramped mode of living, socially acceptable dogs may now jog on one of 22 running tracks and top off the workout with an invigorating plunge in the swimming pool.

For relaxing, there's a vita-glass solarium into which trainers will carefully tuck their charges.

It's all an idea of Dr. A. Maurice Stark, a veterinarian. The running tracks are on a landscaped roof. The swimming pool is in a spacious rear yard. There are a private service car to call for members living at a distance, electric dryers and sun lamps in case the sun isn't shining, oil shampoos and pedicures, and individual crash towel jackets to wear after a rub down.

GARDEN CLUB OPENS MEETING TOMORROW

About 400 Delegates From All Parts of Country Expected to Attend.

Members of the Garden Club of America will begin gathering here today for their annual meeting, which opens tomorrow with headquarters at Hotel Chase. About 400 delegates and guests from all parts of the United States are expected to attend.

The pre-convention program today will include visits to the Art Museum, the Lindbergh trophies and in the evening the guests will be entertained at dinner in the homes of local garden club members.

Because of the strike at Hotel Chase, the delegates will be guests at private homes. About 60 have already been assigned to homes and the remainder are being placed. Some St. Louisans are taking as many as eight guests.

There is a possibility that a hotel not affected by the strike will be used to quarter some of the visitors, Mrs. Hermann von Schrenk, president of the St. Louis Garden Club, said.

A dinner which was scheduled for tomorrow night at the Chase Hotel will be held instead at the St. Louis Country Club. A luncheon will also be held there Tuesday.

Chief business of the convention, which ends Wednesday afternoon, will be visits to gardens in and near St. Louis. Peonies, iris, columbine and other early summer flowers are expected to be near their best. Several gardens will be the setting for social affairs.

The annual business meeting will be held tomorrow on board a Mississippi River steamboat bound for Selma, country home of Mr. and Mrs. William O. Schock, on the bluffs below Festus, Mo. The party will arrive there about 2 o'clock to spend some time in the historic garden. All the material for the garden, with the exception of native rock, was shipped by boat from Philadelphia in 1850.

The guests will then go by bus to Bee Tree Farm, the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Nims, on the bluffs overlooking the Mississippi just above its confluence with the Meramec.

En route from the Schock home to the Nims home, the party will stop to visit the gardens of Park G. Hammar's home and those of Mrs. Helen Mills Richmond near Pevely, Mo.

Two groups will visit the Missouri Botanical Gardens Tuesday morning. A collection of books on botanical illustrations will be on display and a demonstration of tree feeding is planned. Thirty exhibits will be on view in the floral display house.

NAVY TO TAKE A CENSUS OF CIVILIAN AIR PILOTS

Announces Voluntary Registration of Flyers Who Would Be Available in Time of War.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 15. — The navy announced today it has begun preparation of a census of all civilian aviators who might be available for service in its flying units in time of war. Instructions have been dispatched to the commandants of each of the 14 naval districts to make lists of all such pilots who may register their willingness to engage in such duty.

Registration will be purely voluntary. The instructions were issued in the form of an addition to regulations promulgated by the Bureau of Navigation, the handbook of rules governing navy personnel.

"It is contemplated that such registered pilots upon mobilization will be given the warrant grade of gunner, and ordered to Pensacola (Fla.) for a short intensive flight training course, upon completion of which they will be designated as naval aviators and commissioned as Ensigns, Naval Reserve," the order said.

It is stipulated that only those holding active Commerce Department licenses as "private pilots" or higher classifications, would be eligible for registration. The Commerce Department as of April 1 listed 15,420 licensed active pilots.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY CUTS SERVICES DUE TO BUDGET DROP

Number of Young People in Care of Organization Reduced Since January.

A report calling attention to the reduction in services provided by the St. Louis Children's Aid Society as a result of its decreased budget was issued yesterday by Dudley French, president of the agency. He attributed the condition to the failure of the last United Charities campaign to reach its goal.

The number of children in St. Louis under the care of the society has been reduced from 389 on Jan. 1 to 349 on May 1. The expenditures of the city office have been cut progressively from the first month of the year, when the cost of operation was $10,000, to the present month for which the cost is estimated at $8000.

The Clayton office of the agency now has 138 children under its supervision, a decrease of 13 since January.

WEST POINT TRACT TO BE USED TO STORE GOVERNMENT SILVER

Secretary of War Gives Approval to Treasury's Plans for Depository.

WASHINGTON, May 15. — The Treasury Department announced today that approval had been obtained from the Secretary of War for the use of a four-acre tract near West Point, N. Y., for a depository to store silver. The area is the property of the War Department.

The tract is just off Storm King Highway near the old North entrance to the West Point Military grounds.

The Treasury's 1936 building plan contemplated the expenditure of $600,000 on the depository. It will be similar in some respects to the gold depository at Fort Knox, Ky., except that the silver will not be stored in vaults. The capacity has been estimated at 70 tons of silver.

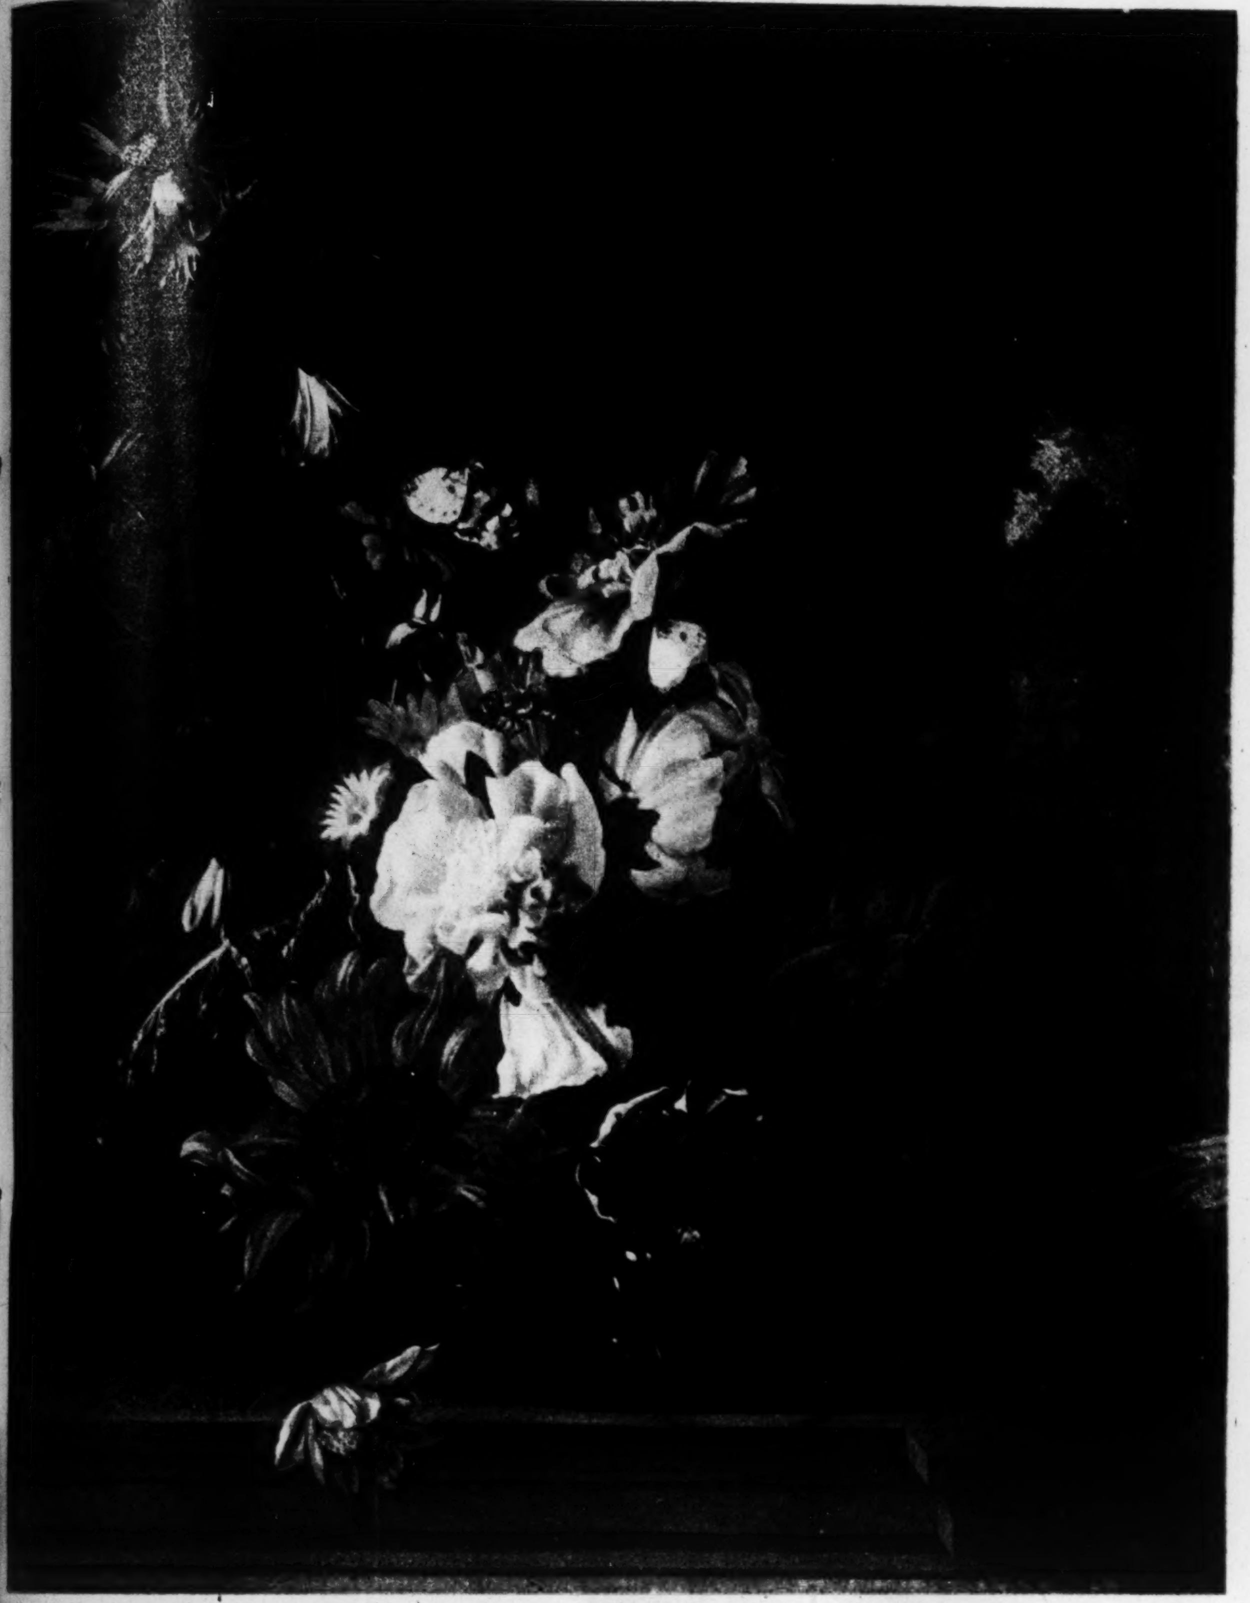
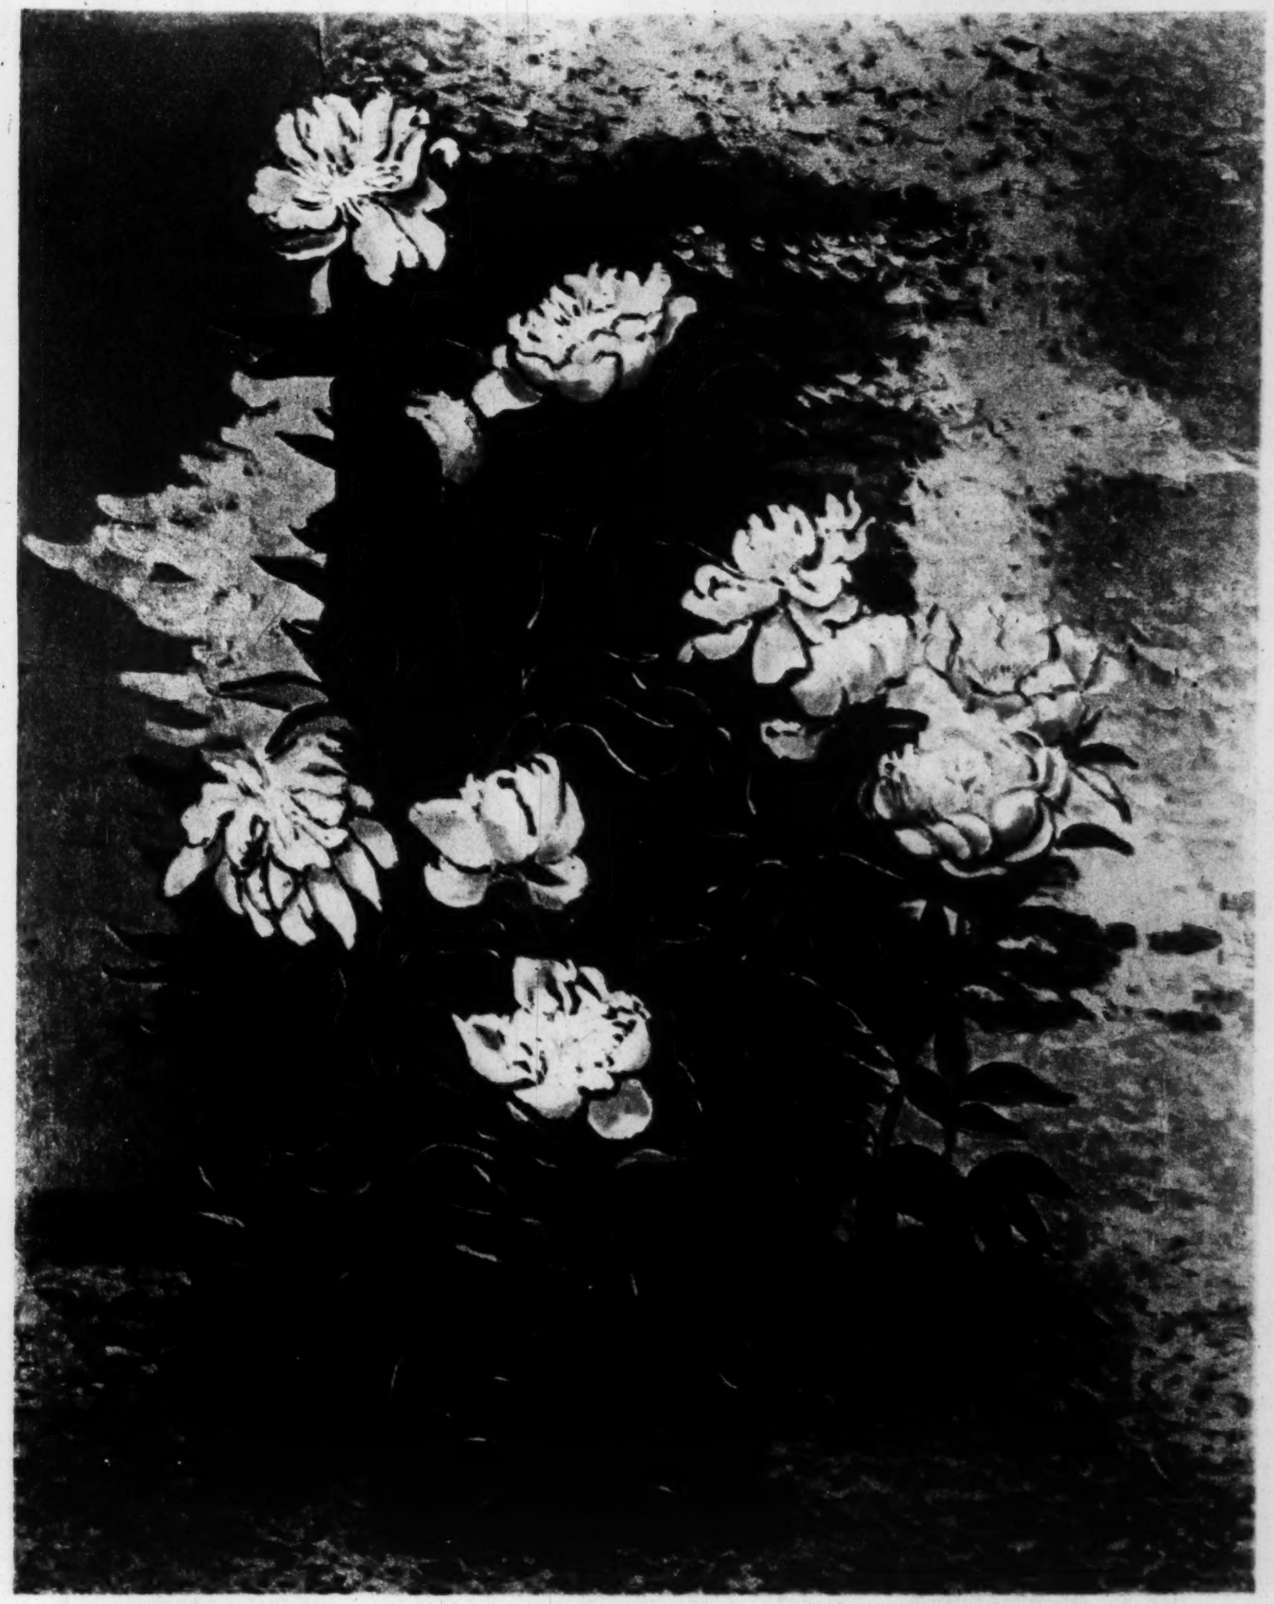
Sunday May 16, 1937—Supplement of the ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH Magazine



Flower painting by Rachel Ruysch, dated 1689, from the collection of Mrs. Robert P. Lamont.



Peonies, by Morris Kantor, a contemporary American, lent by Rehn Galleries, New York.

FLOWER PAINTINGS for FLOWER LOVERS

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

THE four reproductions on this page hint at the enormous variety that is keynote to the show of flower paintings now going on at City Art Museum, complementary to the first meeting in St. Louis of the Garden Clubs of America. Delegates to the meeting are making a visit to the Museum this afternoon, the first event in their program.

But the exhibition would be timely without that. Flowers have a pervasive interest this month. Whoever sniffs the air of a May morning catches the pungent aroma of moist warm earth, and vagrant perfumes stir a sweet intangible expectancy from which no one is safe. No more appropriate time could have been chosen for showing the first representative collection of flower paintings ever assembled in America. It was gathered this spring by Director Meyric R. Rogers from 21 scattered galleries. It is supplemented by a number of rare illustrated books from the Shaw's Garden library and by a large collection of prints. Flower prints happen to be enjoying a vigorous fad now in all parts of the country.

There are about 50 paintings in the main exhibit, all carefully selected to show the history of flower painting from the sixteenth century to the present. Considered casually that may sound like a pallid and uneventful history. Actually it has unexpected pertinence to the whole psychological development of Western culture.

Flowers had nothing more than a symbolical significance for men of the Middle Ages. Conventionalized blossoms were used in ornament from earliest times. But not till the Renaissance, when a kind of epidemic spring fever woke new desires in men's souls, did flowers become vivid emotional symbols. It wasn't till the sixteenth century that they found their way into the center of a picture: Before that they were used as embroidery; afterwards painters sometimes devoted to them the same meticulous adoring care formerly lavished on the face of a saint.

Rachel Ruysch, who painted the vase of flowers in the upper lefthand corner of this page, shows how the new interest in nature became (especially for the North European artist) a passionate zeal. She lived in Holland, where winters are long and cold, which explains the lyric intensity she lavished on her flower paintings. These blossoms fairly glow as if lighted from within. And of course, in her day (1664 to 1750) ladies painted flowers as naturally as they now knit socks—which partly accounts for the superlative proficiency of a leader of the school.

Nevertheless floral painting remained largely a decorative sideline for years after Rachel Ruysch. There are lots of exceptions to that statement, before and during her lifetime. But paintings like the two French works below couldn't have been painted until romanticisim of a special sort reached full bloom in movements stemming from impressionism. Cezanne's "Vase of Flowers" was painted in 1880 in an effort to strip bare the emotions such a spectacle awoke in the heart of a feverish romantic—one who didn't give a hang for microscopic details of the stamen and pistil sort, but cared enormously for the effect flowers have on a man's feelings.

The remaining picture, the Morris Kantor, and the Bracque, painted within the last 10 years by an American and a Frenchman, are outgrowths of the same sort of reaction. In Bracque's case, however, the process of simplification used by Cezanne has been reduced to a pattern just two steps removed from cross-stitch design. Visitors to the show may see a faint resemblance between the attitude expressed by Bracque and the one implicit in an eighteenth-century Gobelin tapestry included in the show to recall a period when "flower painting had become merely an adjunct of the decorative arts."

Examining the catalogue one gathers that the show is really a comprehensive study of styles and attitudes flowing like strong undercurrents through the social history of 400 years. Recent French painting is represented, for instance, by such leaders as Van Gogh, Gauguin, Derain, Fankin-Latour, Redon, Monet, Renoir, Manet and Picasso.

How CECIL MIRACLE'S UNLUCKY Past FINALLY CAUGHT UP WITH HIM

Mrs. Ada Miracle and Betty Jane.

He Roamed the World, Then Came Back to Clear Creek, Married and Settled Down—but Did Not Tell of a Prison Career in Three States.

The Miracle home.

Cecil Miracle and his wife.

By F. A. BEHYMER
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

PINEVILLE, Kentucky.

ADA MIRACLE, getting supper at her home on the Clear Creek road, sang as she worked, for she was happy. She had everything to make her happy. Her husband, Cecil, was good to her. In the two and a half years since they were married there had been no quarrel and no harsh word spoken. Their baby, Betty Jane, one year old, was a bright and healthy child, listening now to her mother's song and laughing. For a year and a half they had been living in their own home. Her husband was prospering in his business. So Ada Miracle was happy as she worked in the late afternoon on an April day and sang because she was happy.

Cecil Miracle had come home a little early from his office at the Pope and Miracle saw mill and lumber yard on the far side of Pine Mountain. He had played with the baby and then he had gone into the living room and turned on the radio and was sitting in front of it, listening, when his wife looked in. There were times when Cecil Miracle wore a worried look, about business she supposed, but now as he listened he was free from care.

Up the road from Pineville, less than a mile away, came an automobile, which stopped at Cecil Miracle's gate. Two men climbed out and came to the door and knocked. Miracle, turning off the radio and glancing through the window, wore again his worried look, for the men were strangers to him and he had a dread of strange men. He opened the door, though, and gave greeting and stood with a questioning look. One of them said: "You are Cecil Miracle?"

"Yes, I am Cecil Miracle, what can I do for you?"

"We are officers. We have a warrant for your arrest as a fugitive."

Miracle eyed the men evenly. This was the thing that had sometimes given him a worried look, but he was prepared for it and gave no sign.

"There must be a mistake," he said, as he stepped out on the porch and closed the door behind him. The men understood why he did that and kept their voices low as they talked to him, so that the woman singing in the kitchen would not hear.

No, there was no mistake, they said. They showed him a circular which had been printed in 1899, bearing the name of Cecil Miracle and a picture and description of a Cecil Miracle who had escaped from the Alabama State prison and for whose arrest a reward was offered.

Yes, Miracle admitted, the picture looked like him, but it must have been some other Miracle who escaped from the Alabama prison. Voices were raised and there was danger that the woman in the kitchen would hear.

"Let's go down to your car and talk about this," said Miracle, and the men, understanding, went down the bank with him to their car and stood there talking. Mrs. Miracle, looking out, saw them standing there and supposed it was lumber that they were talking about.

"Well," said one of the men at last, "whether you're the Cecil Miracle who escaped from Alabama prison or not, you're the Cecil Miracle named in this warrant and you'll have to come with us."

"All right, I'll go with you. Wait till I get my coat."

Miracle went into the house and got his coat and stood a moment at the kitchen door. "Honey," he said, "I've got to go into town, but I'll be back in a few minutes."

"All right," said Ada Miracle, "I'll have supper ready when you get back."

When supper was ready Ada Miracle went to the door and looked down the road, but there was no car in sight. She waited a while and then ate alone and when darkness came she put Betty Jane to bed and sat up, waiting and wondering, and was troubled. Probably it was some matter of business, but it was not like Cecil to be so late.

CARS came, lighting up the road road, but they passed. At 11 o'clock a car came up the road and stopped and she was thankful, but the man who came up the steps was not her husband. John Pope, her husband's business partner, stood in the light of the opened door, and the woman was seized with sudden fear.

"Where's Cecil?" she cried. "What has happened?"

"Nothing has happened," said John Pope. "There's been a mistake. Cecil has been arrested and he can't come home tonight, but it will be all right in the morning."

Mrs. Miracle pressed for an explanation, but Pope said he didn't understand it himself. Cecil had been taken for somebody else, but it would all be straightened out in the morning. "Cecil says you're not to worry," he said, and went away.

Next morning Pope came again and told Mrs. Miracle that Cecil was held because he had escaped from a prison somewhere, but he still thought there must be a mistake. Mrs. Miracle couldn't believe it. She asked to be taken to her husband and Pope brought her to the jail and Cecil told her yes, it was true, he had escaped from prison, and she asked, through her tears: "Why didn't you tell me?"

"I knew it would worry you," said Miracle, "and it wouldn't help any for you to know. Now don't worry, honey, I'll be out soon."

For three days, while his friends, with the help of W. L. Hammond, a lawyer, were trying to do something for him, Miracle stayed in jail. Each day Mrs. Miracle went to see him and until the third day he told her it would be all right, but on that day he said he would have to go back to prison for a while. It was better so. He would get it over with and then he would be free of the fear that had haunted him through the years.

She asked him if she should bring Betty Jane in to see him, and he said no, and she understood.

The next morning she saw him for the last time and he said: "Take good care of yourself and Betty Jane. I'll be back soon. Now go back home. I don't want you to be here when I'm taken away."

Ada Miracle told about their last moments together, as she sat in her home the other day, holding Betty Jane on her lap, but when she was asked what were her husband's parting words she said "I don't remember," and then she was crying, with her face against the baby's head.

If Cecil Miracle does not come back soon it will not be the fault of his Pineville friends, who have not lost faith in him though they now know that he has been in three prisons and has escaped from two, for he has lived uprightly among them for four years and they believe he is a reformed man. They are doing everything that friends can do to have him released from Alabama prison, but if he is to be free again the leniency of not only the authorities of Alabama, but also of those of Florida and California must be won, for he escaped from the Florida prison and was paroled in California, where he was serving a life sentence.

MIRACLE was brought up in the mountain country around Pineville. At 17 he enlisted in the navy. After four years' service he was discharged in California. He worked on a ranch out there for a while and then was severely burned in a bunk house fire and was in a hospital for five months.

Out of the hospital, and broke, he turned to crime. He was convicted of an armed robbery and was sent to prison for life, the penalty which California law provides for that offense. After five years he was paroled and went to Birmingham, Alabama. There he got into trouble again and was sent to Raiford Prison for three years under his own name. Five months later he escaped by climbing over the wall, and fled to Florida. On the way he stole an automobile to facilitate his flight. He was caught and sent to prison under the name of Charles Moore. He served only part of his sentence and again escaped by climbing the wall.

Returning to this county in 1933 he resumed his own name and set himself to winning back the respectability that he had lost. He opened an automobile repair shop and did fairly well until a year and a half ago, when he formed a partnership with John Pope in the saw mill and lumber business.

Not long after his return he took his place again in the social group to which he had belonged before he went into the navy. One of the schoolmates that he remembered was Ada Mason. He called on her and it was not long until it was known along Clear Creek that they were "going together." They were seen together at Clear Creek Baptist Church and neighborhood parties and after six months it was an open secret that they were engaged. Then, two and a half years ago, when they were on a trip to Norris Dam, in Tennessee, they converted it into a wedding trip by getting married at Cumberland Gap.

For a while they lived at Clear Springs and then, with business improving, they bought a cottage and 18 acres of their own opposite Pine Mountain with its high pinnacle and the little lake lying at its foot.

Cecil Miracle was becoming a man of substance and importance in the community. He stood well among the lumber men along the Cumberland and Pine ranges. He was a member of the Junior Order, United American Mechanics, and was chosen from 156 members for the office of councilor, its highest post, and when he had served a year was re-elected for another year.

They were happy in their new home, Cecil and Ada, with plans for the planting of their fields and with the future of Betty Jane for their chief concern. Four years had passed and no man had come to challenge Cecil Miracle's right to hold up his head among men, and the times when he seemed troubled were noticed less frequently by his wife.

Then one day, up at London, 52 miles away, an officer picked up a card that had been lying about since 1929. He had looked at it before without interest except to note the strangeness of the name, Miracle. Lately, though, he had heard that there were quite a lot of Miracles in the Pineville community. Maybe this Cecil Miracle who had escaped from Alabama prison was one of them. It was worth looking into, for there was a reward of $50. So as soon as he had a chance the officer came down to Pineville and inquired around and learned that there was a Cecil Miracle in the lumber business out west of town, and contrived to get a look at the man, finding him to greatly resemble the Cecil Miracle pictured on the card and fit the detailed description given there.

This Cecil Miracle, by all accounts and appearances, was going straight now and was highly spoken of by men who knew him best, and he had a wife and baby, but he owed the State of Alabama two years and seven months of his life and the London officer considered it his duty to see that the debt was paid. Besides, there was the reward of $50. So he obtained a warrant and took another officer with him and came to where Ada Miracle was singing in the kitchen and took her husband away.

There was astonishment and unbelief in Pineville when it became known that Cecil Miracle had been arrested as a fugitive from prison. Particularly unbelieving were the members of the Junior Order. They hurried to see him and their faith in him was not destroyed by what he told them. A special meeting was called and the members voted their confidence in their councilor. They hired the lawyer, Hammond, and he prepared to begin habeas corpus proceedings, on the contention that the wrong man was being held.

WHEN word came from Frankfort, however, that Miracle was wanted also in Florida, and that he had broken his California parole, the man owned up that it was all true and asked his friends to abate their efforts in his behalf.

"It's what I have been expecting," he said. "It is better that it comes now than later. I will go back and finish my sentence and get it over with and then return and prove myself to you."

Miracle's friends, however, had no idea of abating their efforts. Petitions were circulated by the members of the Junior Order and hundreds signed them. Now they are being circulated over the State. Many letters have gone from prominent men to Governor Chandler asking him to intercede with the Governor of Alabama for a parole or pardon. There is hope that Cecil Miracle's good may be weighed against his bad and that he will be accounted worthy of the clemency which Alabama can grant.

It has not been learned yet whether Florida will claim the man when Alabama's claim against him has been satisfied, or whether California will hold against him the broken parole and take him back there, but every effort will be made to have those other states waive their claims.

While Miracle's friends strive, Ada Miracle waits at the cottage on the Clear Creek road, standing often on the porch and at the gate, with Betty Jane in her arms, looking down the road, watching and waiting.

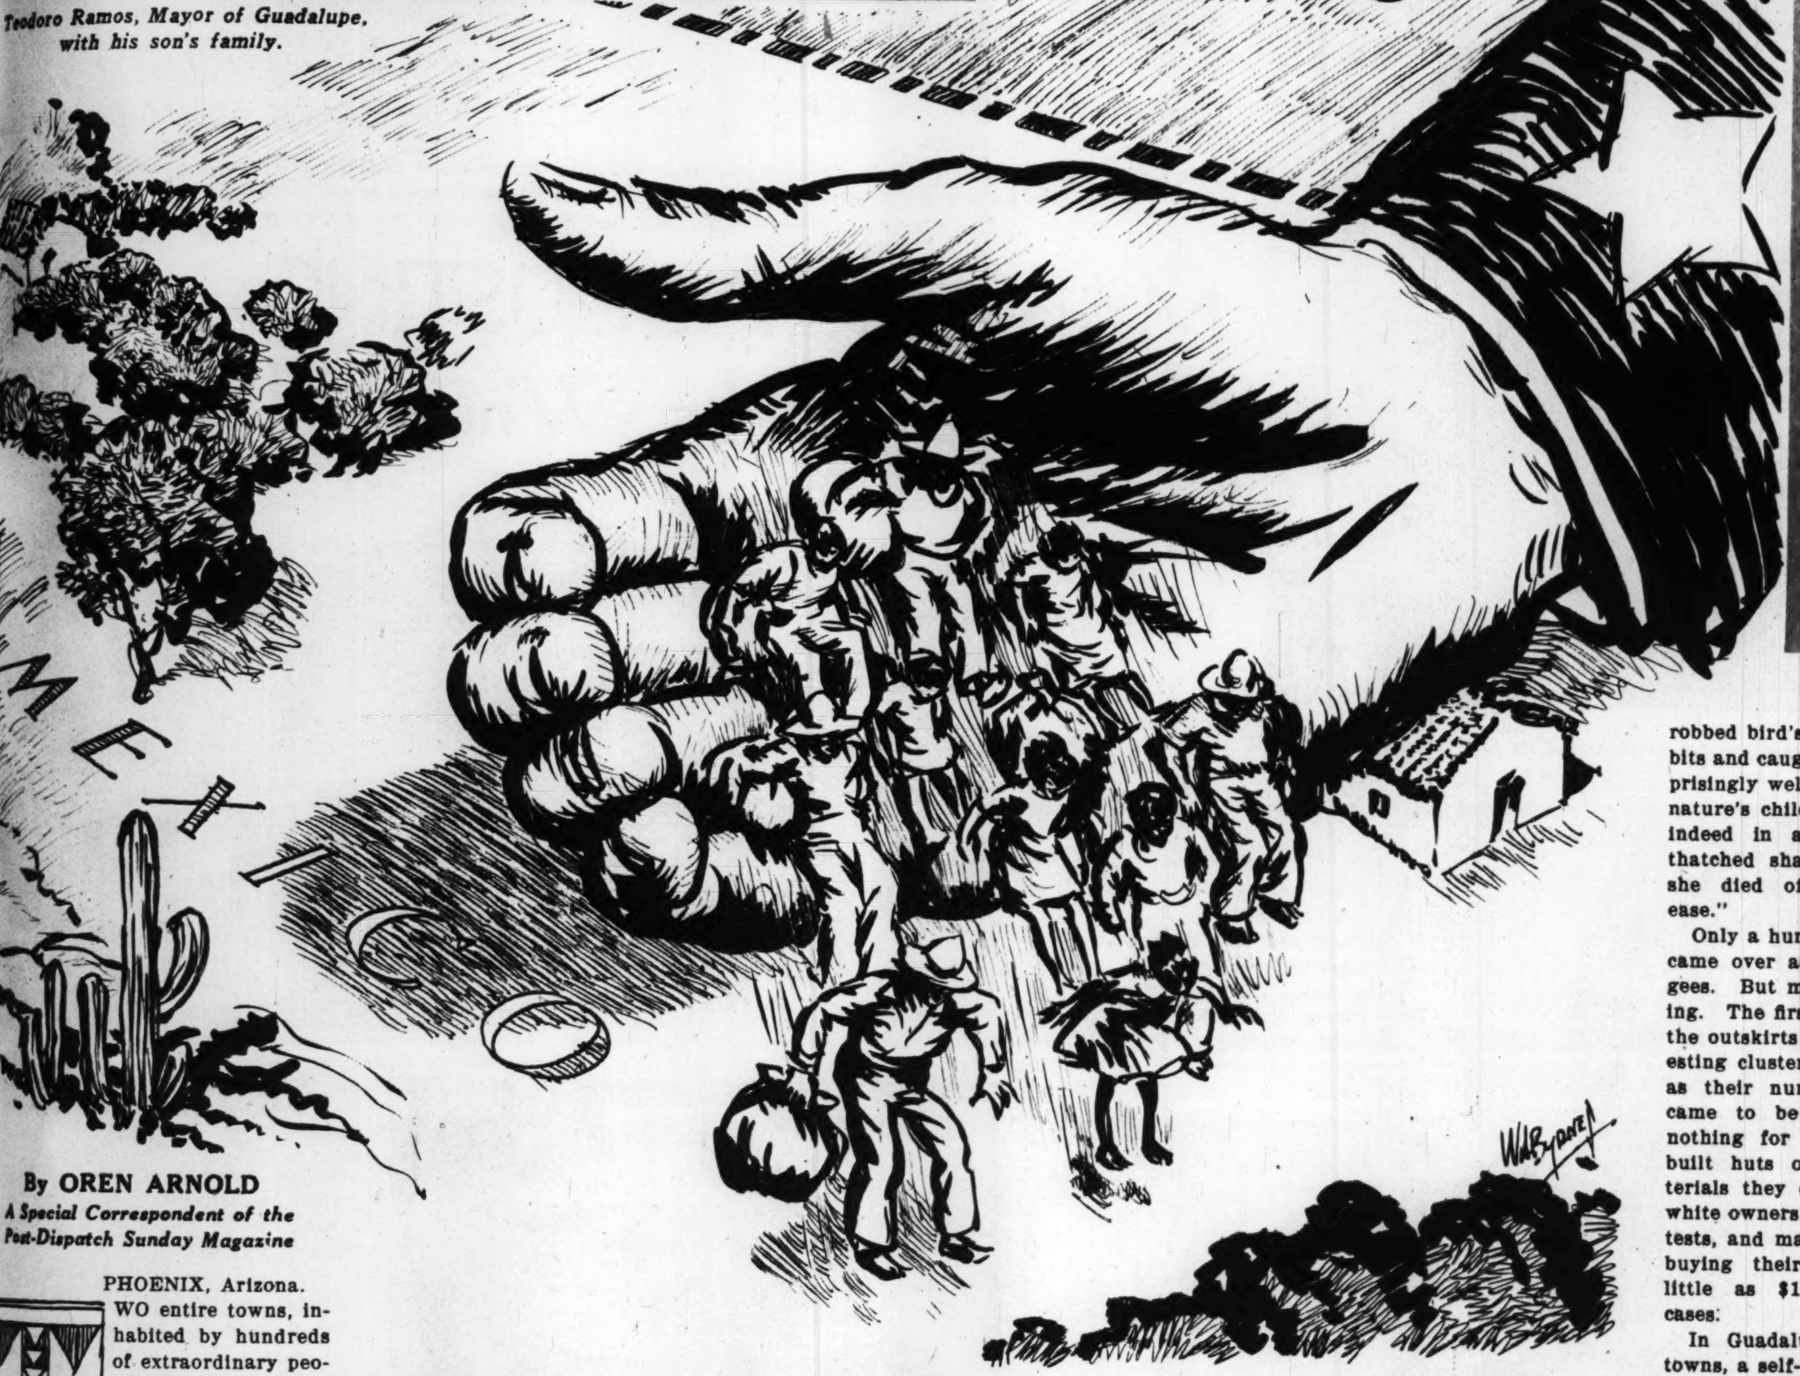
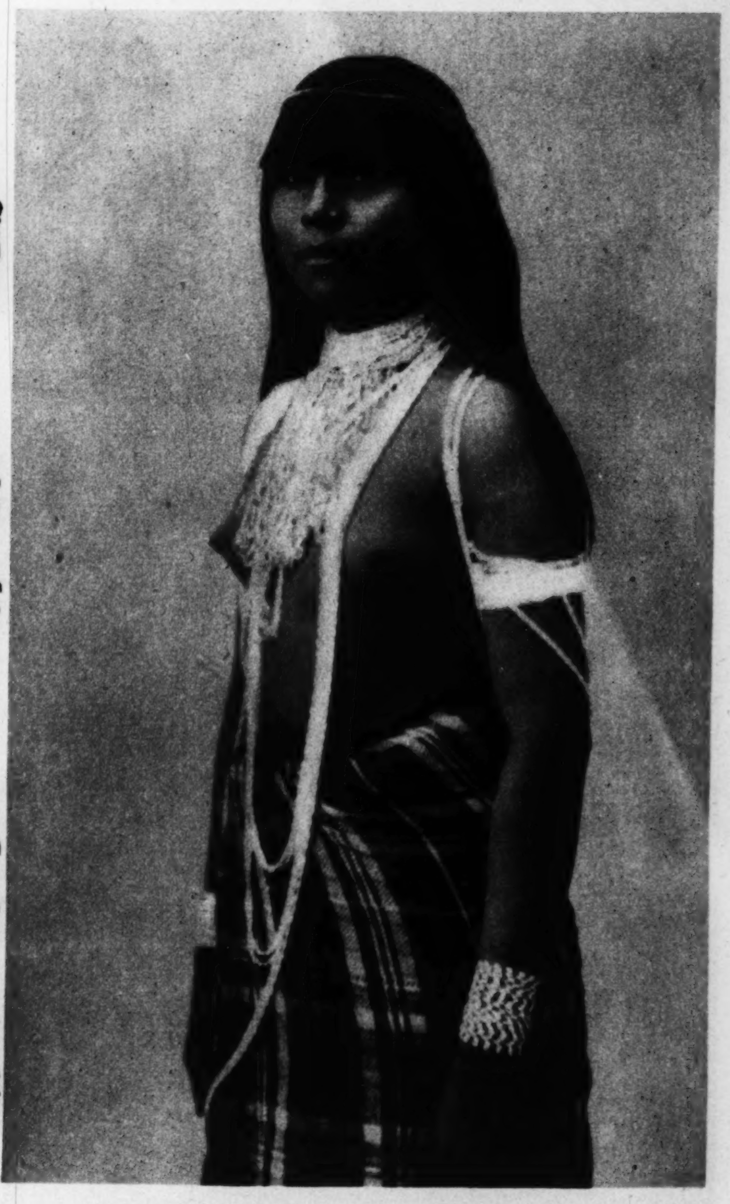
INHABITANTS of Two Towns Will Be TURNED BACK Into MEXICO

Why the Fierce Yaquis, Who Have Been Guests of the United States Government Since 1914, Are Returning to Their Homeland.





A Yaqui maiden in a tribal costume.

By OREN ARNOLD

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

PHOENIX, Arizona.

TWO entire towns, inhabited by hundreds of extraordinary people, soon will be plucked right off Uncle Sam's map and shoved across the international line into Mexico, if official plans go through. his will constitute perhaps the bigst exodus of families this nation has er seen.

The people thus to go, voluntarily, e representatives of the last unconered tribe of North American Inans—the Yaquis.

The very name Yaqui spells terror many whites, who even in recent ars have had bloody encounters with e tribesmen. Yaquis thumbed their ses, figuratively speaking, at the st Spanish pioneers to invade what now Mexico, and they have contined to bedevil, kill, or ignore the ghter-skinned settlers to this day, ying no taxes, recognizing no white n's law, sneering at what is termed ilization.

Leader in the plan to repatriate the erican Yaqui townsmen is Governor man Yocupicio of Sonora, the Mexn State bordering on Arizona. He me to Arizona a short time ago to en negotiations in the matter, was ured of co-operation, and forthwith rted official action with the Federal vernment in Mexico City.

The two towns to be moved are dalupe, situated on the desert nine les southeast of Phoenix, Arizona, d Barrio Pascua, near Tucson, Aria. Nearly 3000 persons inhabit the o places.

To move them back to Mexico will essitate abundant proof that "all is given." These Yaquis fear death in xico. The citizens of Guadalupe not Americans, nor classified strictas aliens. They live on no reservan. The Government does not prot and care for them as it does nae Indians. They are here through erance.

Uncle Sam calls them expatriates, d let them enter in the first place 1914 and thereafter) solely as a tter of saving their lives. He told m, in effect, that they could hide his bosom for a while, but that he would feel free to kick them out whenever he got ready. He has been hinting several times to Mexico that she had better reclaim her citizens, and now at long last something is about to be done.

The American Yaquis have been afraid to go back home because dire political punishment has awaited them there.

One week in 1914, a mounted troop of Mexican Federal soldiers raided a camp of insurrectos. Among the latter were some extremely fierce fighters, of skin much darker than the average Mexican. The Federals were surprised at the resistance encountered. The darker men came roaring into the thickest of the fighting, and showed peculiar skill at inflicting painful death.

"Never have I seen such devils!" one veteran of that campaign tells. He is Augustin Escalante, an under officer in the Civil War. "They are va-ree strong. They are keel for pleasure. They like cut off the head after they keel. They—how you say—enjoy, the tweesting of the arm and taking out the eye!"

Senor Escalante's point is clear, even if his English isn't. The Federal soldiers of Mexico, and others endowed with authority there, learned a fear and a hatred of the Yaquis. Even when the then frequent insurrections would be smothered out, the Yaquis would not surrender, would not be captured. Outnumbered, they might be forced to flee back to their wild hills along the Yaqui River, but woe unto any sort of army that tried to follow them there and punish them.

In some instances, however, the Federals did get on the other side of the Yaqui warriors, and force them to flee toward the North. In time they came to the international border itself, and in harried groups they crossed it.

They knew postively that death awaited them if the Mexicans caught them; maybe the paleface Americans would be lenient.

The Americans would. Uncle Sam is singularly hospitable. Mexican authorities swore to kill every Yaqui rebel that could be caught, then or later. Uncle Sam couldn't take an alien to his imaginary back door and kick him outside, only to see him shot to death right there. He offered temporary hospice to Yaqui men. Later their women and children crept over to join them, or in some instances the unmarried men took native American wives usually of Mexican blood, sometimes of local Maricopa, Pima or Papago Indian. Practically all the Yaquis now have Spanish names.

Hearing by word of mouth in 1916 that her man was in Arizona, one Yaqui wife, Margarita Poson, set out to find him. On foot she moved from a point some 350 miles south of the border, carrying only a little food. She was a wilderness creature, in effect. She hadn't seen but one or two white men in all her life, and these were Mexicans, almost as dark as she. She spoke no English, little Spanish.

She knew nothing of stores, of motor cars, of airplanes. She had only vague rumors that her man, along with some others, were "with a paleface tribe" to the North, and with peculiar loyalty she went to join him.

He was not at Barrio Pascua, which is nearly 90 miles from the border. But there she got word of another Yaqui settlement 100 miles further north.

It was another 100 miles of desert, but she went there and found him.

From her description of it later, it became evident that she lived and traveled as an animal would. She ate what she could find or catch in snares. She tore open bisnaga (barrel) cacti for the drinkable water in them. She robbed bird's nests. She trapped rabbits and caught lizards. She fared surprisingly well because she was one of nature's children. She lived happily, indeed in astounding luxury, in a thatched shanty in Guadalupe, until she died of a "white man's disease."

Only a hundred or so of the Yaquis came over at first, as political refugees. But more and more kept coming. The first settlement, clinging on the outskirts of Tucson, was an interesting cluster of huts for a time, but as their numbers grew the Yaquis came to be resented. They paid nothing for their land, had simply built huts of whatever castoff materials they could find. Eventually white owners of the land sounded protests, and many of the Indians began buying their home sites, paying as little as $1 per month in some cases.

In Guadalupe, larger of the two towns, a self-government has been set up by the Yaquis, and at times the white Sheriff of the county had to intervene in the name of peace. Just a few months ago, an "election" modeled somewhat after American politics was held there, to determine just who should be jefe or head man, comparable somewhat to mayor and dictator combined.

Two men, an oldster and a youngster, wanted the job. It carries little or no pay, but considerable prestige, especially among the girls. Each man had his following. Each camp declared the other should not rule, and for a time a pitched battle threatened.

Finally a wiser old man went to the white Sheriff and asked him to intervene, as a sort of referee. He was referred to the Federal officers, who told the old Yaqui that Uncle Sam had nothing to do with them, save allowing them to live there temporarily, and they would have to settle matters themselves.

"Furthermore," the old man was warned in Spanish, "unless you do settle it peacefully at once, the whole bunch of you will be deported, and the Mexican soldiers will referee."

That wasn't strictly true, but it served its purpose. The message was carried back to Guadalupe, and next day the election of Teodoro Ramos was effected, without a single eye gouged out or a single arm twisted off, indeed without even a fist fight. Fear of the Mexican soldiers still haunted the Yaquis.

Roman Yocupicio, the Sonora Governor, has been a friend of the Yaqui tribesmen, however. He assures all Yaquis that enmity no longer exists. Even down in Sonora, where the wild Yaquis have lived in eight hidden villages for many years and dared anybody to come after them, belligerence is waning.

"We are not going after them with rifles and knives any more," said Senor Yocupicio. "The Yaquis have been mistreated long enough.

"They are primarily an agricultural people. It has been hard for them to make a living while fighting for their very existence so long.

"Instead of trying to imprison them, we are now offering them chances to farm on reclaimed land. Storage dams and irrigation canals are making them good citizens, where bullets could never do so."

It is not easy to make the refugees in Arizona understand that, but they admit they would prefer to live with their tribesmen. Some of them now are native American-born, of course; but even they prefer to go "back home"—if assurance can be had of safety, they add.

Much hokum has been written and told about the Yaquis in America, and in Mexico, too. They have not, contrary to recurrent reports, come raiding out of their hills threatening to overthrow the Mexican Government. They have not even fostered any small revolutions, or raided any towns in a long time. But legendary fear of them is such that if even one Yaqui gets drunk in a Mexican cantina and acts up a little, stories come out saying that the whole tribe is on the war path.

THEY have fought very little, offensively, since the days of Pancho Villa; but they have doggedly resisted any attacks on themselves, from Feedral or other soldiers, and they have had a few merry, revengeful torture parties on captives taken.

In the two towns that are soon to be moved, little of interest is held for white visitors save at Easter time. The Yaquis have clung to a strange mixture of Christianity and paganism. The theme of the crucifixion and resurrection has always fascinated them, and in various ways they have reenacted it.

During Lent, 14 rude crosses are set at intervals of 60 to 70 feet along a wide road around Barrio Pascua, for example. Starting from a crude church in one corner of the town, three groups of people visit each one of these crosses, in turn, at 5 p. m. on each Lenten Friday.

First will be the maestro and his bodyguards, with the cross bearer. A man and a boy lay down leaves, to symbolize a green carpet for the desert. Faithful women follow bearing statues of the Virgin, wearing gay red crowns and white veils; after them comes a large company of women and girls. They sing a mournful dirge.

Following these are the Fariseos, 20 men representing the persecutors of Christ. A drummer and flute player accompany them. All have long painted wooden swords.

The "mummers," strangest of all, come next. They wear amazing costumes. Their masques are grotesque

ST. AUGUSTINE, Florida.

THROUGH the restoration of St. Augustine, which is being conducted under the auspices of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, with Dr. Verne E. Chatelain, staff member, as director, men and women of today will be able to walk through six centuries of history which represents the birth and growth of their own civilization and which has determined what they are today.

The plan of the project is not to restore one period by itself, but to telescope the centuries, bringing the life of the aboriginal Timucuan Indians into clear focus side by side with all the succeeding centuries—the arrival of the white men, Spanish, French and English, and their struggles for supremacy over each other and the wild land to which they had come; the period when St. Augustine was a Tory stronghold; the years of the Seminole War which reduced this region to one of terror; the Civil War period; the arival of Henry M. Flagler whose efforts made St. Augustine into a fine resort town and opened up Florida as the new play land of America; and so on down to the present day.

The means for the accomplishment of this project is a revolutionary venture in the field of history and science, for rather than relying on written records to reconstruct the story, as is the usual procedure of the historian, the pan-scientific method will be used, that is, all the arts and sciences will contribute their findings in this region to make a scientifically as well as historically accurate whole.

The Smithsonian Institution and the American Council of Learned Societies, both of Washington, the Social Science Research Council and Carnegie Corporation of New York, are participating to send scientists in their organizations to accomplish certain ends in this program. The archeologist, architect, engineer, geologist, astronomer, botanist, the student of cartography, physical and human geography, languages, medicine, agriculture, plant ecology, anthropology and paleontology will enlarge and enrich the story by their findings.

To explain how a story can be reconstructed by the physical remains of that history rather than by the written word, can be exemplified by archeological work already done in this region in 1888 by Andrew E. Douglass. Working in the sand mounds in this region, Douglass uncovered skeletal remains, articles of stone, bone and wood and layers of shell. From these he was able to ascertain the Indian method of burial—exposing the bodies in a log pen to protect them from the wild animals, and months later besmearing the bones with red paint to be deposited in the mounds. The fragments of galena, sheets of unica, stone gorgets and ceremonial weapons demonstrated far-flung trade among the Indians, for it was determined the materials of these objects are not to be found in Florida, but in points north. Mingled bones of fish, fowl, turtle, alligator and deer were found. From the stratification of shell and bone was inferred the native's preference in food.

The mounds had gaps in the ridge with pits between so that they resembled a gigantic honeycomb. Describing a mound in the May, 1888, issue of the Antiquarian, Douglass stated: "It required but small imagination to picture each wigwam nestled in its separate enclosure, its occupants lounging about the fire or crowding the narrow pathways, while by day the shell ridge grew in height and threatened to fall in and crowd out the tribe. At this point some calamity has swept them away forever. Slowly but surely, vegetation closes over the scene, centuries pass and the shells are buried far out of sight in a soil which nurtures the most massive trees. I know of no shell mound in Florida which tells its own story so eloquently as Dupont's Mound."

"Tells its own story," said Douglass 52 years before the inception of this project which has that philosophy as the very basis for achievement.

The scene which Douglass paints is rich and varied, but there was no attempt to present these material remains so that the layman and student might see them and read from them their story; no attempt to clear the growth from the mound; and only archeological research was employed. How much richer and more varied will be the story when all the sciences are put to work to uncover, interpret and explain.

The point of emphasis is on two facts: The restored St. Augustine will tell its own story, and the town will not be "frozen" into any period of its history, but all stages of its development will be represented.

There may be a few instances where buildings representing one period of history will be reconstructed in detail, but the general plan is to give the visitor the feel of succeeding centuries. Many houses here today explain this plan. Built of coquina, a sea shell material hardening like concrete, peculiar to this region and distinctly American, these houses have the Spanish features of windowless north walls, gardens and patios facing south, overhanging balconies, living rooms on the second floor, and the added English features of gable roofs and chimneys. But the balconies themselves are not quite like the balconies of Europe. Therefore, in one house may be represented the story of the Spanish and the English occupation flavored with the personality that is American. It is that blending of old civilizations with the distinctively American flavor that gives St. Augustine a personality which is unique.

The monuments might be called the body of the picture. The work of giving it color, richness and life will be in the studies of folk-lore, traditions, religious observances to the end of staging historical plays, pantomimes, pageants, festivals, fiestas and pilgrimages in order that those traditions which are the heritage of the people may again become part of their consciousness. Creative activity and the desire to preserve folk skills, home manufacture of handicrafts, such as linen and lace making, traditional domestic food and dishes, stories and literature will all contribute.

IN ORDER that the scene may achieve a harmonious and esthetic whole the city is being replanned for the construction of boulevards, promenades and parks; traffic will be rerouted out of the historic areas and parking lots will be developed. Anachronistic buildings will be razed; overhead wires, signs, poles and other disfiguring objects will be removed.

The Historical Museum will be the final achievement of this project, the thing which will tie the completed venture into a perfect whole, a depository of culture presenting in objective fashion the complete story of St. Augustine by means of period rooms each containing dioramas, models, pictures, charts of explanation, and artifacts relating to single stages in this history. With these objective realities the visitor may then go out to intelligently visit the actual sites.

The philosophy of the project is to achieve the thing beyond research; the educational use of this site. To quote Dr. Chatelain's report of the preliminary survey which was completed in March: The plan will "result in making St. Augustine a great laboratory of history, as well as in the fine arts and social democracy, useful not only in understanding more fully how life progresses, but effective because of its objective realism, far more than books and classrooms can be, in educating all classes of citizens in what may be termed 'historical mindedness.'"

With the rapid progress of transportation, the near future may see traveling historical classes utilizing special trains, buses and trailers to study history at first hand.

SKETCH

of the

NEW YORK.

WHAT incredible day last winter when Bert Acosta flew an unarmed sport plane into a squadron of Spanish rebels armed to the hilt in the latest German fighting ships and frightened them away with toothless manuevers would have made a glittering chapter in the career of almost any aviator—except its hero. For the world of flying is well aware that nothing conventional ever happens to devil-may-care Bert, the problem child of the air.

By the estimate of aviators themselves handsome Bert is the greatest natural flyer in the world. He knows no fear—or responsibilities either. He once took up a strange contraption that a printer built in his back yard. He flew a plane with an oversize engine after every other aviator had begged off from what seemed to be a one-way ticket to eternity. He flew a plane solo the first time he was ever in a cockpit. He has loved and been loved by women in every social station.

And he has been arrested time and again for drunken driving, speeding, passing red lights and non-support.

In fact he just got out of jail in Mineola where he was placed for a while because he failed to answer a summons obtained by his wife who seems to think he ought to support her and their three children. Bert had come back from his soldier of fortune stint with the Spanish Loyalists in hot water with Uncle Sam and protesting that he was paid off in pennies instead of dollars. Mrs. Ascota said she heard otherwise.

Bert looked a little frayed at the edges when he left jail, but it might have been because he needed a shave. He is in his forties now, but his waist is hard, his shoulders broad, his hair thick and black. And his hawklike profile still calculated to give susceptible maidens the shivers. But for a few hard lines on his face he might be the same Bert Acosta who blithely tapped the Prince of Wales on the shoulder in Le Touquet Casino in 1927 and said:

"Say, Prince, can I dance with your lady?"

The Prince—now the Duke of Windsor—smiled at the big American and said "Sure." Lady Fitzlewis slipped from the arms of her royal escort into those of the famous aviator and smiled also. Very few women have been able to become angry with Bert Acosta.

One of the few—unfortunately for Bert—is Mrs. Helen Acosta who is tired of forgiving and trying to forget the innumerable escapades of her husband and has permitted the law to handle things for the past few years. It was of this Bert probably was thinking when he returned from Spain a couple of months ago to find Federal agents waiting to question him.

"If they stick me in jail," he smiled wryly, "it will be nothing new."

So much of the bitter and the sweet is mixed in the life of Bert Acosta, that it is best to start at the beginning — back before the World War when a boy of 15 got a job doing chores at the Curtiss Training Station at North-Island, California. This job lasted only a little while because someone left a plane with its propellor whirling and the next thing attaches knew a self-confident little fellow was cutting impossible capers in the air. It was Bert's first flight and he came down to a good landing to find himself out of work.

Apparently none of those at the field stopped to think of how amazing it was for a boy to step into a plane without any training at all and fly and land safely. So Bert had to seek his aerial education elsewhere. He got it in return for working as a grease monkey and mechanic and by the time the

NE a Living HISTORY

Oldest house in America on St. Francis street, St. Augustine.

is that blending of old civilizations with the distinctively American flavor that gives St. Augustine a personality which is unique.

The monuments might be called the body of the picture. The work of giving it color, richness and life will be in the studies of folk-lore, traditions, religious observances to the end of staging historical plays, pantomimes, pageants, festivals, fiestas and pilgrimages in order that those traditions which are the heritage of the people may again become part of their consciousness. Creative activity and the desire to preserve folk skills, home manufacture of handicrafts, such as linen and lace making, traditional domestic food and dishes, stories and literature will all contribute.

IN ORDER that the scene may achieve a harmonious and esthetic whole the city is being replanned for the construction of boulevards, promenades and parks; traffic will be rerouted out of the historic areas and parking lots will be developed. Anachronistic buildings will be razed; overhead wires, signs, poles and other disfiguring objects will be removed.

The Historical Museum will be the inal achievement of this project, the hing which will tie the completed enture into a perfect whole, a depository of culture presenting in obective fashion the complete story of t. Augustine by means of period ooms each containing dioramas, modls, pictures, charts of explanation, nd artifacts relating to single stages n this history. With these objective ealities the visitor may then go out to ntelligently visit the actual sites.

The philosophy of the project is to chieve the thing beyond research; the ducational use of this site. To quote r. Chatelain's report of the preliminry survey which was completed in farch: The plan will "result in making St. Augustine a great laboratory of istory, as well as in the fine arts and ocial democracy, useful not only in nderstanding more fully how life rogresses, but effective because of its bjective realism, far more than books nd classrooms can be, in educating ll classes of citizens in what may be ermed 'historical mindedness.' "

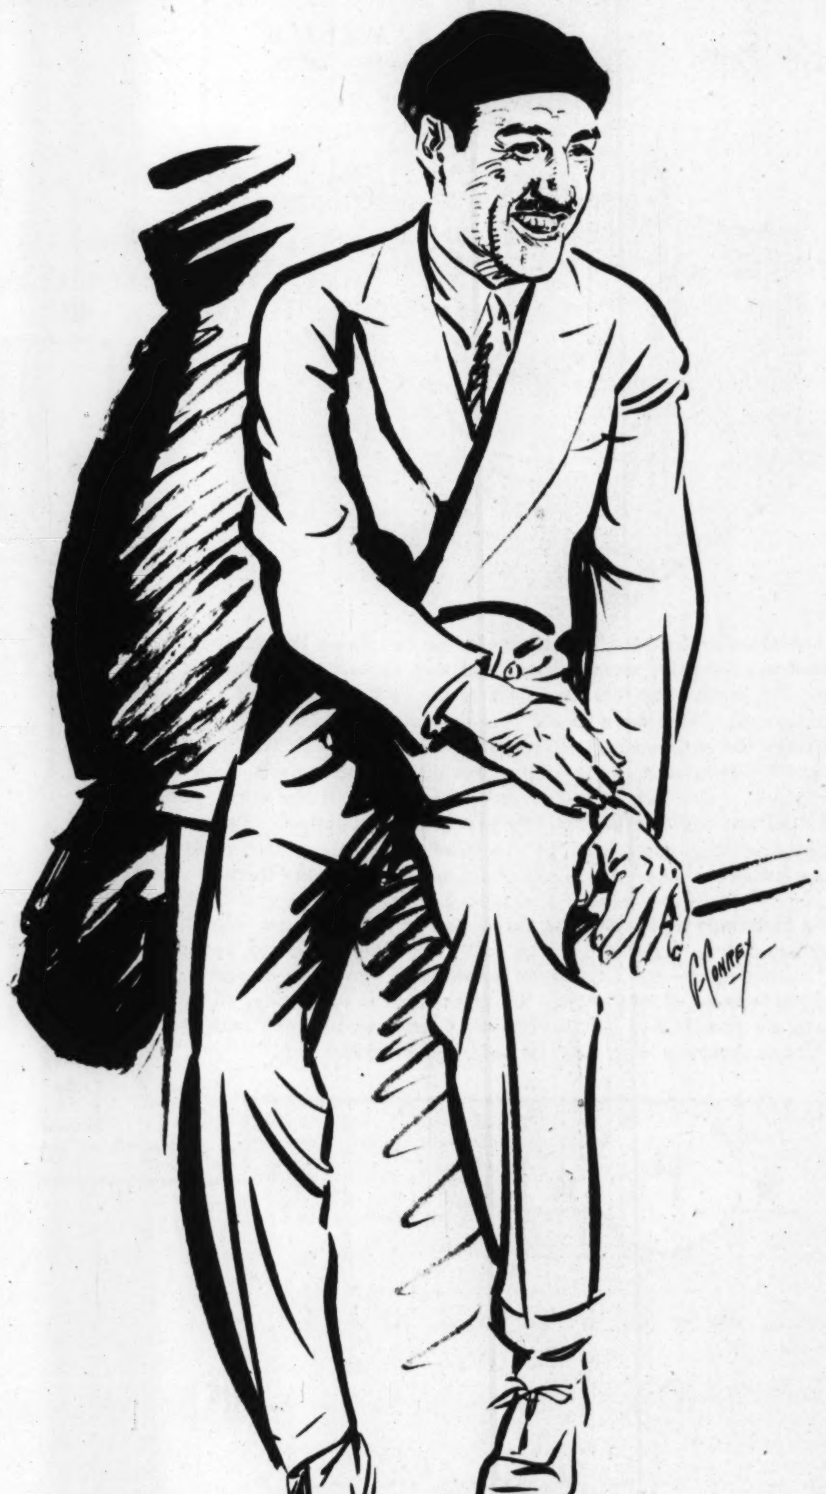
With the rapid progress of transortation, the near future may see raveling historical classes utilizing pecial trains, buses and trailers to tudy history at first hand.

SKETCHES FROM LIFE

High Lights on Unusual Personalities

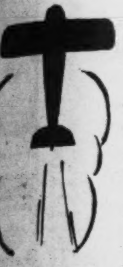
BERT ACOSTA
SAMUEL S. FLEISHER

The Bad Boy of the Air



Bert Acosta.

NEW YORK.



THAT incredible day last winter when Bert Acosta flew an unarmed sport plane into a squadron of Spanish rebels armed to the hilt in the latest German fighting ships and frightened them away with toothless manuevers would have made a glittering chapter in the career of almost any aviator—except its hero. For the world of flying is well aware that nothing conventional ever happens to devil-may-care Bert, the problem child of the air.

By the estimate of aviators themselves handsome Bert is the greatest natural flyer in the world. He knows no fear—or responsibilities either. He once took up a strange contraption that a printer built in his back yard. He flew a plane with an oversize engine after every other aviator had begged off from what seemed to be a one-way ticket to eternity. He flew a plane solo the first time he was ever in a cockpit. He has loved and been loved by women in every social station.

And he has been arrested time and again for drunken driving, speeding, passing red lights and non-support.

In fact he just got out of jail in Mineola where he was placed for a while because he failed to answer a summons obtained by his wife who seems to think he ought to support her and their three children. Bert had come back from his soldier of fortune stint with the Spanish Loyalists in hot water with Uncle Sam and protesting that he was paid off in pennies instead of dollars. Mrs. Ascota said she heard otherwise.

Bert looked a little frayed at the edges when he left jail, but it might have been because he needed a shave. He is in his forties now, but his waist is hard, his shoulders broad, his hair thick and black. And his hawklike profile still calculated to give susceptible maidens the shivers. But for a few hard lines on his face he might be the same Bert Acosta who blithely tapped the Prince of Wales on the shoulder in Le Touquet Casino in 1927 and said:

"Say, Prince, can I dance with your lady?"

The Prince—now the Duke of Windsor—smiled at the big American and said "Sure." Lady Fitzlewis slipped from the arms of her royal escort into those of the famous aviator and smiled also. Very few women have been able to become angry with Bert Acosta.

One of the few—unfortunately for Bert—is Mrs. Helen Acosta who is tired of forgiving and trying to forget the innumerable escapades of her husband and has permitted the law to handle things for the past few years. It was of this Bert probably was thinking when he returned from Spain a couple of months ago to find Federal agents waiting to question him.

"If they stick me in jail," he smiled wryly, "it will be nothing new."

So much of the bitter and the sweet is mixed in the life of Bert Acosta, that it is best to start at the beginning — back before the World War when a boy of 15 got a job doing chores at the Curtiss Training Station at North Island, California. This job lasted only a little while because someone left a plane with its propellor whirling and the next thing attaches knew a self-confident little fellow was cutting impossible capers in the air. It was Bert's first flight and he came down to a good landing to find himself out of work.

Apparently none of those at the field stopped to think of how amazing it was for a boy to step into a plane without any training at all and fly and land safely. So Bert had to seek his aerial education elsewhere. He got it in return for working as a grease monkey and mechanic and by the time the World War was declared he was proficient enough to be assigned to Canada to train their aviators. When the Armistice was signed he stepped gracefully back into civil aviation.

His was a lustrous name even then. In July, 1920, he flew the first transcontinental air mail—letters from the Mayor of New York City to San Francisco. Acosta's was the only one of the all-metal planes in a squadron to complete the round trip which, however, was not without incident. A Miss Elizabeth Gould interrupted the welcoming ceremonies to accuse Acosta of breach of promise.

A couple of months later he set a passenger record by taking nine persons aloft. And to round out his feats for the year he finished third in the Pulitzer Trophy race.

The next year—1921—started inauspiciously for Bert—a relative sued him for $1725. The process server slyly dressed himself as an aviator and approached Acosta ostensibly to talk shop, but the flyer, tipped off by friends, took to the air. Some time later he invited the process server to make a flight with him and took the plane through every twist known to aerobatics. It was a very sick and scared passenger who left the plane.

But this suit was only the prelude to more litigation. A 16-year-old girl wrote some melodramatic letters which were intercepted by Mrs. Acosta. One of them read in part:

"I need to be treated like I was human instead of a dog." It was signed "From a broken-hearted mother-to-be."

Needless to say Mrs. Acosta sued for divorce demanding custody of their children—they were married in 1917. The case dragged through the courts and finally ended in a reconciliation.

Meanwhile Bert had achieved the greatest honor aviation could confer at that time—victory in the Pulitzer Trophy race in the new world record time of 176.9 miles an hour. As a result of this triumph he was made chief test pilot for the Curtiss aviation interests. A year later he was testing a plane when the wings failed. With the sure touch of genius he brought the plane down on its belly—the first time in history this feat had been performed.

But 1921 also saw Bert's first arrest—a speeding charge. Two years later he added three more to his record—driving while intoxicated in Nassau County, New York, and Nantucket, Massachusetts, in April, and in Nassau County again in July.

Mrs. Acosta had agreed to forget the 16-year-old girl, but in 1928 she found herself face to face with a situation that could not be ignored. She filed suit against Mrs. Dorothy Walker, wife of a rubber magnate, asking $150,000 for alienation of affections. It seemed that Bert had had a slight crackup while with the heiress and she had insisted that he convalesce at her home. Mrs. Acosta wanted an injunction keeping Mrs. Walker from her husband, but this was denied. Said the Judge in deciding the case:

"I have heard of Acosta as a daring aviator. I have also passed upon the amorous activities of Mr. Acosta in a previous case in Nassau County when another divorce was secured. So I judge he is a most active man in other people's families when he is not aviating. He should be in the air all the time. It would be safer for the homes of others."

Finally the Walker affair cooled and Mrs. Acosta took Bert back, but only after he had taken a plane and flown to the front lawn of the heiress' estate in Connecticut where he created such a disturbance the Sheriff was notified that the peace was endangered.

This interlude d'amour came when Acosta was at the height of his fame. Only a little while earlier with Commander Richard E. Byrd, Lieutenant George O. Noville and Berndt Balchen he had flown the Atlantic to Ver-Sur-Mer, France, where their plane cracked up in thick weather. Acosta was the one who sat glued to the controls through that perilous night, the rain beating in his face, unable to see even his instruments.

For this flight he and the others were feted throughout Europe although Bert's style was a little hampered by the broken collar bone he incurred in the forced landing. When he returned to more ovations in the United States he and Clarence Chamberlain set a new world's endurance record of 51 hours and 11 minutes. And to keep the motif of his checkered career straight he filed a petition in bankruptcy—$2200 in debt.

Since he was in debt one of his creditors attached his plane. The ship was pegged down at Teterboro Airport in New Jersey. But Acosta went over one day, freed it and set out on a duck hunt. He was so glad to get back in the air that he did a little incautious stunting over Connecticut. For this he got five days. Nothing daunted he stunted a few days later with a plane in which he had two women and a man as passengers. This time he was fined.

In 1927 Acosta had launched with considerable fanfare a company to build planes. It was capitalized at $100,000. In 1928 the Attorney-General's office announced it was interested in learning whether the company had gone beyond a two-foot model of the planes it was supposed to build. The company later was dissolved.

THE city of Dunkirk, New York, gave him a medal in 1930 for his service to aviation and his wife announced their nth reconciliation. It didn't last long. Within a few months Mrs. Acosta had Bert in court for abandonment and he was sentenced to a six months' term. This unsavory publicity did him no good, but his fellow flyers told a poll of the American Society for the Promotion of Aviation that he was still the greatest in the world, off the ground.

Bert showed the globe what his colleagues meant in 1931 when Joseph Terle, a job printer, came to an airport with a plane he had taken 10 years to build in his back yard. No one would touch it. "Well," said Bert, "I'm suspended from flying licensed planes, but I can take up an unlicensed ship."

He roared into the air and played around. When he landed he got the sincere plaudits of men who knew the chance he took so lightly.

A week later an old plane—it had been in storage five years — was brought to the field. Its motor was badly overweight and it was otherwise unsafe.

"Life is too long anyway," said Bert climbing into the cockpit. This craft, too, he put through its paces.

But things were not going well for Acosta. What with frequent brushes with the law and the revocation of his license by the Department of Commerce he was heartily disgusted and when an opportunity offered last fall to sign up with the Spanish Loyalists he accepted. He was told he would get $1500 a month with a bonus of $1000 for every rebel plane he downed.

Instead, he said, he was forced to live under vile conditions in a little hotel and received "just a few pesetas." On his return he sought an attachment on a Spanish Loyalist ship to satisfy a $1200 claim, but the vessel managed to sail. The United States Government was interested in finding out how Acosta came to enlist and there were rumors that his citizenship might have been forfeited. This trouble ironed itself out, however.

But there was still Mrs. Acosta. She said the Spanish Consul in New York had told her Bert had been well paid and she brought her husband up on charges. One thing Acosta didn't want was to appear in that county because he had once borrowed the jail wagon for an extended pleasure trip when Millionaire Sheriff David Dows had made him a trusty.

However, he got only a one-week term for non-support.

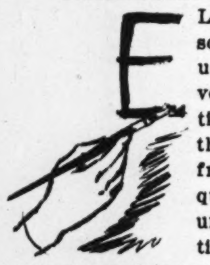
Acosta is utterly incapable of responsibility, according to friends. He is impulsive, generous to a fault and fun-loving to a degree where it has virtually wrecked his career. For instance he once got into a playful argument on the time while at Roosevelt Field. To settle the dispute he got into a plane and flew—in the dead of night—to the Metropolitan Life Insurance tower in New York City, noted the time on the great clock and brought a report back to the field. This was before night flying was safe.

He is a natural mechanic and a natural musician. He can play almost any instrument although he has taken lessons on none. He has a flair for wearing loose fitting clothes and can be tremendously likeable. His record proves he takes a cup too much once in a while, but he is not malicious when drunk.

As his wife expressed it: "Bert is the original boy who never grew up."

Promoter of Cultural Olympics

PHILADELPHIA, Pennsylvania.



ELDERLY, sedate, soberly garbed, Samuel S. Fleisher devotes most of his time to beauty, now that he has retired from business. It is quite a special and unusual kind of devotion to beauty, of course—not the sort that sends a devotee out looking for a new striptease act. Fleisher wants all sorts of people, even those who are not as wealthy as he is, to enjoy beauty in art, music, poetry, dancing, everything of esthetic value. Such enjoyment, he maintains, is not too good for the common people. And he has done a good deal to give all sorts and conditions of Philadelphians the opportunity for it. He has established a school where thousands have received free instruction in various forms of artistic endeavor. And he has just brought about something new in American esthetics—a "cultural Olympics," a competitive festival of young men and women who are interested in artistic achievement.

Such concern for the happiness of others has not been a recent development in Fleisher's life. Before he was out of college—the University of Pennsylvania — he found that his greatest interest was in social work, and although, on graduation, he went into the family business, the Fleisher Yarn Mills, he managed to give time as well as money to philanthropic enterprises. This avocation, incidentally, didn't prevent him from doing well in business.

When he was 27 years old, something happened which turned Fleisher's humanitarian efforts into a special channel. But for its results, it would have been a trifling incident. Walking along one of the poorer streets in his native Philadelphia one day, the manufacturer noticed a couple of ragged youngsters looking into a store window, apparently extremely interested in what they saw. Fleisher glanced in the window, supposing he would see a pair of skates or a sled or toy train displayed. But it was a painting the children were gazing at. Fleisher was astonished, then very thoughtful, and before long he was planning something. Children, he decided, had an innate love of beauty, and it was a shame that for most of the poor ones, particularly those living in the slums, there was little opportunity for this part of their nature to develop and enrich their lives. He would try to do something about that.

WHAT he did—then was to rent a room and hire a teacher and offer free art instruction to children who wanted it. There was soon no doubt that plenty wanted it. The little art school, which came to be known as the Graphic Sketch Club, grew rapidly, and as its enrollment increased, so did its space and functions. The club now occupies two large buildings, in which are Fleisher's own collection of paintings and art objects. The enrollment is 3200, and it includes men and women as well as boys and girls; there is no age limit and there are no restrictions as to race or creed. There are classes in sketching, painting, sculpture and dancing. In addition, there are concerts, lectures and plays. Everything is free. Fleisher selects and pays the teachers.

It is not just a school, but a club and a cultural center, where people may find intelligent entertainment as well as study. It has clubrooms, exhibition rooms and library as well as classrooms. While many of its students have made professional use of the training it gave them, the primary purpose of the institution is to give its patrons a fuller enjoyment of life. Its motto is: "Man chisels his own destiny."

Samuel S. Fleisher.

Says Fleisher: "I have never been able to understand why it has not been considered just as necessary to exercise our souls as our bodies, and why the spiritual has not been of as much concern in our playgrounds as the physical. No life is complete, no matter how useful or successful, that has not felt the thrill of the creation, or at least the appreciation, of beauty." Not long ago he established an art museum for children.

The "cultural Olympics" was held here the other day—a meeting of young men and women from schools and colleges, who, instead of showing their bodily prowess by heaving weights, jumping and running, displayed their artistic attainments in concerts, dramatic productions, dancing and exhibitions of pictures and sculptures they had made. The awards were certificates of merit. Some day scholarships may be given to the most deserving of the participants. The festival was financed by George Johnson, president of a Philadelphia department store, and was held at the University of Pennsylvania as a result of the indorsement of its president, Thomas S. Gates; supervisory assistance was given by another educator of the city, Dr. Frederick C. Gruber. The doings gave spectacular emphasis to the originator's notion that it is at least as important to cultivate the soul as it is to cultivate the body.

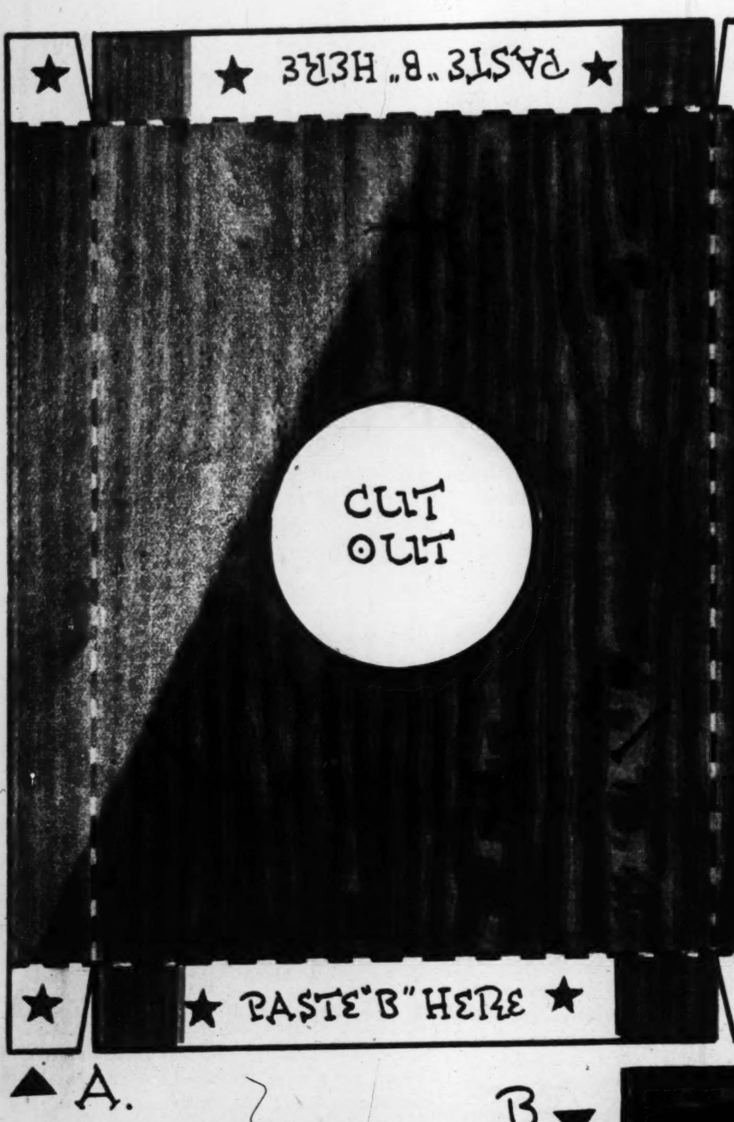
FLEISHER has not ignored the needs of the body, however. He has been active in all sorts of agencies, official and unofficial, for improving the material condition of the poor and the afflicted. Not long ago he displeased the then Mayor of Philadelphia by calling attention to shocking slum conditions in the city and demanding decent housing for the poor. The Mayor questioned the truth of his statements and spoke of "political propaganda." Fleisher offered to take the Mayor on a tour of the slums and prove what he had said, but the Mayor didn't go.

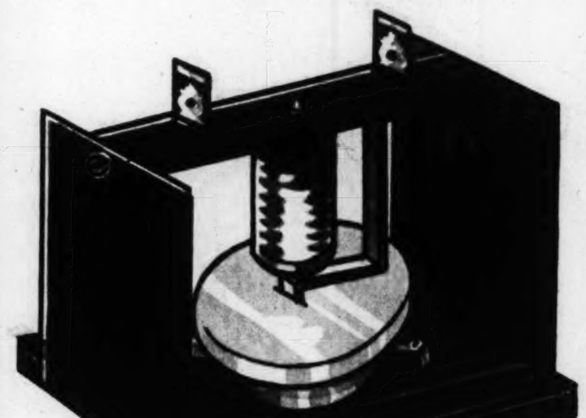
In 1923 Fleisher received the Bok Award, which is given annually to the citizen who "advances the best and largest interest of Philadelphia." The award includes $10,000 in cash and a gold medal. Fleisher turned the $10,000 back to the donor to be used to help art students; he cashed in the gold medal for $250, and gave that money to the Playgrounds Association.

POST-DISPATCH PASTE-UPS

The First Telephone

By WALTER DAHLGREN





In 1875 Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone shown above. It was the first successful means for transmitting speech over a wire by electricity. The instrument was used both as a mouth and earpiece. To send the message the words were spoken into the hole in the bottom—to receive the message the ear was held to the same hole. DIRECTIONS ● Mount "A" and "B" upon thin cardboard, mount all the other parts upon heavy manila paper. Cut out parts (be sure also to cut all the slits), fold on dotted lines and paste (stars indicate paste) parts together. Paste up the base (A) first then paste part "B" to it as indicated. After pasting up "C" insert the four tabs into circular hole in base and paste them to underside. Part "D" is now pasted and placed over "C" (the two tabs on C paste to underside of D) and the three starred tabs inserted into slits on base and pasted to underside. The coil "E" is now made up and pasted to "F" as indicated—the long strip is folded as shown in diagram. The starred tab is inserted into slit on "D" and pasted to underside. The binding posts are now folded and pasted—then inserted into the two slits on "B." Check carefully with diagram before pasting any part.

HICKORY HOLLOW FOLKS

And the Things They Do

THE PLANT FROM A DISTANT PLANET

THE CHARACTERS

GRUMPY—A very unfortunate bear.
HILDA HOARDER—A badly frightened squirrel.
BILL BUNNY—An amazed little rabbit.
O. HUM—A bewildered opossum.

The other day Bill Bunny was hopping along enjoying the nice spring weather when a seed came tumbling down out of the sky and landed with a thud at Bill's feet. There were no birds flying over Bill's head at the time who might have dropped that seed, nor was there a tree nearby from which it might have fallen. Bill picked it up and examined it carefully. Never had he seen such an odd looking seed before. He wondered where it came from and what would grow if he planted it. But alas, Bill has no garden of his own. Thinking that folks might not want such a strange seed planted in their garden, he waited until late that night and took it to Grumpy's garden, and put it in the ground while that poor tired old bear was fast asleep. Then he went silently away. He hadn't gone far when the seed started to grow, and by morning it had become a very, very strange plant that spread all all over Grumpy's garden. It flapped its leaves like a bird does its wings, and it swallowed everything it could find. Grumpy was terribly surprised when he saw it and, becoming very angry when he realized what it was doing, decided to pull it up by the roots. And we see him trying to do this as

THE PLAY BEGINS

GRUMPY—(Taking hold of the plant.) Come on, weed. I'm pulling you up. (The plant grabs him.) Hey!! Let go of me. (Another part of the plant picks up the hoe and hits Grumpy on the head with it.) Ouch!! Ouch!! Let me go, Mr. Weed. I won't bother you anymore. Help!! Help me, somebody. (The plant stops hitting Grumpy, but it holds him to see if he has anything in his pockets that it can swallow. Another part of it goes into the bear's home and eats his coffee pot, alarm clock and anything else that it can find. The more it eats the more it grows. At last it spreads all over the Hollow. Hilda Hoarder, returning from the store, is stopped by it and it swallows all of her groceries. Bill Bunny, who doesn't know it grew from the seed he planted, has his pockets searched by it. And O. Hum wakes up from a nap just in time to see it swallow his pipe and his cane. No one in the Hollow ever saw a plant that acted the way this one does and, fearing that it might swallow them, they run away.)

O. HUM—Puff—Puff. Where did that thing come from, and what is it?

GRUMPY—I don't know what it is, but it's coming out of a hole in my garden.

When the Police RAIDED a Juvenile 'BLACK LEGION'

And Found a "Gang" Operating Under the Slogan "We Hit, We Don't Fool. We're Tough."

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

TURTLE CREEK, Pennsylvania.

JUST how susceptible to vagrant impulses the undirected boyish imagination can be was brought home with decisive clearness e other day when the doings of eorge Keith Wagner's boy gang ere exposed by outraged mothers d amused policemen. That a unch of kids should suddenly witch from playing crusader to mitating the nefarious sadistic ractices of the Black Legion hould be surprising only to mid- le-aged spinsters who don't have ephews.

The leader of this "desperate" and is a 14-year-old, George eith Wagner. His explanation f how the whole thing started is atter-of-fact as breath. "We arted the Crusaders a year ago," e says. "How that happened as: When the little kids went ver the hill to play they were topped by some of the bigger oys up there. They wrestled and ought with them. So we got a gang together an' fought them off. They never bothered the kids again after that.

"We kept the Crusaders up until a short time ago, when somebody said: Let's change it to the Black Legion. We did, but I didn't like it. So we changed it back into the Crusaders."

Actually the second change wasn't as simple as that. The lofty ideals of the Crusaders were changed with almost no effort at all into the twisted unwholesome practices of the Black Legion. But it took all the forces of law and order—as represented by mothers, policemen, W. W. Lantz, the supervising principal of schools; and the threats of a troop of Boy Scouts which was on the point of raiding the legion headquarters and breaking the whole thing up—to change them back again.

There were almost 50 boys in the organization—50 boys and a shaggy mongrel "police dog." Their meeting place was a vacant tin-roofed garage, in Lane Alley. The decayed, unpainted doors swung open only to a secret knock. Naturally the order maintained an initiation ceremony as blood-curdling as possible on the theory that the harder it is to get in, the more novices will be attracted. After the Crusaders became the Black Legion the initiation ceremony naturally included branding. Smoldering ends of clothes pins were the branding irons. The insignia of the Crusaders were carried over quite naturally into the other organization — wooden swords, white shields emblazoned with enormous red crosses and flags of the same design. A huge Crusader flag waved over the headquarters. The motto of the new organization was direct and to the point: "We hit. We don't fool. We're tough."

The torture machinery devised by the Black Legionnaires was remarkably like the instruments prevalent in medieval dungeons. There was a rack—"the stretcher"—consisting of a discarded door with the upper panels knocked out and ropes tied to the frame. Members the leaders considered transgressors of some secret code of their own fabrication were lashed to the frame half stripped, then beaten with lengths of the thin rubber hose used for tire pumps. Then there was the "paddle machine," a broken-down stepladder across which victims were thrown for another beating—their wrists and ankles being bound together so that they were forced to "hold the angle." Mock lynchings were frequent—the gallows being a "hang-up machine," a noose suspended from a beam under the roof. The noose was fastened around the chest or the wrists of the victim, a hood was thrown over his head, and he was left there for a fixed period—usually five minutes—to consider his sins. The chief executioner or "tester" was 14-year-old Sylvester Barnes—"Tut" for short. They had a whipping post for a while, but gave that up.

Meetings were held every night and usually lasted about 10 minutes, depending upon the temper of the membership and how much "business" they were in a mood to transact. Once there was an insurrection and George Wagner, who held the title of Chief, was supplanted by a captain—but he still gave the orders.

The Black Legion never got into trouble except on one count: Every grown-up who heard about it objected to the branding. Principal Lantz heard of it and called the leaders into his office. He was very sympathetic, but he warned them they would get into trouble if they kept on branding. He suggested that they use some trick for the initiation—making the novice swallow an oyster while telling him it was something else, he suggested—doubtless remembering his own fraternity initiation at college.

But the Black Legion wouldn't be dictated to. They kept right on with the branding. Finally there was an accident. The brand mark on the wrist of one new member became infected. Or as George Wagner says: "How we got in wrong was: Some kid squawked. When he was branded he started to pick at it with a rusty nail he carried in his pocket. It swelled and his mother found out about it. He's all well now, anyway."

And that is how the police happened to raid the legion headquarters. William J. Whalen, the chief of police, put them all on probation, suggesting that they might like to change their organization into a G-man squad. They weren't sure they liked that idea at first. They don't like having people tell them what they're supposed to do. But after thinking it over they came back to Chief Whalen and said all right, they'd be G-men, but on one condition. He must agree to be the head of the organization himself.

It is reported that he accepted with pride.

the extreme, like something om a weird South African Mardi ras. Important to each of them a wide belt covered with animal aws and small bells, which make strange noise during the proces- n.

Around each cross there is uch grunting, mock clashing of words, rattling of ornaments, mping and "searching" for vils.

Twilight celebrations during ly week are even more fantas- c. Angels, devils, virgins, sym- lic dancers, more mummers, all rts of mixed Christian and athen characters appear. Judas hanged in effigy. Great feast- g is included, often from meat onated by friendly white ranch- rs of the region. White specta- rs are suffered to attend these tuals, provided they conduct emselves with proper respect d reverence, and do not attempt apshots and souvenir snatching s many of them are wont to do).

Repatriation of the Yaquis will volve considerable expense and ouble. Transporting two entire wns in one concerted movement no simple matter, and the Mex- n Government expects to plan refully. Such co-operation as the law permits will be given by the State of Arizona and by the United States Government, Governor Yocupicio has been assured. Exact date of the removal had not been set at this writing.

Some individuals and small groups have already been repatriated. Three old-time leaders of the fierce tribesmen were sent back to Mexico just a few weeks ago. They were Guadalupe Flores, Luciano Alvarez, and Guayvi de Olivas Epifania.

FLORES was an aggressive leader in Mexico prior to 1926. Successful at defying tax collectors and small contingents of Mexican soldiers, he elected to do a bit of daring raiding on his own. It didn't work, and when he came into the open country the soldiers soon had him cut off from the mountain hideouts. He fled to America. Settling in Barrio Pascua, he stayed 10 years, even becoming jefe or mayor there. But he became a trouble maker, and Uncle Sam deported him.

Best tales, some of them true, that now come out of Yaquiland in Mexico have to do with gold.

Unquestionably there is a wealth of yellow metal to be had in the isolated moutains of that land—but try and get it! Many an ambitious American has tried. A few have been killed at it. Others have been glad to escape with nothing but their lives.

One group reported that they were received very well by the Yaquis. The red men took the gifts brought them, then wanted more. They took the white men's clothing. Even so, the weather wasn't bad, so the white men worked diligently and took out some extremely rich gold ore, enough to pay them handsomely for their sacrifice and trouble. When time came to depart, however, a ring of armed Yaquis miraculously appeared around them, saying nothing but looking much.

"It just wouldn't have done to have made a bad move," one of the whites related afterward. "We didn't even dare pick up our gold ore and load it on the horses we had.

"We made polite inquiry, and after an hour of palaver we were permitted to leave the territory safely—on foot, without food, without clothing, without gold. We were lucky at that. We had a day or two of hardships, but soon found some ranchers who aided us. We have nothing but memories from the trip to Mexico."

NO "THIN SPOTS" IN THE NEW "Soft-Weve" WALDORF

This Improved Roll Assures Double Protection — Double Value

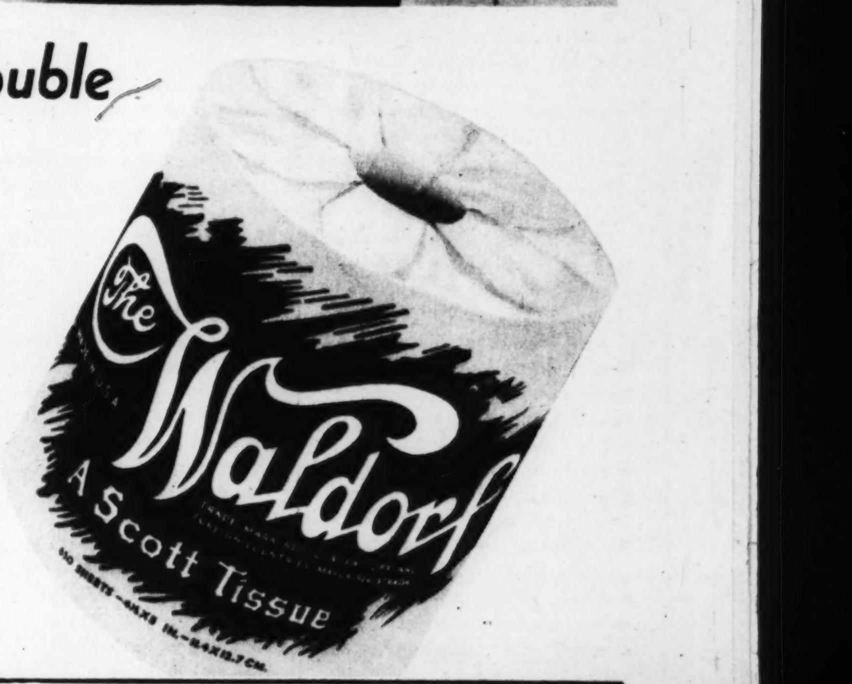
MAKE the "light test" today. Prove to yourself why new Soft-Weve Waldorf will give you more comfort—more security.

When you hold a strip of Waldorf against the light, you will see that it has the texture of soft, smooth cloth. It is even, uniform. Entirely free from thin spots.

Now make the same test with ordinary tissue. What a difference! The ordinary tissue is full of thin spots that are liable to break at the slightest pressure. It has little "humps" that irritate tender skins. You may even find dirt specks, and dangerous splinters.

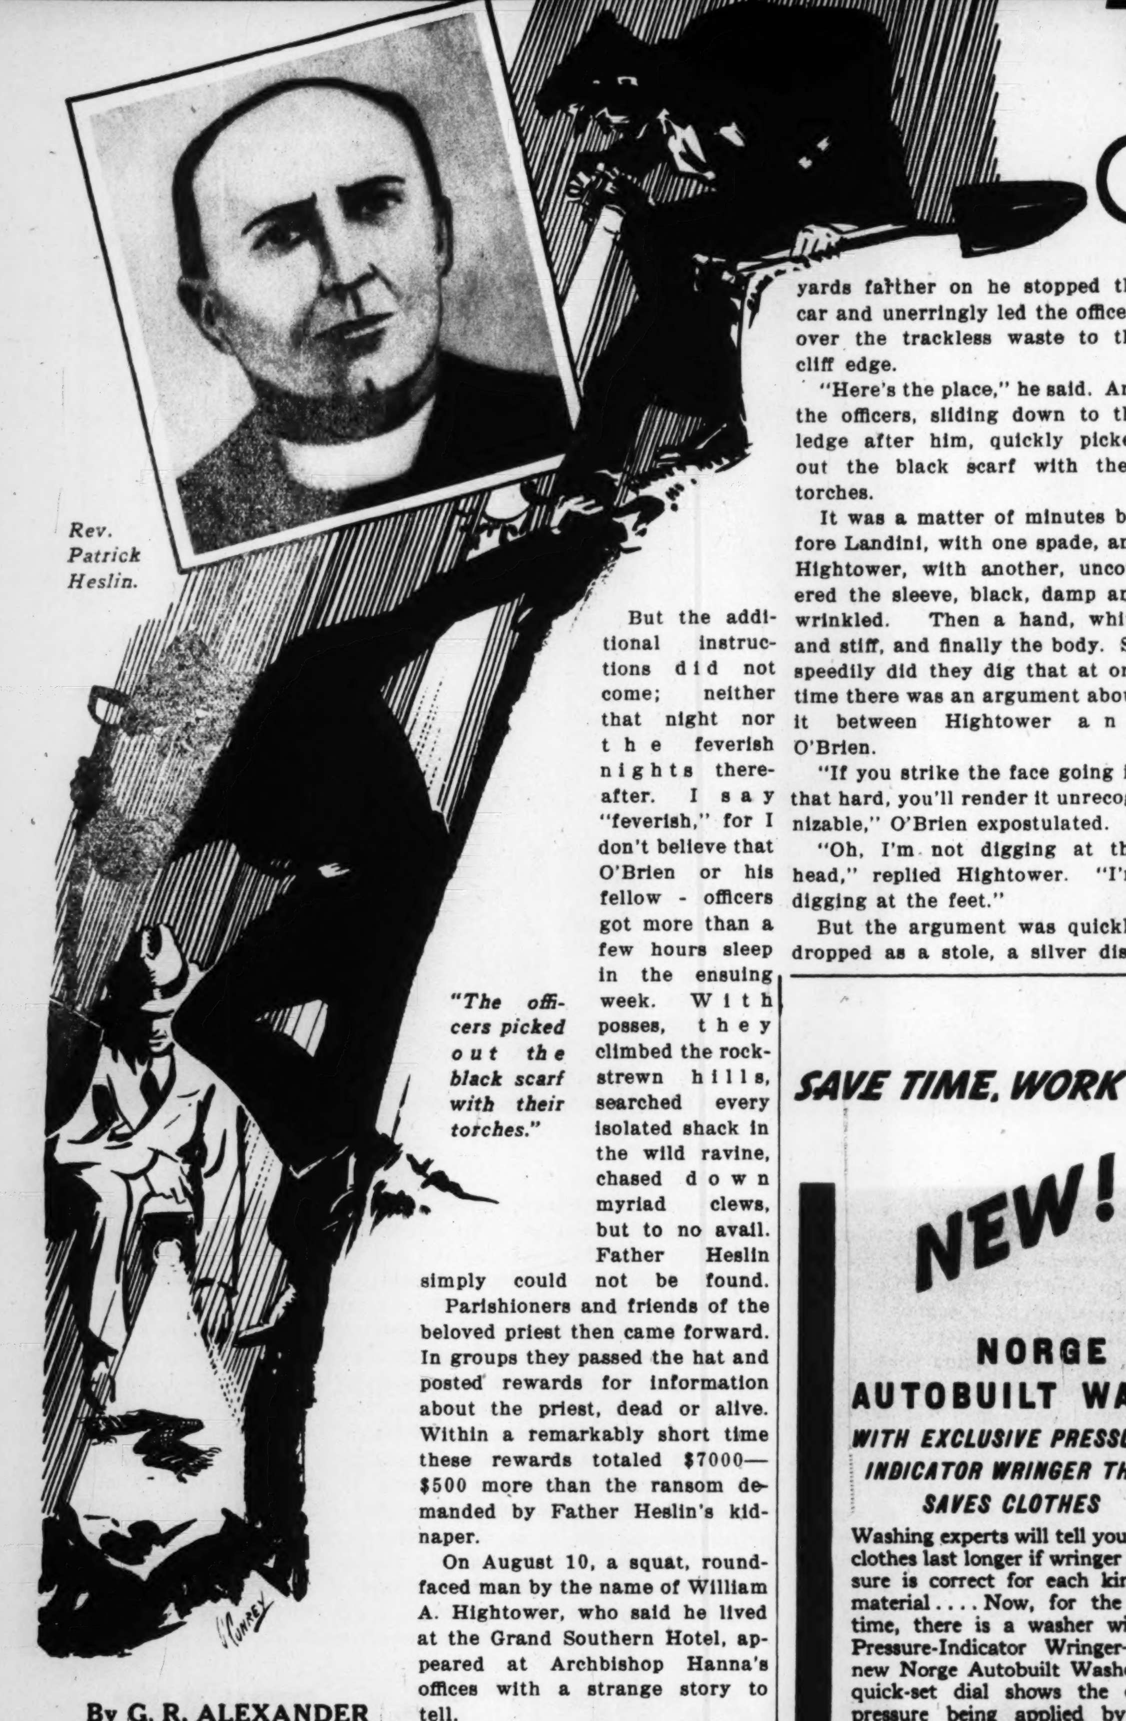
That is why Soft-Weve Waldorf is safer, more comfortable. Why you should have it in your bathroom. Every member of your family, women and children especially, needs the protection of Soft-Weve Waldorf.

You'll find the new Waldorf roll more economical, too. It will last several days longer than a roll of ordinary tissue, because you use fewer sheets. Order Soft-Weve Waldorf from your grocer tomorrow. It still sells at an attractive low price. Scott Paper Company, Chester, Pa.



THE MURDERER WHO CHANGED HIS MIND

The Third in a Series of True Life Detective Stories



Rev. Patrick Heslin.

"The officers picked out the black scarf with their torches."

By G. R. ALEXANDER

IT IS still a moot question as to what part greed played in the murder of the Reverend Patrick Heslin. The point of contention is a matter of $500—the difference between the $7000 offered for him dead or alive and the $6500 asked for him alive.

But here are the facts. . . .

At 9 o'clock on a certain August night, a squat, round-faced man in a seersucker suit and battered Panama drove up to the Catholic rectory in Colma, on the outskirts of San Francisco, and asked Father Heslin to accompany him to the bedside of a sick relative to administer the last sacrament. The priest procured his case from the church next door and the pair set out in the stranger's black Ford sedan. Miss Marie Wendell, the priest's housekeeper, saw them off, but forgot to inquire their destination.

The following afternoon, the Most Reverend Edward Hanna, Archbishop of the diocese, received a typewritten letter, mailed from San Francisco, stating bluntly that the writer had kidnaped Father Heslin and would release him alive only on payment of $6500 ransom.

"Act with caution for I have the Father of Colma in a bootleg cellar where a lighted candle is left burning when I leave," the letter read. "At the bottom of the candle are all the chemicals necessary to generate enough gas to kill a dozen men. Have a car ready with a spotlight and you will get instructions of what road to take and you will turn the spotlight upward and drive slowly until you see a white strip across the road. Then stop, get out the money, leave car and follow the string that is attached to the white strip until you come to the end of the string.

"I will telephone the Archbishop tonight and name the road to take. Better hurry and no foolin'."

San Francisco was shocked, for this was the year 1921, and long before bootleggers, driven by repeal to find new sources of revenue, turned to kidnaping on a wholesale scale. Nevertheless, Chief Dan O'Brien, of the San Francisco police, and Constable Sil Landini, of Colma, and other officials of San Mateo County assembled at the Archbishop's residence and in fretful eagerness awaited the promised telephone call.

But the additional instructions did not come; neither that night nor the feverish nights thereafter. I say "feverish," for I don't believe that O'Brien or his fellow-officers got more than a few hours sleep in the ensuing week. With posses, they climbed the rock-strewn hills, searched every isolated shack in the wild ravine, chased down myriad clews, but to no avail. Father Heslin simply could not be found.

Parishioners and friends of the beloved priest then came forward. In groups they passed the hat and posted rewards for information about the priest, dead or alive. Within a remarkably short time these rewards totaled $7000—$500 more than the ransom demanded by Father Heslin's kidnaper.

On August 10, a squat, round-faced man by the name of William A. Hightower, who said he lived at the Grand Southern Hotel, appeared at Archbishop Hanna's offices with a strange story to tell.

"I know a girl named Dolly Mason," he said. "She's in the night life around town. I met her at a hotel about a week ago and we got to talking about Father Heslin's kidnaping.

"Dolly told me she met a bootlegger one night, who, full of his own whisky, was moved by the urge to talk. He had a big gat strapped in his arm pit, she said, and when she told him it made her nervous, he told her, 'It should; it killed a man.'

"Doly said the bootlegger went on to say that he had buried something valuable. She thought it was rum, so she tried to pump him. She said, 'I bet you couldn't find it again,' but he just laughed and said, 'The hell I can't. I've got a guy watching it—a fellow frying hot cakes!'

"After a while he spoke vaguely of Salada Beach and of a cave there. And when Dolly told me about it, I remembered seeing a big sign out that way. It was an advertisement for a flour company, showing a miner making hot cakes over a fire.

"WITHOUT saying anything to her, I rented one of Charlie Le Fevre's cars the next day and rode out the Pedro Valley road. Sure enough, the flapjack sign was there. I began looking around at the edge of the cliff. Over past the sand dunes I found a black scarf. So I peered over the cliff and saw, about 10 feet below the rim, a flat ledge that you couldn't see from the road.

"I scrambled down to it and right away found an empty cartridge. At the spot where it lay, I dug into the sand with my hands. They scraped up against a piece of burlap. It was blood-stained. I got the hell out of there without prying any further.

"The next day, however, my curiosity got the best of me. I went out to the beach. The scarf was still there and the burlap. So I hot-footed it for the Archbishop's. I would sure like to get the $7000 reward."

As I said, a strange story; but one that could be readily checked. Bundling Hightower into a police car, O'Brien and Landini stopped at headquarters only long enough to secure spades and lanterns before heading out for the Pedro Valley sand dunes.

It was a dark night. Fog rolling in from the sea obscured the road, the hills, the occasional ranches. Yet 20 miles from San Francisco, Hightower picked out the flapjack ad with ease. A few yards farther on he stopped the car and unerringly led the officers over the trackless waste to the cliff edge.

"Here's the place," he said. And the officers, sliding down to the ledge after him, quickly picked out the black scarf with their torches.

It was a matter of minutes before Landini, with one spade, and Hightower, with another, uncovered the sleeve, black, damp and wrinkled. Then a hand, white and stiff, and finally the body. So speedily did they dig that at one time there was an argument about it between Hightower and O'Brien.

"If you strike the face going in that hard, you'll render it unrecognizable," O'Brien expostulated.

"Oh, I'm not digging at the head," replied Hightower. "I'm digging at the feet."

But the argument was quickly dropped as a stole, a silver disk embossed with the likenesses of Christ and Mary, a gold watch and personal papers were examined. These things, taken from the pockets, left no doubt that the still form in the sand was that of the missing Father Heslin.

An autopsy was ordered. It showed the priest had been struck four skull-crushing blows from behind and shot in the left arm and right hip with a .45 Colt army automatic.

A search of the cliff edge was made. Beneath the sand were found a long plank and beneath the plank, the blood-stained boards of an eight by six tent floor, some cinch blocks and tent pegs and several pieces of string.

But valuable as these clews were to be, they did not rouse in Chief O'Brien the interest that remembrance of his argument on the cliff ledge provoked.

"I'm not digging at the head; I'm digging at the feet," William Hightower had said.

How did he know that?

Luring Hightower to headquarters on pretext of discussing the reward, O'Brien sent Detectives Tom Curtis and Phil Lindecker to search the man's room. There they found a machine loaded with 10 shotgun shells, which could be exploded in rapid rotation by the jerk of a string which released tiny springs. They also found an eight by six tent with the word "Tuberculosis" printed in large letters on one side. Also a gas mask and some powerful chemicals; a blood-stained piece of burlap, several pieces of fish cord, one of which was attached to a detonating cap, and a rifle and three boxes of cartridges.

O'Brien sent his men to Charlie Le Fevre's auto agency on Golden Gate avenue. They learned that Hightower had taken out a black Ford touring car at 6 p. m. on August 2—the night Father Heslin had been kidnaped.

FURTHER police activity uncovered a typewriter rented by Hightower whose keys made an impress identical with the letters of the ransom note. Also a pawnbroker who bought from Hightower after the priest's disappearance an ammunition belt containing three bullets identical with those taken from Father Heslin's body.

When all those things had been examined microscopically Chief O'Brien put Hightower in a cell and confronted him.

"You took Father Heslin to your tent on the night of August 2 and bound him with fish co O'Brien said, "then mailed y ransom note. You felt p safe; the tent, set up on the le couldn't be seen from the r and you had a double safeguar the word 'tuberculosis.'

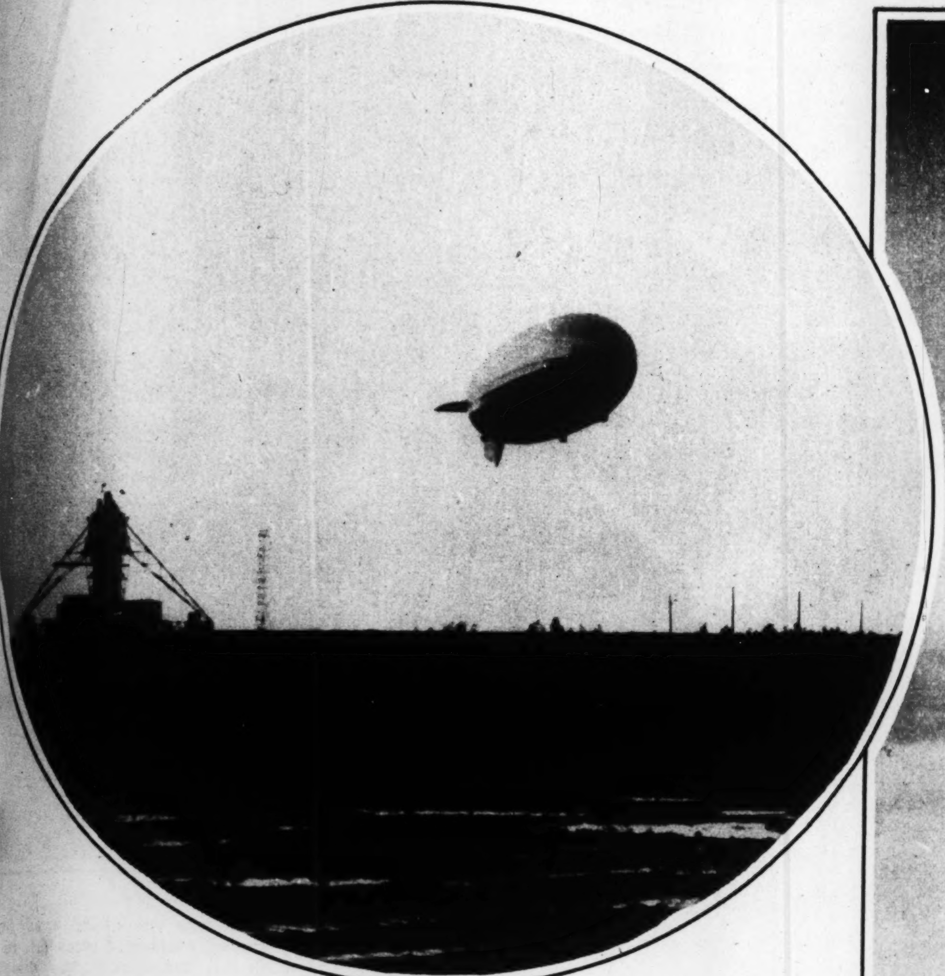
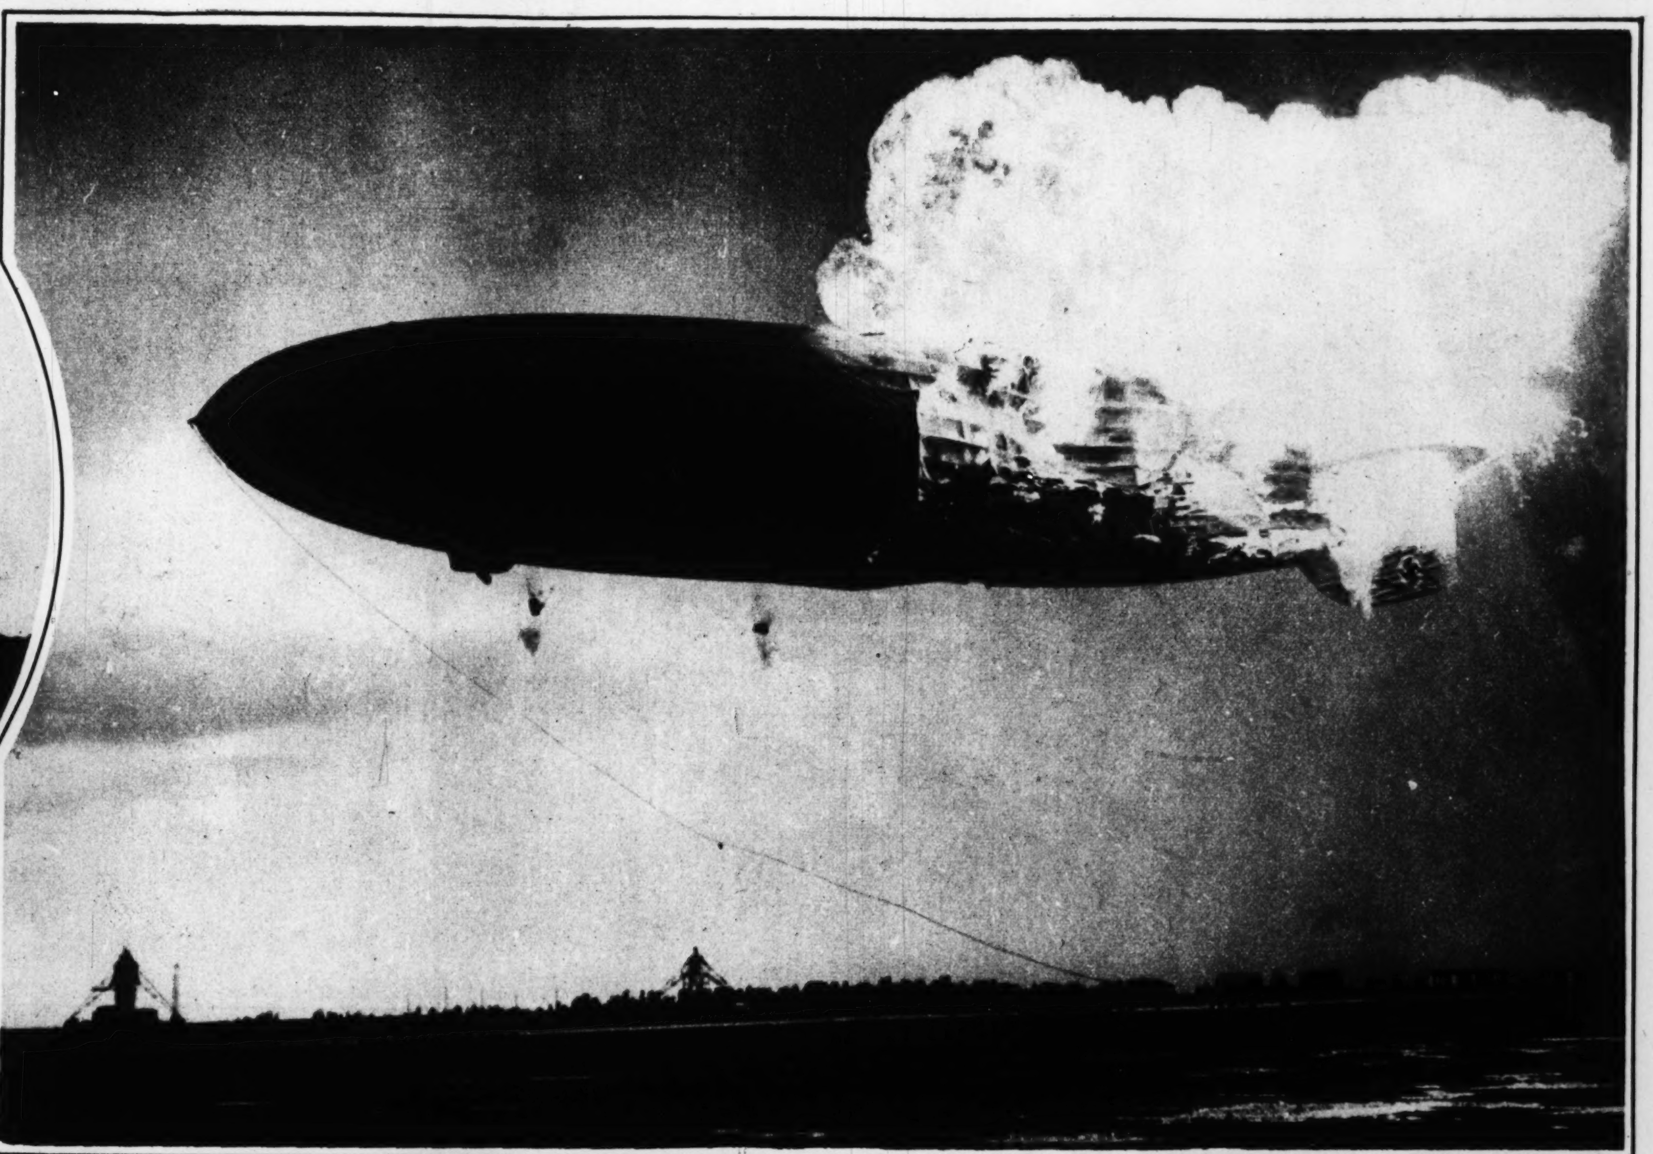
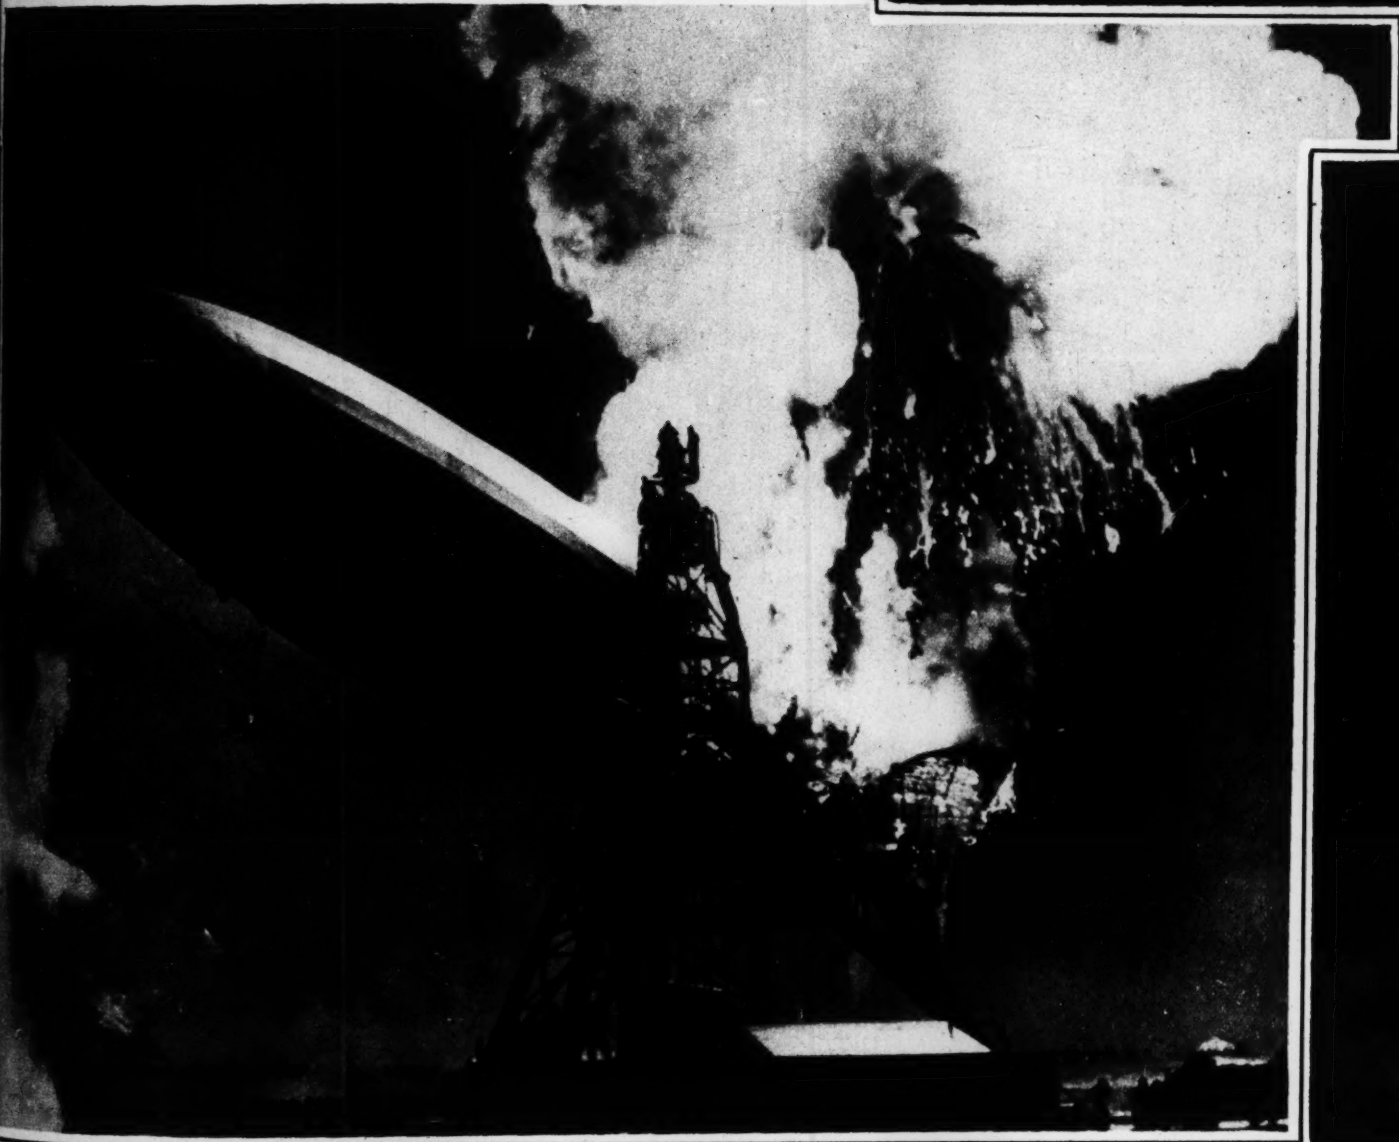
34 SECONDS; The HINDENBURG'S LAST LANDING



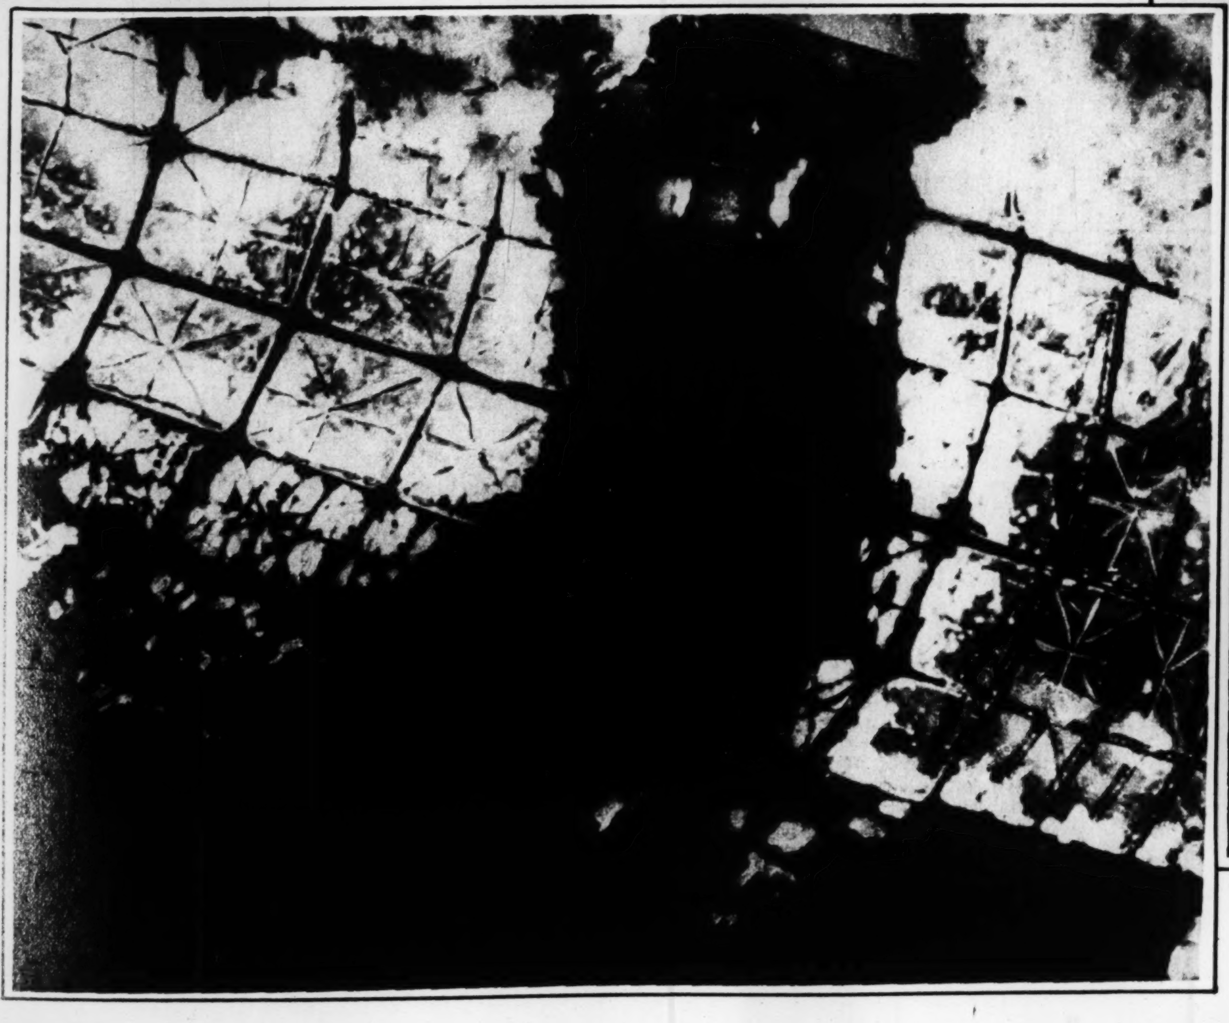
Standing by until a thunderstorm passed May 6 at Lakehurst, N. J., the world's greatest airship swung back in an aftermath of still, drizzling rain and circled the Navy mooring mast, preparing to land at the end of a gala flight—its twenty-first crossing of the North Atlantic and the opening of regular scheduled service to the United States. —Associated Press photo.



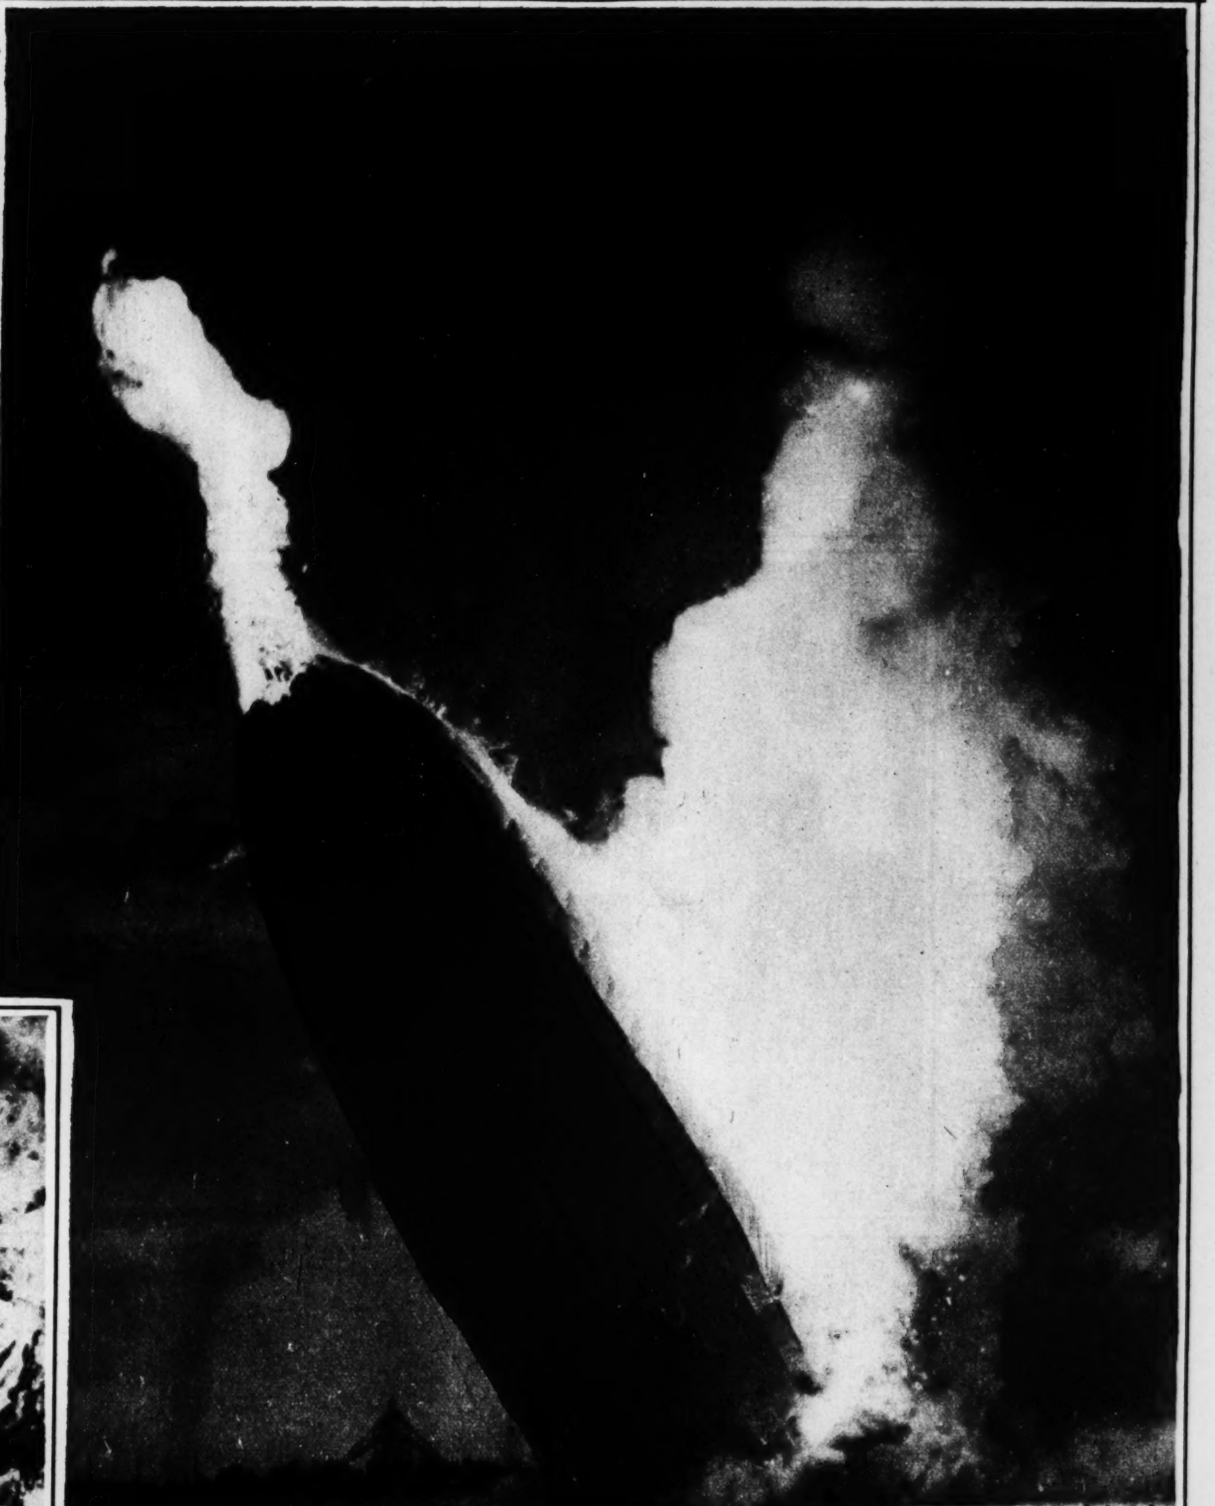
Manila trail ropes were dropped and made fast. The Hindenburg lost way at 200 feet, its four 1100-horsepower Diesels in reverse, making ready to lower the cable for hauling its nose to the mooring mast. Four minutes later—with a first burst at the top, testified Commander Rosendahl, commandant of Lakehurst—flames swept the ship from some point aft. —Associated Press copyright photo.



For a moment the hydrogen flames gnawed busily, almost quietly—"like a gigantic piece of celluloid"—then occurred this, the first of two violent explosions, followed by minor blasts as Diesel oil tanks went up.



Fire raged through the beautifully constructed metal skeleton, ate off the silvery outer covering, in a moment was devouring the proud name painted near the prow. —Associated Press Paramount News Photo.



With the second explosion, the great envelope, crumpling amidships, sank stern first to the ground. The whole catastrophe had taken just 34 seconds. (Other Hindenburg photos on page 2.) —Associated Press copyright photo.

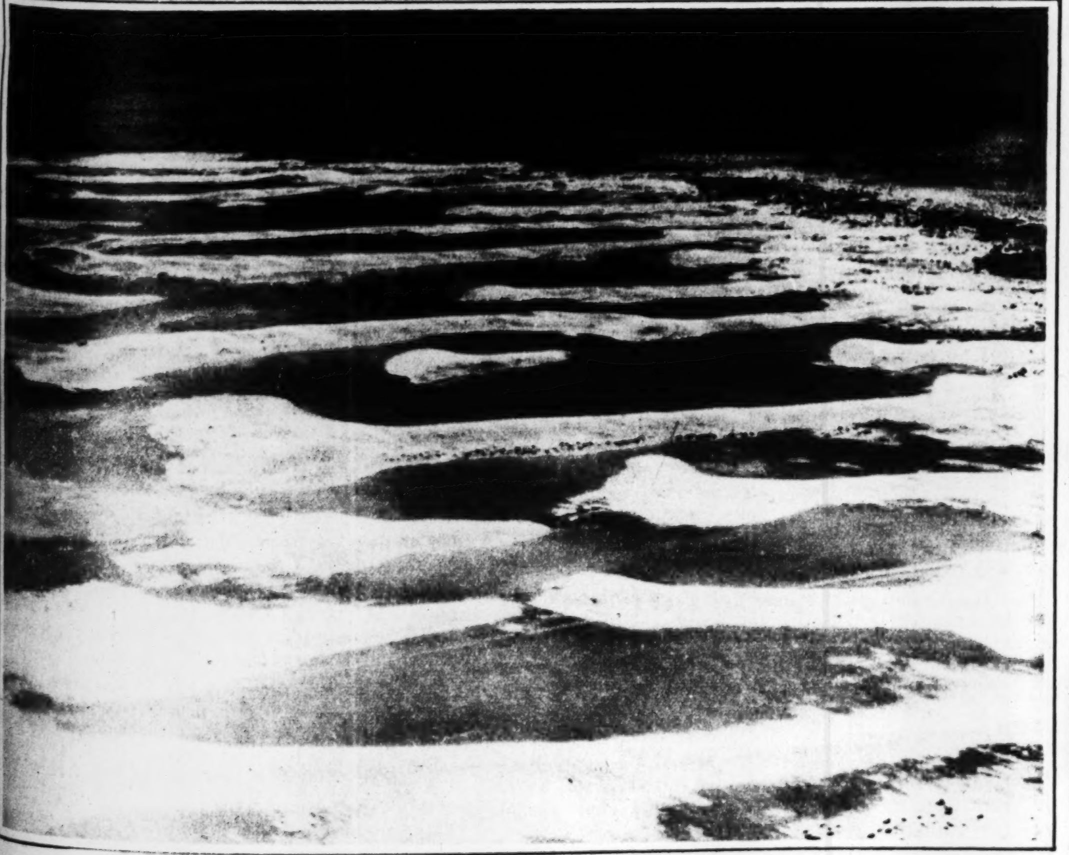
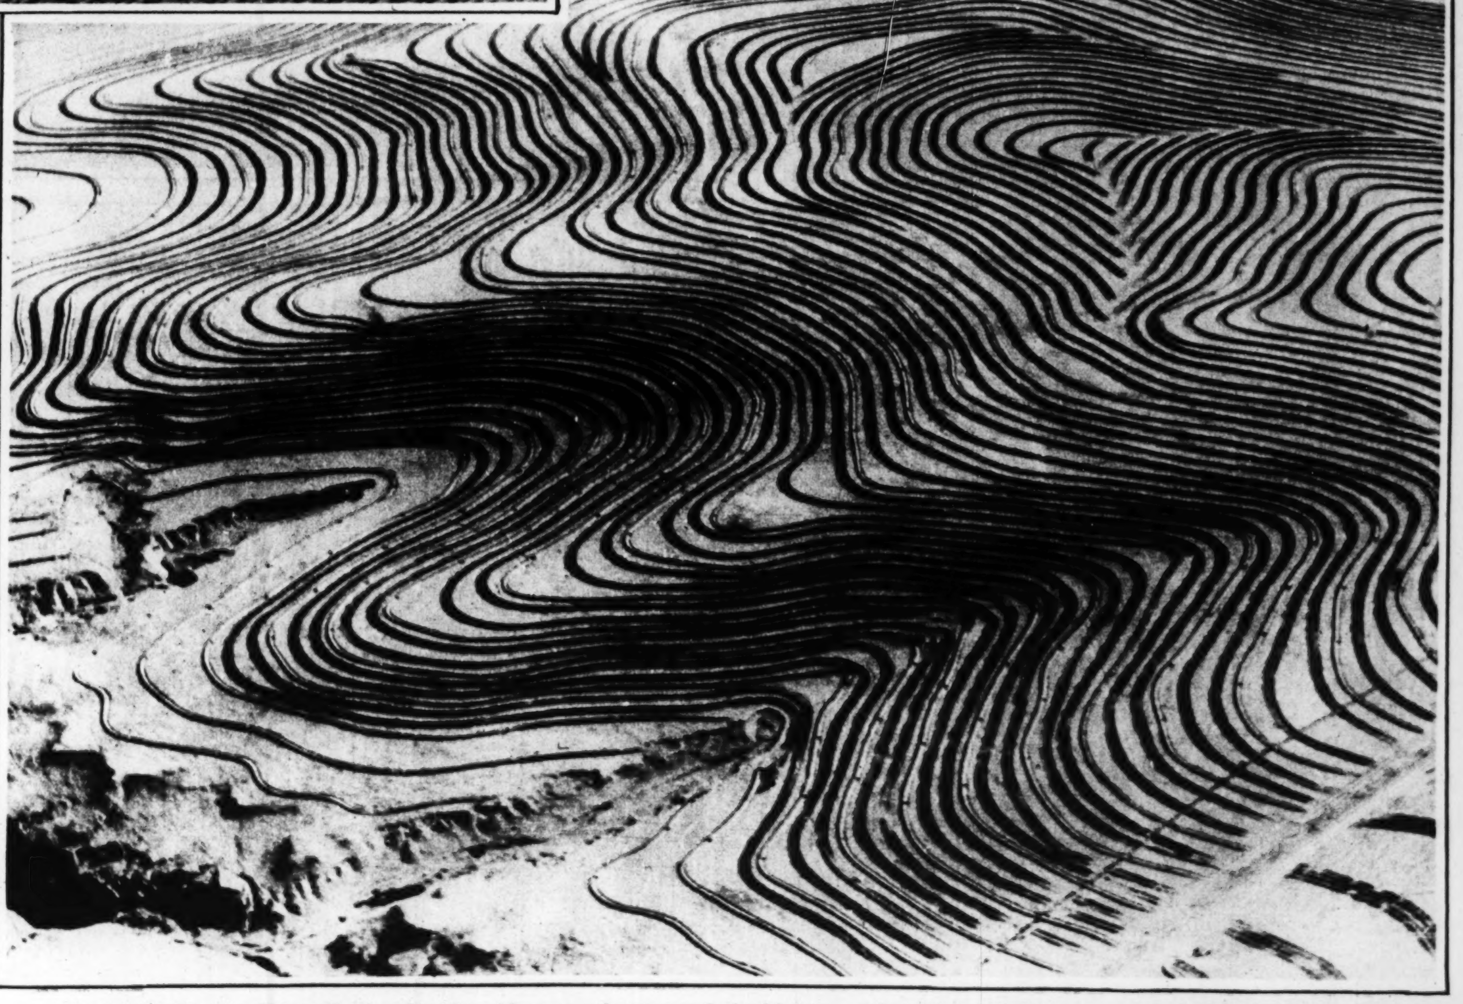
In the right foreground is a winter wheat field which has been plowed with a lister to make high ridges, calculated to abate wind velocity and reduce erosion. Hope has been given up that the field will produce a crop this year.



What wind erosion has done. On this tract about 10 miles northwest of Dalhart the top soil has been blown away, leaving barren stretches of subsoil between the dunes of dust.



A listed field in the Texas Panhandle, the ridges running around the high ground, so that rain falling on the slopes will be held there instead of running down and away, as it would if furrows ran up and down the inclines. A good many of the Panhandle pastures are receiving this treatment.

The most dangerous enemy a woman ever has is herself. For it is her own failings which defeat her — of which she too often is completely unaware.

It's a common experience to meet a girl who seems to have everything — beauty, brains, personality. And yet one personal fault holds her back — a fault with which the social and business worlds have no patience. The annoying odor of underarm perspiration.

It's hard to see how she can be so careless. Or how she can be unconscious of it herself.

It is doubtless because she thinks her daily bath protects her. And yet, of course, all soap and water can do is to cleanse for the moment. They cannot protect in the hours to come.

The smartest, busiest women choose one unfailing way to be safe at all times. The daily Mum habit!

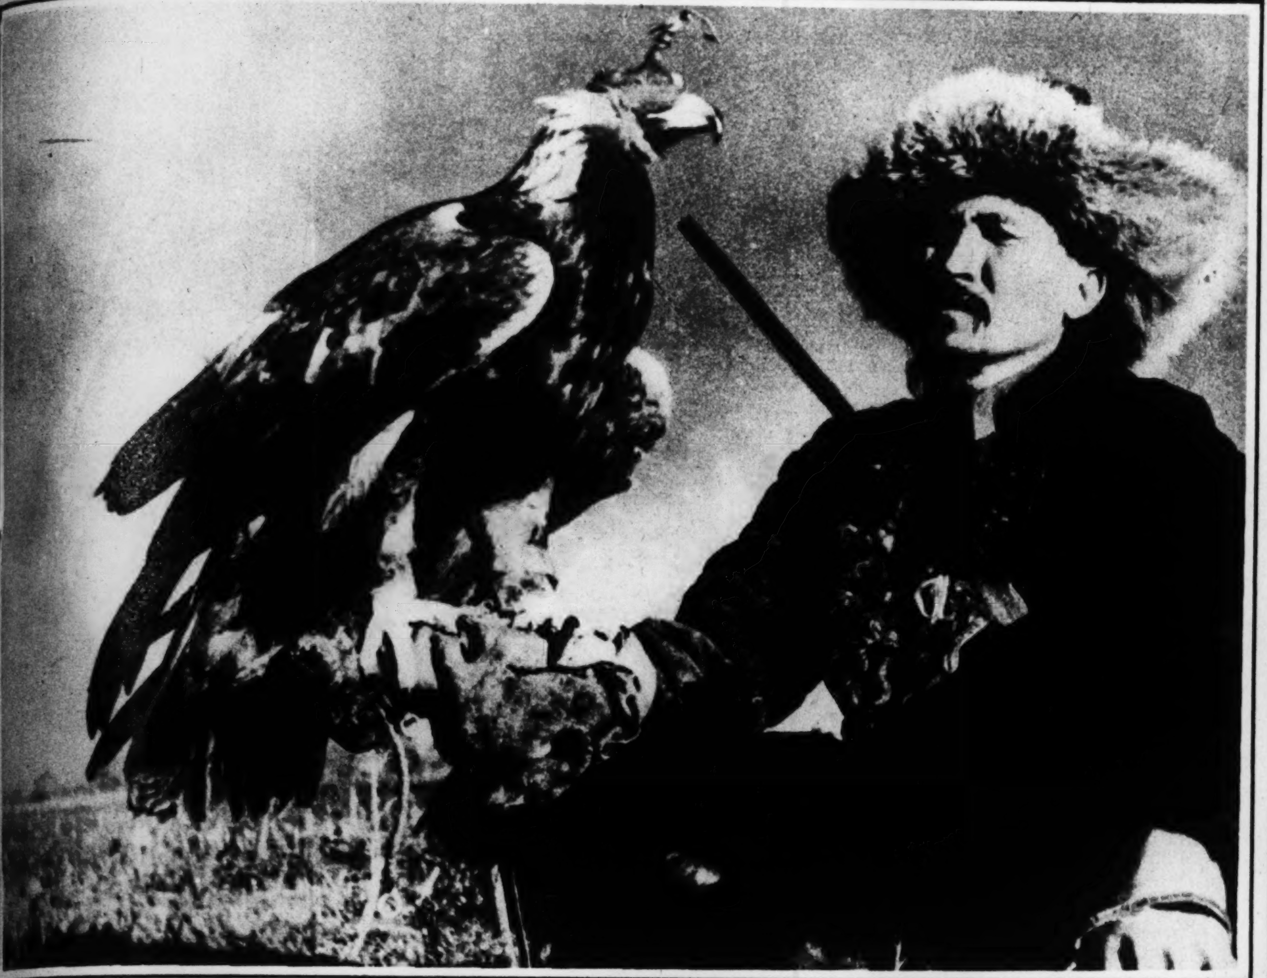
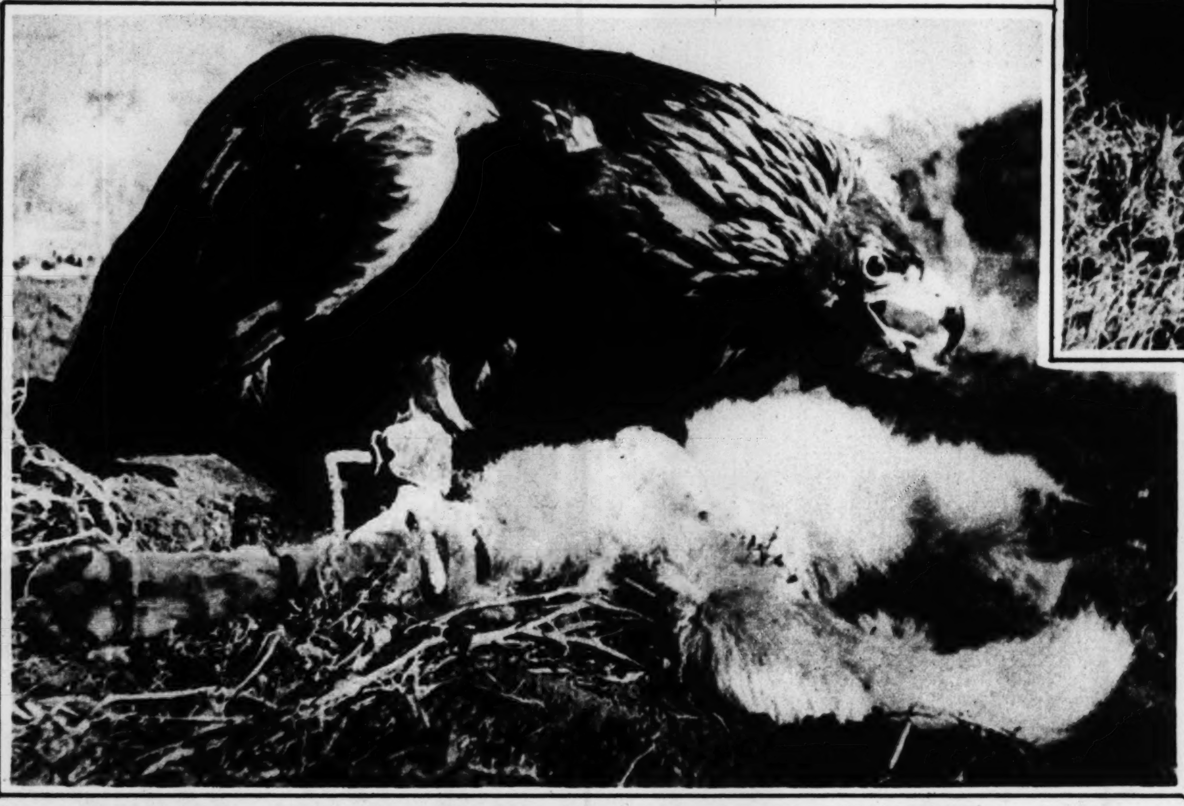
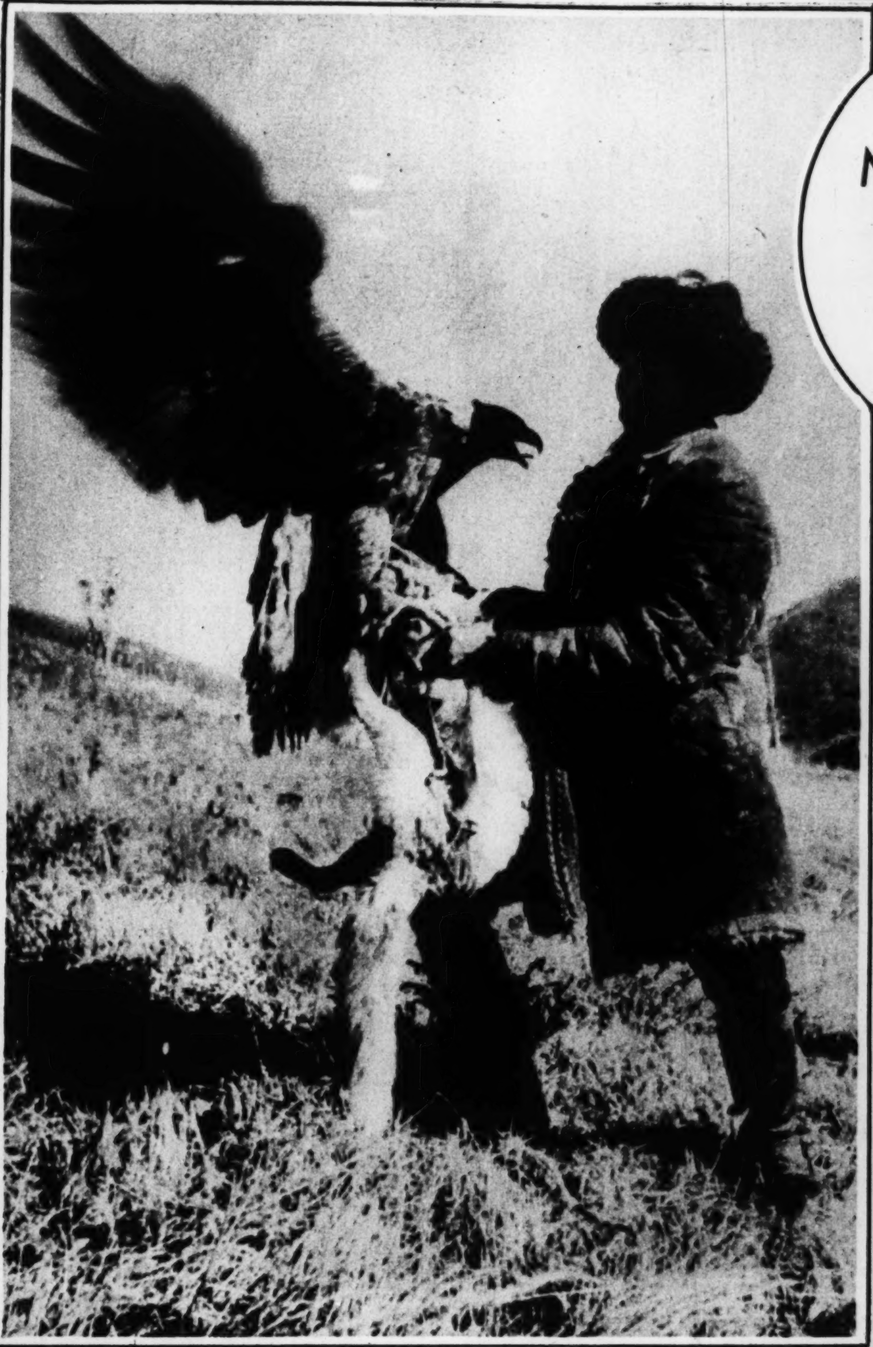
MODERNIZED FALCONRY in RUSSIA



Collective farmers of Kazakstan, U. S. S. R., still go in for the sports of the wealthy, but in their own peculiar, rugged way. They use powerful eagles instead of mere falcons or hawks. Dovlitbak Koschkunov, the farmer above, keeps his eagle hooded and perched on a leather arm guard until prey is in sight. At right, the eagle has soared aloft, plunged down on a fox, and killed it with powerful beak and talons.





Trained to return with its prey, the eagle comes back to its perch on the farmer's arm. However, it cannot overcome the instinct to hold on to its prey and the master will have quite a struggle until he gets his savage pet hooded again.

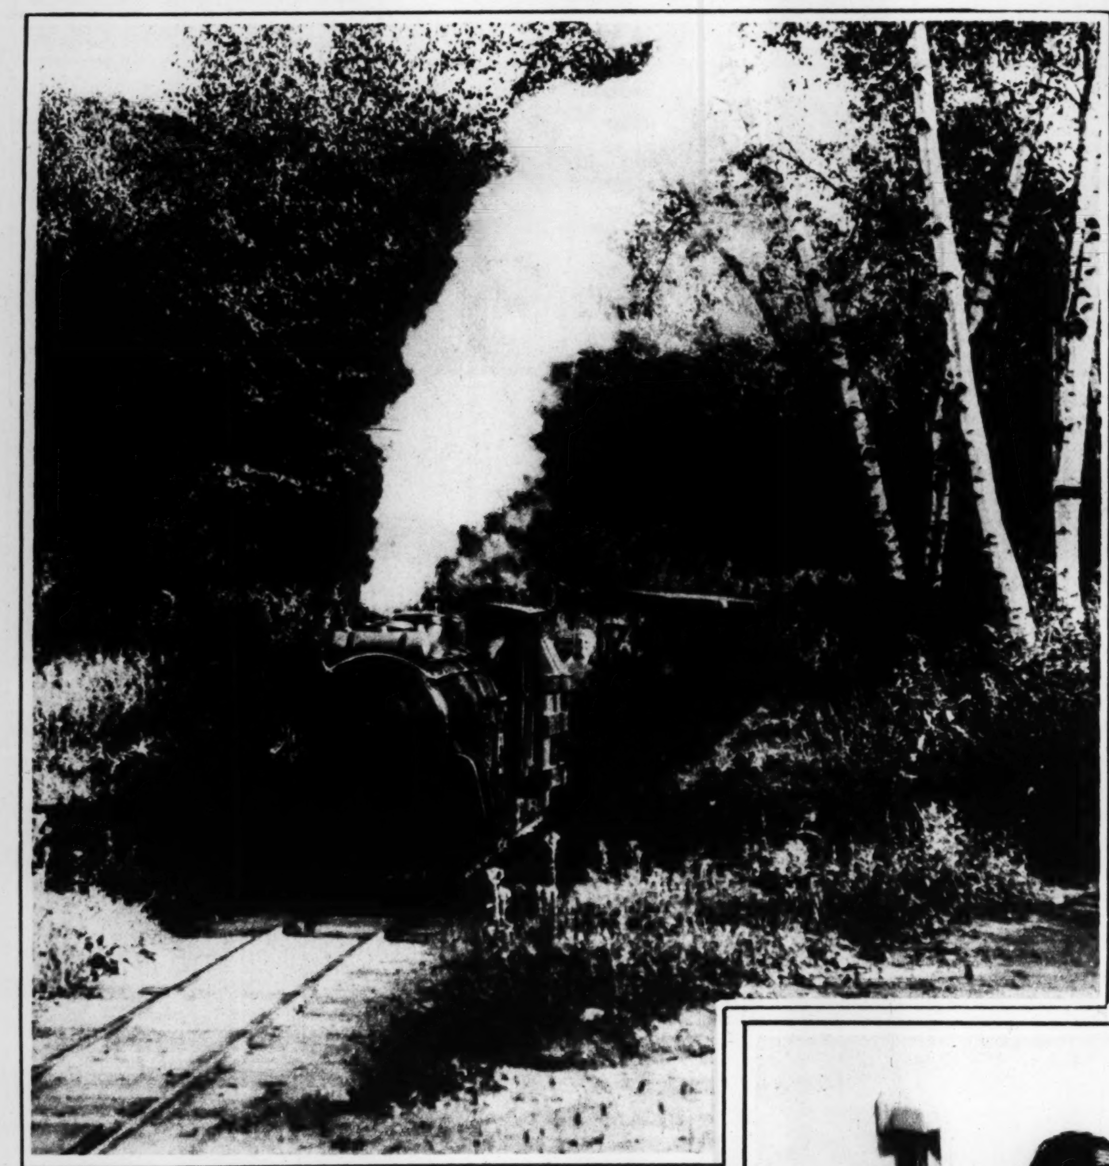
NEW TRICKS—Mrs. Katherine Frye of Girard, O., has learned to play nine instruments, though she'd never played a note before she was 63, about two years ago.

EGGS-AGGERATION—This is an egg. Its size is conveyed by comparison with the hen's egg in the right hand corner. It was laid by an Aepyornis, a prehistoric hen some 18 feet over all. Found by a Tandroy tribesman, it was recently sold to Milton Ray, a New York egg collector who values it at $10,000.



HISTOLOGIST AT 12 — Virginia Knowles, daughter of a Miami veterinarian, has gone in for the study of microscopy and animal tissue at an age when most children don't know what the words mean.

NO SAP-HEAD NEED APPLY—When William Gillette, the actor who created the role of Sherlock Holmes, died recently, he left a will asking that heirs protect his property — particularly the narrow-gauge railroad on his estate at Hadlyme, Conn., so that "no blithering sap-head" should ever possess it.

NEW YORK STATE

The State that has Everything

THERE'S a better, less expensive vacation waiting for you in New York State. "The State that has Everything" has so many beach, country, mountain and lake resorts that you are sure of getting more fun-per-dollar than most anywhere else. And if you had a million to spend, you couldn't find more beauty-per-mile than in New York's mountains and forests, along New York's seacoast, at New York's lakes and farms.

HOW CORNS COME BACK, BIGGER—UGLIER

unless removed Root* and All

CORNS pared at home, with serious risk of infection, only come back bigger, uglier, more painful than ever.

Why not discard this old-fashioned method and use the new modern Blue-Jay method. Pain stops instantly by removing the pressure. Then the corn lifts out Root and All in 3 short days (exceptionally stubborn cases may require a second application).

Blue-Jay is a tiny medicated plaster. It's easy to use. Held snugly in place with special Wet-Pruf adhesive. Can't stick to stockings. Won't make shoes tight. Get Blue-Jay today. 25c for a package of 6 at all druggists.

"JANE'S DRESS WAS NEVER REALLY WHITE UNTIL I DISCOVERED OXOL"

DON'T BE FOOLED!

Soap and water alone can never do all these four things until you add Oxol:

1. REMOVE STUBBORN STAINS
2. BLEACH LIKE THE SUN
3. DEODORIZE
4. DISINFECT

CHILDREN'S CLOTHES are hard to clean . . . with soap and water alone. But add Oxol to the water—and even stubborn stains rinse right out.

NO RUBBING, no scrubbing, no grayness . . . even hard-worn suits and dresses come out snowy white!

FOR ALL WHITE COTTONS AND LINENS! Oxol cuts work, bleaches, keeps wash looking new. Oxol bleaches sunny-white; takes out even stubborn stains. ★Coffee, ink, blood, fruit and grease stains disappear.

GUARDS HEALTH the whole house over! Add Oxol when you wash dishes, refrigerators, drain-boards, garbage cans. It makes them hygienically clean.

READ THE LABEL—see how many ways Oxol saves time, saves trouble. Ask your grocer for OXOL—the bleach that contains no acid—to take out stains, whiten wash, deodorize . . . and DISINFECT!

★ OXOL REMOVES STAINS YET IT'S SAFE FOR YOUR HANDS

SO YOU WANT A LOVELY COMPLEXION, TOO? WELL, YOU CALLED THE RIGHT NUMBER!

THE DIONNE QUINS give you their "Beauty Secret"

YOU SEE, WE HAVE VERY SENSITIVE SKIN
WE MUST USE THE MOST SOOTHING SOAP
DR. DAFOE SAID ONLY PALMOLIVE

"If your complexion is a problem, you ought to hear about ours! For we've always had unusually sensitive skin. And if it hadn't been for Dr. Dafoe, what troubles we might have had!"

"When we were tiny babies, Dr. Dafoe bathed us only with Olive Oil. Later, when we were ready for soap and water baths, he chose the soap made from the most soothing ingredients."

"Dr. Dafoe chose Palmolive, made with gentle Olive Oil. We're glad he did, for we've never had any complexion trouble. In fact, everyone says we have unusually soft, smooth skin."

WHY DR. DAFOE CHOSE PALMOLIVE

Because the Quins were born prematurely their skin has always required special care. Here is Dr. Dafoe's own statement:

"For some time after their birth, the Dionne Quintuplets were bathed with Olive Oil. When the time arrived for soap and water baths, we chose Palmolive Soap exclusively for bathing these famous babies."

Allan Roy Dafoe

SO DON'T YOU THINK PALMOLIVE IS BEST FOR YOUR COMPLEXION, TOO?

"Doesn't it just stand to reason, that if Palmolive is safest for our tender skin, it must be best for yours too? Well anyway, our advice is, only Palmolive, the soap made with gentle Olive Oil."

WHY PALMOLIVE, MADE WITH GENTLE OLIVE OIL, MAKES COMPLEXIONS SOFT, SMOOTH, YOUNG AGAIN

Is your complexion beginning to look dry, dull, slightly coarse-looking? These are the first signs of "Middle-Age" Skin—a condition which adds years to even a young girl's appearance.

Beauty experts advise the daily use of Palmolive Soap because Palmolive is made with Olive and Palm oils. That's why its lather is different—rich, soothing and penetrating. Palmolive softens, freshens and stimulates the skin, helping to restore attractive, natural color.

Why not give your skin these beauty benefits? Let Palmolive's gentle, different lather help make your complexion lovelier, younger-looking!

WHEN YOU'VE WASHED BABY CLOTHES ARE YOU CERTAIN THEY'RE HOSPITAL-CLEAN?
MRS. FRED MAYER, JR., of Lynchburg, Va., one of the many women whose wash was tested by a noted laboratory.
IN THE LABORATORY
GRACIOUS! ALL THOSE GERMS I SAW THROUGH THE MICROSCOPE CAME FROM MY WASH?
YES, YOUR SOILED CLOTHES, LIKE ALL FAMILY WASHES, CONTAIN DANGEROUS GERMS! THAT IS WHY SO MANY WOMEN ARE NOW WASHING CLOTHES WITH CONCENTRATED SUPER SUDS WHICH REMOVES GERMS AND GETS CLOTHES HOSPITAL-CLEAN!
HERE ARE THE GERMS MRS. MAYER SAW!
Streptococcus (Commonly present in throat infections)
Staphylococcus Albus (Commonly found in skin infections)
NEXT WASHDAY--A PLEASANT SURPRISE FOR MRS. MAYER
IT'S REALLY A JOY TO WASH CLOTHES WITH CONCENTRATED SUPER SUDS--ITS THICKER, RICHER SUDS SOAK OUT THE DIRT WITHOUT SCRUBBING--I GET A CLEANER, SWEETER-SMELLING WASH IN FAR LESS TIME, AND MY COLORED THINGS ARE ALL SO MUCH BRIGHTER, TOO!
BEST OF ALL, I KNOW THAT WASHING MY CLOTHES WITH CONCENTRATED SUPER SUDS REMOVES GERMS AND GETS MY CLOTHES REALLY CLEAN--HOSPITAL-CLEAN!
CONCENTRATED Super Suds for WASHING CLOTHES HOSPITAL-CLEAN
IN THE BLUE BOX
SUPER SUDS IN THE RED BOX MADE SPECIALLY FOR WASHING DISHES
FREE! $1.00 Monogram Tray! YOUR INITIAL MONOGRAMMED IN THE CENTER!

HOW CONCENTRATED SUPER SUDS WASHES CLOTHES HOSPITAL-CLEAN!

HERE'S how this remarkable new soap gets clothes Hospital-Clean:

1. SOFTENS WATER INSTANTLY. Gives rich, lasting suds even in hard water.

2. SOAKS OUT DIRT without scrubbing. Gives whiter, sweeter-smelling wash. Yet colors stay bright and fresh.

3. REMOVES GERMS that physicians agree lurk in every family wash. This does not mean sterile, but it does mean that most of the dangerous germs are removed or killed in the washing process.

Get Concentrated Super Suds in the blue box at your grocer's right away—and wash your clothes Hospital-Clean!

Chromium finish, 11¼ x 5½ inches. Free for one top from Super Suds in the red box and one top from Concentrated Super Suds in the blue box. Mail box tops with name and address and initial you want to Super Suds, Dept. N-164, Jersey City, N. J. (Offer expires July 15, 1937)

THEY'RE STILL TALKING

About the Fall of Jack Dempsey

The great crowd at Philadelphia Sept. 23, 1926 is stunned by Dempsey's slowness and lack of old time form.

Fighting a masterful battle, the handsome United States marine, is outgeneralling and actually outpunching one of the most terrific hitters of all time.

In a final desperate rally Jack calls into play the guns that knocked out most of the men he faced. The crowd cheers.

But the challenger comes back with rights and lefts from the shoulder, rocking Dempsey with short, powerful smashes that win for him the heavyweight championship of the world.

Intelligent, clean living Gene Tunney, who retired a wealthy man before the effects of murderous punches had a chance to dull his brain.

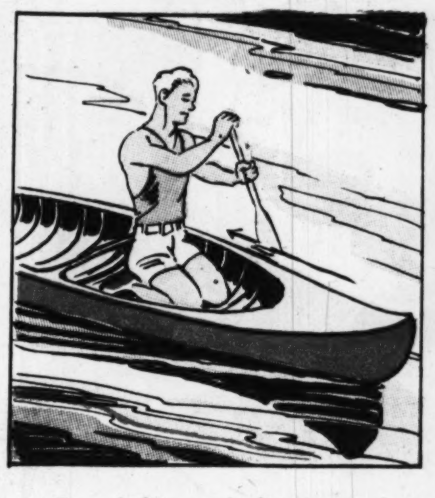
Canoeing . . . . By NED BRANT

Strokes

Holding the Paddle

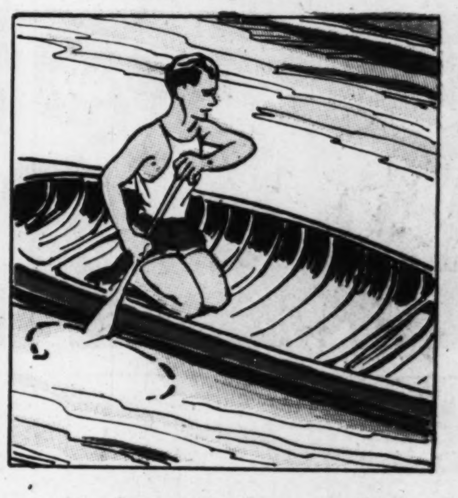
The upper hand closes over the top or knob of the paddle. Grasp the paddle a few inches above the blade with the other hand, preferably with the thumb not encircling the paddle handle.

Bow Stroke



Reach forward, dip the paddle into the water and pull straight back until stroke is completed. At the end of the stroke, turn the flat side of the paddle parallel with the canoe and slip the paddle cleanly from the water.

Steering Stroke



Used to guide the canoe forward on a straight course. Execute the bow stroke and at its finish, pry the paddle handle against the gunwale, thus shoving the canoe away from the paddle and swinging the bow back on course.

JOYS and GLOOMS
JOY
OH, WHAT A MESS! LOOK... EVEN THE CHILDREN ARE HAPPY!
DOWN WITH HAPPINESS! COME ON, GLOOMS... LET'S GET THOSE JOYS!
OH, MOTHER... SEE THE DOG I BOUGHT WITH THE MONEY UNCLE NED GAVE ME!
SEE HERE, YOUNG MAN... I WON'T STAND FOR IT! I WILL NOT HAVE A DOG AROUND THIS HOUSE!
AW, GEE, MOTHER... PLEASE LET ME KEEP HIM!
YOU TAKE THAT DOG RIGHT BACK WHERE YOU GOT IT! THE IDEA! AS IF I DIDN'T HAVE TROUBLES ENOUGH WITHOUT A DOG!
BUT, MARY... WHY CAN'T HE KEEP IT? A DOG IS SOMETHING EVERY SMALL BOY SHOULD HAVE!
WHY DON'T YOU THINK OF ME FOR A CHANGE? YOU KNOW THAT DOG'S BARKING WOULD DRIVE ME CRAZY... WITH THESE HEADACHES I'VE BEEN HAVING!
GLOOMS
AND YOU KNOW HOW NERVOUS I AM... YET YOU NEVER SHOW ME ANY SYMPATHY!
WELL, IT'S HARD TO BE SYMPATHETIC.... WHEN YOU WON'T DO ANYTHING THE DOCTOR TOLD YOU TO DO!
HE TOLD YOU YOUR HEADACHES AND NERVOUSNESS WERE CAUSED BY COFFEE-NERVES... AND HE TOLD YOU HOW TO GET RID OF THEM!
WHY DON'T YOU QUIT COFFEE FOR 30 DAYS AND DRINK POSTUM INSTEAD... AS THE DOCTOR SUGGESTED?
OH, ALL RIGHT... I'LL TRY IT!
BEAT IT, MEN... WE'RE LICKED!
WHAT A DELICIOUS DRINK! WISH I HAD SWITCHED TO POSTUM LONG AGO!
30 DAYS LATER
WHAT A HAPPY HOME THIS HAS BEEN SINCE MOTHER GOT RID OF HER HEADACHES AND NERVOUSNESS!
YOU BET, SWITCHING TO POSTUM MADE HER A DIFFERENT WOMAN!
YOUR MONEY BACK... IF SWITCHING TO POSTUM DOESN'T HELP YOU!

If you are one of those who cannot safely drink coffee... try Postum's 30-day test. Buy a can of Postum and drink it instead of coffee for a full month.

If... at the end of the next 30 days... you do not feel better, return the top of the Postum container to General Foods, Battle Creek, Michigan, and we will cheerfully refund the full purchase price, plus postage! (If you live in Canada, address General Foods, Ltd., Cobourg, Ont.)

All we ask is that you give Postum a fair trial... that you drink it for the full 30 days!

Postum, you see, contains no caffein. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. Postum comes in two forms ... Postum Cereal, the kind you boil or percolate... and Instant Postum, made instantly in the cup. Either way, it is economical, easy to make and delicious. You may miss coffee at first, but after 30 days, you'll love Postum for its own rich, full-bodied flavor. Postum is a product of General Foods.

(Offer expires Dec. 31, 1937.)

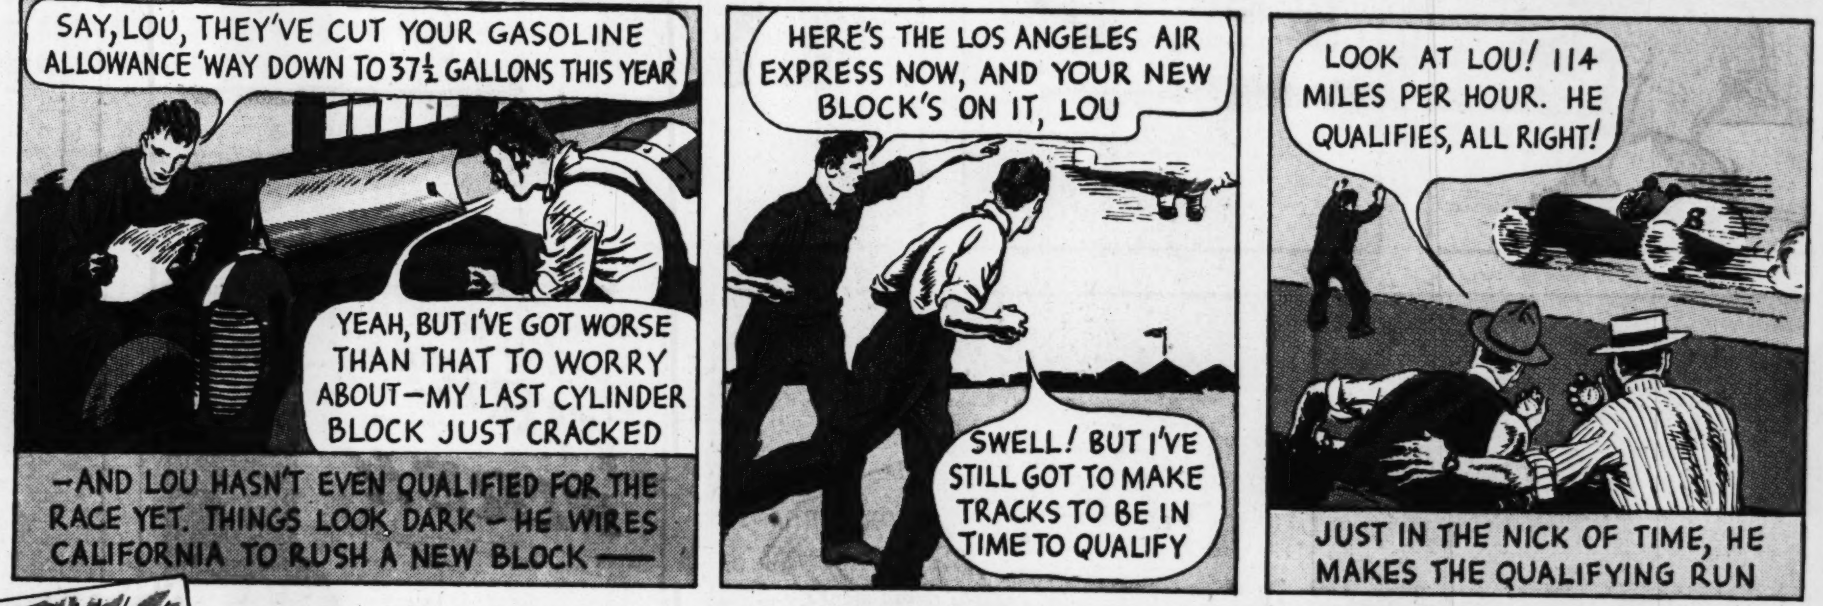
STEEL-NERVED
-LOU MEYER
THE ONLY 3-TIME WINNER OF
THE 500-MILE INDIANAPOLIS AUTO CLASSIC
The Indianapolis Race
TROPHY

WITHOUT ACTUALLY BEING IN THE DRIVER'S SEAT, IT'S HARD TO REALIZE WHAT LOU IS UP AGAINST. ANYTHING CAN HAPPEN—BEFORE THE RACE AND DURING THE RACE. VICTORY IN THIS 500-MILE GRIND IS CERTAIN PROOF OF HEALTHY NERVES AND GOOD PHYSICAL CONDITION. AS A CAMEL SMOKER, LOU HAS REASON TO APPRECIATE CAMEL'S EXCEPTIONAL MILDNESS. "I SMOKE AS OFTEN AS I LIKE AND THEY DON'T AFFECT MY PHYSICAL CONDITION OR GET ON MY NERVES," SAYS LOU. LET'S GO BACK NOW TO A NIGHT LAST MAY ———



SAY, LOU, THEY'VE CUT YOUR GASOLINE ALLOWANCE 'WAY DOWN TO 37½ GALLONS THIS YEAR YEAH, BUT I'VE GOT WORSE THAN THAT TO WORRY ABOUT—MY LAST CYLINDER BLOCK JUST CRACKED
—AND LOU HASN'T EVEN QUALIFIED FOR THE RACE YET. THINGS LOOK DARK—HE WIRES CALIFORNIA TO RUSH A NEW BLOCK——
HERE'S THE LOS ANGELES AIR EXPRESS NOW, AND YOUR NEW BLOCK'S ON IT, LOU SWELL! BUT I'VE STILL GOT TO MAKE TRACKS TO BE IN TIME TO QUALIFY
LOOK AT LOU! 114 MILES PER HOUR. HE QUALIFIES, ALL RIGHT!

WELL, NOTHING TO DO BUT RIP THE MOTOR APART AND WORK LIKE BLAZES TO GET IT READY FOR TOMORROW
BANG!
BANG!!
THEN— THE EVE OF THE RACE—MISFORTUNE STRIKES AGAIN—
THE BIG DAY COMES. IN SPITE OF WORRY, TENSION, FATIGUE, LOU MEYER EATS A HEARTY BREAKFAST—SMOKES SOME CAMELS, AND ENJOYS HIS CUSTOMARY GOOD DIGESTION
HEY, LOU, FOR A GUY THAT'S WORKED ALL NIGHT AND HAS A BIG RACE COMING UP, YOU CERTAINLY PACK AWAY A MAN-SIZE BREAKFAST
SURE-SEE THESE CAMELS? THEY'RE A BIG HELP TO MY DIGESTION WHEN I'M WORN OUT AND UNDER STRAIN
HERE COMES MEYER, STREAKING UP TO THE FRONT
THE BIG RACE IS ON! AS EARLY AS LAP 4, ONE DRIVER BURNS OUT A PISTON—GOES OUT OF THE RACE. CLUTCH TROUBLE, OIL LEAKS, TRANSMISSION TROUBLE, BROKEN ENGINE SUPPORTS, BROKEN CRANK SHAFTS, DROP ELEVEN DRIVERS OUT OF THE RACE. BUT MEYER KEEPS STEADFASTLY ON——NURSING HIS SKIMPY GAS ALLOWANCE
AT THE HALF-WAY POINT, MEYER IS IN THE LEAD—BUT THE OTHER DRIVERS ARE DOGGING HIS TAIL. COMING INTO THE STRAIGHT-AWAY ON THE 119th LAP, A BROKEN CRANK SHAFT BLOCKS ANOTHER DRIVER'S REAR WHEEL, CATAPULTING HIS CAR INTO THE GUARD RAIL
LOUIS MEYER
LAP 131
MEYER IS FORCED TO REFUEL AND LOSES THE LEAD. BUT WITH A BLAZING SPEED OF 109.256 MILES PER HOUR HE REGAINS THE PACE-MAKING POSITION
23
LAP 190
ONE BY ONE, SEVEN MORE DRIVERS DROP OUT. THEY COULDN'T MAKE THEIR LIMITED GAS SUPPLY LAST
THE FINISH! LOU STREAKS BY THE CHECKERED FLAG TO WIN, WITH AN AVERAGE SPEED OF 109.069 MILES PER HOUR, SHATTERING ALL PREVIOUS RECORDS—

I'LL SAY CAMELS SET YOU RIGHT, ANY TIME OR PLACE! AND THAT GOES DOUBLE AT MEALTIMES. EVEN AFTER A RACE, AND ALL THE POUNDING I GET IN IT, I'LL HAND IT TO CAMELS FOR SETTING MY DIGESTION TO RIGHTS. TO MY WAY OF THINKING, THAT CAMEL FLAVOR IS UNBEATABLE

THERE'S A REASON WHY SO MANY PEOPLE WHO MAKE THEIR MARK IN THE WORLD CHOOSE CAMELS. IT'S CAMELS THEY TURN TO FOR AN INVIGORATING "LIFT," FOR TASTE, AND MILDNESS. THEY ENJOY CAMELS AT MEALTIMES FOR THE AID THEY GIVE DIGESTION. BY SPEEDING UP THE FLOW OF DIGESTIVE FLUIDS—INCREASING ALKALINITY—CAMELS HELP YOU ENJOY A SENSE OF WELL-BEING WHILE EATING AND AFTERWARDS. AND CAMELS DON'T IRRITATE THE THROAT.

UILTY PLEA OPEN TH KANSAS CIT OTE FRAUD TRIAL

tered by George Arnold, Democratic Election Judge — Sentence Deferred by Judge Reeves.

OTHERS, INCLUDING WOMAN, FACE JURY

ifth Defendant Expected to Testify for Government, Prosecutor Says in Opening Statement.

the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 17.—e first plea of guilty in the Government's campaign against vote aud conspiracy here marked the ening of the seventh vote fraud al here today.

The plea, entered by George Arld, Democratic Judge in the Seventh Precinct of the Twelfth Ward, s accepted by United States Disct Judge Albert L. Reeves. Sene was deferred until comple- of the trial of the other four fendants from the same precinct. Those facing trial today are Gene ley, Democratic judge; Mrs. ne Ervin, Republican clerk; Rob Strohm, Democratic precinct ptain, and Thomas Audley, Demotic inside challenger.

A jury was completed this afteron after Judge Reeves overruled defense motion to quash the intment, and a defense demurrer. n his opening statement United tes District Attorney Maurice Milligan charged that Mrs. Fran- Ryan, Democratic committeeman for the ward, had instruct- precinct officials to count "just many" Republican ballots. He d: "Testimony will be that there s no count of the ballots."

He said he "believed" Arnold, who aded guilty, would take the wits stand and tell you how wholee fraud and corruption was praced."

Eight persons have pleaded no fense and thrown themselves on e mercy of the court in previous als, but Arnold's was the first a of guilty. Thirty-two persons ve been convicted and a jury disreed in the case of three in rlier trials.

A Federal grand jury was dised after indicting 126 on the fraud charges, and a second nd jury, which was called to tinue the investigation of the v. 3 general election, recessed t week after three days of intigation.

S. REFUSES LICENSES R NEW YORK-PARIS AIR RACE

partment of Commerce Considers Project Extra Hazardous; Not Interested in Thrills.

e Associated Press.

AKEHURST, N. J., May 17.— J. Monroe Johnson, Assistant retary of the Department of mmerce, said today the Department of Commerce had refused to ue licenses for the projected New rk to Paris trans-Atlantic air ce.

Johnson is at the U. S. naval air tion here attending the investigan of the dirigible Hindenburg aster.

Speaking of trans-oceanic air es, Johnson said:

"We consider them extra hazard-. We are trying to institute ns-Atlantic flying and don't nt to jeopardize it. We are insted in commercial aviation t has no thrills.

The air race we consider extra gerous and we are interested in ation as we would be in train or o travel."

The race was to be held in contion with the Paris International position in August, and 22 planes, presenting six nations, were ened. Among the entrants were e Italian Government planes, r French, three British and one h from Rumania and Sweden. e winner was to have been arded $50,000.

THERS, 16 AND 18, FOUND SHOT TO DEATH IN HOME

lice Have No Clew to Killing of High School Students Near Chicago.

the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 17.—The bodies William and Thomas Callihan, and 18 years old, respectively, re found last night in a suburban okfield home by another brother Robert, 9. Both were honor h school students, and Thomas s to have been graduated soon. 22 caliber pistol was found near bodies.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilm J. Callahan, could do little to p reconstruct the tragedy. Police ptain T. Chester Crosby declared was "completely mystified." The lihans also have three daugh-
